Ernest Powlison Takes Charge of Boy Scout Work

In order more fully to meet the patriotic requirements that the Federal authorities from the President down are levying upon the Boy Scouts of America plans were placed in operation in this city on Monday to make the local scout organization more potent in helping to "Win the War." On that date Ernest K. Powlison, of 46 Summit avenue, North Plainfield, took over the command of the Plainfield scout forces.

Mr. Powlison was one of the original scoutmasters in Plainfield. He became leader of the troop in the First Baptist church and has made of that scout organization one of the most efficient in the State. His work as a scoutmaster attracted the attention of the higher officers at National Headquarters and he has been requested on several occasions to write upon some of the problems arising in scoutcraft. His articles have been commented upon and by some he is looked upon as an authority on the subject of troop management.

Speaking of the future of scout-work in Plainfield, Allen E. Beals, who helped to organize the scout movement in this city, said this morning, when asked what the plans of the Scout Council were:

"The first thing to do is to try to impress upon some of our red-blooded American citizens the very real necessityo f giving an hour a week of their time toward making it possible to help groups of boys to do their part in this war winning effort. Our organization here has been built up to a membership of more than 100. In times like these we can build it up to a membership of a thousand if we have the men to serve as scoutmasters.

"There is a mistaken notion that much knowledge of scoutcraft is necessary in order to serve as scoutmasters. A scout headquarters is maintained, in charge of a paid scout executive, whose duty it is to pass upon promotion tests. This leaves the scoutmaster free from all work except that of enthusing and inspiring the boys of his troop. The normal, every day man is equipped to be a scoutmaster, but if he is a father he is even better equipped and among the things he gets in return is a very sound practical insight into boy nature and boy tendencies that helps him in meeting the problems that are bound to rise in the upbringing of his own son.

"No man ever entered into boy scout work who did not get a great deal more out of it than can be measured by the time he put into it. In the desinnation of Mr. Powlison to carry on the work of J. P. Duffy, who has taken charge of the scout movement at East Orange, there comes into office a man widely known to the men of Plainfield and who is personally known to every scout and boy ambitious of becoming a scout. An immediate enlistment for the period of the war, of fifty adult scoutmasters and as many assistant scoutmasters, the latter over eighteen years of age, will be one of the biggest patriotic contributions that the Oneen City can offer the federal authorities now."

Baker Finds Yankee Camps All Activity

That portion of France through which Secretary of War Baker is tarelling on his inspection of America's fighting forces is now seething with real American activity. Baker is greeted by cheering crowds.

The secretary investigated an inland artillery school where 500 potential officers were inspected, and after leaving these men, who will soon be directing the hurling of shells at the Germans, he visited a beautiful city in the romantic French chateau country.

Detailed facts and figures were presented to Baker all day by an officer in charge of the great United States Army organization. The secretary showed himself only a 10-minute respite from his labors, and in that twenty minutes he viewed a cathedral and a chateau erected in the days of Louis VI.

In the afternoon Baker inspected the greatest army storage station in France, nine miles square, where forty-seven days' supplies of every conceivable material may be stored ready to go to the firing line. This area includes the third largest cold storage plant in the world, which will be put in operation in May. Three huge warehouses are just beginning to be filled with the first consignments of uncountable numbers of machine guns.

The storage station was viewed from the top of a flat car, which circulated around the yards for twenty-six miles over American railway tracks which have already been built there.

On Thursday Baker visited another immense port in which great camouflaged ships were discharging everything from food to locomotives without stopping for a moment. The secretary repeated Wednesday's program with intense, lawyer-like cross examination of men working and directing operations in the vast army supply establishments. Baker kept hard at it all day.

At the first remount station, where there are 3,000 horses and mules, he became deeply interested in a surgical process to make the mules brayless so as to obviate the danger of their brays informing the enemy of their proximity to the front.

Secretary Baker was taken through huge railway shops where Philadelphia engineers were assembling big American egines. Of these 172 are already in service nearby, but 900 are yet to be assembled. Another storehouse area, four miles square, was inspected. When completed this establishment will have twenty-eight miles of trackage capable of holding 32,000 freight cars.

Both Baker and General Pershing questioned wounded from the front at the base hospital and heard personal narratives of the fighting. This was Baker's visit contact with real war. He was visibly moved.

Newark Board Still Hearing Local Appeals

Harry Lampert, Union, claimed Class IIII-C and Class IIII-D; placed in Class II-C.

Congress Discussing "Slicker" Situation

The process of eliminating bomb proof army jobs for men of draft age is under way. A few individual cases where draft age men have been favored with commissions lately, however, are still under the watchful eye of Congress and a protest is likely to be forthcoming soon if the situation is not altered.

The general plan, however, is to rid Washington of draft age officers whose places can be filled by older men or civilians and to give the youthful desk men field service.

The process cannot be carried extremely far, however. Some of the highest army officials point out that it is essential to have a vast army behind the lines and that only a comparatively small part of this stay-at home force consists of "slickers."

Six to twelve men are required to supply each soldier on the line, and there are many men at Washington, it is pointed out, who are tied to desk jobs who would prefer outside service. The present clean-up is intended to rid the army of men with sinecure commissions who have sought the desk jobs as a safety first post. Should the bill go through it would also remove many young enlisted men who are doing clerical work in munition shops in all parts of the country.

News of the Theatre

"Million Dollar Dolls" A Great Show

Something entirely new, quaintly original and thoroughly refreshing in the burlesque line is promised at the Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday, matinee and night, when the clever artists and artistes of "The Million Dollar Dolls" company make their initial bow here this season. Burlesque—not burlesque of the old time kind where the "slap-stick" alternates with stale and tiresome jokes and vulgar and suggestive dialogue, but burlesque refined, clarified, brightened and vivified until it is equal to the cleverest musical comedy or the highest class extravaganza will be introduced by a hard-working, energetic and capable company of players.

Gladys Parker, with the "Million Dollar Dolls," at the Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday, Matinee and Night, April 9.

A sparkling musical myth full of comedy spirit has been compiled especially for "The Million Dollar Dolls," entitled, "In Doll Land," and produced and staged under the personal direction of John J. Jermon. It is said that no funnier farce than this two-act musical play has ever been written. The characters are all capitally outlined and vividly contrasted. Each emphasizing a peculiar and humorous trait making the whole palatable and refreshing.

The producers have realized the need of resplendent trappings and have provided a really splendid production with elaborate scenery and stage settings in which the humorous note of comedy is most skillfully sustained throughout. There is also a large and well trained chorus of pretty, shapely young women, who will appear in new dances and intricate numbers revealing their exquisite art most bewitchingly.

CHARLEY GANO'S LATEST COMEDY CONCEPTION THROUGH THE WAR ZONE, OR DARKTOWN'S SUB-MARINE DESTROYERS.

Coming to the Plainfield Theatre, Monday, Matinee and Night, with J. A. Coburn's Greater Minstrels.

Hugo's Masterpiece "Les Miserables" A Film Attraction

William Farnum, the great American actor, will be seen next Wednesday and Thursday at the Plainfield Theatre in a stupendous screen production of Victor Hugo immortal story, "Les Miserables," made for William Fox under the direction of Frank Lloyd, who directed the making of "A Tale of Two Cities," and other big William Fox photoplays.

This picture is well termed "stupendous." It is the only real screening of the remarkable story of the conflict of man with humanity and humanity's half barbarous laws.

In the character of Jean Valjean, Mr. Farnum gives a portrayal that leaves one believing that he walked out of the book. The hard side of the man is shown in all his revengeful feeling against the world that caused him to serve nineteen years at hard labor for stealing a loaf of bread for his starving relatives. And the softer side, when he, having changed his name and become wealthy, is lending a helping hand to every one around him. Then, too, the wonderful spirit that makes him renounce the few joys he has had in life is shown in remarkable bits of acting by this master artist, William Farnum.

For this production William Fox had built in Fort Lee, N. J., a crosssection of streets in Paris. Nothing has been omitted to make the entire production realistic and true to Victor Hugo's conception.

Those who have read the book, or who know anything of Jean Valjean, are in for a rare treat when this picture is shown at the Plainfield Theatre on next Wednesday and Thursday.

Coburn's Greater Minstrels Coming

On next Monday, matinee and night, at the Plainfield Theatre, will be seen the latest edition of the popular and well known J. A. Coburn's Greater Minstrels.

The 1918 version of up-to-the-minute minstrelsy. The popularity and success of this attraction is largely due to the complete change every season, of people, program, scenery and costumes throughout and the continuous effort to provide ew and better grades of musical numbers interminged with comedy acts. Of all the delightful innovations of past years none have been as unique as this season's novel Hawaiian Club in Honolulu, at which the American All-Star Tennis Club as singers, endmen, entertainers, , present themselves for the evening's festivities.

The second part is brimful of sensational novelties, strong comedy acts and the show closes with Gano's travesty, "Darktown's Submarine Destroyers," which is said to be a scream.

Ringling's Circus Coming Here June 18

The fears of the small boy and many of his elders that war emergencies might deprive them of their greatest summer amusement, the circus, were allayed this week when Ringling Brothers' advance Car No. 1 pulled into town Monday. The men in charge announced that the "World's Greatest Shows" would make a stand in Plainfield on Tuesday, June 18, coming here "bigger, better and grander than ever." The show opens at the Coliseum, Chicago, next week, jumping East immediately after the annual spring engagement in that city.

The transporting of big circuses was one of the problems that confronted Railroad Director McAdoo when he took over the country's lines the past winter, but with the help of Ringling Brothers and other authorities a solution was arrived at. So far as possible the circus men will avoid all points where there is any freight congestion and whenever it is feasible, will make a two days' stand instead of one. Plainfield is among the few cities in the East that has been picked out for a one-day stay, principally because the New Jersey Central is able to take care of the Ringling equipment of eighty-five cars and because the city is the centre of a populace district.

Sylvester Schaefer At the Plainfield

With Sylvester Schaefer, vaudeville's most talented artist, as the bright particular star, Manager Shannon yesterday offered at the Plainfield Theatre one of the best programs he has secured this winter. Every number is a cracker jack and repeated encores prolonged the performances both afternoon and night. The bill will be retained in its entirety till tomorrow night.

Mr. Schaefer is not a newcomer to Plainfield. He was seen here two years ago at the head of his own show, filling the Plainfield Theatre for three days. In his vaudeville offering he exhibits his talents as a juggler, an acrobat, an artist, a marksman, a musician and equestrian. He brings his own beautiful horses, which are themselves a big drawing card and a supporting company of several people.

Another number on the bill is William Pinkham in characterization of allied soldiers. He appears in the costume of the men from Ireland, France, Italy and America, relating in poetry the experiences of each one on the battlefield. The act is both novel and entertaining.

The program is rounded out by the Maceo Duo, singers and dancers, and Ten Broerck and company in the comedy playlet, "At 12 o'Clock." Pathe pictures are also shown.

BARNUM AND BAILEY CIRCUS DRAWING CROWDS TO MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

The Barnum & Bailey circus now at Madison Square Garden is offering a wealth of varied attractions for old and young greater than ever before.

The circus management proudly announce that everything is new except the name and that is so well known to every city and port that it would be like slicing the world in two to separate that name from America circusdom.

Novelties galore are to be found with the big show this year. A menagerie of the wildest beasts imaginable, a regiment of clowns, numerous equestrian features, an army of performing animals from the jungles, caves and plains, popular music played by augmented bands, in fact a million things that can only be found with this "the Greatest Show on Earth."

"Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," the only Chinese spectacular pageant ever attempted by a circus, teems with life, action and color.

Three herds of elephants presented by Barnum & Bailey's first and only lady elephant trainers, are one of the features this year. There are riders of note which include The Five Hanafords, whose wonderful feats in horsemanship has never been equalled; Signor Bagonghi, Italy's comic equistrian; Fred Derrick, Orrin Davenport, who do difficult feats on the bare backs of running horses; The Clarkonians uncomparable prodigies of space; Bird Millman, who tangoes on a tight wire; Miss Lupita Perea, America's most marvelous lady gymnast; Pallenberg's Bears, who ride on bicycles, skate on rollers and do acrobatic stunts just like human beings; Dainty Marie in an aerial display is the undisputed queen of the air; the Six Neapolitans in a sensational, awe-inspiring aerial flight; the Siegrist-Silbon Troupe ,who display dangerous unrivalled aerialism; The Act Beautiful, introducing wonderful statue horses in marvelous poses; The 4 Mellfo Sisters, world's greatest lady contortionists and hand baalancers; Four Celebrated Chinese troupes and many other novel features. The Barnum & Bailey stay in the Garden is for a limited engagement.

BAIRD MAY RUN FOR SHORT SENATE TERM.

Governor Edge this week called the attention of the newspaper men to the statement issued at Atlantic City by David Baird to the effect that if his friends believe it necessary he would run for the short term for United States Senator at the November general election. The Governor said there had been stories to the effect that Mr. Baird would not be a candidate for the short term from November to March and pointed to the statement as to the inaccuracy of this view.

The Governor said there was nothing to be said as to his own position with respect to the Senatorial situation.

The Baird statement was made at Atlantic City, following a conference with Edge Sunday. The Executive followed it by saying he would talk in a few days.

Plainfield, New Jersey, Friday, April 5, 1918.

FARE INCREASE OPPOSITION FOLLOWS MAYOR'S SUGGESTION.

In common with nearly every municipality in North Jersey, Plainfield has demonstrated that it means to fight the Public Service trolley fare increase to an absolute finish. Monday night, the Common Council at the suggestion of Mayor Calkins appropriated $500 as the city's contribution toward the necessary legal fund and we have no hesitancy in saying that every local taxpayer will applaud the action. Nothing the Council has done in a long time has met with such undivided support and each member of this body can rest assured that the citizens will be back of him to a man if it should become necessary to make a second or even third appropriation because the fight is to be a just one.

Those who have stopped to scrutinize the Public Service's application for a forty per cent. trolley fare increase without transfers and an eighty per cent. increase with transfers, appreciate the fact that this corporation has not a leg to stand on in its request. Instead of getting lower, its receipts have been mounting higher and five cents is plenty enough for a ride on any of the local lines. If somewhere else in the State a road is not paying, that is no fault of Plainfield's. If the Public Service management is lax to such an extent, that it cannot pay its stockholders a fair percentage for their investment, that is no fault of Plainfield's either and the long suffering public does not propose to have the company losses gouged out of its pockets. Perhaps if some of the water was squeezed out of the Public Service stock there would be no such deficiency as claimed and the trolley-using public of this vicinity would not only have cheaper fares but better service and decent rolling stock. In its effort to secure favorable opinion for its appeal to the Public Utilities Commission, the Public Service has resorted to methods peculiar to holding concerns such as the one that has all North Jersey in its grasp. One of these is the slay form of press gagging produced by fat advertising contracts. To the discredit of some newspaper owners, it may be said that the bait has been snapped at in a number of instances, but the few isolated cases have only been with publications that do not stand high in the estimation of New Jersey's "Fourth Estate." The great majority of editors have pointed out why the trolley increase of forty and eighty per cent, should not be granted and the Public Utilities Commission must recognize the peoples' representatives or admit that it has to knuckles to the grasping, greedy corporation. At the hearings held so far, only the Public Service side of the matter has been heard direct and what President McCarter and his associates have had to say has produced nothing to substantiate the absurd claims. The legal counsel retained by the League of New Jersey Municipalities is of the highest order and can be counted upon to riddle the previous testimony full of holes, so much so that the Public Service Corporation will find that it was another useless expenditure of many thousands of dollars to advertise President McCarter's carefully prepared explanations. Already he has protested against any probe of his corporation's finances for a period of five or more years, evidently fearing the publicity that would arise from such proceeding. If all he has said about the receipts and expenditures, the cost of construction and operation and all the other details of railway financing are true, he should have no dread of the people's searchlight.

In the course of its arguments, the Public Service has told about the great jump in the pay of employes. If what has been granted to the men on the Plainfield lines is any criterion it would have been better if the executives kept silent. The only increase the motormen and conductors on the lines in this city have received since war was declared was one put in effect last January. It advanced the hourly pay of the men long in service from thirty-two cents to thirty-four cents an hour and that of beginners an addition of three cents an hour at the time they started in. That is about six and two-thirds per cent. of an increase. Think of that and then ponder over the audacity of the Public Service in trying to make the people pay forty and eighty per cent. more for their rides down town.

Some of the newspapers which sought to justify President McCarter's claims for additional cost to the company, among them our own Courier-News, pointed out that the cost of a new trolley car had risen from $4,000 to $12,000. If Plainfield people ever saw a $12,000 trolley car on the Fourth street line, the best paying one in the city, they would be afraid to ride in it. As a matter of fact, the Plainfield people have never had a chance to ride in even a $4,000 new car or any kind of a new car since the old Plainfield Street Railway went out of business. That sort of bunk won't hold water with a public that has had to travel in Newark's cast-off rolling stock ever since the Public Service pushed itself into Union county, absorbing the E., P. and C. J. inter-city system and the Plainfield Street Railway local system that were fully satisfied with the five-cent fare. The Courier-News and all the other papers falling for the Public Service sop will have to advance some better argument than that which it printed Tuesday night. The editorial article appeared in the same issue of the paper with one on another page telling how the Council appropriated $500 to help in fighting the proposed raise. Imagine that from a newspaper which is supposed to represent the people!

There is another feature of the Public Service talk about increase in operation that will not hold water in Plainfield because the people here have had sad experience in this respect. This is the expense of new construction and street improvements. The only piece of new construction we have had here in a long time is the double-tracking on East Fifth street and Watchung avenue. No need now to remind the citizens of the indignity heaped upon them by the company when doing this work. For weeks and weeks, the citizens were barred from using the streets that they have to pay for and at one point, Watchung avenue and Fourth street, the condition was a disgrace all winter. Only now is it receiving the finishing touches and only because the Public Service would not pay a decent wage to the laborers necessary. If a sufficient number of men had been put to work last fall, the job would have been ended long before the approach of winter made it necessary to suspend operations.

Out in Cleveland, O., they have to pay the same money for old and new cars as does the Public Service Corporation Steel rails and copper wire are no higher in Cleveland than they are in Plainfield. The motormen and conductors on the Cleveland lines get better pay than do those in Plainfield and yet the Cleveland public for the past seven years has been paying only three cents for its trolley rides. Recently the companies were granted permission to charge four cents for a single ride or six tickets for twenty cents and a further request for five cents a single ride or six tickets for a quarter has met with vigorous opposition. The application is to be considered under the "Taylor system," which seeks to return stockholders six per cent. on their investment and calls for a raising or lowering of fares when this is not forthcoming.

It is hard to conceive how Cleveland people can get such excellent car service, first for three cents and now for four cents when the Public Service Corporation insists it should have at least seven cents and most of the time nine cents. The demand of the New Jersey corporation is out of all reason, admitting the fact that abnormal prices prevail, and Mr. McCarter's corporation will find that it has stepped on the public's pet corn.

Plainfield is just as determined as any other city that it shall pay only a just amount for the street car service it receives and the citizens will go to the last extreme before contributing as much as four cents to help out the Public Service in its failure to make promised returns to purchasers of stock. After the corporation puts a few new cars in Plainfield and provides better accommodation a raise of ten or twenty per cent. might be considered while the war is on.

ANOTHER WAY OF HONORING THE BOYS.

The heart of every Plainfielder was made glad by the demonstration accorded the departing selectives Wednesday. It was simply grand. More than this, it was inspiring. The forty-three young men beginning the first lap in the journey toward the battlefield, were made to feel that their sacrifice was appreciated and the joy they felt was shared by the mothers, sisters and sweethearts who were being left behind. How different it all was from that regrettable departure on February 25, when sixty-eight favorite sons walked to the North avenue station, sans music, sans flag waving and sans everything that a soldier offering his life to his country has a right to feel is his. That was one black mark against the record of patriotic Plainfield, but we feel satisfied that the observances to come will eventually cover the ebon line with a streak of concealing white.

In its preparation for future send-off programs, it might be well for the Citizens' Committee to secure some better place than the old postoffice for the final assembly of the departing contingents. These rooms have lately been in a condition that is almost a disgrace. It has been filled with packing boxes and all manner of odds and ends that make it unfit for a last meeting place of those who are to enter the army. It is asking a great deal for Plainfield's fair sex to enter the rooms for the distribution of Red Cross kits and the mothers and sisters who come to listen to the farewell words of public officials, have to forget a lot of things to keep their mind on what is being said. Surely there is some better place to be had, so why not secure it? We have been informed that Columbus Hall has been offered for the last gathering and it would be most acceptable to the selectives and their friends. What has the Citizens' Committee to say about it?

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When Westervelt avenue was known as "Bay Street?"

When Spring was not officially considered here until Randolph Marsh planted potatoes on March 17?

When she wore a poke bonnet with flowers on the side and ribbons tied beneath her dimpled chin?

When the owner of an automobile had to stop his machine every half block or so in order to let a frightened horse get by?

When magnolias were plentiful in the woods on West Fourth street below "Guinea Egg" pond and the boys flocked to gather them?

When "Bill" Straton was manager of Boynton Beach and everybody looked forward to the big opening day in the middle of May?

When the first few warm days in April drew everybody toward the mountain in search of the advanced guard of "Spring beauties?"

When the arrival of any kind of new fire apparatus in town was an excuse for the volunteers to have a parade through the business district and a banquet at Laing's Hall?

When genuine jokes were perpetrated on "All Fools' " day and the unsuspecting person, forgetful of the date, was sent on an errand that kept him going from one place to another until he "got wise to himself?"

Jersey Gunners Head The List At McClellan

Statistics issued this week by Major Robert H. Kelley, division inspector at Camp McClellan, based on the results of the machine gun tests held Thursday and Friday, of last week, furnished the first basis for a comparison of the results obtained from intensive training by this branch of the service. The report submitted to Major-General Morten is a highly satisfactory one and shows all of the fourteen machine gun companies of the Twenty-ninth division to be in excellent shape for active service.

Company D, of the 113th Battalion, a unit made up of the machine gun companies of the old Second and Third Infantry Regiments, tops the list in the point standing based on inspection of equipment, close-order drill, tactical experiment, gun drill inspection of material and firing problems. This outfit, which is captained by Charles Wild, of the old Fourth Regiment, totaled 182 points, while Company C, of the 111th, headed by Captain Charles F. Silvester, of the old Second Infantry, came in fourth with 156 counters. Company B, of the 115th Battalion, with Captain Samuel Brown, of Camden, at the helm, and Company A, Captain Oliphant's old command, now headed by Captain William Doyle, of Camden, are tied for ninth place with 135 points each. The 113th Infantry Machine Gun Company is the last one on the list, thus giving Jersey the head and the tail of the table of ratings.

New Jersey secured a standing in the 104th supply train this week when Captain James M. Charles, of Plainfield, who was recently promoted to that grade from first lieutenant, was assigned to a supply company command. He was formerly supply officer of the 104th military police, going to Camp McClellan as a lieutenant in Troop D, of the cavalry squadron. The enlisted personnel of the supply train is made up largely of Virginians.

Six enlisted men of the 114th Infantry were yesterday transferred to the enlisted ordnance corps of the National Army and assigned for duty to the Gaynor Glass Works, at Salem, N. J. They are: John Simpson and William Mitchell, of Company M; Arthur Rascher, of Company F; Howard LaCount, of Headquarters Company; Earl Simmons, of Company G, and Charles Muser, of Company F.

That a number of officers are being considered for vacancies in the commissioned personnel of the 29th Division Headquarters Troop, a unit comprised of enlisted men from all parts of New Jersey, was made evident yesterday in the appointment of a board to consider recommendations for captain, first lieutenant and second lieutenant. The board consists of: Major Robert H. Kelley, division inspector; Major H. Jarmon, division range officer, and Major Hobert Brown, 104th Military Police Commander. The headquarters troop has been in command of First Lieutenant John Lane, of Hagerstown, Md., since Captain Edwin Futcuman, of Newark, was relieved last week.

Some idea of the cost of the trip Lieutenant Colonel William B. Martin's 104th Ammunition Train made to Atlanta last week for supplies was furnished yesterday in the division quartermaster's statement. It shows that $927.62 were spent for gasoline for the sixty-seven trucks; $276.43 for repairs; $36.28 for motor oil, and $70.38 for grease, making a total of $1,251.30.

The train brought back from Atlanta 100 tons of sugar, sixteen tons of rice and four tons of general merchandise. The cost table was prepared in order that the expense of train transportation might be compared with that of motor truck transportation and the former was found to be the cheaper by several hundred dollars. Colonel Martin's command has been highly commended, however, for its discipline on the 300-mile trip and also the short space of time it took to load the stores on the trucks from freight cars, this work being done in less than two hours.

Lieutenant Colonel William Carleton was yesterday relieved from duty as camp quartermaster and assigned to the 54th Infantry at Fort Oglethorpe and the following reserve officer captains have been transferred to this division to take the company commands in the (New Jersey) engineers: Ridgeway, John C. Wolf, Grant, William H. Baker. Aside the belief that several may first lieutenants would noted to take over the now without captains.

Faithful Servants Remembered In Will Of Isaac Rushmore

Martha Walker, who attended for many years as nurse, and Winnie Brown, the family cook, were both given the sum of $2,000 in recognition of their faithful service by the will of Isaac Rushmore, 89 years old, who died at his home on West Eighth street on March 21. The instrument was drawn on January 1, last, and discloses of an estate estimated at half a million dollars.

Capt. Edward T. Page, of Philadelphia, a nephew, is bequeathed $2,000 and the servants of the household are remembered by smaller bequests. Mary Cary receives $500; Annie Mulkeen, $300; Louise Wagner, $200, and Mrs. Rosa Moore, $200.

The remainder of the estate is to be divided into six equal parts and distributed among his children, Townsend and Robert Rushmore, Florence R. Hussey and Gertrude Patterson, a step-daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Mory, and a daughter-in-law, Jean M. Rushmore. His two sons are named as the executors.

Mr. Rushmore was one of the best known residents in Plainfield. For many years he was the largest milk dealer in Brooklyn, but later the business was taken over by the Borden interests.

MOSQUITO HUNTERS HAVE BIG PROBLEM.

The members of the Union County Mosquito Commission Tuesday at a meeting in the headquarters, Madison avenue, Elizabeth, planned for a number of improvements to the meadow lands about Elizabeth to further reduce the mosquito. But they struck a snag and will have to wait until Russell Gies, formerly superintendent of the commission, and James Brooks, superintendent in Essex county, can be reached before doing anything further.

To carry out the improvements it will be necessary to move the dredge and scow owned by the commission, from one part of the meadow to the other, and in order to do so a perfectly good road and railroad must be crossed. The commission is at a loss as to how the feat can be accomplished. Gies is now a captain in the sanitary corps of the army and is stationed in Kansas, but his advice and that of Brooks, who originated the type dredge and scow, will be obtained as to the moving.

Upon the recommendation of the executive committee, the commission is to have tide gates installed in the dyke at the plant of the Ozonair Chemical Company so that the water may flow in one direction. The request of the Standard Oil Company to be allowed to straighten Morses' Creek has been held up and will be decided upon at the next meeting. The American Cyanid Company will be asked to remove the dam it has constructed on the meadows near its plant because it allows mosquitoes to breed.

It was decided to make an effort to have all the engineering work done by the county engineer's office. John E. Hatfield, of Scotch Plains, a member of the entertaining committee from the Board of Freeholders, was present and said he would bring the matter up at a meeting to be held on Thursday.

It was voted to increase the salary of Charles Hiatt, who has been temporarily filling the position of superintendent, from $100 to $125 a month. An examination for the position of superintendent will be held on April 6.

ORDERED TO LEAVE TOWN.

Edward Josh, of 552 West Front street was ordered by Judge Dehn to leave town after it had been proven in the city court this morning that he had written threatening letters and otherwise annoyed a local young woman with whom he had become infatuated. Josh was warned that if he remained in Plainfield he would be fined $100 and sent to jail for fifty-nine days.

Hudson Tubes To Be Extended To Newark Meadows

By an extension of the tracks and through train service of the Hudson Tubes the United States Shipping Board proposes to solve the housing problem in the immense shipyard district of Newark Bay.

Final plans completed by A. L. Drum, transportation engineer of the Shipping Board, are now in the hands of A. H. Smith, regional director of railroads, for the completion of engineering, financial and corporate details. Work is expected to begin almost immediately, with a prospect of initial operation in three months.

Mr. Drum's plans have been approved by officials of the Shipping Board, by President Samuel Rea, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and by the following: William G. Besler, president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; President Wilbur Fisk, of the Hudson and Manhattan Tubes, the managements of the shipyards, President T. N. McCarter, of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, and Joseph P. Day, agent of the Newark Factory Sites, Inc., owners of the realty involved.

In the new system the new tracks and trains will lead to a new terminal on Lincoln Highway, in the heart of the big shipyard district, and will secure and maintain their nearly 50,000 skilled mechanics for the vital work of producting ships. This new terminal, with its ramification of tracks and its high speed trains, will attract the highest skilled laborers available and make their work attractive because they can easily live in New York city, Brooklyn or in fact anywhere they choose within an easy striking distance of the yards.

It is calculated that from the Lincoln highway terminal any man can reach Cortlandt street in sixteen minutes, Herald Square in twenty-six minutes, and Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, in thirty-one minutes.

The new terminal will be opposite the gate of the Federal Ship Company, and into it will run through trains from Cortlandt street and Herald Square over the newly constructed tracks which emerge from the tubes. From their terminal the present street railway tracks will be extended south over Avenue R, Newark, passing by the large chemical manufacturing plants and up to the Submarine Boat Company on the Passaic River. Those for those who prefer to live in Newark a further electric surface extension is to be made into that city from the Submarine Boat Company.

"Smiths" In Service An Army All Alone

The "Smith," a might man is he, for he is over 100,000 strong on the files of the Bureau of War Risks Insurance. Fighting John Smiths stand 104 in a line; the "Bill" Smiths are 1,560 strong; the John A.'s number 300 and the Williams' have a row of index cards 200 deep. In the approximate number of 2,000,000 index cards of the bureau, every middle name, initial and extra letter or byphen, do their bit in keeping the checking going to the right address, ting straightened out; the Miller family has sent 15,000, and the Wilsons are just as strong in number. John Brown is marching on through the card index one thousand strong, and there are 1,800 "Jack" Johnsons.

Secretary McAdoo has asked that every soldier or sailor insured use great care in giving complete name and address, written legibly, for the difference between George Miller and George J. Miller is a row of 1,046 Georges.

The first man on the index now is Clayton Alcysius Aab, while the last is Joseph Zyny. Honors held this way are transient, for lately Earl Olaf Aabel has been pressing Aab for first place.

Men in Company A

found, his case will be turned over to the military authorities.

Women Who Make The Best "Conductorettes"

What kind of women make the best conductorettes? The choleric, quick tempered woman, answers the "Norddeutsche Allegemeine Zeitung," copies of which arrived at Washington this week.

This German paper made a canvass of the women on the street cars in Berlin and has scientifically catalogued and listed them for comparative efficiency tests. It has brought to light the facetious conductorette, the mother conductorette, the moveforward conductorette and the good natured conductorette.

"All these women," says the paper, "present a class who are doing their bit to enable us to hold out."

22,000 Airplanes Contracted For by Production Board

Just what may be expected from American manufacturers in production and scout and battle planes for General Pershing's forces is the deep and dark mystery of the War Administration. The latest rumor says that Howard E. Coffin, chairman of the Aircraft Production Board, is in the Middle West investigating facts which may bear out a charge that men depended upon for quick production of engines and airplanes have been losing time and profiteering.

It is known that Mr. Coffin is cognizant of the facts contained in the mysterious report on conditions in the airplane industry which Gutson Borglum, sculptor and student, has submitted to President Wilson, presumably upon the latter's request. Mr. Coffin will return to Washington Tuesday and shortly after that a clear statement will be given the public of what America is doing to place the aircraft arm of the service upon an equal footing with the other branches of General Pershing's army.

The Signal Corps has refused to give out facts which would encourage the hope of the public that the United States will have any considerable number of fliers in France this year. More than that, the Signal Corps officers have indicated clearly that all information must be given out from their offices.

The only information vouchsafed in regard to aircraft production was that the Aircraft Production Board's program called for the production of 22,000 machines; that British and French manufacturers were to deliver 4,000 machines to the expeditionary force this summer and that of the remaining 17,000, about 7,000 were to be of a light type to be used at American training camps and the other 10,000 were to be battle and bombing planes.

Members of the Aircraft Production Board visited the plant of the Standard Aero Corporation in this city and the newer plant of the company at Elizabeth during the past week. They expressed themselves as being well pleased with the progress that is being made by this organization in delivering completed machines.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

ALEXANDER MILLAR.

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends, among the latter being many prominent in transportation circles, the funeral of Alexander Millar, formerly secretary to the Union Pacific Railroad, whose death occurred Sunday night, was held Wednesday afternoon at his late home at 718 Madison avenue. The service was in charge of Rev. Howard E. Clarke, pastor of the Congregational church and was extremely simple. Miss Grace Carroll, of North Plainfield, sang two selections, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," and "Abide With Me," both of which were favorites of the deceased.

The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, many of them coming from distant points. There were set pieces from departments at the Congregational church, from friends in this city and New York and business associates in various parts of the country. The body was sent to Hyde Park, Mass., for burial in the family plot at the cemetery at that place.

Mr. Millar's death came after a long illness produced by chronic rheumatism. This ailment led to various complicating troubles that caused him much pain and suffering but did not confine him strictly to his home until about a week before the end. It was then realized that his condition was becoming acute and despite every medical attention, the rheumatic affection could not be kept from the heart.

Mr. Millar was a native of Scotland, having been born in that country in 1849. He came to America when a very young man, first locating at Hyde Park, Mass., a suburb of Boston, where he resided with his family for a long time. After completing his education, he entered the office of the Union Pacific Railroad Company and quickly mastered the details of railway management. His knowledge of transportation over rail routes became so broad that the late Edward H. Harriman, the railroad king of the Northwest, made him his secretary and office director. He remained with the Union Pacific and incidentally all the Harriman lines for forty-five years, retiring from active service only last summer. At the death of Mr. Harriman a few years ago, much of the re-organization of the Harriman interests, representing an estate of more than a hundred million dollars, was left to the discretion of the Plainfielder, because of the close association he had held with the well-known railroad man. Mr. Millar is known in railroad circles throughout the United States and Canada as one of the greatest exponents of system and efficiency. A short time ago, he purchased a fruit farm in Orange county, N. Y., which he intended developing as a diversion in his days of "retire." He was looking forward to locating on the farm for the spring and summer when his fatal illness began.

In Plainfield, Mr. Millar lived a life free from civic activities but was an enthusiastic about Y. M. C. A. matters. He served as a director in the local association and was a member of many important committees since first moving to this city in 1898. He was also active at the Congregational church, where at one time he held the superintendency of the Sunday-school.

Mr. Millar is survived by three daughters and three sons. They are the Misses Beasle, Ethel, Gene Millar, Harold, Walter and Alexander, Jr., all living at home.

PETER A. BRADY.

The funeral of Peter A. Brady, whose death occurred Sunday at his home at 1318 South avenue, was held in St. Mary's church Wednesday morning. Rev. Father B. M. Bogan conducted the service and the gathering of relatives and friends in attendance included many from New York city, the former home of the deceased. The floral tributes comprised numerous beautiful set pieces, one of them being from the Francis H. Leggett wholesale grocery company, of New York, by which Mr. Brady was employed. Burial was in the family plot in Calvary cemetery, Long Island.

Mr. Brady was born in New York thirty-seven years ago and entered the Leggett house when only a boy. He remained with it up to the time of his death, advancing by various stages to the position of salesman in one of the most important metropolitan districts. He came to make his home in Plainfield several years ago, through the urgings of the late Isaac Dodge, another Leggett salesman, who died at his home on Carlton avenue about two months ago.

Mr. Brady had been a sufferer from asthma and throat troubles for a long time, but was able to attend to business until the first of the year. Besides his wife, he leaves two daughters and a son, Loretta and Marcella Brady and Edward Brady. There are also two sisters surviving, the Misses Mary and Rose Brady, of New York.

JESSIE E. WHITLEY.

Jessie Elizabeth Whitley, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Whitley, of Mountain avenue, the borough, died Monday morning after a brief illness. The funeral was held at the parents' home Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 and was in charge of Rev. C. S. Gillespie. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

ERNEST G. BICKNELL, JR.

Ernest George Bicknell, Jr., son of Ernest G. and Sadie P. Bicknell, died Monday at the parents' home on Steiner place, the borough. The child was four years old. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 and was in charge of Rev. J. T. Kerr, acting pastor of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

MICHAEL DORAN.

The funeral of Michael Doran, of 159 North avenue, son of Mrs. Delia and the late Michael Doran, was held in St. Mary's church yesterday morning. Rev. Father Holsters conducted the mass of requiem in the presence of many relatives and friends. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The deceased was in his eighteenth year and died in Muhlenberg Hospital Monday morning, following an operation. He had always lived in Plainfield, was educated in St. Mary's school and at the time his illness began was employed at the Levgar factory in West Dunellen. His mother is his only surviving relative.

ELSIE RENNIE.

Elsie Rennie, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rennie, of 510 West Second street, died Sunday at the parents' home. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 in charge of Rev. Cortlandt S. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

EDWARD CAMPBELL.

Edward Campbell, the seven months' old son of Rev. D. Y. and Mrs. Lula Campbell, died Tuesday morning. The funeral was held at the parents' home at 610 West Third street, Wednesday afternoon, and burial was in Evergreen cemetery.

ARTHUR MULLEN.

Following an illness of only five days with pneumonia, death came at Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday morning, to Arthur Mullen, of 326 East Third street. He had been suffering for some time with grip and believing that he had recovered sufficiently, undertook to do some gardening at his home during one of the early warm days. The exertion brought on a relapse and pneumonia quickly developed. It was seen that he was sinking rapidly and the family physician advised his removal to the hospital.

Mr. Mullen was born at Summit forty-five years ago, coming to Plainfield in 1908. He had always resided in the East End of the city, where he was especially well acquainted. At the time his illness began he was employed in the assembly department at the Spicer plant in South Plainfield. Beside his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Miss Viola Marie Mullen.

The funeral was held at the late home on East Third street yesterday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church. The floral tributes included a set piece from the Spicer Mutual Aid Society, of which he was a member. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

REV. WM. EDGAR MONEYMAN.

At the late home on Lincoln place, the borough, yesterday morning, the last sad rites were held over the body of Rev. William Edgar Moneyman, North Plainfield's widely known and beloved clergyman, to whom death came Monday after a long period of failing health. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. J. T. Kerr, of Elizabeth, acting pastor of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Blauvelt, also of Elizabeth. The gathering of relatives and friends in attendance included a large representation of clergymen from all parts of New Jersey, many of them having been closely associated with the deceased in his ministerial career.

Discourses were made by Drs. Kerr and Blauvelt and in addition Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, offered prayer and Rev. John Y. Brook, of Trinity Reformed church, pronounced the benediction. The flowers were numerous and very beautiful, most of them coming from the congregations of local churches. Following the service, the body was taken to New Germantown for interment in the family plot.

Dr. Moneyman was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller Moneyman, and was born in New Germantown, July 26, 1839. His father was a merchant of New Germantown, and his mother, who formerly was Margaret Hedges, was originally from Chester. He received his early education at Barnet Hall Academy, New Germantown, and was prepared for college at the private school of Rev. William W. Blauvelt, D. D., of Lamington. He was graduated from Princeton College in the class of 1861, on June 1, of that year, and from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1864. He had been licensed to preach, however, by the Presbytery of Elizabeth, April 22, 1863, and was ordained as an evangelist at Rockaway, Morris county, August 23, 1865.

After declining offers of calls to Presbyterian churches at Perth Amboy, New Egypt and Beemerville and Centreville, he became stated supply at Rockaway from April, 1865, to April, 1866. He then accepted a call to Shenandoah City, Pa., continuing there from September, 1866, to October, 1869, and in that time had a church edifice built. He then ministered at Ashland, Pa., one year, when owing to a serious throat trouble he resigned.

Finding the climate of the East aggravated his throat, he decided to try the dry climate of Minnesota, and in May, 1871, he took charge of the Congregational church of Wabash, Minn. After two years he resigned to go farther West, and he then assumed charge of the Presbyterian church at Longmont, Colorado. In May, 1876, he went on to the Pacific coast, where after a year of rest at Santa Barbara, he removed to Napa, California. Not feeling able to preach, and not wishing to be idle, he took charge there of a Chinese Sunday-school, teaching it for three years. This special work greatly interested him, and he never forgot the Chinese boys and girls who were under his care.

In the fall of 1879 he returned to his parents' home at New Germantown, and in May, 1880, came to North Plainfield, where he had resided ever since. For several years he continued occasionally to preach in neighboring churches, but the condition of his vocal organs soon compelled him to give up preaching entirely.

For a long time he was the chairman of the committee on temperance in the Presbytery of Elizabeth, and also of a similar committee of the Synod of New Jersey, his reports being frequently published in tract form. From 1890 to 1905 he was, first, president, and then secretary of the Board of Health of the Borough of North Plainfield, in which position he proved peculiarly useful to the community.

As a preacher Mr. Moneyman used excellent and careful language, always rounding it upon the pure and unadulterated Gospel, and he was always listened to with close attention. Well educated and well read, he took great interest in whatever was going on in the country at large, and in this State. His entire life was pure and upright. All who knew him were his friends; he had no enemies.

Mr. Moneyman married June 27, 1865, Harriet Louisa De Hart, of Dover, thereafter his life-long companion, who survives him. There are no children. Besides his wife, he leaves two brothers and two sisters: Henry H. and Charles W. Moneyman; Mrs. Emma H. Hazen, and Miss Alice Moneyman, who all reside in Washington, D. C., except Charles W., who is in New York city; he leaves also various nephews and nieces. The Doctors Hedges, of this city, are his cousins, as also A. Van Doren Honeyman, also of this city; and Prof. John C. Van Dyke, LL. D., of New Brunswick.

Garwood Men Hit By Plainfielder's Auto

Frederick Kuhn, of West Third avenue and Frederick Stauss, of West Third avenue, Garwood, were run into by an automobile driven by Alden Buhot, of 41 Duer street, North Plainfield, in North avenue, near the Aeolian factory, Garwood, Saturday evening shortly after 10 o'clock. Stauss escaped injury, Kuhn suffered a broken arm and a severe scalp wound.

In the automobile with Buhot was Marvin Vanderbeck, also of the borough. Buhot stopped his car and took the two men to the office of Dr. J. L. Vail, in Cranford, where first aid was administered to Kuhn, after which he was brought by Buhot in his car to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment. Buhot reported the accident to the Garwood police and gave himself up. He was allowed to return to his home and told to report in court in Cranford Sunday morning.

Messrs. Buhot and Vanderbeck appeared before Judge W. R. Batchelder at that time and explained the accident. Each said that Kuhn and Stauss stepped from behind a westgoing automobile directly in front of their car, which was moving eastward. Buhot told the court his father owned the car and that the accident was unavoidable. Judge Batchelder adjourned the case until April 8, to await the results of Kuhn's injuries.

MRS. FIRTHBROOK VERY ILL.

Mrs. Mary C. Firstbrook, who has been ill for a long time, is confined to her home in a serious condition. She resides with her daughter, Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, of East Front street.

Flame Victim Buried Today

The funeral of Mrs. Emma Louise Compton, of Manning avenue, the borough, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital from the effects of burns received in an accident at her home on March 26, will be held at the family residence this afternoon at 1:30. It will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. Lewis Bond, a close friend. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Compton, who was seventy-five years old and the widow of Israel Compton, was burned while lighting a gas stove at her home. In some way her clothing brushed against the open flame and ignited so quickly she was seared from head to foot before assistance could reach her. Her cries brought her two sons rushing to her side, otherwise she might have been burned to a crisp. One of the sons had one hand severely burned in beating out the flames and had to receive "first aid" from the physician called to the house.

Mrs. Compton was hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital, where everything possible was done to save her life. It developed, however, that she had inhaled flames as well as receiving the external burns and she lingered until Tuesday afternoon before death relieved her suffering.

Mrs. Compton was widely known in this vicinity, having lived in North Plainfield for thirty years. She was a devoted member of the First Presbyterian church and was active in the women's departments for a long time. She is survived only by her two sons, Augustus and Clifford Compton, both of whom live on Manning avenue.

PERSONAL

J. Lynn McVicker and family, who have been living at 831 West Fifth street, have removed to one of the Wilson apartments at 230 Grant avenue.

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watseka, left this week for California, to continue his patriotic addresses to shipyard workers on the Pacific Coast.

Mrs. Ellen McCauley and daughter, Miss Helen Agnes McCauley, of West Third street, visited the former's daughter, Sister Ellen Marie, at the Madison convent last Sunday.

Ralph N. Arams, of 940 West Fourth street, is one of the latest Plainfield men in the service to arrive in France. He was reported back to relatives during the past week.

Erward Jonas of North avenue, and Clarence Snell of Duer street were among the Plainfield boys home from Camp Mc Clellan, Anniston, Ala., over the past week-end. Their furlough was for six days.

Mrs. George H. Batchelor, of West Seventh street, is convalescent after a serious illness with pneumonia. Her condition for a time was considered critical.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hand, of Second place, returned Monday after a ten days stay in Atlantic City. Owing to the big fire which razed at the resort early Monday morning they had considerable difficulty in getting from their hotel to the railroad station for departure at the arranged time.

Miss Ella Wirth, of Grove street, the borough, who has been a member of the teaching corps in the North Plainfield schools, left a few days ago for her former home at Lancaster, Pa., where she will enjoy a brief rest previous to beginning work in a government branch in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright, who have been residing at 634 West Fourth street, removed this week to Sachar Place.

Samuel R. Tavenor, formerly of this city, but now of Ballston Spa, N. Y., has been spending the past week with friends in town. Mr. Tavenor contemplates returning to Plainfield permanently about May 1, in order to resume his old position with the New Jersey State Highways department.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. McAfee, of 113 Oxford place, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Maude P. McAfee to William E. Briggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noble H. Briggs of Albert street. The bridegroom-elect is a member of the firm of Vogel and Briggs and is one of the city's best known young men.

Miss Dorothy Geiger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Geiger, of Washington street, is improved after an illness of more than a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nevins, of West Third street, are the parents of a fine young son who came to their home the forepart of the week. Mr. Nevin has been connected with the local trolley system as conductor for the past twenty-five years.

Mrs. Walter Droll, of PaPrk avenue, who underwent an operation at Muhlenberg hospital about three weeks ago, was again operated upon the past week. She rallied after the second ordeal and now seems to be gaining rapidly.

Rev. Dr. R. F. Y. Pierce, of New York, made the principal address at the Plainfield Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild, Wednesday night.

Sergeant Dennis O'Keeffe, of Liberty street, has resumed his position in the City Police Department, after an absence of six weeks, through illness with pneumonia.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Frances Neal, daughter of Mrs. Frances P. Neal, of Fairview avenue, the borough, to Richard Bevier Miller, of Harlem, N. Y. No date has been set for the wedding.

Two weeks ago the Record reprinted several excellent articles from "Stars and Stripes," the weekly newspaper edited and published by American soldiers on the French front. The copy of the periodical was sent to this office by Lieutenant Chalmers M. Crist, of the Dental Corps. Since then a copy of a later issue of "Stars and Stripes" from Albert Bryniarski, of Duer street, doing duty at the front as a member of the 165th Medical Corps, has been received. Of the many splendid articles contained in the second edition, we reprint the following bearing the caption, "Useful Suggestions for Boys Back Home:"

"Dear Fellow Scrappers:

"Some of us have been over here a good eight months and more. Most of us have been over for at least half that time. The rest of us have been over here for varying amounts of time, and all of us long enough to be in a position to hand you a little friendly advice about how to prepare for the trip, what to expect over here, and what not to expect. Here, then, are a few bunches from some old and seasoned campaigners:

"Throw away your 'parley-voo' books and forget all the French the Y. M. has been teaching you in your cantonment huts this winter. You won't need it. We have got the natives so well acquainted with the United States now that they understand everything we say—even when we get unduly accurate on one another's ancestry. Even if you do get stuck, there's only one way to learn French; that is to talk it, and make it up as you go along. In the course of time you'll get at least half of what you want.

"Begin to take baths right now. If you've got about six weeks before sailing time, start in to take one bath every day and two on Sunday, and manage to ring in four extra ones in between times. That will equip you with a good 52 baths, giving you an average of one a week for a year, which is the minimum prescribed by regulations. Baths in France are as hard to find as celebrators of Yom Kippur in an A. O. H. convention; so bathe while the bathing is good and handy.

"Another time-saving device. Start in writing letters now—now, while you've got time. Date them all well ahead and pack them neatly in your haversack. Then, when you get over here, your correspondence won't interfere with your touring. Just reach into your haversack and pick out one when the date on it comes around; shoot it in and have it censored, and it's done. The descriptions of France, and so forth, you can get out of any of our old letters, or out of the stuff the war correspondents send over. Don't try to be original; people don't like it. Beside, in the army individuality is a sin.

"Along the same line as letters: Have your post card photos of yourself taken before you sail. You can borrow the makeup—tin hat, gas masks and all the rest—from the guy in your regiment who's had them issued to him, or from one of the British or French instructors at your camp. Don't be photographed with an Anheuser-Busch sign for a background, or the people you send the cards to will think you've been taken prisoner. If you wait till you get over here before getting mussed in your war togs, they won't let soldiers take pictures in the first place, and in the second place you'd have trouble in getting them censored.

"Pack all the chocolate, American cigarettes, smoking and eating tobacco into your barrack bag that you can muster. Those commodities are rarer over here than minor league kings with steady jobs. If there are any good matches left in the States, throw them in, too. The matches you buy over here hit on two cylinders only, at best.

"Get used the mud. Go out and roll over in it; wallow in it, stir it into your coffee and drink it, smear your face with it, line your ears with it, use it on your meat in place of mustard, slip some of it down inside your shirt by way of the back of your neck, and plaster your hair with it. Do this once a day until you can't skip a day without feeling uncomfortable without it. Then you will be thoroughly acclimatized.

"Once up front you will live for the most part in dugouts. Dugouts are designed to keep the air of the trenches pure; all the bad air up front is collected by fatigue squads and dumped into them. To get used to dugout air, spend as much of your leave time as possible in packed movie houses, subways, Bohemian restaurants and Hoboken saloons. A combination of all of them will inoculate you pretty securely against the essence of the dugout.

"In connection with dugouts, another good thing to get used to is small space and poor light. To practice, hire a Harlem flat for at least a week before departure. In that way you will learn to use your shoulders instead of a mantelpiece when you want to put anything down, and to sleep standing up.

"Get used to night shifts. Holding a sector isn't a day job, because daylight is too public for the work you have to do. Get the habit of sleeping in the afternoon, and of getting up about cocktail-time ready to start the night's labors.

"Have your feet, teeth and eyes thoroughly looked after before you come over. If any one of the three sets is not satisfactory, don't bring it. Turn it in to the quartermaster and get a new one. This applies particularly to teeth.

"See your last musical comedy, dance your last dance and eat your last pie and doughnuts. You won't run across any of those commodities while you're over here, and it may be pleasant to look back on them. Enjoy them, then, while you can; but enjoy them lingeringly, and wring the last bit of pleasure out of them all. But don't, when you come over here, start to tell us about them, or we'll bean you!

"Put one deck of cards in every pocket you possess and one up each sleeve. In that way you will be sure to have at least one full deck to use on the ride over. There is nothing else to do, except to stand ship's guard every other day and bob for whales.

"Get the wrist watch habit, if you haven't already.

"Start in now to play three or four Janes, picking them not for looks or dancing, but for knitting capacity and ability to direct parcels in a neat, clear round hand that can't be misunderstood. In that way, and that way only, can you be sure of sweaters, socks, wristlets, mufflers and tummy bands sufficient to last out the war.

"Come on over; the going is fine!

"Yours till the Boche bust,

"THOSE WHO KNOW."

Big Reduction In Chicago's Fire Loss Under Two Platoon

F. H. Cowles, of the Metal Trading Corporation, 99 John street, who for years has been pushing the fight for the installation of the "double platoon" system in New York's Fire Department, today made public figures showing that the recent establishment of the "two-platoon" system in Chicago was accompanied by a 20 per cent reduction in the fire loss.

"And that," he explained, "comes at a time when official government figures published last week show that the fire loss in the nation during the past year increased more than $100,000,000—an enormous figure— and that the fire hazard because of enemies within has been very great."

Adoption of the "two-platoon" system was bitterly fought in Chicago, added Mr. Cowles. That city previously had the same "continuous tour of duty" system as New York. Under this system the fireman is supposedly at the fire house all the time except for a certain number of days off each month and at meals.

The "two platoon" system would work firemen in alternate shifts, so that each man would spend every other night at home with his family, and likewise every other day. The Chicago "antis" declared if this system were adopted, discipline would be broken down, the efficiency of the department disrupted, and conflagration would be sure to occur.

"Instead," said Mr. Cowles, "the two-platoon system in Chicago has *resulted in increased efficiency, gen*eral satisfaction among the men and a spirit which brings the department to a pitch of enthusiasm that saves dollars every month in cutting the fire loss down."

The figures quoted by Mr. Cowles were taken from the "Civil Service News" of Chicago, and compiled by George B. Hargen, president of that city's Firemen's Association. They show the fire loss in 1916 was $3,604,388 and was cut in 1917 to $2,785,887. This was a reduction of $818,496, or 20 per cent. In addition, the health of the firemen increased markedly, and the average time per man lost to the city through sickness was cut from 2.68 days to 1.27 days—a reduction of 52.6 per cent. Morale also improved and fewer board cases dropped from 72 to 44, or 33.4 per cent.

"The two platoon system is in successful operation in more than thirty big cities in the United States," said Mr. Cowles. "The data regarding it is easily obtainable and is indisputable. That it makes for increased efficiency cannot be denied, for it permits the men to lead normal lives instead of being virtual slaves.

"One of the arguments used against installation of the news system in New York is that the men would not give the city as much service as they do now, but the figures disprove that. Suppose a fire company has twelve men. That is its theoretical strength, but it is always shorthanded and frequently rolls to a fire with only four or five men instead of the seven or eight it is supposed to have. Some men are having their days off, others are out of the house on meal leave.

"Under the present system the fireman has one day off in five, a total of 144 hours a month; four hours a day for meals make 120 hours a month; he gets 36 hours a month of special leave, and he sleeps at least six hours a night, making 180 hours more. The total is 480 hours a month that he is not working.

"Under the two-platoon system the fireman has no time off for meals, for he breakfasts before reaching the fire house, brings his lunch, and dines after quitting. He has 14 full days off a month, a total of 420 hours. This is a saving to the city of 60 hours a month."

Ten 15,000 Ton Vessels In U. S. Shipbuilding Program

The Shipping Board is preparing for the construction of ten 15,000 ton freighters for trans-Atlantic service.

Each of these vessels is to be of the double hull type recommended by Rear Admiral Taylor for defence against submarine attack. They will be twice the average size of vessels contracted for by the Emergency Fleet Corporation and will be fitted for expeditious handling of cargo.

Contracts for the vessels will be placed just as soon as specifications are ready, and will add a total of 150,000 tons to the building program contemplated by the fleet corporation.

It will be several months before these vessels can be laid down. It will be possible to build them only in the old yards where are are navy or other ways sufficiently large to accommodate them. All ten contracts will go to one yard to simplify construction, as all will be identical and parts can be fabricated for all at the same time.

While larger than the average cargo carrying ships, these vessels will be but half the size of the famed Minnesota, probably the largest cargo vessel afloat, which is more than 600 feet long and has a "dead weight" tonnage of more than 30,000.

Motor Trucks Made Here Aid Sammies Build War Roads

"When the history of this war has been written," says D. O. Skinner, of the International Motor Company, "it will be more fully realized what a vital part good roads have played in the great struggle. At the start, motor trucks leaped to the front as the modern pacemaker of flexible transportation, and ever-increasing war needs have demanded new roads and better roads as most necessary for the proper backing up of fighting forces.

"Motor trucks by the thousands will contribute an enormous advantage to United States road engineers engaged in new construction back of our lines. It is estimated that 1,200 miles of highways will be built in 1918 by American road engineers in the rear of the firing line in France. To the special road building battalions is delegated the important task of keeping lines of communica*tion constantly open.* Mack and Saurer trucks working in conjunction with modern American road machinery will help to build new strategic lines and keep communicating roads in constant repair.

"Although France is particularly well endowed with good roads, it is often necessary for military reasons to construct many new lines. An estimate places the present mileage of French roads at one mile of road for each one and one-half square miles of ground surface. The tremendous task of keeping these roads in per*fect condition and building new ones* at the same time, can well be imagined when it is realized that so far as wear and tear are concerned war traffic is ten times as great as that on Fifth avenue, New York.

"Of course the premier object of American road construction is to provide for the immediate needs of our forces, but the work carries with it both utilitarian and historic value. When Caesar's legions poured through Gaul and into Britain and returned to Rome again, they left in their wake military roads so care*fully constructed* that many sections remain today as permanent monuments of their presence. American system and modern methods likewise promise to contribute many enduring benefits to France."

No Let Up In Coal Output This Year Mine Owners Say

To meet the fuel needs of the country, the anthracite industry makes promise to the public that there will be no let-down in the mine output during the summer, and that the same effort put forth during the winter to overcome the fearful natural obstacles then encountered, will be maintained to keep to the maximum output figures of 275,000 tons per day. In normal times there has always been a let-down in the tonnage during the heated season. Conditions will be different this year. There will be every effort not only to fill all current orders, but later in the summer, when that may have been accomplished, to further get ahead for the winter demand by getting as much coal mined, prepared and in storage as possible.

The record of shipments made by the anthracite industry bears out the promise of the operators. Last month's shipments total 8,812,082 tons as compared with 8,178,432 tons in the corresponding month of 1917. These shipments, despite the short month of February, exceeded those made in January by 174,699 tons, the increase being from the fact that the zero weather in January interfered with both mining and transportation.

This year promises to be the greatest in the history of the anthracite industry. It is obvious that the anthracite industry is making a fine record, as compared with other wartime industries in the matter of output with a reduced number of mine-workers—153,000 men to compare with the normal 1915 number of 177,000 mine-workers.

J. B. FLANNERY NOT TO "SHUT UP SHOP."

Because J. E. Flannery, the East Third street blacksmith, is minus one of his employes through resignation, the rumor has gone forth that Mr. Flannery is "going out of business." He announced, however, that he intends to continue at the same stand where he has been located for many years and that it will take more than two or three of his workmen to make him "shut up shop."

Mr. Flannery, who is known to everybody in town as "Ted," is one of the oldest blacksmiths in the city and has done practically all the fire department work for the past twenty years. The rumor that he was to retire was given considerable credence and for that reason, he is making special efforts to inform his friends and customers that there is absolutely nothing in the story.

ENLARGING HIS BUSINESS.

Clifford L. Applegate, the East Front street market man, is having the necessary alterations made to the store at 156 East Front street, which he is to add to his present place of business. The opening will take place about April 15 and Mr. Applegate will add delicatessen goods and vegetables to his large stock of meats and provisions.

It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.
The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Stokes Advises Delay In Coming Senatorial Race

In the opinion of former Governor E. C. Stokes it might be better for aspirants for the Republican nomination for United States Senate this year to wait until July before making their announcements. This was a statement made by Mr. Stokes at Trenton, Tuesday, when approached for an interview on the Senatorial situation. "You know its the horse that leads in the last lap that wins," remarked the former Governor.

Mr. Stokes was led to this remark by the comment of the interviewer that some of the Republican candidates might be distanced by former Senator Austen Colgate, of Essex, and George L. Record, of Hudson, who are already actively campaigning.

"Are you going to announce your candidacy," was the point blank question put to Stokes.

"O, I wouldn't want to say that at this time," was the answer.

However, the former State Executive intimated that he might have an interesting statement within the near future, but when asked more specifically about it, would not commit himself further.

He refused to say what transpired at the conference between himself and Governor Edge on Saturday, remarking significantly: "I see that the Governor told the newspaper men that we had a very pleasant talk, and that everything was lovely." The former Governor added that he thought the people were not very much interested in politics just at this time. G. C. Emerson, of Paterson, and Majority Leader Emerson L. Richards, of Atlantic City, were at Trenton Tuesday to confer with Governor Edge on the Senatorial matter. The Governor and his conferees, however, refused to talk in a specific way after the meeting. Richards announced that the Governor would make known his position within a few days. "We discussed the political situation and the Governor's future," said Richards.

The statement of David Baird at Atlantic City on Sunday to the effect that he will run for the short term for Senator if necessary, seemed to please the Edge leaders at Trenton this week, apparently being regarded as withdrawing the short term obstacle from the path of the Governor's candidacy. Senator Richards smiled pleasantly when he spoke about Baird's statement, and the Governor himself called it to the attention of the newspapermen.

When asked about his becoming President of the Senate and then Acting Governor next year should Edge land in the Senate, Richards said that if the Governor should win he would not have to assume his Washington duties until December of 1919, unless a special session were to be called on March 4 next, which would be unlikely. In that event he said the Acting Governor would have but a few weeks to serve before the newly elected executive would assume office.

Governor Edge has named William B. M. Burrell, of Camden, to a place on the State Board of Undertakers and Embalmers, succeeding William Stafford, of Paterson. John A. Maxwell, of Somerville, has also been named to the same board.

Latest Ban On War News Omits Casualty List

By direct order of Secretary Baker, no information concerning the American Expeditionary Force in France came from the War Department the past three days, not even to the extent of a casualty list. The order is stringent, and limits to General Pershing the right of giving out news concerning the men in France, leaving to the War Department power only to give out announcements concerning troops in this country.

The news ban was disclosed through an official announcement by the War Department, which gave no reason for the stringency of the ban. The bulletin read:

"The War Department has been notified by cable that the Secretary of War has prescribed the following rules for handling publicity of matters pertaining to troops and operations:

"First—All matters pertaining to events, persons, policies or operations abroad will only be officially given out from the headquarters, American Expeditionary Force in France.

"Second—Similar matters affecting forces at home will be given out from the War Department."

General March, acting chief of staff, and General McCain, the adjutant general, interpreted Secretary Baker's instructions as forbidding further publication of casualty lists, even in the bare form in which they have of late been given out, minus addresses. Hence, it was announced, no further casualty lists will be made public until notice.

Official information about the American force in France has been exceedingly slim. Routine casualty statements comprised the bulk. These, at first issued with addresses through the Committee on Public Information, were handled up to Wednesday by the adjutant general's office, which took over preparation of the lists after Chairman Creel, of the information committee, refused to handle them without addresses.

SEES BROTHER BEFORE HIS DEPARTURE FRO FRANCE.

Rev. Father Walter Hennessey, curate at St. Mary's church, made a hurried visit to Camp Merritt, Tuesday, Monday, for the purpose of seeing his brother, Charles Hennessey, of New Haven, Conn., previous to the latter's departure for France.

The younger man, who is but twenty-two years old, entered the service only a month ago and was stationed at Camp Devans, Mass. He volunteered for a vacancy in a casualty unit and was accordingly designated for transportation overseas. Permits to enter Camp Merritt are not given as a rule but an officer in charge gave Father Hennessey an hour and a half in which to "visit" with his relative. The clergyman made the trip to Tenafly by automobile.

Sergeant Arthur Fluck A Visitor In Town

Arthur Fluck, a former well-known Plainfielder whose home was on West Fifth street, but who has been living in East Orange for several years, was a visitor in town the forepart of the week. Mr. Fluck is now stationed at Camp Dix as a member of the 312th Machine Gun Company in which he has been made supply sergeant. His visit to Plainfield was made for the purpose of arranging some business affairs in anticipation of early departure for France.

Sergeant Fluck is the son of Edward Fluck also living at East Orange now, and was employed for many years at the Pond Tool Works. He has been in the service of Uncle Sam since last September, going to Camp Dix with the first selectives from Essex county. He is the picture of health after his winter training and declares that army life is the real thing for a fellow, after all.

DIRECTOR TELLER EXPLAINS WORKINGS OF FREEHOLDERS

George G. Teller, director of the Union County Board of Freeholders, addressed the members of the El Mora Improvement Association, Tuesday night, and explained to them the origin of the name, how the board's duties gradually have become more and more responsible and how such a board was operated at the present time.

The first board of freeholders came into existence during the reign of Queen Anne of England, Mr. Teller said, and was organized for the purpose of maintaining prisons and poorhouses. The work did not increase to any great extent until after the wonderful growth of the United States began. Then legislation was passed making it mandatory for every county to have a board of freeholders.

Mr. Teller explained how the members of the board are elected, pointing out that even the smallest of municipalities have representatives. Laws now make it mandatory, he said, for the board to provide for certain things, such as Bonnie Burn sanatorium, bridges, roads and courts.

The constant demand for better roads has caused an especial effort in Union county, said Mr. Telleer, to maintain the system in the best possible condition. He said that the advent of the automobile has caused a complete change in the method of construction as well as causing increased cost in keeping the roads in repair.

Captain And Mrs. Smith Fifty Years Wed Today

Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith, who are numbered among the best known residents of the two Plainfields, today completed fifty years of married life. The golden anniversary is being quietly observed owing to the illness of one of their sons, Edward P. T. Smith, who is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation performed a few days ago. It has been intended to hold a large gathering with relatives and friends as invited guests, but this plan has been changed to a family dinner at the couple's new home at Fairview and Watchung avenues, to which they removed from Grandview this week.

The date of the wedding of half a century ago is known to many friends of the couple and personal messages have been delivered at the Smith residence since early this morning. They came in the form of letters, postal cards, telegrams and bouquets of flowers. There were also numerous personal calls by friends of the family who wished to make sure that their congratulations reached the proper destination.

The ceremony which united Captain and Mrs. Smith in the bonds of wedlock took place at the home of the latter's parents at Tennent, Monmouth county, on April 12, 1865. The bride was Miss Jennie Di Outcalt, daughter of the late John D. Outcalt, and Margret E. Bedine, her father at the time being a Supreme Court Judge stationed at New Brunswick. The attendants were a brother and sister of the bride, Thomas Outcalt, now living at Denver, Col., and Mrs. Mary S. DeNise, of 316 West Front street, this city. There were numerous friends present but of these only few are living today. Rev. Archibald P. Cobb, who has since passed away, was the officiating clergyman.

Captain Smith's parents were Henry Smith and Sarah Pierrepont Morgan, of Robertsville, Monmouth county. Both died when William was a young man. Shortly after the outbreak of the Civil War, he enlisted in Company F, Second New Jersey Cavalry, and served with distinction for two years and four months. During his service he took part in numerous important engagements but emerged with practically no serious injury. At the present time, he is known in Grand Army circles throughout the country, attending State and national encampments as delegate for Winfield Scott Post, No. 71, of which he is the commander.

A few years after their marriage, Captain and Mrs. Smith removed to North Plainfield, first making their home on Manning avenue. Later Mr. Smith built the residence at 48 Grandview avenue, which the family occupied up to the present week. Here the couple reared their children, our sons and four daughters. They are Mrs. Sadie Wagner, of Rahway; Harry Smith, of New York; William C. Smith, Jr., Edward P. T. Smith, Arthur E. Smith, Mrs. Jennie Bergman, Mrs. T. Raymond Randolph and Miss Clara Barton Smith, all of Plainfield. Another daughter, Nina, died at the age of twelve from the effects of a fall.

William C. Smith, Jr., has been associated with his father in the contracting business, the firm having been one of the most active in Plainfield for more than a quarter of a century. The father began contracting shortly after his came to Plainfield and dozens of the finest residences and business buildings in this vicinity were erected by him. Mr. Smith is still actively engaged in the contracting field although he recently passed the allotted "three score and ten" mark in life.

Captain Smith was one of a large family but at the present time has only two sisters. They are: Mrs. Rebecca Atkinson, of Freehold, and Mrs. Mary Waites, of eyport. Mrs. Smith, beside the brother in Denver and the sister, Mrs. DeNise, mentioned previously, has two other sisters. They are Mrs. Sarah Simmers, of Craig place, North Plainfield, and Mrs. Albert L. Smalley, formerly of North Plainfield, but at the present time living at Viking, Fla.

Funeral Today Of Plainfielder Who Voted For Eighteen Presidential Candidates

William Wheeler Angell, one of the oldest residents of this city and the only voter in Plainfield who held the honor of casting a ballot for eighteen presidential candidates, died Wednesday morning at his home, 130 Arlington place. He passed his ninety-sixth birthday on March 10 last, but despite his weight of years he had enjoyed fairly good health up until a short time before the end. The funeral will be held at the late residence this afternoon and will be in charge of the Society of friends, of which he had been a lifelong member. Burial will be in the family plot at Ghent, Columbia county, N. Y.

Mr. Angell was born at Spencertown, Columbia county, N. Y., on March 10, 1822. His father was a farmer and after his marriage the son followed the same occupation at Ghent, where he resided for nearly fifty years. He sold his place because of advancing years and removed to Plainfield in 1900, making his home with a daughter.

Mr. Angell cast his first vote for Andrew Jackson in 1844 and was bitterly disappointed because his choice was defeated by James K. Polk. Every four years thereafter, however, the young Columbia county man continued to cast a ballot for a presidental candidate and he had the satisfaction of seeing most of his party prove successful. Although quite incapacitated in November, 1916, he again went to the polls and voted for Charles Evans Hughes. He was greatly perturbed at the defeat of the former justice but after war was declared was one of President Wilson's most ardent supporters despite the fact that he had always supported the Republican party and its leads.

The deceased is survived by three daughters and a son. They are: Miss Elizabeth T. H. Angell, principal of the kindergarten department at the Evergreen Avenue School; Miss Hannah Angell, of Arlington place; Mrs. George D. Hallock, of North Plainfield, and William S. Angell, of Chatham.

Novel Honor Roll For K. Of C. Service Men

A novel honor roll for members in the service is being prepared by Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, which now has a total of forty-five of its knights wearing Uncle Sam's uniforms. The "War Correspondence" committee, composed of H. P. Greenwood and Thomas Carty, is preparing the memento with the aid of Henry Brynjarski, the well-known expert photographer.

The honor roll will be in the form of an individual star bearing pictures of each one of the boys and also his military address and the branch of service to which he has been assigned for overseas duty. When completed, the valuable and interesting piece of work will be displayed in the council rooms. Messrs. Greenwood, Carty and Brynjarski are anxious to make the undertaking as thorough and reliable as possible and to that end seeks the aid of all relatives in securing photographs and data.

At the meeting of the council, Tuesday night, plans were made for a membership drive to commence at once. It was also stated that the organization would have a carnival again this year and that Brother Arthur Cannon had been appointed to secure a suitable company.

Pond Benefit Society Holds Annual Meeting

The Pond Mutual Benefit Association, composed of employes of the Pond Tool Company, held the annual meeting last Saturday night for the election of officers and receiving reports. The attendance was very large and everyone was pleased with the condition of finances and membership. The association subscribed $500 for bonds of the last Liberty Loan issue and steps were taken at Saturday's meeting to invest another $500 in the present issue.

These officers were elected: President, Edward F. Palmer; vice president, Morris Kennedy; secretary, W. C. Howes; treasurer, George H. Batchelor; trustees, Messrs. Sheridan, Dunn and Driscoll. Resolutions of regret were passed over the death of Mrs. Batchelor, wife of the treasurer, and an engrossed copy of the sentiments expressed will be sent to the bereaved officer.

LIEUT. NEAL TRANSFERRED TO NEW "TANK" CORPS.

Lieutenant Frank Neal, of 556 West Front street, who was assigned to the ordnance department after receiving his commission several months ago, has been transferred to one of the newly organized "tank" corps and yesterday was ordered to report at camp Colt, Gettysburg, Pa., by tomorrow morning. Mr. Neal will leave for that place today.

Mrs Milliken Is Summoned By Death

Mrs. L. Milliken, who for nearly half a century was a most active worker in all the vital interests in the community as well as missionary interests throughout the world, passed away at her home, 926 Central avenue, yesterday afternoon, after a long illness.

Born in Philadelphia in 1831, the memories of her childhood were most interestingly portrayed in a paper written by her for The Monday Afternoon Club, a few years ago, when she clearly pictured the changes in that great city in the last eighty years. She became a member of the club soon after it was founded in 1888. With Mrs. Bliss, the wife of one of the early pastors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, she organized the Women's Missionary Society in both that and the First Presbyterian church in this city. She was the president for eighteen years of the Foreign Society after the division of the societies into home and foreign branches. Since early childhood her life has been consecrated to her Master and her greatest joy was in service to Him.

Mrs. Milliken leaves a son, Foster Milliken, of New York, and daughter, Mrs. James W. DeGraf, of this city.

The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon and interment will be in Hillside cemetery. Rev. Howard Clarke will conduct the service and the choir of the Crescent Avenue church will sing.

Senator Runyon Mentioned For Governor's Seat

Now that Walter E. Edge has come forward and definitely announced that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, another source of speculation has been opened up for the political wiseacres in attempting to pick the possible contender for the gubernatorial seat.

State Senator William N. Runyon, of this city, is one of those being groomed for the race and rumor has it that he is willing to leave precedent behind and forego the presidency of the Senate before he attempts to land in the executive mansion at Trenton.

Another member of the state Senate is said to have ambitions to run for the Governorship on the G. O. P. ticket. He is Senator Harold G. Wells, of Bordentown. It is thought he would get the support of South Jersey political leaders.

Woodrow Wilson would like to sit in the Governor's chair as well as the others, according to rumor in Trenton. He is tiring of the job of State Comptroller and would use his political influence gathered as Republican chairman to help in securing the nomination.

The Republican problem of a Congressional candidate to succeed to the vacancy caused by the death of John H. Capelick seems to be as far from being settled as ever. The names of Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield, and Hamilton F. Kean, of Elizabeth, are still prominently mentioned. Neither of them has consented to have his candidacy announced, although it is known that Mr. Kean was present at a gathering of his supporters last week when he was urged to go into the race.

Benjamin A. Meth, county clerk of Morris county, has been picked by some observers as a possible winner.

As far as the United States senatorial question is concerned it is known what Republicans will compete for the nomination. The official announcement of Governor Edge completed the trio consisting of himself, Austen Colgate and George L. Record. Former Governor Stokes may yet decide to run, Edge and Colgate are conceded to be the leading candidates.

The State Assembly is another goal upon which the eyes of more than one is to be focused this fall. It is understood that Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield has expectations of going to the State Senate from Union county if Runyon withdraws to go in the Governor's race. That would leave one vacancy in the trio for the Republicans of the county to fill. Arthur E. Warner and Charles L. Morgan, both of Elizabeth, will probably be the party nominees again.—Elizabeth Times.

MRS. ADDIS' FUNERAL TOMORROW AFTERNOON.

The funeral of Mrs. Barbara T. Addis, wife of William H. Addis, whose death occurred at her home on Elm place Wednesday night, will be held at the family residence tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The service will be in charge of Rev. John Y. Brook and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Addis was forty-seven years old and had been ill a long time. Beside her husband, she leaves a son, Edwin Addis; a brother, Charles M. Heidt, of Ferndale, N. Y., and three sisters, Mrs. W. S. Nelson, of this city; Mrs. W. J. Buckley, of Kenoza Lake, N. Y., and Mrs. Cora J. Lirkield, of Jeffersonville, N. Y.

Loan Sales Nearing Half A Million

Plainfield's drive for its quota of $1,769,500 in the Third Liberty Loan now seems as assurred success. At noon today the sales reported were crowding close to the half million dollar mark and there is no doubt but what this point will be passed before tonight.

At the meeting of the loan committee last night it was reported that the subscriptions at the close of banking hours yesterday had amounted to $466,500. This is much in excess of the figure reported at the corresponding number of days in the second drive and the committee and citizens alike are much elated.

The enthusiasm that is now being displayed in the progress of the loan campaign undoubtedly had its beginning in the parade of last Saturday. It was one of the greatest demonstrations of the kind ever held in the city and the manner in which organizations and individuals responded to the call shows their determination to aid the government in financing its war problems. A. Willis West, chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, was more than delighted with the demonstration of Saturday and is planning other affairs to take place as the drive proceeds. Details of these will be announced next week.

A special committee, known as the "Commuter's Committee," has been organized in Plainfield to induce New York business men to buy bonds in Plainfield. During the previous two drives many Plainfielders who have offices or are employed in New York subscribed to the Liberty Loans at the New York address and in consequence Plainfield sales were cut down. The original committee was composed of ten commuters but these in turn have secured many others in endless chain fashion and the responses have been very gratifying.

Permit Denied Miss Phillips To Go Overseas

Because her brother, Kenneth Phillips, is doing active duty in France as a member of the 56and Engineers, Miss Mabelle Phillips, of Madison avenue, has been refused passports forbidding her to go abroad as a member of the Wellesley College reconstruction unit. Word to this effect came from Washington by telegram today but with the additional information that later on the military rules might be so amended as to permit of her going.

Miss Phillips, who was general secretary of the Charity Organization Society, resigned her local position after her selection as a member of the unit. Recently she was named as lader and was to have sailed for France between April 20 and 27. The refusal of the passports has been a great disappointment as her services were purely voluntary and she had made all preparations for departure.

UNION LOAN ASSOCIATION OPENS NINETY-NINTH SERIES.

A total of 677 shares were taken out in a new series, the ninety-ninth, opened by the Union Building and Loan Association at its meeting Monday night. The opening followed the close of the fifty-third series which matured after running 138 months. In this series each shareholder who had paid in sixty-nine dollars received one hundred dollars in return, the cash was paid in many instances, while in others the maturing wiped out mortgages.

The financial statement showed that the receipts and disbursements had been $115,556.09. The resources are now over $200,000 and the loans on bonds and mortgages aggregate $38,150.

The officers of the Union Building and Loan Association are as follows: President, E. M. Laing; vice president, A. D. Edgar; secretary, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, and treasurer, M. C. VanArsdale.

CHARLES MATTHEWS DIES AT BARBADOES, W. I.

Charles Matthews, former well-known resident of North Plainfield, whose home for many years was at Grove street and Prospect place, died Sunday at Barbadoes, West Indies, where he had been spending the winter. News to this effect came to Plainfield yesterday but no details of the funeral service or burial were contained in the brief message.

Mr. Matthews was 56 years old and leaves one son, Peter Matthews, who was with him at the time of death and a daughter, Mrs. B. Arrowsmith Hagaman, formerly of North Plainfield, but now of New York.

New York Firm Pays $175,000 For Sate Plant

For a consideration of $175,000, the British-American Metals Company, of 52 Vanderbilt avenue, New York, has purchased the former Manganese Steel Safe Company plant at South Second street and Clinton avenue. The deal was made through Joseph P. Day, the widely known New York realty auctioneer, and the new owners will take possession next Monday for the purpose of completing a big contract for marine hardware secured from the allied governments. It is believed that a large force of skilled workmen will be needed as soon as necessary machinery is installed.

The old Manganese plant was built in 1900 and was operated as one of Plainfield's most important industries until a few years ago, when the leading safe concerns in the country were bought out by the Mosler people of Ohio. The property then passed into the hands of the Taylor-Wharton Steel Company, of High Bridge, who have used the main factory building at odd times for special work. It was this concern which sold the place to the British-American Metals Company.

The Manganese tract comprises ten acres of ground, a main machinery building, a modern foundry and several smaller buildings. There is a frontage of 2,200 feet on the New Jersey Central and in other ways it is an ideal location for manufacturing purposes. With very little changes, the plant will be able to accommodate as many as 500 employes.

Fireman Overcome At $2,000 Garage Blaze

Joseph Miner, a fireman attached to headquarters, was overcome by smoke and damage amounting to $2,000 was occasioned by a fire in Martin's garage on Park avenue, which broke out in the culvanizing room yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. The flames spread through the main building, which suffered a $15,000 one damage in February last and were in a fair way to destroy a large amount of property when checked by the splendid work of Chief Jennings' down town force.

Miner was removed to headquarters and attended by Dr. Albert Pittis. He recovered later in the day and this morning was said to be all right.

The loss of yesterday is covered by insurance. L. Kornfeld is the owner of the building.

Church Edifice Planned For Ninth Street Corner

Steps toward the erection of an imposing church edifice at the triangular plot at East Ninth street and Prospect avenue for the congregation of the First Church of Christ Scientist were taken this week when the congregation purchased the property at that location from Mrs. F. A. Pope, of New York. The tract includes a residence which is now undergoing alterations and will be occupied by the congregation as soon as complete. Work on the new church will be erected.

The plot has a length on Prospect avenue of 200 feet and on East Ninth street of 218 feet. The rear part is indented and has a length of about 150 feet.

E. P. T. SMITH UNDERGOES OPERATION AT MUHLENBERG.

Edward P. T. Smith, of the borough, who was discharged from St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, two weeks ago, was on Saturday last removed to Muhlenberg Hospital because of a change in his condition. It was found on examination that an operation was necessary to remove a portion of one rib and clear his side of a large amount of pus. It was performed by Dr. George W. Endicott, and after rallying, the patient had continued to show signs of improvement.

Mr. Smith was first taken ill with a heavy cold and grip while working in New York. He went to St. Vincent's Hospital immediately but pleurisy developed and he was a patient at the institution for five weeks before recovering sufficiently to be brought to Plainfield.

W. R. TOWNSEND ILL.

Tax Collector William R. Townsend is confined to his home on Grove street with a heavy cold which threatened pneumonia. He is under the care of a physician and may not be able to return to his office for several days.

ROSE DECARLO.

Rose Decarlo, the infant daughter of Leonard and Lena Decarlo, of 1441 McCrea place, died last night. The funeral will be held at the parents' home at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Relatives Now Convinced Of Albert Gaub's Death

Civil Suits Aggregating $900,000 Establish Fact That Plainfield Man Was Numbered Among Victims Of Ill-fated Steamer "Frederick"

Civil actions amounting in all to $900,000, filed this week in the New York Supreme Court by relatives of men lost in the sinking of the United States ship, "Frederick," off the Orkney Islands in January, 1916, disclosed the fact that a Plainfield man was one of the many victims. He was Albert Gaub, whose home for many years was on Dver street and who has numerous relatives here on this side who entertained the belief up to now that he might eventually turn up safe. Gaub was serving as assistant engineer on the "Frederick" and when the vessel began to go down, escaped in a life boat, information to this effect having been received in a bottle cast up on the English coast. The last belief now exists that the frail craft was overturned and the Plainfield man and his companions failed to reach shore.

The relatives of nine of the crew of the ill-fated vessel have asked $140,000 each from the owners. The suits are directed against Charles W. Morse, the Continental Trading Company and the Frederick Steamship Company. Other defendants are Benjamin Morse, Mark L. Gilbert, Thomas A. Sherman, Richard O. White, Carl R. Crosby, Morris Long and George E. Collins. One of the plaintiffs is Mrs. James Robbins, of Brooklyn, whose husband was captain of the vessel.

The Frederick left New York on January 3, 1916, bound for Archangel, Russia, with supplies for the Russian Government. It is charged that Frederick had only a junk value—that she was built in 1874, and was unfit for use as an ocean going vessel.

Her fate is only recorded in messages found in a bottle on the shore of the Orkneys. One contained half a dozen messages, signed with names of known members of the crew. One message read:

"I die January 27. Goodby, my parent. My tomb is in the sea."

Another read:

"We are shipwrecked on the Frederick. I die, thinking of you, Emiperita."

These and other messages were sent to the Department of State and are on file at Washington.

First news of Gaub came from an Englishman who picked up a bottle containing one of the messages. The finder noted the name and address of the Plainfield man as one of those in the life-boat and sent word to the young man's brother, John Gaub, of Dver street, whose address was mentioned in the last message of the doomed sailors. The local relatives had heard nothing of the sinking of the "Frederick" and the letter came as a great surprise. Not wishing to give up all hope, John Gaub and the other members of the family consoled themselves with the thought that Albert might possibly have been picked up by a passing vessel or even taken to Germany by a submarine crew. As time went on and still no word came, they have resigned themselves to the belief that the young man went to a watery grave. The relatives of other victims have communicated with the Plainfielders and it is possible that they will also file a claim for damages against the steamship owners.

Albert Gaub was about thirty years old and was the son of the late Jacob and Freda Gaub, who lived on Dver street for a long time. He was a machinist by trade, having served his time at the Pond Tool Works. He was located in the lathe department under John Traynor for several years but about ten years ago secured a position in Newark. Later he shipped as a steamship engineer on a trans-Atlantic liner, leaving Baltimore and only got back to the city at long intervals. He was in Plainfield a few days before going out with the "Frederick" on the trip which she never finished.

Beside John Gaub, who is employed at the O'Sullivan's rubber plant on Park avenue, the victim of the disaster is survived by four other brothers and a sister. They are: Antone and Edward Gaub, of the borough; William Gaub, a member of the Plainfield fire department, stationed at No. 1 house; Jacob Gaub, of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Harry Dunham, of Andover, N. Y.

Sergeant Reports Six More Recruits

Recruiting Sergeant E. D. Peck, who is located at the postoffice, today reported the enlistment of six more Plainfield men making, sixteen in all since the recruiting office in this city, opened.

The latest six are the following: Joseph A. Chatterton, 23 Verdon street, assigned as machinist in the Quartermasters' Department; Joseph D. Wood, 754 St. Mary's avenue, and Angello Mastriano, 815 North avenue, assigned to Field Artillery; Emil J. Bernardinelli, 124 West Fourth street, chauffeur, Quartermasters' Department; Michael Chirelli, 213 Plainfield avenue, assigned to the coast artillery, and George Gilbert, 202 Filmore avenue, stevedore, Quartermasters' Department.

Chirelli was employed as machinist at one of the local factories and gave up the position paying him as high as forty-five dollars a week in order to enlist. Gilbert is colored and by his enlistment secures a good position as stevedore, which gives him a good chance for advancement in the Quartermasters' Department.

Sergeant Peck is in receipt of another call from the Government for recruits wanted as specialists in the Medical Corps. They include pharmacy, clerical work, cooking, use of tools, care of animals, running of motor vehicles, machinists and mechanics of all kinds. Any bright, intelligent young man who has had a common school education is eligible for acceptance and those desiring to enlist from Plainfield are requested to visit Sergeant Peck at the recruiting station in the local postoffice. The Government gives the following explanation of these special classes and where the men are sent for training:

1. Enlisted men of the Medical Department are trained at the Medical Officers' Training Camp, Fort Riley, Kansas, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and Allentown, Pa. The course of training at the two first named approximates two months. At Allentown the training is continued until such time as the individual is ordered abroad.

2. At the two schools first named there are a number of courses which train enlisted men in various specialties, as non-commissioned officers, cooks, clerks, dispensary assistants, surgical assistants, ward men and nurses, chauffeurs, gas engineers, blacksmiths, farriers, and saddlers.

3. The training uses the textbooks described in the Manual of the Medical Department, but as far as possible as this is practical. Much attention is paid to the physical development of the recruit.

4. Enlisted men are eligible to commissions in the Sanitary Corps. Many of these have so become commissioned. They are commissioned as a result of special qualifications which are various. Some are drillmasters; some are property men; some in charge of transportation sections of ambulance companies; some are officials, registrars, quartermasters of hospitals; some are psychologists; some food and nutrition men; some are sanitary engineers, etc. In fact, any man whose services are necessary to the Medical Department in any capacity may be so commissioned in the Sanitary Corps.

5. It is necessary to be a graduate doctor of medicine in order to be commissioned in the Medical Corps of the Army.

6. All applicants are enlisted only as privates; but such may soon advance as corporals and sergeants according to qualification. The technical worker in any of the mechanical industries will find in the above field of enlistment a rare opportunity. If subject to draft, no man can volunteer. Enlistment is for the period of the war only. Aliens not subjects of some country at war may enlist without declaration of intention to become citizens. Ability to speak English is the only educational qualification. If under 21 years of age, bring birth certificate or proof. This office and its auxiliary stations will gladly answer inquiries. Ask about family allowances, life insurance and probable civil service preference.

JOHN ADLEMAN A VISITOR.

John H. Adleman, for many years superintendent of the old Plainfield Street Railway previous to its absorption by the Public Service Corporation, was a visitor in town over the past week-end. He spent the time calling on old friends in the city and borough. Mr. Adleman is now living in Newark and is employed as motorman on the Plank road line between Newark and Jersey City.

LEASES PROPERTY.

Darcus Bingham, of New York, as executor in the Winchester Arm Company, has leased the Chamberlain property at 1040 Hillside avenue and will take possession April 20.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and Court Watchung, Daughters of Isabella, will receive Holy Communion in a body at the 7:30 mass in St. Mary's church next Sunday morning.

The North Plainfield Common Council is preparing to have a civic service flag flung to the breeze from the borough hall and to that end is seeking the list of all North Plainfield men in the service in order that the representative bunting might include all who are serving their country. Names can be left with Borough Collector James K. Arnold.

Guy R. Sutton, of Wadsworth, O., is now in charge of the local Y. M. C. A.'s industrial department as industrial secretary. Mr. Sutton will visit the workmen in the Plainfield manufacturing plants and will eventually work out a program for educational betterment on plans suggested by the men themselves. The new secretary has had a wide experience in this field and comes to Plainfield highly recommended. William A. Garrigues, a member of the Levgar Construction Company, is chairman of the Y. M. C. A. industrial committee.

A committee of Plainfielders has arranged for a public meeting to be held in Proctor's Theatre on Sunday, April 28, at 2:30 in the afternoon for the expressed purpose of fostering "the Americanization idea" among the new citizens recruited from the foreign element. Rev. Dr. Swahlell, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will make a patriotic address and there will be an appropriate program of national and martial hymns. The committee is composed of S. T. Carter, Jr., chairman; Miss Elsie Goddard, Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, Miss Alice Todd, Charles H. Frost, Judge J. Henry Crane, Rev. Dr. Walter J. Swahlell and Isaac Post. The Monday Afternoon Club is interested in the movement and has appointed Mrs. Lee, Miss Margaret Mead, Mrs. Noel Evans and Mrs. Elizabeth Bowen Foster as a sub-committee to aid in the program.

A brief government despatch from Washington this week informed Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Templin, of East Ninth street, that their son, Corporal Edmund M. Templin, had been wounded in France. As is customary in such messages no details were given. Corporal Templin enlisted last summer in Co. E, 7th New York National Guard regiment, and was afterward transferred to the Sixty-ninth Regiment, which was merged with the 42nd division. This division was the first to take over front line trenches and has been in active warfare for several months. The young man is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and several years ago married Miss Sarah Sanderson, also a Plainfielder and a former High School class mate.

An unoccupied house on Laramie road, belonging to Abram Kapelsohn, of Bradford avenue, caught fire in some unknown way last Sunday night and was badly damaged. When the flames were first discovered by a passer-by they were breaking through the roof and had enveloped the entire upper part of the structure before the firemen arrived in response to an alarm from box 76 at Park avenue and Randolph road. Despite the long run and the big start the blaze had gotten, Chief Jennings and his men held the loss down to about $400. On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the department answered an alarm from box 48 for a grass fire at the home of Earnest Keek at 1129 West Front street. The flames had spread to a fence and threatened a nearby barn at the time of discovery.

The plans have been completed for the first concert of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Glee Clubs to be given in the High School auditorium Thursday evening, April 24. Harvery Hindermeyer, of New York, who is director, is greatly pleased with the fine work of both the men's and women's clubs. More than 100 of the best voices in the city are taking part in the club and the concert should be one of the best ever given here by local talent. Mr. Hindermeyer and several out of town soloists will also appear on the program.

Henry DeMott, the Somerset street undertaker, has purchased from Mayor William L. Smalley, a portion of the old Dr. Penfield property at Seventh street and Park avenue. Mayor Smalley is at present having a building intended as an automobile salesroom built directly on the corner of the plot and the part passing into Mr. DeMott's possession is that directly north. It includes the former Penfield residence which is directly next the new building. It is understood that Mr. DeMott will occupy the residence himself.

A special invitation is issued to members of the various auxiliaries of the local Red Cross to work on surgical dressings at the headquarters on Watchung avenue, and thus assist greatly in the filling of the largest requisition which has ever been sent to Plainfield. The work rooms will be open each day from 9 in the morning until 6 o'clock at night, except Saturday, and on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings as well, and it is hoped that many women who are not busy in their own auxiliaries will take advantage of this opportunity to double their efforts in so worthy a cause.

Standing at Plainfield avenue and West Fourth street, Tuesday night, Patrolman Roy Martin noticed a motorcyclist approaching without any lights on his machine. Stopping the rider, the officer found that he was Elmer Stites and that he was enjoying his evening run without a 1918 license. Stites was arraigned in the city court Wednesday morning on a double charge of "lights and license" and was let off with a $2 fine.

Sebring's auditorium will be the scene of fs patriotic dance on Thursday night, April 25. The affair will be conducted by the W. A. W. Club, an auxiliary to the Daughters of America, and will be for the benefit of its war work. Venable Brothers will furnish the music.

One of the most enjoyable dances of the post-Lenten season was held in the T. A. B. Hall, Tuesday night, under the auspices of St. Mary's Social Club. It was carried out as a "barn dance," and the decorations and costumes were in keeping with this idea. Squier's orchestra furnished an excellent program of music and refreshments were served at midnight. The affair was arranged and conducted by a committee composed of Nora Regan, chairman; assisted by the Misses Mary McCauley, Kathleen Hagan, Elizabeth Mottley and Nora C. Regan.

The annual tea and exhibition of garments of the Plainfield section of the American-Labrador branch of the Needlework Guild of America will be held on Tuesday afternoon, April 15, from 2 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Percy Hamilton Stewart, 563 West Eighth street. All members who contributed either garments or money to the work of the section are cordially invited to be present and to bring their friends who are interested and may care to become members another year. This is the branch of the Needlework Guild which sends garments to Dr. Wilfred Grenfell's mission on the Labrador coast. The Plainfield section has been in existence for eight years and has increased its contribution from a few hundred garments in the beginning to over 1,700 garments, and has come to be the second largest section of the American-Labrador branch, being next only to Boston in the number of garments collected. The directors of the Plainfield section are: Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Miss Kathryn L. Bomann, Mrs. William A. Conner, Mrs. William G. Cooke, Mrs. Thomas M. Day, Mrs. F. Clyde Doane, Mrs. R. A. Fairbairn, of Westfield; Miss Lillian Fordham, Miss Priscilla W. Fraker, Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna, Miss Helen Harman, Mrs. B. Van D. Hedges, Mrs. A. VanDoren Honeyman, Mrs. Francis DeL. Hyde, Mrs. W. L. Lockwood, Mrs. S. B. Lounsbury, Miss Margaret P. Mead, Mrs. M. B. Mellor, Mrs. J. P. Stevens, Mrs. Anna Stewart, Mrs. Alfred F. H. Streuli, Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor, Mrs. A. A. Tilney, Mrs. C. B. Tyler, Mrs. W. M. Wherry, Mrs. O. C. Johnson, Mrs. A. V. Heeley, and Miss Helen Lowden and Miss Katherine A. Sargent, of New York.

More Promotions In Old Second Infantry

Promotions for enlisted men of the Second Infantry are still being made in large numbers in Major McCullough's battalion of the 113th Infantry at Camp McClellan, and the molding of the regiment has reached the stage where every deserving man has been rewarded in some way for the efficiency shown. Enlisted men are finding that advancement is rapid in the new army and the publication of the lists of promotions in the regiment is attracting considerable attention. Among those made this week are the following by Captain Harry O. Warren, commander of Company H: To be corporals: Privates Thomas McKenna, Howell R. Tettemer, Raymond E. Kitchell, of Elizabeth, and George H. Cruttendon, of Westfield. In headquarters company Corporal Frank Soriero, of Stockton, has been made a sergeant.

Captain Louis R. Page, of Philadelphia, who this week assigned to the command of Battery F, in the New Jersey field artillery, succeeding Captain Samuel English, of Camden. This battery is made up of enlisted men from the Plainfield troop in the old New Jersey Cavalry Squadron and the change in command is one of a succession the unit has undergone since organization. Captain Page is a former member of the city troop, of Philadelphia, and his connection with the heavy artillery at Camp McClellan has been marked by many incidents which have called for favorable comment from the powers that be.

Divisional orders this week assigned First Lieutenant Henry L. Lott to the sanitary detachment of the 113th Infantry, and Captain Lewis R. Jackson, of the old Fourth Infantry, has been honorably discharged from the service. Lott is a medical reserve corps man from New Jersey and Jackson has been attached to the 115th since he was relieved of the command of headquarters company.

Finger-print records of every New Jersey officer in the division will be taken within the next week, this being in compliance with a War Department order made public at Camp McClellan Tuesday. The 113th Infantry and 114th Infantry officers, together with those from the 111th Machine Gun Battalion, will be called to the 114th Regiment infirmary, and the New Jersey Artillery Regiment's infirmary will be the seat of action for the officers of the Fifty-fourth Artillery Brigade. These records will be prepared so that they may be used for identification purposes.

Action taken by the general court martial board in the case of Private J. Walsh Guire, of Trenton, for being absent from his command in the 113th Infantry without leave has aroused some serious thoughts among New Jersey soldiers who have heretofore treated this subject in a light vein. Guire will have to spend five years at hard labor in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for his offense, and Major General Morton has announced his determination to break up this practice by going the limit in all future cases of the kind. Men found guilty of theft are also receiving heavy punishment in this division.

"Just like home" is the way these fighting fellows of the Twenty-ninth express themselves when asked for an opinion of the trench wrinkled No Man's Land of Camp McClellan. "If they'd string a few bright lights and throw in a soda fountain or two we wouldn't have any trouble making ourselves believe we were back on the main street of our home town for a night."

New Jersey engineers are doing everything possible to give the trench arear of the Blue and Gray a touch of home. The latest development has come in the naming of the different lines.

The boys from the 'skeeter State are holding the front line ditches with Maryland coming up second, Delaware third, Virginia fourth, District of Columbia fifth and Washington sixth. There are no Delaware men in the division just at present.

Seven communicating trenches connect New Jersey's line with that of Maryland, and these bear the following handles: Frederick, Princeton, Roanoke, Lynchburg, Cumberland, Hoboken and Belvoir. Maryland is connected with Delaware by Elkton, Annapolis, Carroll, Georgetown and Salisbury lines, and Newark, Norfolk, Baltimore and Richmond ditches lap over the District of Columbia line and form a link between Delaware, Virginia, District of Columbia and Washington.

One of the short lines is named after Trenton, and another short line bears the Sussex county title, Haxerstown, Wilmington and Fairfax also have a representation in the short lines.

But there's that touch of home, sweet home, which a name always brings, and the boys are busy trying to familiarize themselves with the new engineer map.

Record Announces His Platform In Filing Candidacy Statement

George L. Record, one of the candidates for the Republican United States Senatorial nomination under the new corrupt practices act, on Tuesday morning filed with Secretary of State Martin a statement naming Colonel John H. Adamson, of Clifton, as his campaign manager. He also, under the same act, designated the Commercial Trust Company of New Jersey, of Jersey City, as the depository of his campaign fund.

Accompanying the statement was a declaration by Mr. Record in which he said:

"In accordance with the new corcupt practices act I have filed with the Secretary of State a certificate formally announcing my candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator at the primaries to be held September 24, and certifying that I have designated Colonel John H. Adamson, of Clifton, Passaic county, New Jersey, as my campaign manager, and the Commercial Trust Company of New Jersey, in Jersey City, as the depository of my campaign fund.

"In a series of statements it is my intention to discuss fully the platform of principles upon which I shall make my canvass for this nomination.

"I stand for the principle originally recommended at the beginning of the war by President Wilson, that the expenses of the war should be met by taxation as far as possible rather than by bond issues. I favor an eighty per cent. tax upon all profits of business concerns in excess of their pre-war profits, and an increase in income and inheritance taxes where large incomes and large fortunes are concerned, and a corresponding lessening of the tax burden upon persons of small or moderate income, and those taxes that bear heavily upon the poor.

"I favor the Government ownership of railroads, telegraphs, telephones and coal mines, and such businesses as are intimately connected with the terminals of railroads, such as warehouses, cold-storage plants and stock yards. This will lessen the price of coal and of food products.

"I also favor the proposition that no man should be allowed to hold title natural resources which are capable of adding to the production of wealth, such as coal, iron and copper mines, timber tracts and farming and city lands."

New Coal Rules Made Known By Fuel Dictator

For the purpose of clearing up a number of points that are confusing both dealers and consumers in the county, John K. English, Union county fuel administrator, at a conference with State Administrator Richard Jenkinson has promulgated a set of rules governing the distribution of coal under the plan of furnishing next winter's supply ahead of time. They are as follows:

"No anthracite coal shall be delivered except after the signing of proper application by consumer.

"Application cards shall be kept by dealers and an accurate record maintained so that reports may be made to the county administrator when requested.

"Dealers should give to consumer one-third of his anticipated requirements, less the amount he had on hand April 1, but shall give no more until each consumer willing to receive and pay for it shall have been given his one-third. However, if he requires but six tons for the season he may receive it all at one time.

"Churches, schools, laundries and other such places shall receive the same proportion as domestic consumers.

"Domestic consumer sizes shall not be delivered to factories until further notice, but representatives of industries may, by applying to the county administrator, make claim for exemption to federal administration.

"Irrespective of price paid by dealer or of receipt of orde, the charge must be thirty cents less per ton and proportionately for fraction of tons.

"Increased charge for freight must not be taken into consideration in the matter of price, as the new tariff has not yet been filed."

Local Optionists Effect Organization

A second meeting of the Plainfielders interested in putting a local option referendum before the voters of the city next November will be held at the Public Library rooms Monday night, April 22. Those who attended the initial gathering last Monday night are making earnest efforts to increase the interest in the proposition and indications promise an attendance several times as large as that first noted.

Harry W. Marshall has been made chairman of the general committee which will bring the referendum to a vote and which favors the abolition of all drinking places in Plainfield. He has picked for his immediate assistants George Perkens, G. W. V. Moy, Orra Rogers, William C. Hubbard and Nathan E. Lewis. It was stated at the meeting Monday night that the Church Co-operative Association, which brought the anti-saloon question to a vote last November, would not only take the management of the campaign this year but the members would assist individually in whatever way possible.

12,000 Skilled Men To Be Drafted Soon

Twelve thousand men skilled in special and technical lines of work will be called for service in the military draft within the next few days, according to statements at the Provost Marshal General's office at Washington today. The men needed will be alloted to various States and a quota based on the total draft registrations drawn from each.

Occupational lists from the questionnaires filed recently are being compiled by the War Department and will be ready for use soon. The lists will give the Department the benefit of an intimate knowledge of the technical qualifications of each man subject to call.

These lists, it is said, will enable the Government to use many men in special vocations who are barred from fighting because of slight defects or deficiencies.

LEAVES FOR CALIFORNIA.

Andrew R. Parkhurst, of Grant avenue, left Tuesday with a Government party slated for a speaking tour on the Pacific coast and the program for speeding up shipbuilding. Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, is the principal speaker in the party and Mr. Parkhurst will handle the news matter during the tour.

News of the Theatre

Today's Vaudeville At The Plainfield

The welcome combination of vaudeville and pictures returns to the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon after a lapse of nearly a week because of other attractions holding the boards. The bills secured by Manager Chanson to round out the week is highly recommended by the booking agents from whom it was secured. It includes Kingly and Dale, one of the best known teams in the vaudeville world, in an original comedy skit which earned them six months solid booking at the leading vaudeville houses in the country. They will bring the same elaborate wardrobe and special scenery that helped out the act when it was accorded the head line position on bills in New York and Philadelphia.

Other numbers on the program as it begins this afternoon are Doane and "Little" Doane, in a comedy novelty; Della Clark and company, in a comedy playlet, "The Price of Happiness;" Conrad and Mayo, comediennes; Hazel Crosby and Dorothy Clark, singers and dancers, and the four Dodd Draders, acrobats de luxe. On the program also will be several new film features, one of them a new Pathe News series and one of those animated cartoons that never fail to produce a succession of laughs.

The attraction at the theatre on Monday and Wednesday of next week will be the seven-act metro special production film, "Revelation," in which Madame Nazimova takes the leading role, that of Jolinc, "a daughter of joy." The screen drama was taken from Mabel Wagnell's novel, "A Sweetheart of a Thousand Years," and was produced under the personal direction of Maxwell Karger. Vaudeville numbers will be an additional attraction.

No Economizing "Roseland Girls"

War conditions have caused some burlesque producers to practice economy in their production this year, but James E. Cooper, whose "Roseland Girls" will be seen next Tuesday at the Plainfield Theatre, matinee and night, is not one of these. Mr. Cooper has figured that if the war conditions made the theatrical business poor, it would be the good shows which would get whatever business there was while the poor one swould be the ones to suffer. He consequently dealt out money for a production which would not only measure up to his customary generous tendencies but that would exceed them. He secured the very best talent for his cast, the best in eatorial display, the best in feature specialists and the very acme in scenic artistry. In the latter respect, it may be said, that he has provided a scenic production which is unusually elaborate for there are nine distinct settings and all of them of a high order. The cast is headed by that eminent comedian, Solly Ward, who has in his support Ester Delaur, assisted by Harry Coleman, Elsie Bostel, Eva Lewis, Evelyn Barnett, Hunter, Chick and Hunter and Dot Trent. "Putting It Over" and "A Whirl of The Golden West" are the two laugh riots written by Billy K. Wells for the production.

Plainfield In Move To Form Phthisis League

A meeting of representatives of Elizabeth, Plainfield, Summit, Rahway, Roselle, Roselle Park and Linden was held at the Union county court house recently for the purpose of merging the separate organizations now existing in those places into a permanent Union County Anti-Tuberculosis League. Judge Ahe J. David, of Elizabeth, was appointed as chairman of a committee to be selected that will perfect the society.

Ernest D. Easton, secretary of the State Anti-Tuberculosis League, presided over the meeting and explained the movement he is fostering to organize the small league into county organizations all over New Jersey. That has already been done in Monmouth, Burlington, Middlesex and Essex counties. Mr. Easton declared that a careful examination of the ground to be covered revealed the fact that tuberculosis is taking its toll in many places without being molested at all.

William J. McCloud, president of the Elizabeth League, and George M. Holstein, representing Plainfield, both announced that their societies are willing to give up their identity for the sake of the county organization. These are the only two active leagues in the county.

A resolution was presented at the meeting from the board of governors of the Bonnie Burn sanatorium expressing the approval of that body of the steps taken toward the establishing of a county league.

One thing that awakened the interest of all present was a survey prepared by Miss Emily H. Saydam, former Elizabeth executive secretary but now State field worker. It gave an idea of to just what extent the disease has secured a foothold in the county. It has been compiled by towns so that each locality could tell how serious the situation is. Miss Saydam read the report in detail. It is summarized as follows:

"Population of the county according to the census of 1915 was 167,-322, with an increase of 27,125 in five years. The State department of health reports for the year 1917, 543 cases of tuberculosis and 263 deaths. These figures are distributed through the county as follows:

"Elizabeth, with a population in 1915 of 82,036, had in 1917 308 cases and 160 deaths. There is an active local organization in Elizabeth, which is financed by the sale of the Red Cross seal campaign, $50 a month from the county and by private contributions. They employ three workers and conduct a clinic and are in charge of the papers of admission for the county hospital at Bonnie Burn. Their territory for the sale of the Red Cross seals extends to the following towns: Cranford, Garwood, Kenilworth, Linden, Roselle and Roselle Park, Springfield, Union and Westfield. Each of these places is visited by the Elizabeth society to investigate the patients examined at their clinic who are seeking admission to the county hospital, and it is estimated that approximately 85 per cent. of the patients under treatment at the county hospital come from Elizabeth.

"Plainfield—The second largest city in the county, had a population of 20,516 in 1915, and the State department of health reported eighty cases in 1917 and thirty-five deaths. There is an effort towards centralization of all activities along social lines in Plainfield. The offices of the Charity Organization, the Visiting Nurse Association and the Anti-Tuberculosis League being under one roof and each submitting a report, which includes tuberculosis. They conduct a clinic, an open air school, and there are five nurses engaged for the city. They are financed by the city, the Board of Education, the Board of Health, the Red Cross Seal campaign and by private funds. Their activities extend to North Plainfield, which is in Somerset county.

"Rahway, the third city in Union county, had a population of 9,568 in 1915. The State Department of Health reported in 1917 twenty-eight cases and twelve deaths. They have a civic league which supports a district nurse, who is financed by private contributions and the Red Cross seal campaign. Though there is no special activity along tuberculosis lines, the district nurse takes care of such cases and endeavors to secure sanitorium care for them at Glen Gardner and Bonnie Burn.

"Summit—The fourth city in Union county, had a population in 1915 of 9,136 and the State Department of Health reported in 1917 forty cases and nine deaths. There is no activity in Summit concerning tuberculosis, beyond the sale of Red Cross seals, which has been conduced by private individuals. This work has recently been transferred to the Co-operative Charities Association. An effort has been made by the State Anti-Tuberculosis League to establish a clinic in Summit and to that end a local committee was formed last year. Summit is well organized for constructive work and the Co-operative Charities are strong and efficient and capable of handling the tuberculosis situation.

"Westfield—The fifth city, had a population in 1915 of 8,174, reported through the State Department of Health in 1917, twenty-one cases and ten deaths. The Woman's Club supports a district nurse, who does general nursing, and the Board of Health emphasizes the good health of the town and is appreciative of the control of tuberculosis for the county by the efforts of the Elizabeth society.

"Cranford—The sixth city, had a population in 1915 of 4,967. In 1917 nine cases and eight deaths were reported. Cranford has an efficient health department and Board of Education, representative of which, in conjunction with other citizens, signify their desire to extend their activities and secure a nurse for that section. They will be glad to be represented on the proposed county league, as they do excellent work on the Red Cross seal campaign.

"Roselle—With a population in 1915 of 3,823, reported in 1917 seven cases and two deaths. Roselle, on account of its close proximity to Elizabeth, has made use of its clinic and merged its interest in the Red Cross seal campaign. They have an active Woman's Club, Clio Club, which extends its interest to Roselle Park, which place with a population of 4,327 in 1915, reported in 1917 four cases and four deaths. There is a separate municipality in each of the Roselles, but the interest in tuberculosis appears to be identical.

"Fanwood Borough and Fanwood Township—A combined population in 1915 of 2,669, and they reported in 1917 six cases and three deaths. The county physician lives in Fanwood and he is represented on the boards of health and education. The county hospital, Bonnie Burn, is not far distant, being located at Berkeley Heights.

"Garwood—Had a population in 1915 of 1,442, and reported in 1917, one case and two deaths. There is no organized effort to control tuberculosis due to the members of the sanitary board of the borough not considering it necessary.

"Hillside Township—Had a population in 1915 of 2,772 and reported in 1917 two cases and one death.

"Kenilworth—With a population of 897 in 1915, made no report to the State Department of Health or other data of deaths from tuberculosis, 1916, if it is true that a number of foreigners reside in Kenilworth and that there has been an increase in population since the last census which would indicate need of information and supervision over health matters.

"Linden Borough and Linden Township—Had a combined population in 1915 of 4,976 and reported in 1917 thirteen cases and four deaths. The Township Committee employs a social service nurse who takes care of all forms of cases requiring expert advice and whose district extends through the Standard Oil works as well as the borough and the township. Her office is in the town hall under the direct supervision of the board of health. The board of education has a worker in the schools and both these bodies co-operate with the Elizabeth society in making use of the clinic and in the sale of the Red Cross seal.

"New Providence Borough and New Providence Township—With a combined population of 1,979 in 1915, reported in 1917 nine cases and seven deaths.

"Springfield Township—With a population in 1915 of 1,619, reported through the State department of health one case and one death.

"Union Township—With a population of 3,147, reported seven cases and four deaths.

"Mountainside Borough—With a population of 421 made no report of tuberculosis."

Ackerman Statement Finds Favor With Voters of District

Both Republican and Democratic voters in the Fifth congressional district in particular and all New Jersey in general pronounced the statement of Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, relative to his chances of being a candidate to succeed the late Congressman John H. Capstick, to be one of the most masterly conceptions of the situation placed in print. In simple language that appeals to the people staggering under the heavy burdens of the war, the former Senator points out that the present is no time to indulge in petty political quibbling and that instead of fostering a primary contest that is certain to detract from the graver issues of the day, he advocates that party leaders of the district unite upon a suitable man, one who would uphold the president in the present critical stage of the gigantic struggle, and thereby accomplish a real benefaction for the citizens at large.

Mr. Ackerman has been one of the leading war workers in Plainfield since hostilities began and stands ready to continue doing more than "his bit." He points out that if the people believe he can be of more service in the House of Representatives, he is willing to accept the honor but that if he can be of more help to his country by following the same lines that he has been traversing for more than a year, he is willing to forego congressional honors. Political leaders and voters agree that Mr. Ackerman's stand is a most commendable one and has earned for him the enthusiastic applause of thousands of citizens who will rally to his support should he be named for any responsible post.

This is Mr. Ackerman's statement in full, given to a Record reporter this week on his return to the city after an extended business trip:

"The one great object at the present time is to win the war. Nothing else can be mentioned in the same class. As this is the issue above and beyond everything, else, everyone will agree, that mere partisan activities for the coming election are not only out of place, but are absolutely opposed to direct fixing of public attention and unity on the critical issues of the war because they distract and divide the population and add nothing to the strength of the country. Our thoughts, our exertions, our activities must all be centered on the boys already over there, and to all those who minister to them. While my name has been suggested as a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress in this district, it seems to me that this is a moment in history when we should put into practice the principle that has been 'more honored in the breach than in observance'—'that the office should seek the man and not the man the office.' Naturally everyone would be proud to be of congressional service at this time, but no one should for a moment inject any particular personal ambition into the situation when the whole world is so unset by the cataclysm in which we are all participants. In no event would I be a candidate to gratify any personal ambition. If, after a survey of the situation and a full consideration of the qualifications of all those who might be induced to run, the conclusion was reached that I could be of further patriotic service to the country, I would be willing to allow myself to stand for nomination and election to the House of Representatives. Since the war began I have endeavored to meet every request that has been made of me for service to the best of my ability. If I could render to do so in a less conspicuous place than as a member of congress, my personal convenience will be disregarded, but I would be delighted at the joy of that service. I am now, and always have been, willing to answer to a call to duty, for no one must be found wanting in self sacrifice at such a supreme moment in history as the present.

"Everything must be conserved toward the one end of preserving for succeeding generations the Republican institutions through which we have attained our present status in the family of nations. The thoughts each should have in mind, are what service can be rendered quickly and effectively rendered. What ability has one that should be in harness and straining towards the one great object of ending this appalling catastrophe so that the war will be won for civilization, for home, for liberty, and the world be made a safe place to live in.

"No one should be sent to the House of Representatives who would be at variance with President Wilson in his righteous aim for a complete victory of our forces in this war. Therefore, if it is not incompatible with the election laws, may I suggest that those prominent in the dominant parties in this district, meet and discuss the situation, frankly canvass the various names suggested for the position to consider those who know the needs of the district and who have vision to provide for them, endeavor to agree as to who shall represent the Fifth New Jersey District in Washington, and then be willing to vigorously back the candidate selected. There is no pleasure to be obtained in a primary contest. Engaging in an election controversy by emphasizing partisan invectives which, the graver issues for the present have cast aside accomplishes nothing. As President of the State Senate during the first year of Governor Wilson's administration I upheld, worked, facilitated, voted for all measures that commended themselves to me no matter from what source presented, and my attitude of the ast would be a criterion for the future should I ever hold office again."

Plainfield Boys Aid Loan Drive Of Alabamians

Even if they are in the army, soldiers of the Twenty-ninth Division are well aware of the fact that the third Liberty Loan has been started on its way. Civilians of Alabama are also familiar with the goal being driven at by Uncle Sam's Liberty Loan campaigners. Due to the presence of Blue and Gray guardsmen in Camp McClellan, Alabamians are displaying about three times as much interest in the present drive as they did in the previous two.

Yesterday was Liberty Loan Day in Anniston as in every city and town in Alabama, by proclamation of Governor Charles Henderson. Special trains were chartered to carry delegations to Birmingham and Anniston. Two Maryland bands and two New Jersey bands and one infantry company from the representation of New Jersey and one from Maryland's quota went to Birmingham Saturday morning in charge of Frank Lieutenant Percy Chapman, of Plainfield, and marched alongside the gray-clad veterans of the Civil War. Lieutenant Chapman delivered one of the patriotic addresses of the day's celebration, and First Lieutenant Thompson, of the United States aerial service, did some stunts in and among the clouds overhanging Birmingham in a fighting plane, he had brought from Memphis, Tenn., for the purpose.

In Anniston members of the 112th New Jersey Heavy Field Artillery, the Maryland Batteries in the 110th Light Artillery and representatives of the headquarters detachment in the Fifty-eighth Brigade staged a military exhibition in the city hall park under Brigadier-General William C. Rafferty. The program opened with a promenade of equipment and participants, the exhibition of material including: One three-inch gun, one six-inch howitzer, one truck, one six-inch shell, one six-inch shrapnel, one three-inch shell, grenades, smokeless powder, Lewis machine gun, Chauchat machine gun, Browning machine gun, Vickers machine gun, Maxim machine gun, Enfield rike, Colt machine gun, British small arms ammunition, French small arms ammunition, and camouflage.

Battery F, of Plainfield, appeared at the hall park with the six-inch guns. The big weapons were exhibited in Anniston for the first time and it was also the first opportunity many of the spectators had ever been given to view one of the guns at close range. The batterymen are still minus their motor equipment for the six inchers and big tractors were used to bring them into town.

Other events on the program included Wild West bareback riding by Sergeant Cobb, of the 58th Headquarters' Brigade Staff; harnessing, driving by teams through rows of stakes, infantry drilling by a picked platoon, mule and horse races and several novelty numbers staged by individuals.

The program was one if the biggest of its kind ever attempted in that part of the country and it served as a fitting starter for the Liberty Loan drive in Alabama.

Company F, of the 114th Infantry, headed by Captain Leonidas Coyle, of Bridgeton, won the honors in the New Jersey Brigade for the trip to Birmingham. This unit is made up almost exclusively of former Fifth Infantry soldiers and the fact that it was picked from a score of contestants reflects credit on the 114th Infantry as well as the individual unit.

"THE VICTOR" SHOWN AT COLUMBUS HALL

A stirring seven-reel moving picture entitled "The Victor," was presented in Columbus Hall yesterday afternoon and last night to two large gatherings. The story is based on the confessional and is one of absorbing interest from start to finish.

The picture will be repeated at the hall this afternoon and tonight and also tomorrow afternoon and night. It has been shown to crowded houses at an admission fee of $1.00, but has been brought to Plainfield at a maximum charge of thirty-five cents at night and twenty-five cents in the afternoon for adults. A special charge of only ten cents is made for children attending in the afternoon.

Wood Says People Should Not Be Misled

The war is going to be a hard one, a war against such efficiency "as never has been known in the world before," is Major General Leonard Wood's warning to the country, delivered at a banquet in New York.

He declared it is wicked to mislead the American people about the seriousness of the war.

"This is not a war of political parties, but of the American people," he said. "This is not a war of pseudo-brothers. It is a war of serious men, battling for a noble cause."

ILL-TIMED ACTION ON LOCAL OPTION

In the opinion of many of our citizens it seems as though the local option question might have been left over for at least another year. The city only recently passed through a hard fought campaign on the liquor question and since the majority vote showed that the people wanted the excise conditions to remain as they are there is probably nothing to be gained by going through the same stress and turmoil again

Just at this time when the energies of every man, women and child are needed for the ultimate success of our participation in the war, it seems as though the energies of the local option committee might be put to some other use. Anything that tends to divert the people's time and money into lesser channels is not conducive to the national concentration sought by President Wilson and his cabinet. Unity of thought, unity of action and unity of purpose are what are going to bring success to the American standing and Plainfield is expected to do its share.

It is true that other municipalities in New Jersey are preparing to act upon the local option referendum but they did not express an opinion on this matter as we did last fall. Mayor Calkins went to the trouble of having a special bill put through the legislature to give Plainfielders a chance to say "Yes" or "No" on the saloon question and they said "No", meaning that they were satisfied with the way things stood. The Common Council, who are the representatives of the rank and file, voted in the licenses of the eight drinking places as a result of that answer, accepting the wish of the majority. Since Plainfield acted for itself, the local option measure was put through the State legislature but it does not necessarily mean that because of this, that same plowed up ground must be gone over again. It was intended for the municipalities that could not take advantage of Plainfield's special bill and in arranging for a vote the former are only doing now what we here did in advance.

The anti-saloon campaign of last November is still too fresh in the minds of the people to need any special reference. The contest was bitter, so bitter that enmity is still borne by members of both factions. The lie was passed several times and the fair name of the city besmirched by the introduction of paid hirelings to watch the polls, the inference going broad cast that reputable citizens would stoop so low as to practice ballot box stuffing. Everything was excitment and antagonism on a purely local scale thereby switching attention from the great cause of the day—the world war.

It was believed in November 1917 that when a majority of citizens expressed the wish that Plainfield maintain its well regulated excise conditions that the question would not be forced upon the people again for at least five or ten years. Now, however, it comes back the same as ever and once again the arguments pro and con will be advanced. Should the anti-element win out on the coming occasion there is nothing to stop the saloon interests from bringing it to the fore in 1919 and thus the controversy may go on indefinite.

There is no doubt in the mind of any thinking man but what eventually national prohibition will exist on paper but these same thinkers are not enthusiastic over any more aggresion than what has been shown. The cities that passed a negative opinion upon the referendum two, three, and five years ago have not taken it up again and do not propose to while the war is on. Plainfield did its duty in geting the special bill through the legislature and acting upon the question ahead of any other municipality so why not abide by the decision as recorded. It takes time, money, energy and concentration to wage another excise campaign and these potent forces are sorely needed in support of the troops in the great battle field "Over There". The local option committee should have at least waited until the day was more opportune.

THINGS WE WOULD LIKE TO KNOW—

What's become of Bruno Grunzig?

If "April showers bring forth May flowers" what does April snow produce?

Where John Kennedy, the "reurned" U. S. soldier, gathered all his wierd dope?

From what portion of a misfit winter came yesterday's conglomeration of weather?

Why the contractors finishing the paving job on Watchung avenue failed to leave at least one side of the trolley tracks open to traffic when it could have been done without any great trouble?

If the Public Service Corporation succeeds in getting its requested eighty per cent fare increase is Plainfield to get one of those new cars costing $12,000?

When a fully equipped Ford automobile can be bought for about $400, why it is a Ford motor in a Ford chassis fixed as a tractor and without any equipment cost $885?

Why it is that all the meatless and wheatless rules are enforced on the "homeless" ones compelled to eat in hotels and restaurants, but the lucky chaps with a wife bear little or no part of the conservation program?

If the candidates who are lining up for the Congressional and Senatorial vacancies, really mean what they say or handing out promises the same way the old time politicians passed out cabbage leaves disguised as cigars?

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

Be careful with your remarks, and where you drop them, they may hit the wrong person.

Some women's idea of the ideal husband is one who can carve without getting spots upon the table cloth.

Now comes the first steps toward a local option vote next November. Before it is too late, we make the one request that we be spared those terrible statistics from Ochkosh, Wis., Waterloo, Iowa, Paoli, Kan., Umpville, Mo., and other far off towns nobody knows anything about.

The trouble about a bare-faced fib is that it frequently circulates until it becomes a baldheaded lie.

John Kenney has closed up his North avenue office but it doesn't make a whole lot of difference anyway. It was so far back in the city building the commissioner could not see individuals hauling coal from private cars received at the freight yard without any regard to the one-third supply rule.

The chap at the head of his class is usually the one that every other fellow in the class can lick.

"Lend and the world laughs with you, borrow and you borrow a loan."

We doff our caps to the people who arranged and conducted last Saturday's Liberty Loan parade. Never has the city seen such a greater display of enthusiasm or a quicker concentration of energies. Perhaps the Citizens' committee arranging send-offs for future selectives might borrow a little of the 'pep" that got that procession under way in only a few days time.

The daylight savings plan has given the boss an idea. Under the old plan, he says, the office staff had a hard job at getting in at the witching hour of nine but now they seem to make it a 8 o'clock without any trouble. Next October, he goes on to say, he is going to push the clock back on his own accord and see how it works out during the winter.

Mr. Fisk Again Tells Of Value Of Raising Hens

Former Mayor Charles A. Fisk, who owns a large poultry farm at Wilbastha and who is in authority on poultry raising, has written a number of articles on the keeping of small flocks of fowls by householders as a means of helping out the serious food situation. These articles have been appearing in the leading newspapers of the county and have attracted much attention. One of them was printed in the Record a few weeks ago and was read with interest by many Plainfield people. Since then Mr. Fisk, who now makes his home in New York, has forwarded another story on the same subject under the caption of "Poultry on the Farm a War Necessity." We take pleasure in reproducing it as follows:

Food Will Win the War.—This statement is read every day in the newspaper throughout the United States and may be seen on sign boards that have been erected in the most prominent places—Book notices.

try and in every city, town and village throughout the entire country. It has a double meaning: To the farmer, garden or stock raiser it means Produce all the food possible. To the consumer it means: Save—Buy Wisely. The United States Food Administration are asking everyone to help.

The final outcome of the war depends very largely upon the co-operation of the producers, the farmers of the United States. They are depended upon to produce food. Not only wheat, corn, barley, rye, and grain of all kinds—potatoes, beets, cabbage and vegetables;—and fruit—BUT ALSO beef, pork, mutton, lamb and Poultry. In fact—food of all kinds. The United States must not only feed its own people but must furnish the greater amount of food required to feed half the civilized world. Our farmers, numbering over 6,000,000 should be known as "The Army of Food Producers."

Poultry and Eggs are one of the most important and necessary food products and must be produced at this time in greater numbers than ever raised before in the history of the country. The little hen has become a most important factor toward winning the war—at the same time a source of revenue and profit to the owner.

Farmers and farmers' wives and children should become interested—and on every farm—according to its size—there should be a flock of from 150 to 500 fowls, of some standard bred variety. To meet the requirements desired by the United States Food Administration there should be raised at least fifteen hundred million (1,500,000,000) chickens this spring. This is three times the number usually raised. Nearly all farm crops to be harvested in the late summer and fall must be planted in the spring—this is absolutely required in raising chickens. The eggs must be laid and the chicks hatched during the months of March, April and May—the earlier the better for all the heavier or meat varieties. The Leghorns, or egg varieties do very well hatched in the first part of May.

The farmer who already has a flock of hens should raise all the chicks he can. If he has an incubator it should be started at once. He need not be afraid of hatching more chicks than he needs. The surplus can be disposed of to some of his neighbors. If he has hens, and no incubator, there may be a neighbor or some one near by with surplus incubator space—or a hatchery that will incubate his eggs for small cost. If he has no hens he should buy day-old chicks from a reliable hatchery. The poultry breeder that is located within such a distance that the chicks will reach the farm by express within 48 to 60 hours—buy a colony brooder stove—and write the Bureau of Animal Husbandry, U. S. Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C.—or the Agricultural College or Department in the States, and they will mail bulletins and full directions how to feed, care for and raise baby chicks. A poultry breeder or hatchery that is a member of the International Baby Chick Association can be depended upon to deal honorably and square.

Still another way is to purchase eggs for hatching—buy an incubator and hatch the eggs at home. This, however, is not advisable unless one has had some experience and understands running an incubator. Such beginners, however, have been known to have been very successful.

It is not the writer's intent to tell how to raise chickens, but to impress upon every person—Men—WOMEN—and even CHILDREN—owning or renting, or living on a farm, or in the rural districts—the Very Great importance and necessity at this time for raising and keeping a flock of chickens to provide meat and eggs to take the place of red meats and fats—principally the beef and pork products that must be used to feed the armies of the United States and the Allies.

Nearly half of the population of the United States live on farms—or in the rural districts. There are over 6,000,000 farmers, which, with their families, would be 25,000,000 people; and as many more living in the smaller rural communities making a population of 50,000,000 so located that chickens can be kept to an advantage and profit.

At least 1,500,000,000 chickens should be raised, and over 5,000,000,000 dozen eggs produced and sold during the year 1918—an average of 250 chickens or every farm would do the trick.

Of this amount, about two-thirds would be used for meat, either as broilers, friers, or roasters; and the balance carried over as fall and winter egg producers—and breeders the coming year.

Don't worry about any over production. That is impossible. There will be no over production—every pound of meat and every egg is needed and can be used.

The best breeds for meat are the

Five Hundred Thousand American Soldiers in France

LEND HIM A HAND

WE dare not delay the VICTORY now. American lives are at stake, our own safety, the safety of the whole world. If we are not to prolong the slaughter and the suffering, if we are not to risk defeat, or an inconclusive peace, we must act quickly; we must put forth our every effort now.

The army is doing its part. Five hundred thousand American soldiers are in France to-day. There will be more to-morrow. And more the day after. We are going to send an army large enough so that when we strike, with our Allies, we can drive the German hordes back across the Rhine—so that we can win the decisive VICTORY that will make American freedom safe, and establish a just and lasting peace.

But the whole nation must take part. Our armies in France are looking to us to furnish them, in ever greater abundance, the ordnance, the munitions, the supplies that will make their VICTORY possible. We must not fail them.

The Third Liberty Loan is our share in the winning of this war. Upon it depends the safety and success of five hundred thousand American soldiers in France.

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Hooked the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

JOHN W. MURRAY, JR.

At the late home at 315 West Fourth street, Tuesday afternoon, private funeral service was held over the body of John W. Murray, Jr., one of Plainfield's best known residents who passed away Sunday morning, after a brief illness following a succession of apoplectic strokes. The first came several weeks ago, and it seemed to his physician and family that he was improving on Friday last when a third and final attack came upon him. The funeral service was in charge of Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and was largely attended by relatives and intimate friends.

Numerous floral tributes came from various parts of the city and from New York, where Mr. Murray was prominent in the insurance district and in sporting goods circles.

During the service a quartet composed of Charles L. Lewis, William J. Tallamy, Elmer D. Cutting and Joseph C. Martin sang three selections, "Nearer My God to Thee," "Lead Kindly Light" and "Peace, Perfect Peace." Burial was in Hillside cemetery. The pall-bearers were William D. Murray, a brother of the deceased, and the following brothers-in-law: Albert A. Tilley, Townsend Rushmore, Joseph C. W. Sandford, George B. and Levi Dowley.

The death of Mr. Murray removes from the community a man who had an unlimited acquaintanceship, and who, for the mere love of the "game" gave of the best that was in him for the benefit of his home town. As a young man, he was enthusiastic in the promotion of wholesome outdoor sports, long before these pastimes were advocated by schools or religious organizations and later in life he gave up personal time and incurred impairment to his personal health by enthusiastic work as a volunteer fireman. He was quiet, unassuming and democratic but nevertheless always ready to lend his entire strength and ability to any cause which he believed might benefit a majority of citizens. At no matter what angle Mr. Murray's life may be viewed, it is apparent that he was one of the kind of which there are a very few and whose departure leaves a vacancy hard to fill.

Mr. Murray was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, of Central avenue, and was born in New York city fifty-seven years ago. The family removed to Plainfield in 1867, principally because of the excellent school advantages perfected by the late Dr. Charles H. Stillman. John Murray, Jr., completed his early education in the local grades and afterward took an academic course in the Pingry School at Elizabeth. His business career began in the New York office of the German-American Fire Insurance Company, of which his father was one of the organizers and executive head for many years. The son remained with the concern for nearly thirty years, retiring to become tax collector of Plainfield in 1906. This office he held for about two years, at which time he was succeeded by the present incumbent, William E. Townsend. Since then he had practically lived a retired life although he was connected with the New York Sporting Goods Company, later merged into a corporation known as the Baker-Murray-Imbrie Company, of New York city. For a brief period he visited the store each day but eventually allowed his interest to be an investment one alone.

When a young man attending school, Mr. Murray became an expert baseball player and organized numerous teams in Plainfield. His particular position was catcher and his work behind the bat attracted the attention of several scouts from big league teams. In the early '80's he received flattering offers to play professional ball with the Philadelphia Nationals, the Boston Nationals and several minor league teams. On the advice of his parents, however, he refrained from playing professional ball, the former believing that it was better for him to devote himself to a business career and enjoy the national game only as a pastime.

Mr. Murray gained laurels in other forms of athletics beside those of baseball. He was a crack runner and jumper and captured a trophy at city or county meets practically every year. He was also an expert billiard player and was capable of making numerous intricate shots that were eagerly sought after by experts. Mr. Murray's interest in the game was purely for diversion only although at times he listened to the pleas of friends and gave exhibitions at several of the big tourneys in New York.

Although leading a very busy life, Mr. Murray became enthusiastic over fire fighting and in 1884 was elected a member of the old Alert Hose Company, the first company in Plainfield's volunteer department which installed horses and a paid driver. Its personnel included the city's wealthiest residents who by their unlimited means built the company to one of the most efficient in the State. In 1892 Mr. Murray was made assistant chief of the Plainfield department, holding office only as an honorary position, with practically no pay. Even after the completion of the present paid system he remained as an active fire-fighter, answering every alarm when in town either day or night, and resigning only when he became tax collector in 1906. He made fire-fighting a close study and was a strong advocate of a training period for all appointees to the department. As a fire insurance official, Mr. Murray investigated many of New York's greatest conflagrations and was known to the heads of the New York department as a man whose opinions were not to be considered lightly. He frequently attended the New York department's training school, studying the latest improvements and devices introduced at the floating flames and imparting the knowledge thus derived to the Plainfield boys. His withdrawal from the department was a big loss to former Chief Doane and present Chief Andrew Jennings, with whom he worked in perfect accord during his twenty-two years of service.

Mr. Murray always took a keen interest in local politics. He was a staunch Republican and served repeatedly on the city and county committees. He was a member of the Union County Board of Elections for many years, in which organization he served faithfully and efficiently. He held no lodge affiliations but at various times had been a member of New York clubs. He united with the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church when a youth, a congregation in which his parents and relatives had been enthusiastic workers for nearly half a century.

Ever since his marriage, Mr. Murray made his home on West Fourth street, between Madison and Central avenues. Here he lived for about thirty-five years and it was in this house where his death occurred. During the summer for many years recently, he had spent the warm months at Oak Bluffs, Mass., near the home of Mrs. Murray's relatives. Beside his wife and parents, Mr. Murray is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William Barlow, Jr., of Rockview avenue, the borough, and Mrs. Ralph Schoonmaker, who has been residing at the parental home. He also leaves four brothers and three sisters. They are: Mrs. A. A. Tilley, Mrs. Townsend Rushmore and Mrs. Joseph W. Sandford, William D. and Roger F. Murray, all of this city; James E. Murray, of Brooklyn, and Walter F. Murray, of New York.

MARY ELIZABETH FIRSTBROOK.

A simple funeral service, much in keeping with the life of the deceased, was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, of East Front street, over the body of her mother, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Firstbrook, widow of George Firstbrook, which occurred Sunday morning after a long period of failing health.

Rev. D. W. Skellenger, pastor of Hope chapel, was in charge of the service and paid a high tribute to the memory of the departed, who he declared was a staunch Christian in the strictest sense of the word. He also referred to her devotion to her family as a "Christlike" motherhood. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First Methodist church.

The wealth of floral tributes included several pieces from Mrs. Firstbrook's immediate family, her nine grandchildren, the Women's Bible Class and home department of Hope chapel and fraternal organizations to which her sons and sons-in-law belong. Burial was in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery, the following friends acting as pall-bearers: Donald McInnes, J. Fred Wharton, Walter Bradford, Claude Rosebeery, George Light and Michael Rimmer.

Mrs. Firstbrook's death came after a long period of invalidism that began about ten years ago. She was in a weakened condition in 1912 when a fall down a stairway at her home left her with a fractured hip and from which she had never fully recovered. In recent time she was confined to a wheel-chair during the day but despite her long ordeal of suffering she bore all of her trials and tribulations without complaint. The failing which ended in her death began about a week previous to the end and was quite rapid after the first indication. For several days previous to Sunday, the sufferer had been in a semi-conscious condition.

Mrs. Firstbrook was a native of Belleville, this State, where she was born on April 11, 1856. Her maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Collins. After her marriage to Mr. Firstbrook, she lived at Wharton, Morris county, then called Port Oram. Mr. Firstbrook was interested in mining ventures in that section and thirty-three years ago came to Plainfield in behalf of a company formed to open a copper mine on the Cooper farm back of Washington Rock. Mr. Firstbrook sank two shafts which are still to be seen but the amount of ore was so small to the ton mine that the venture was eventually given up.

The Firstbrook family first lived at Second street and Watchung avenue, in what is known as the Stevens property. In 1885, Mr. Firstbrook built a home at Essex and John streets, which was occupied for nearly twenty years. Being in this location when Hope chapel was instituted in 1888, Mrs. Firstbrook became one of the original members, transferring her letter from the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Another son, Edwin H. Firstbrook, was also active in the work of the church and Sunday school, and in her days of confinement to her home, one of her most frequently expressed regrets was that she could not continue her activities in the congregation that had meant so much to herself and her family. Her husband was also a prominent church worker. In the absence of her husband in

PERSONAL

Mrs. Michael D. O'Keefe, of West Fourth street, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital a few days ago and is now well on the road to recovery.

Jack Hull, who has been in Cuba as a member of the Marine Corps, but who was recently transferred to the aviation division at Quantico, Miss., enjoyed a forty-eight hour furlough at the home of his parents the forepart of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Holstein, of Summit avenue, are in receipt of a letter from their son, Charles L. Holstein, Jr., who went to San Antonio, Tex., on March 29 as an enlisted man in the Aviation Corps. He reports that he is well and happy and busy at his trade of cabinet-making on woodwork for the airplanes.

Sergeant Richard Harrigan, who has been at Camp Dix since last September, was recently advanced to the rank of sergeant-major, in Company A, 309th Machine Gun Battalion of the Seventy-eighth Division. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrigan, of South avenue.

The Misses Margaret and May Powers, of Jackson avenue, left the forepart of the week to spend a few days with friends in the South.

Second Lieutenant James L. Fleming, of Park avenue, who went to Camp McClellan as a member of Troop D, and later was assigned to the 112th Heavy Field Artillery, was promoted to a first lieutenancy on Monday of this week. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleming, also of Park avenue.

"Jack" Hall, of Jackson avenue, the borough, has been in Detroit the past week speeding up the shipment of motors for government submarine chasers. Mr. Hall was recently elected a member of Kennel No. 1, Order of Car Hounds, which has headquarters at Syracuse, N. Y., and of which Walter H. Droll, of Park avenue, this city, is vice president. The "Car Hounds" are handed together for mutual aid in getting cars out of congested freight terminals.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Rushmore, at 604 Belvidere avenue, Netherwood, was the scene of a pretty wedding last Saturday afternoon, when their niece, Miss Edith Rushmore Ewer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ewer, of Flushing, L. I., was made the wife of John Stanley Livingstone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Livingstone, of Arlington Heights. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Howard Clark, pastor of the Congregational church, and was witnessed by 100 relatives and friends. Following a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone will make their home in Philadelphia, where the former is the representative of a Boston woolen house. The bridegroom recently returned from France, where he and his brother did special work on a six months' enlistment.

Mr. and Mrs. Henri W. Vail, of 1344 Park avenue, received a cablegram this week announcing the safe arrival in Liverpool of their son, Robert Vail, who went abroad with an aero division.

"Jack" Kregar, of East Fourth street, who is a "Jackie" on a United States cruiser, enjoyed a furlough in Plainfield the forepart of the week after a return trip to the war zone.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williams, who have been spending the winter in New York, have returned to their home on Arlington avenue.

Mrs. Fred Zweifel and children, Marguerite and Frederick, of West Seventh street, are all confined to their home by mumps.

Edward H. Booth, of Central avenue, is spending a short time at Asheville, N. C. He is registered at the Manor.

Mrs. Erma Greene, a former Plainfield resident, who has been living in Ohio for the past two years, is visiting at the home of her brother, Harry DeHart, of South Second street.

Miss Marguerite Woolston, of Fairview avenue, the borough, has been entertaining Miss Elizabeth St. Ives and Mrs. Frederick Johnson Searles, of New York, during the past week.

Edward Brown, of Watchung avenue, was able to be out Wednesday for the first after a week's detention at home by illness. It was thought for a time that pneumonia would develop and only prompt medical attention kept the attack away.

Walter H. Gennerich, of Fairview avenue, the borough, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital suffering from an attack of pleuro-pneumonia, which developed last week.

Miss Julia Sullivan, of New York, returned home a few days ago after a weeks' visit at the home of Mrs. John Tobin, of Monroe avenue.

Miss Helen S. Terry, of Prospect place, the borough, has tendered her resignation as a member of the North Plainfield school teaching force to take effect May 26. The Board of Education has named Miss Margaret Lenion, a graduate of Barnard College, to succeed her.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Morris, of Watchung avenue, are the parents of a little daughter, who came to their home a few days ago. Mrs. Morris was formerly Miss Yates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Yates, also of Watchung avenue.

Charles O. Smith, of Liberty street, is handicapped by a fractured wrist. The injury was caused by the present day popular method, the kick-back of an automobile crank.

Miss Florence Stuart, of Rahway, returned home Monday after a few days' visit with her aunt, Mrs. George Nichols, of West Fourth street.

Corporal James Garretson, of the 112th Machine Gun Company, returned to Camp McClellan, Wednesday, after a six days' furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Garretson, of Dunellen. Corporal Garretson went out from Plainfield last summer as a member of Troop D.

Miss Helen Wilbee and Miss Ethel Humphrey, of Park avenue, and Miss Eleanor Schenck, of Scotch Plains, who are members of the Red Cross nursing unit No. 38, are now located at General Hospital No. 9, Lakewood, receiving final instructions before going overseas for active service.

Miss Adele Phelps, of the Babcock building, recently entertained Dr. La Verna Wright, of Oakland, Cal., who is soon to go abroad for medical work in France. Dr. LaVerna was in the same class with Miss Phelps' sister, Dr. Flora Phelps, at the University in Michigan.

THE NEW EDISON
"The Phonograph with a Soul"
It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.
The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.
Come into our store and witness a demonstration of this marvelous instrument.

New Order Calls More Plainfield Selectives

An order received at the local Exemption Board office this morning called for ten more selectives from the Plainfield district to be sent to Camp Slocum on May 10. They are to be for general service and will afterward be assigned to camps in various parts of the country with 1,000 other selectives from various parts of New Jersey. All the ten are to be white men.

Today the Exemption Board completed its revised list of twenty Plainfield men who are to go to Camp Dix on next Friday. A number of changes have been made for various reasons since the original list was given out last week.

Chairman John J. Varley and the Citizens' Committee are busy arranging a suitable send-off for the twenty as they entrain at the North avenue station next Friday morning. There will be a parade through the business district and all merchants and private residents are asked to decorate their places. Each of the boys will be given a useful souvenir and comfort kit on the eve of their departure.

Details for the send-off will be arranged by the committee at a meeting next Tuesday night.

These are the twenty selectives who are scheduled to reach Camp Dix next Friday:

Harold Coode
Cornelius P. Regan
Clarence Parker
Kal Nielsen
John Wilson
Andrew J. Brady
John W. Deike
Leslie Randolph
O. A. Kessler
James Romeo
Salvatore Cargia
Thomas Keasling
Claude N. Lackey
John J. Connehy
Edward Simon
Hyman Lessberg
William J. Kelly
Harry R. Wade
Owen Kilcommock
Patrick Waldron

Those have been named as alternates:

Innocenzo Aplea
William Grumpp
James W. Chamberlain
George E. Sims
Michael Gibbons

Many Thousands See Launching Of "Plainfield"

To the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner," played by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company's band, the cheers of 5,000 spectators who were perched in every conceivable vantage point on the roofs of the company's buildings, as well as overrunning the yards; the blowing of whistles by nearby factories and boats in Staten Island Sound, the steel transport Plainfield was successfully launced Wednesday afternoon at 2:40 at the Bethlehem Shipyards at Elizabethport.

Miss Jessie M. Busch, daughter of Manager Arthur Y. Busch, broke a bottle of champagne on the ship as it slid gracefully into the water and not a mishap marred the launching, the first to take place at this historic plant for sixteen years.

A peculiar coincidence in connection with Wednesday's launching is the fact that just sixteen years ago Miss Busch christened a boat Plainfield, now used as a ferryboat by the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The Plainfield of Wednesday, however, is made for more important purposes. She is to become a factor in the world war.

The serious purpose to which the boat is to be dedicated was reflected in the brief ceremonies incident to launching. There were no addresses; there was no luncheon; there was no lavish display of flowers. The president of the Moore plant, George L. Wodey; his fellow officials and many of the 1,500 workmen at the shipyard feel that at the present time, with the Government so greatly in need of vessels, it is unpatriotic to give to the social side of a launching the times that ought to go into the straight-away work of building.

The Government permits some of the details of the boat to be made public. The Plainfield was originally contracted for with the United Fruit Company. She was requisitioned by the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation under the general order of August 3, 1917. She is a single screw steamer of 3,500 dead weight capacity. Her length over all is 312 feet. Her length between perpendiculars is 300 feet; beam, molded, 48 feet; depth, molded, 25 ft. 8 in.; designed draft, 19 feet.

She is to be propelled by direct-acting surface-condensing triple-expansion engines; diameter of cylinder, 21½ inches, 35-in.-38-in. by 42-in. stroke; working steam pressure, 190 pounds per square inch.

Steam is supplied by two boilers of the cylindrical return tube type, 15 ft. 6 in. mean diameter by 11 ft. 8 in. long, constructed for a working pressure of 190 pounds per square inch.

She is built in accordance with Lloyd's rules for ocean-going vessels.

DEATH OF MRS. COFFEY.

Mrs. Frank J. Shattle, of West Sixth Street, was called to Rahway yesterday by the death of her mother, Mrs. Andrew Coffey, of 51 Inman avenue, that city. She was seventy-two years old and had been ill six months from apoplexy. Beside Mrs. Shattle the deceased is survived by four daughters and five sons.

Sergeant Peck Gets Six More Recruits

Recruiting Sergeant Ernest D. Peck today reported six more enlistments at his station in the Watchung avenue postoffice building, making a grand total of twenty-two that has been secured through his efforts in about three weeks. This number is considered highly gratifying when it is taken into consideration that the Plainfield district has been pretty well depleted of young men of military age.

The six latest recruits, and the divisions of the army to which they have been assigned are as follows: James B. Cunningham, Dunellen, machinist in engineers' corps; Frederick Brown, Plainfield, teamster in quartermaster's department; Harry Dedinger, 115 Deer street, North Plainfield, now general service infantry; Alfred DeNise, 20 Grandview avenue, North Plainfield; Eugene Sullivan, Plainfield Avenue, South Plainfield, and Richard B. Reilly, Plainfield avenue, North Plainfield, all assigned to the cavalry.

Sergeant Peck again calls the attention of Plainfield young men to the fact that they can enlist in various branches of army service. Especially good opportunities are offered by the medical corps, which is seeking recruits capable of doing pharmacy work, clerical work, cooking, use of tools, care of animals and running of motor vehicles. Any one with a common school education who can pass the physical examination is eligible.

Plainfield colored men are reminded that the stevedore regiment still has many vacancies and those who enlist now have the best chance of getting advanced to the rank of corporal or sergeant. Later on this regiment will be put at war strength by means of the draft and those inducted in this manner will be under the command of the experienced men. The stevedores are primarily intended to load freight on transports but are frequently put at much higher tasks according to the merit shown by the respective privates. Sergeant Peck will be pleased to have colored men drop in at the postoffice station for full particulars.

Private Funeral For Fred A. Coles

A private funeral service over the body of Fred A. Coles, who died Tuesday evening from a self-inflicted bullet wound, will be held this afternoon at the home of his brother, Jacob V. Coles, of Belmont avenue. Interment will be in the family plot in North Plainfield cemetery.

Coles' action in taking his life is said to have been prompted by his anxiety to learn the fast that he had been designated to go to Camp Dix next Friday with the latest Plainfield contingent. He brooded over the draft question continually and it is believed to have temporarily affected his mind. He sent the fatal bullet into his head as he stood on the back porch of his home on Forest road, Scotch Plains. His wife was visiting a neighbor at the time but on hearing the shot hurried back to her own place and found her husband's dead body.

Coles was twenty-nine years old and a painter by trade but had been working at the Plainfield plant of the Standard Aero Corporation. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Coles, of Front street, Scotch Plains, and beside his parents and his wife, leaves two small children, Mary and Eugene; also one brother, Jacob Coles, of Belmont avenue.

City May Lose B. and O. Trains

Twelve Baltimore and Ohio trains, six of them going each way, may be lost to Plainfield as the result of a plan now being considered by the Government railroad officials.

In order to permit the Jersey Central to carry a greater amount of freight it is proposed to divert as much of the passenger traffic as possible and to gain that end, the east bound Baltimore and Ohio trains will be switched to the Lehigh Valley tracks at Manville. They will pass over the latter road, so the statement goes, to the Waverly transfer outside of Newark, where they will take to the Pennsylvania and proceed directly into the latter's terminal at Thirty-third street, New York. Trains going west will proceed in the same manner, thus not only helping out in the freight congestion but also facilitating the movement of troops and giving better New York service for regular passengers.

A Jersey Central official who was consulted at Jersey City said the plan had been considered carefully by Director-General McAdoo and his staff and would probably go into effect very shortly. Plainfield has been receiving the benefit of the twelve Baltimore and Ohio trains but in the future, once the new plan starts, local passengers will have to board these trains in New York or Philadelphia should they desire to go west over the B. and O. The change will also deprive Plainfielders of the thrill of seeing many of the big troop trains coming through from the west and south, as these will also be shunted over at Manville.

Business Men Defer Action On Housing And Summer Clothing

Owing to a small attendance at the adjourned meeting of the Business Men's Association last night, the matter of summer closing and a means of solving the housing problem in Plainfield were not taken up at any length. Instead they will be discussed at the next regular meeting on Monday night, May 6.

The association has appointed a committee to take care of the housing proposition and a move is understood to hold a conference between the Business Men, the manufacturers and real estate agents in the hope of arriving at some conclusion to meet the crying need for more moderate priced houses.

It seems to be the opinion of most of the merchants that because of unusual prevailing conditions, it would not be well to observe the 5:30 summer closing rule this season but it will remain for the coming meeting to decide this definitely. At the May 6 session, a representative of the State Business Men's Association will tell of plans for overcoming the practice people have of holding C. O. D. goods several weeks and then returning them under various excuses.

Netherwood Association Plans A Busy Session

Home gardens, rifles, and how to use them, the Plainfield Home Defense League and birds and their benefits will be among the topics to be discussed by the Netherwood Residents' Association at the "Tip-Wam" on South and Woodland avenues, next Monday night. There will also be the election of officers and other important business demanding the attendance of every member.

In issuing the call for the gathering, President H. C. Wilmerding makes the announcement that there will be an abundance of refreshments and a social time after the more important affairs have been cared for. Each member is asked to bring a friend, especially those who might be inclined to join the association. The meeting will commence at 8 o'clock sharp.

Edwin Bennett Buys Quaker Shop Business

Edwin Bennett, who has been chief clerk in P. B. Hodges' drug store for the past twelve years, has purchased from Miss Anna May, the Quaker Shop ice cream and confectionary business at 174 East Front street. The new owner will take possession May 1.

Mr. Bennett is one of Plainfield's best known young men and his friends are confident that he will make a great success of his new venture. He is a member of Plainfield Lodge of Elks and several social organizations in all, of which he has taken an active interest for the past ten years. Miss May, who established the Quaker Shop several years ago, will return to her home in Philadelphia, where she is soon to be married to a young man from that city.

Bond Sales Reach Total Of $850,000

Liberty bond sales continue to be active in Plainfield and a very gratifying number of subscriptions yesterday brought this morning's grand total up to an even $850,000. The committee now feels that the $1,750,000 quota for this district will be reached before the time limit expires.

As a means for keeping up enthusiasm in the sales, the Plainfield Loan Committee has arranged for a big mass meeting in the Plainfield High School auditorium next Friday night, April 26. E. H. Southee, the famous tragedian, and his wife, Julia Marlowe, will be the principal speakers. The Camp Dix quartet will sing and there will also be a program of instrumental music.

Plainfield Men On List Named For Commissions

John T. Caulfield, of West Front street, and John Henry, of Johnston avenue, both of whom left Plainfield last summer as enlisted men in Troop D, Second N. J. Cavalry, will be among the 400 happy "students" of the Camp McClellan division of the third officers' training camp to be graduated with fitting exercises at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., this afternoon. The Post Exchange Building of the 112th New Jersey heavy field artillery, the largest structure on the reservation, will be used for the purpose and major portion of the 20,000 men in the 29th division will be in attendance.

Major General Morton will deliver the principal address but all other details of the program have been withheld up to the present time. Certificates of graduation will be represented to the successful cadets and they will be returned immediately to the organizations from which they were drafted to await commissions.

What rank is to be conferred upon the successful young men is only conjecture at present but the impression prevails throughout the New Jersey units that each one will receive a first lieutenancy. Both had military experience previous to the declaration of war against Germany and each one has applied himself faithfully to every task imposed by the training school.

As marks of distinction the graduates will wear one-half inch white bands on their coat sleeves until their commissions come through entitling them to display the bars of an officer. Many of them will be commissioned within the next few weeks, while others will serve for some time to come in their former grades.

Tonight the ball room of the new Jamison Inn will be turned over to the graduates and instructing officers for a dance and reception, one of the most elaborate social functions held since the twenty-ninth division took form being expected.

During the three months' schedule of work Captain Robert L. Simmonds, of Newark, had charge of the artillery section of the school, and Captain Conrad Johnston, of Virginia, directed the activities of the infantry department. To these men most of the credit for the remarkable success of the training camp is due.

The graduates represent the "cream" of the enlisted and non-commissioned personnel of the National Guard detachments from New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. Most of them went to Camp McClellan last fall as corporals and sergeants and they were admitted to the school after passing rigid examinations which had to do with their physical fitness, their military qualities and their knowledge of military law. The course in this officers' training camp was different from those of the previous two in that it started at an advanced stage, all of the cadets having had a thorough understanding with the fundamentals of army work during their National Guard service. Consequently considerable more time was available for drilling in all branches of modern warfare and the graduates are equipped with a knowledge that would enable them to pass examinations for commissions considerably higher than selected lieutenant, the grade in which they will be started. Their advancement, therefore, is expected to be rapid.

The course was concluded early this week with physical examinations of the most exacting nature and, in the words of one cadet: "You had to be a Prussian guard to get through." Minute statistics have been kept from the start of the school to the finish and one of the interesting reports is that of the physical instructor. Every man in the school has developed wonderfully in chest measurement and weight and at the same time they are all as hard as nails.

Many Features Planned For New Tepper Building

Complete plans for the new Tepper building at 124 West Front street, as filed yesterday with Inspector T. O. Doane, shows that the structure will be one of the most attractive and convenient department store homes in the State. Comprising four stories and a basement, each one fifty by one hundred and sixty-nine feet in dimensions, it will tower above the surrounding structures and because of an ornate front, made up almost entirely of glass from sidewalk to roof, it will prove the most unique store in the business district.

While contractors have not yet submitted their figures for its erection, it is quite evident to experts who have looked over the plans that the cost of the building will be at least $150,000 and probably $160,000, when all is said and done. The architects have embodied strength, durability and facility with the idea of housing an up-to-date department business that will make shopping an absolute pleasure. Two passenger elevators will give easy access to the upper floors and the third elevator intended for freight only will do away with the old style method of lugging boxes and bales up flights of stairs. There will be rest rooms for the women patrons and comfortable quarters for the employes when off duty or after the third new floor goes in Fifth.

As stated before big plate glass windows will take up practically all the space from the sidewalk to the roof. The main entrance will be in two parts, separated by a large show space open on every side and extending to the second floor. Back of this will be a spacious lobby and then two other entrance doors with display cases between them, and on either side. As patrons enter this lobby, they will be confronted by displays of goods in every direction and yet not be within the store proper. The interior will be finished in white, the walls and recesses at regular intervals will permit the placing of ferns and other floral ornamentations. The entire lobby plant permits of a wide range of original conception that will be used to the greatest advantage by Tepper decorators when once they occupy their new home.

Plans for the new structure include the tearing down of the present building which is now the home of the A. E. Force dry goods company. The latter will move to move next week to its new location at 140 East Front street, formerly the Pawlings & Jones building. The work of razing the former premises may begin within a month or two and the new building will be hurried to completion in order to permit Tepper Brothers to move over from the present quarters at 109-113 West Front street, known as the Beahm building, by early fall.

Steel, concrete and brick will be used almost exclusively in the new building in order to make it as fireproof as possible. The present walls are party walls and will be left standing but will be strengthened by additional tiers of brick. The floor beams and corner uprights are to be of steel and the pilasters are to be of ornamental stone. The facing in front will be of reinforced concrete. A complete system of automatic sprinklers will be among the equipment to prevent breaking out of a bad fire. All together, the structure will be a credit to Plainfield's business houses and stand as a monument to one of the most enterprising firms that has ever located in this community.

BANNER ATTENDANCE AT RED CROSS MEETING.

St. Mary's Auxiliary to the Red Cross, which is one of the most active in the city, had the banner attendance at its regular meeting last night's meeting. More than 100 members were present and spent several hours in the preparation of bandages and supplies.

SENATOR BURTON OUT AGAIN.

Senator William N. Runyon, who has been confined to his home on North Second street, by a severe attack of rheumatism, was able to be at his office yesterday for the first time in three weeks. He is now practically recovered from the ailment.

POLICE SEEKING INCREASE.

Members of the local police force, who have asked for an increase in pay on several previous occasions without obtaining results, are now circulating a petition for more money. It is meeting with ready response from business men and others and is to be presented to the Common Council at an early meeting.

ANOTHER FIREMAN RESIGNS.

Arthur Brier, of West Fourth street, who has been a member of the local fire department for the past year and a half, has tendered his resignation to take effect May 1.

City Hall Likely To Be Put Back On "Fair List"

Negotiations Conducted By Master Builders' Association May Bear Fruit At Meeting Of Trades Council Tonight

Closely following two conferences brought about this week by the Master Builders' Association, action will be taken at a meeting of the Building Trades Council tonight that will probably result in Plainfield's City Hall being put back on the "fair list."

Realizing that both sides were laboring under a misunderstanding, the Master Builders decided to "take the bull by the horns" as it were and sought explanations from both factions, the city administration and the labor unions. The first conference was held between the Master Builders' delegation on the one side and Mayor Calkins, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed and the City Hall committee on the other, last Monday night. The grievances held by the city officials were told of in full, each particular point being discussed without restraint.

Armed with these explanations, the Master Builders as a whole went before the Building Trades Council at a special meeting Tuesday night and the matter was again gone over from the Trades Council's point of view. Incidentally all that Mayor Calkins and his associates had to say was repeated to the Trades Council and when the argument of both sides had been heard, a general discussion followed.

In the end it was decided that each of the opposing forces had been laboring under a misunderstanding and there was no real reason why the municipal structure could not be placed back on the "fair list." Accordingly the Trades Council decided to take the matter up in full again at tonight's meeting, at which time the explanation of Mayor Calkins and the building committee could be presented in the full membership of the allied trades.

In speaking of the matter today, a member of the Master Builders said that his organization had felt that somebody should step as a "go between" and the Master Builders took up upon themselves to play this part. The conference of Monday and Tuesday nights, he said it was only realized that either side had jumped at conclusions and the original mistakes developed other and greater ones. Now that the two sides have gotten the posting stories without prejudice, he concluded, he felt confident that the City Hall building would be declared fair by union labor and the work rushed to completion.

Man Who Started Plainfield's First "Five and Ten," Leaving The City

Allie M. Line, one of Plainfield's best known citizens and co-founder of the first five and ten-cent store in the city, will close up his home on East Front street tomorrow, and for the remainder of the war, at least, will reside at Providence, R. I.

The removal of Mrs. Line will be received with genuine regret as he and the members of his family have been active in the social and business life of Plainfield for a long time. One of his sons, Schuyler Line, was sent to Douglas, Arizona, by the National Guard of N. J., two years ago for examination, with a view to the American troops at the border. He was on the eve of returning to New Jersey when he was run down and almost instantly killed by an automobile at Douglas, Ariz., a fatality which shocked the many Plainfielders who had known of his excellent service. A daughter of Mr. Line's, Miss Mary Line, was all that was left with him at home and when she enlisted in the Red Cross nursing service a short time ago, being sent to a camp at San Antonio, Tex., he decided to go to Providence with his wife and only daughter and a son in that city. The former is Miss Minnie Line, a pupil nurse in a hospital, and Charles Line, physical director in the Providence Y. M. C. A.

Thirty years ago, when the idea of a store devoted strictly to the sale of five and ten-cent articles was a novelty, Mr. Line formed a partnership with Joseph C. Allen, of Sandford avenue, to begin a business of this kind in the old Sebring building on West Front street. This same location is now in the site of the Woolworth store, but the building is a new one, the former structure having been destroyed by the collapse of the east wall in this memorable Babcock building fire of March 6, 1903. The five and ten-cent store was a success and the place was thronged with curious shoppers from every part of the day. After a year, however, Mr. Allen and Mr. Line could not agree on maintaining a strict policy of only five and ten-cent sales, the former wishing to increase the highest amount to fifty-cent articles. Mr. Line secured the partnership and opened a five and ten-cent store at Elizabeth, while Mr. Allen moved into larger quarters, at what is now 200 West Front street, occupied by the Lyric Theatre.

At Elizabeth, Mr. Line was also successful in five and ten-cent goods and a splendid business until the advent of the 25-cent store, the principle under which the latter conduct wholesale purchases make it practically impossible for an individual to compete against them, and the Plainfield man changed his business to that of housefurnishing goods. This proved a good move and he remained at Elizabeth until the present week, when he completed arrangements for the sale of his place because of his removal to Providence.

During the twenty-nine years that Mr. Line operated his various stores in Elizabeth, he continued to make his home in Plainfield, commuting back and forth. He was on his way home on the night of January 27, 1903, when the 5:46 express from New York, on which he was riding, was run into by a Philadelphia express at Elizabeth, causing the death of twenty-three persons, mostly Plainfielders, and injuring forty-five others. Mr. Line was pushed through a car window and when extricated by his daughter, Miss Mary Line, had sustained three fractured ribs, one severed wrist, cuts and other injuries. The daughter received word of the accident at her home in Plainfield and hurried to the scene. Mr. Line was a long time in recovering but as soon as he was able to be out, he returned to business and continued to commute between Plainfield and Elizabeth until the present week. At one time Mr. Line had not sold his home and furniture at 348 East Front street, and there is a bare possibility that should his family be united after the war, he may again return to the city which he has called his own for such a long period. At any rate, it is the earnest wish of all his friends that he has continued success and happiness in Providence and that should he decide on some week he will find a ready welcome from his hosts of acquaintances and well-wishers.

U 58's Crew Goes Through Plainfield

A military service train passing west through Plainfield, Wednesday afternoon, carried among its passengers in a closed day coach the twenty-nine officers and men taken from the German submarine U-58, captured recently by an American patrol boat in the English seas. They were shipped from Jersey City after being brought in from Ellis Island and were destined for a southern detention camp to be kept prisoners until the end of the war.

The captured men could be plainly seen through the locked windows as each one still wearing his enlisted uniform and marooned to another man to prevent leaping from the train, Guards were stationed at either end of the car.

The crew of the U-58 was captured after their boat had attempted to attack a British patrol boat. The American patrol sank the submarine and where the personnel was seen before damaging the submersible and compelling the captain to bring it to the surface. Knowing that the U-58 might probably be gotten into port, the commander ordered the submarine opened and the crew and boat scuttled. Only one was destroyed as the Americans neglect to screw all bands. The U-boat sank a few minutes after the crew abandoned it.

FUNERAL AT BRIDGEWATER.

Marshall Taylor, driver for one of the A. M. Grifton Company's auto trucks, was fined ten dollars in the Bridgewater police court yesterday morning for not having proper lights on his vehicle. Taylor was arrested after his machine had run into the automobile belonging to the Chase Garage Company, of Bound Brook.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Samuel R. Tavernor, a former Plainfielder, who has been living at Ballston Spa, N. Y., has returned to Plainfield for permanent location, having accepted a position as engineer in the Union county division of the State Highway Department.

For the twelfth consecutive year, Vincent W. Nash, of Prospect avenue, was elected as president of the Exempt Firemen's Association at the annual meeting Monday night. Judge Nash has been a faithful and efficient executive and his selection was in recognition of the services he has rendered. The other officers elected were: James Jr. Buckle, vice president; George M. Hoagland, secretary; Eugene M. Laing, treasurer, and Thaddeus D. Doane, chairman of the Board of Trustees. Reports showed the association to be in sound financial condition.

The newly completed residence of Martinus Thompson, on Johnston's Drive, was badly damaged by fire discovered at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. How it originated is a mystery. Mr. Thompson and his wife were awakened by a sense of suffocation and found their sleeping room choked with smoke. They made their escape by way of a window and telephoned an alarm to the North Plainfield fire department, although the building is located just over the line in Dunellen township. Chief McCullough and his men responded as did also the Mack chemical engine from city headquarters. The residence was saved but the loss on building and contents will amount to about $2,000.

Captain Daniel Runkle, who was the commander of Troop D, when the cavalry boys went out of Plainfield last summer, has returned to Camp McClellan after five months' instruction in the artillery school at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. He returned to McClellan this week and will probably be assigned to his old command as captain of Battery A, 110th Field Artillery.

James A. Whitmore, of New York, who has just returned from a speaking tour of the army camps in France, has been secured to speak at the Plainfield High School on Tuesday night, April 23. General Secretary W. H. Baxter, of the Y. M. C. A., in speaking of Mr. Whitmore's talk hers says that the people of Plainfield will have a real treat. Mr. Whitmore has had a remarkable experience at the battlefronts which will be well worth hearing. There will be no admission fee nor collection, for Mr. Whitmore is giving his services gratis in order that everyone who is interested in the American boys overseas may have first-hand knowledge of conditions "over there."

Employes of the Standard Aero Corporation will conduct a dance in Columbus Auditorium tonight. Buses will bring many of the Elizabeth employes of the company to this city to attend the affair. Marks' Jazz orchestra will furnish music and the program will include numerous entertaining features.

"Open house" was maintained by Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Adelberg at their home on East Second street, Sunday, in honor of their twenty-third anniversary of their wedding. Two hundred friends from this city, Newark, New York, Brooklyn, Elizabeth and other places called to extend congratulations and enjoy the hospitality of the host and hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Adelberg have been residents of Plainfield for the past sixteen years, coming here from New York in 1902, at which time Mr. Adelberg began his present clothing business on East Front street. He is now numbered among Plainfield's leading merchants and one who takes a prominent part in the civic affairs of the community.

Both the city and borough fire departments sent apparatus to the A. J. Brunson farm on Cornbrook road, near Clinton avenue, Monday afternoon, for a bad blaze in a big stack of unthrashed rye. Owing to its distance from the nearest hydrant, the North Plainfield men were unable to use anything but chemicals and when the circumstances were made known to Chief Seaman, he despatched the American-La France pumping engine to the scene. The latter apparatus secured a supply of water from a brook but it was nearly an hour later before the last of the fire was put out. The rye stack, together with a small outbuilding, were destroyed, entailing a loss of between $500 and $1,000. Employes of Brunson discovered the blaze about 4:30 but they were unable to account for its origin. The main barn and several outbuildings were threatened by sparks but the Brunson residence, one of the stateliest mansions in North Plainfield, was out of the danger zone.

Thomas C. Vail, superintendent of the Spicer plant at South Plainfield, was again elected president of the West End Civic Association at the annual meeting held Monday night. Mr. Vail has held the chief executive's chair since the association was first organized five years ago, and has had much to do with the good work this West End body of citizens has accomplished. Other officers elected were: Frank S. Power, vice-president; William J. Boyd, secretary and treasurer. The reading of reports showed the association to be in good condition both in point of finances and membership.

Lillian Shermond, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Shermond, of 315 Park avenue, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday, after three days' confinement to the institution by injuries received Monday night, when she ran into an automobile on West Front street, belonging to John Dickerson. The child sustained minor bruises about the head and body and also suffered greatly from shock. Mr. Dickerson, who was held blameless by the police, took the little girl to the hospital in his own machine.

Under the auspices of the North Plainfield chapter of the Red Cross, Thomas Huff, chief engineer at the Standard Aero plant, gave an illustrated lecture on aeronautics at the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church last night. The lecture was intensely interesting and was heard by a good sized audience. Musical features preceded and followed the talk. A silver offering was received for the benefit of the North Plainfield chapter.

Miss Elsie Goddard will give a song recital in the Hartridge auditorium on Saturday evening, April 27, for the benefit of the tractor fund of the Belgian Relief Committee. Tickets may be secured by writing or telephoning to Miss Corey, 820 Hillside avenue. Telephone 1010. The following patronesses have been made: Mrs. Rufus T. Lincoln, Mrs. Frederick W. Wallace, Mrs. Eliot T. Barrows, Mrs. Elizabeth Bowen Foster, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Mrs. George A. Bomann, Mrs. Frederick S. Mead, Mrs. William G. Cooke, Mrs. C. Boardman Tyler, Mrs. Harry L. McGee, Miss Edith Mellick and Miss Maude Van Boskerck.

State Senator Clarence E. Case, of Somerville, will be the principal speaker at a Liberty Loan rally to be held in Saengerbund Hall, tonight, under the auspices of the North Plainfield Liberty Loan committee. James R. Joy will preside as chairman and members of the North Plainfield Common Council will act as honorary secretaries. Other speakers beside Senator Case will be Mayor William L. Smalley and Henry W. Hermann, the latter of Somerville. Previous to the beginning of the meeting, the North Plainfield Defense League, headed by its ow band, will hold a short parade.

The Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church, of North Plainfield, has voted to increase the salary of its pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelver, to $2,100. He is now engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in France.

The Plainfield Mothers' Association has invited the New Jersey Congress of Mothers to meet in Plainfield November 8-9.

For the purpose of promoting social relations among the members of Masonic lodges in this vicinity and furthering the work of all branches of the order, a Masonic Club was formed in this city Tuesday night. The charter roll was signed by a very encouraging number of men and the following were elected: President, Thomas C. Vail, Anchor Lodge; first vice president, Samuel Hollingsworth, Jerusalem Lodge; second vice president, Fred W. Lord, Aurora Lodge, Fitchburg, Mass.; secretary, Alfred M. Korff, Jerusalem Lodge, and treasurer, Fred A. Dayton, Anchor Lodge. The club will hold a smoker in Masonic chambers, Babcock building, tonight, and all Masons in the city are invited.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of the Irving-Jefferson Schools will hold a card party and dance in the Irving School on Friday, May 2. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the Junior Red Cross.

Dr. Frank Clawson, of West Seventh street, was elected president of the Congregational church Men's Club at the annual meeting Tuesday night. Reports showed that the organization had had a prosperous year. Beside the president, the other officers elected were the following: Vice president, Dr. Harry C. Hubbard; secretary, A. Hassell, and treasurer, C. E. Steiner; executive committee, J. G. Tahl and Phillip Suffern, who will act in conjunction with the other officers.

LEO GATES A CORPORAL.

Leo Gates, of this city, was included in a list of privates of the 114th Infantry at Camp McClellan advanced this week to the rank of corporal. Captain William Mead, regimental adjutant, announced the advancements this week.

VISITED SAM ROTHBERG.

Captain and Mrs. Charles A. Peterson, who are at Anniston, Ala., through the former's connection with the Twenty-ninth Division at Camp McClellan, visited Atlanta, Ga., the past week-end and were entertained by Sam Rothberg, formerly of Plainfield, but now a resident of the Georgia metropolis. While at Atlanta, Captain and Mrs. Peterson took the opportunity of visiting Camp Gordon and Fort McPherson, both of which are near by.

Half Million Dollars Worth Of Contracts Offset Talk Of City's Building Inactivity

With fully half a million dollars' worth of contracts either underway or in preparation, Plainfield is giving the lie to the statement that building operations in this locality are practically at a standstill because of almost prohibitive prices of materials and labor. A study of plans filed in the office of Inspector Doane shows that construction activities are more pronounced in his bailiwick now than they have been at any previous time in many years, although there are pessimists who assert that the city is suffering from a lack of building.

"The amount of construction work going on at the present time," said Inspector Doane to a Record reporter, "is almost beyond belief. The half million mark has been passed in the total of contracts passed by me in the last six weeks and there are still more coming in. Carpenters and masons are in great demand and the building material men say they have no fault to find with the amount of business they are doing."

Among the big "jobs" now underway are the addition to the International Motor Company's plant on West Front street, which is to cost $175,000. The work is being done by the Frederick Ley Company, of Springfield, Mass., on plans drawn by Lockwood Greene & Company, of Philadelphia. Local masons and carpenters are employed by the Ley concern and Boice-Runyon & Company are furnishing all the cement, sand and gravel being used and much of the lumber and other materials. A railroad siding enables the contractors to bring in materials by carload lots from other points.

The new Tepper building, which will replace the present structure at 124 West Front street, is another big contract that has been listed recently at Inspector Doane's office. It will represent an outlay of about $150,000 and is to be completed by next fall. A full description of this building as it is outlined by the architects will be found in another column of todays' Record.

The Pond Machine Tool Company, which has added more than a half million dollars' worth of new buildings to their plant on South Second street, is finishing up two structures and will shortly submit plans for further improvements to cost about $100,000. The Crescent Chemical and Color Works, on West Front street, is receiving a $10,000 addition while other plants are at work on building improvements that will run into the many thousands.

Plans for private dwellings are also getting to be quite numerous at the Inspector's Office. One of the most important filed the past week was submitted by Nathan Lewis, of 817 Hillside avenue, who is to erect a beautiful home at 1012 Evergreen avenue, who is to erect a beautiful avenue. It will be of the colonial type and fitted with every modern improvement. The cost is estimated at $12,000. C. L. C. Marsh is the architect and the work will be done by day's labor under the direction of Clifford D. Manning.

Alexander Simpson, In Senatorial Race

Assemblyman Alexander Simpson, of Hudson county, Democratic minority leader of the last House of Assembly, announced Wednesday that he will go before the electorate as a candidate for the long term in the United States Senate and that he will not consider the short term. Mr. Simpson, a lawyer, practicing in Jersey City, is the only Democratic candidate that has cropped up thus far. The Republican aspirants for the honor are Governor Walter E. Edge, former Governor Edward C. Stokes, Colonel Auster Colgate and George L. Record.

As Democratic minority leader in the last House of Assembly, Mr. Simpson kept the Republican party "on their toes."

Mr. Simpson's record in the Legislature during the last session is an enviable one. He is found on record for all progressive measures and is a

In announcing his candidacy for strong advocate of just war taxation. The long term Mr. Simpson said:

"I ask no lesder or political boss for the nomination. I submit my candidacy to the Democratic voters of the State and shall use every legitimate effort to secure their support of my candidacy. I can assure you that I will stand, as I have always stood, in unqualified support of Woodrow Wilson in any policy he undertakes, not only for the prosecution of the war, but also for the solution of the gigantic problems following the termination of the present conflict."

In the announcement Mr. Simpson comes out emphatically as favoring the constitutional amendment giving suffrage to women, as in favor of government ownership of railroads and the building of a merchant marine that will make America equal if not superior, to any power as far as commerce is concerned.

Water Spout May Have Destroyed The "Cyclops"

A theory for the supposed loss of the United States naval collier Cyclops in southern waters is advanced by Ridgely Brewerton, a citizen of Elizabeth, who recently returned after spending five years in Panama as a government official in the construction of the Panama canal.

During the time he spent in southern territory Brewerton has had a chance to study climatic conditions and believes that the sudden disappearance of the gigantic collier may be explained by tropical disturbances which are predominate, especially in the Carribbean Sea, through which the United States boat was scheduled to pass.

Brewerton has perceived several times the formation of vacuum waterspouts, as these natural catastrophies are commonly called. A great mass of water is formed by a suction from a low hanging cloud which travels at a great speed and usually does not break until it strikes some obstacle.

These waterspouts generally cover a stretch from Colon to the southern point of Cuba or Cape Macy. The homeward voyage of the Cyclops was directly through this district and according to Brewerton it seems very possible that she might have been destroyed.

Citizens Lodge Protest Against "Skip Stop" Rule

In comdion with the citizens of every municipality in New Jersey where the Public Service Corporation operates trolley lines, Plainfield people have registered a vigorous protest against the "skip-stop" rule which went into effect on Monday.

The trolley officials, without any consultation as to the needs of the local public, designated that cars should stop only at certain corners, stopping all others and compelling people in some cases to walk two blocks out of their way to get a conveyance. The rule is in direct violation of charter granted the Plainfield Street Railway by the Common Council and so far as can be learned is in direct opposition to the administration's wishes. Steps are being taken by Mayor Calkins and the public affairs committee of the Common Council to have the order rescinded or at least modified so that the public can be better served.

One of the first formal protest to be made by a citizen was received at Monday night's meeting of the city fathers. The objector to the Public Service's arbitrary rule is Richard D. Williams, of Darrow avenue, who spoke for himself and others who use the West Fourth street and Darrow avenue corner for boarding or leaving trolley cars. This is one of the most important stops in the West End but has been included among the skipped points. It is adjacent to the Darrow Avenue School, which is used almost nightly for public meetings and is convenient to hundreds of persons living on upper Sesex street and the West Third street block between Spooner and Grant avenues. The corner is also directly opposite the West End fire house, which is used by people in the neighborhood as a waiting place for cars during stormy weather.

The importance of the stop has been recognized by the Common Council and Mr. Williams' protest is being followed up. Numerous other complaints are also being lodged and the belief exists that determined action on the part of the city officials will result in the Public Service restoring the old system of stopping at every street intersection.

Latest Call Orders 1,033 More Men From New Jersey

Orders for the mobilization between May 1 and 10 of 49,843 selective service men—the third big call within a month—were sent out Wednesday by Provost Marshal General Crowder. New Jersey's quota is 1,033 men.

More big calls will follow during May, it is officially stated. Plans are to break all mobilization records for any month since the war began. Wednesday's order takes men from every State and includes all remaining quotas of the first call.

This mobilization will follow directly after the one for 150,000 men, scheduled for April 26 to May 1. Another mobilization of 91,000 men has been just completed. In addition, numerous special calls are being made frequently.

Following the policy of sending recruits in small units to camps just as rapidly as the trained fighters can be transported to France, the mobilization order Wednesday will be scattered over eleven regular army posts. It will be the first time any large number of selective service registrants have been sent to other camps than the National Army cantonments.

The camps selected are Fort Slocum, N. Y.; Fort Thomas, Ky.; Columbus Barracks, Columbus, O.; Vancouver Barracks, Seattle; Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; Fort McDowell, Cal.; Fort Screven, Ga.; Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, Mo.; Fort Logan, Col.; Jackson Barracks, New Orleans; Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Although every State and the District of Columbia are called upon to furnish men under General Crowder's latest order, nearly half of the 49,843 men will come from seven States. Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, Michigan, Missouri, Wisconsin and Ohio.

SENT TO FORT SILL.

Second Lieutenant James Conkling of this city, who has been stationed at Camp McClellan as a member of the old Second New Jersey Infantry, is among the officers sent this week to the Officers' School at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, for special courses in bayonet work.

News of the Theatre

Splendid Cast In Irwin's "Majestics"

For some years Fred Irwin, the well-known burlesquer producer, has been putting out a show annually under the title of "The Majestics." It is worthy of note, that that title has never been identified with anything but the best in the way of modern burlesque. This year the production is more than worthy of the name and the patrons of the Plainfield Theatre will be interested in the announcement that "The Majestics" are booked to appear there next Tuesday. The cast is one of unsurpassed excellence in every instance, containing the following well known performers, each of whom is an artist in his or her own particular line: Florence Bennett, leading woman; Lyle La Pine, eccentric comedian; Roscoe Ails, a comedian who is known to all burlesque lovers; Flo Emory, ingenue; Doc Dell, the clever tramp comedian; George Leon, a clever specialty entertainer; Maud Baxter, a prima donna who scores which various specialties are introduced. The next scene represents the exterior of Churchill's at 1:30 a. m. The third scene shows the same locality at midnight the next night. Act two has an original opening scene which is called "An Eat and Grow Thin Parlor." This will be found productive of many a good laugh. Another attractive setting is "Plantation Land." There are many high class specialties including a vocal treat by a mixed octette; Tyson and Barbour's act, introducing the work which has made them famous in vaudeville; La Pine and Emory in a rube act that is out of the ordinary and Paul Cunningham and Florence Bennett, portraying "The Song Writer" and "The Columbia Girl" in an act entitled "In Songland."

Eugenics Discussed In "The Very Idea"

"The Very Idea," the best laughing show of the year, will be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre for two performance on Wednesday, April 24. This is the eugenic farce that kept New York laughing for months at the Astor Theatre and which the metropolitan dramatic critics unanimously declared was the funniest show in years who desire an heir. They are thinking about adopting a child when they are persuaded not to do so by Mrs. Goodhue's brother, a dabbler in scientist subjects who at the time is interested in eugenics. He induces the childless paid to allow him to try out one of his pet schemes, that is, produce a perfect child from two healthy beings of his own selection.

For the prospective parents he selects his own chauffeur and the Goodhue's buxom housemaid. They are in love with each other and intend to marry anyway, and for a large money

William Le Baron wrote it, and although the author travels on thin ice, he navigates his characters with a masterful hand and nothing results but mere hearty laughter. You start to laugh at the rise of the curtain and you keep it up continuously until the curtain descends. Eugenics, as a subject for draming room conversation was tabooed until Mr Le Baron tackled the subject and made people laugh.

The story of this laughing play is woven around Gilbert Goodhue and his story of a wife, a childless couple

Saxophone Players Make A "Big Hit" At The Plainfield

With the Standard Saxophone Four as the principal attraction, Manager Shanpon presented a cracker-jack vaudeville bill at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday as the offering for the last half of the week. The six numbers on the program are individually a hit and collectively make one of the best shows the Second street house has had in several months.

The Standard Saxophone Four, as the name implies, are experts in playing the dimcult saxophone and present a most likeable medley of classical and popular music. Every number was heartily encored by the big audiences last night.

Other numbers that made good were Irving and Ward, comedians; Holbrook and Company, in a variety act entitled, "What a Knight;" Roll and Stone, in a comedy singing skit; Douglass Flint and Company, in a comedy playlet, "Easy Money," and King and Rose, songs and piano.

Pictures are an added attraction of the program and there is plenty of all kinds to amuse both old and young. A new Pathe News shown yesterday for the first reveals inspiring reproductions of American soldier boys preparing for the "big fight" and some of the latest happenings in various parts of America as reported in the newspapers

Trench Realism In New Walsh Picture

"The Pride of New York," the latest William Fox photoplay featuring George Walsh, which comes to the Plainfield Theatre next Monday, together with a vaudeville bill, is of especial interest at this time because it begins with the draft and ends in the trenches. In between is a story of a long line of incidents touching on our preparation for war, and including the various "hits" both men and women are doing, outside the ranks, to aid in bringing about a victorious result for the Stars and Stripes.

Through it all there is a love interest that is gripping and that touches the parents and sisters and sweethearts of those now in the American army. There is a lesson for both the rich and the poor.

The rapid-fire work of George Walsh during the entire picture, capped with a foot or film of thrills tightly the attention of the viewer. And humorous touches crop up continually.

The story opens with George, the son of a building contractor at work on a twenty story structure. He's hard working and happy. In New York there is another type, one often found—a rich man's son who is an idler, who loves the night life and the spending of his father's money. He's a typical snob. To this son is attracted, probably because of their stations in life, the daughter of a millionaire. But one day when she watches George standing smiling on the end of a iron beam, being drawn up twenty stories, with nothing below him but the hard street pavement, she takes an interest in George.

Soon George and the rich man's son are called in the draft. The latter judges the worth of the two in their soldier's uniforms and despite George's comparative poverty she comes to believe he is the better man.

Then the soldiers go to Europe and she follows as a Red Cross nurse. George, genial, smiling, continues to improve in her estimation, while the rich man's son, still a snob and disliked by his fellow soldiers, fades from her esteem. When George, battling for all he is worth, fearing nothing in his fight to uphold the honor of his country, saves the girl from death at the hands of the Germans, she places her hand and her heart in George's keeping.

When the rich man's son sees that his idleness and his snobbish ways have caused him to lose the girl, whose real worth he had never appreciated, his whole disposition changes. He patterns his acts and his conduct after George's and becomes a credit to himself, to his family and to his country.

All through this picture George Walsh does some remarkable stunts.

RECENT RECRUITS PASS THROUGH ON TROOP TRAIN.

William Hugo Hartpence, of 316 West Front street, and James L. Wilson, of East Sixth street, were on board a troop train which rushed through Plainfield, Tuesday noon, bearing several hundred soldier boys from Fort Slocum to a camp in Texas. They were seen by a number of their friends who recognized them as they leaned out of the car windows.

Hartpence, who is only seventeen years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hartpence, and is a member of the cavalry. He enlisted at the local postoffice several weeks ago in company with Wilson, who has been assigned to the infantry.

JOHN F. CASEY, JR., PROMOTED.

John F. Casey, Jr., of West Third street, who has been in Camp Gordon, Ga., all winter, as a member of Battery A, 306th Field Artillery, was advanced this week to the rank of corporal. He went to Camp Dix last September and after remaining in the 311th Infantry for a few weeks was transferred to the artillery division.

No "Last Drink" For Selectives On Way To Become Soldiers

Adjutant-General Gilkyson's order that selected men en route for cantonments are under military restrictions and must not be sold intoxicants, it is believed will put a stop to the men reaching Camp Dix and other places with evidences of liquor upon them. Numerous complaints were made to the State Department that selectives, especially those from New York State who had to pass through the metropolis, made it a practice of stopping off to imbibe a few last drinks before donning the uniform and frequently the ill-timed generosity of friends brought about sad consequences. Under the new ruling an action of this kind is not to be tolerated, according to the Adjutant General's declaration.

The department adds that after a man has been inducted into service by a local board he immediately becomes a soldier in the military forces of the United States, and the fact that he is not in uniform has no bearing on his status.

The department says that it is unfortunate that this condition exists but it does exist, and it is the purpose of the department in acting in conjunction with the Department of Justice to take such steps as will lead to the apprehension and arrest of anyone selling or giving intoxicants to these men. It is further declared by the department that it is not thought that the practice is general, but that it is confined to the few who in their greed are willing to take chances for personal gain. The department asks for the cooperation of all officers of the law, as well as citizens, to endeavor to break up this practice and report violations to the department.

First Workers Placed On County Prison Farm

The county prison farm at New Providence was put to use for which it was purchased for the first time Monday, when Sheriff Warner took three inmates of the county jail there to work. Three more were taken on Wednesday and will be increased gradually until about twenty are quartered on the farm.

Before loading the three prisoners into an automobile Monday the sheriff had a talk with each and told them that they had been picked out of the seventy odd inmates of the jail as the men to be tried out first in the new plan. He said that they are to be placed on their honor and will not be guarded. If they wish it will be an easy matter to jump out of a window at night and get away. Presidon will be cut short by capture before a long time has elapsed and then the guilty one will go to State prison.

Goethals Ready For All Of Army's Needs

The quartermaster service is set to supply all needs of the army under the hastened movement plan.

Plans and preparations of Acting Quartermaster General Goethals and his aides are such that the 1,500,000 or more men expected in France this year can be equipped and maintained while the department builds up a surplus for the men to be drafted.

Goethals' slicing of red tape and fusion of new blood into the quartermaster service has worked wonders in the supply situation. As a result the food and equipment problem is "satisfactory."

The expeditionary force is the quartermaster's first consideration.

This means that a vast stream of goods must be kept flowing abroad, for the initial supply of clothing, rifles and shoes is the simplest part of the whole problem. Considering the wastage in ordnance and equipment, the task is enormous, and quartermaster officials believe that it is such as to permit of adding only about 500,000 extra men here this year. If, however, the governing powers rule that 600,000 men contemplated by the second draft—or more—shall be called the quartermaster service intends to find ways of meeting their needs.

Army men still looked confidently upon the west front situation despite renewed German gains. They still looked to the Allies to make an offensive, saying their delay is probably due to a desire to get the maximum reserve strength ready. On the other hand, some entertained the thought that the original German smash had disorganized the British considerably and had prevented them from availing themselves of the reserves for an effective come-back immediately.

Bureau Of Standards Urges Saving Of Shoes

Make two pairs of shoes do the work of three while leather maintains its war-time scarcity and price, is the advice of the United States Bureau of Standards.

"It is apparent," says the bureau, "that it is a matter of economy to keep two or more pairs of shoes wearing than to wear one alone. Some manufacturers claim that two pairs of shoes worn alternately will outlast three pairs worn consecutively. The shoes should be dried slowly, and, if possible, shoe trees should be inserted to prevent their losing shape and becoming uncomfortable, and also to prolong the life of the shoe."

Creel Says Women Are Responsible For Many War Rumors

Lies are being told about the Government and women innocently are taking up the gossip over their knitting needles, according to George Creel, head of the Government Publicity Department. He defended his news bureau in an address before the Lawyers' Club of New York. He said we were in the war fighting with the allies in Europe to keep from having the Germans without the allies and on our own doorsteps. He continued:

"You are not being lied to. Nothing is being withheld from you. If a disaster happens, every phase of it shall be given to you the very minute it happens. It is peculiar to Germany, and I do not know whether it is sometimes an American point of view to think of it—the lies that sweep across the communities; the lies such as there are two thousand men in Westchester county from a transport, wounded; that this or that man has been executed yesterday.

"Every time you lend yourself to this campaign of cheap and stupid and magitnanat gossip, just so much are you helping the Kaiser.

"The Government is telling you everything. It will tell you everything.

"It is at these places, where women gather together, that this gossip starts and spreads with the click-clack of the knitting needle. No it is human nature; that is nothing vicious in its results.

"We have a diffusion of news, which is everything that people are entitled to. The war progress is not very sensational. People imagine that when Secretary Baker went upon the stand and told his story that was the first report, and everybody said: Why didn't we give it out before.

"We had already given it out about one hundred times before and it had been printed rather inconsiscuously on the inside of the papers without intimation that there was any drama back of it—and you have got to realize, whatever else you do, that the matter of publication, no matter how stupid it might be or wrong, is of value."

Total claims paid, $13,054.24.

How An Old Timer Feels As The Boys March Away

The bluest man in the whole world these days is the "old-timer," the veteran, who for one reason or another cannot get back in the fighting game and has to stand with the big lumps rising in his throat while the lads in olive drab or blue march away to action.

How he feels is eloquently told in "The Man Who Stayed Behind," by Owen B. Winters in "Judge:"

I've did my bit in the Islands,
And I sweated through Cuba, too.
I've lugged a Krag behind the dag.
From Peking to Honolou.

And now when the band plays "Dixie,"
And the doughboys are steppin' by,
Makin' the trip to the old troopship,
I'm a sour-dough sort o' guy.

But I try to choke the lump down,
Then I keep right on in my work,
As I grin and I cheer and a hearty
"Here, here!"
As they're headin' for their best.

Oh, it's hard to stand on a curbstone,
When the boys are off to the fray,
But the nation won't let me go
For my country can't spare me to-day.

All Hotels Giving Up Wheat Products Till Next Harvest

Every first-class hotel and restaurant in the United States will be asked by the Food Administration to forego entirely consumption of wheat in any form until the next harvest.

Following the voluntary pledge of 500 leading hotel men last week, State food administrators have been directed to round up all first-class places in their territories. Those responding will be placed on honor lists to be published broadcast.

At the same time the Food Administration announced its measures to enforce observance of regular wheat saving regulations in all other eating places.

Hotels or cafes which use more than six pounds of wheat flour for each ninety meals served, or more than two ounces of wheat flour in any form to any one patron at one meal, or fail to observe wheatless days or otherwise violate the rules will be subject to suspension of supplies from bakeries. Bakers, subject to license control, will be directed to withhold goods from recalcitrant eating houses.

Food Commission Spent More Than A Million

Disbursements totaling $1,697,337.41 have been made by the food administration since its foundation on August 10, 1917, according to a statement filed with Congress this week. This amount is aside from the $50,000,000 invested in grain corporation. Expenditures for February the report shows totaled $148,498.52.

Out of the $50,000,000 invested in the grain corporation, for the purchase of and sale of wheat, flour, beans, etc., for the government and the Allies, $105,932.75 was disbursed during February for general expenses and $137,749.86 for storage and insurance. These expenses, however, are covered by the corporation on the small differential charged between the purchase and sale, so that the government loses nothing in this operation.

Urges Higher War Taxes To Curb Extravagance

The burden of war taxes must be increased, Representative Hull, of Tennessee, a close student of tax problems, said this week, in order that American extravagance may be curbed, nonessential industries restricted and the production of war supplies increased.

Heavy "luxury taxes" will be of the greatest aid to the government in conducting the war, Hull said. He believed a stamp tax on receipts for money paid for diamonds, pearls, furs and other articles of ornament "would be most timely now." He proposed also that a special tax on gifts be levied for the period of the war.

"The immediate interest of economics, not to say common, patriotic expenditures today made throughout the country after one year of war is open and notorious," Hull said. "Raising war taxes are a considerable distance in restraining expenditures, but in view of the financial exigencies of the government they did not go far enough."

McAdoo Makes Ruling On Railroad Damage Cases

Court actions against railways under federal control must be brought in the county or district in which the plaintiff resides, or in which the cause of the action arises, Railway Director McAdoo holds in a ruling this week in the form of a general order aimed to wipe out an abuse that has grown for years among lawyers making a specialty of railway cases. It was pointed out that suits against railway companies often are instituted hundreds of miles from the scene of accident often for the very purpose of putting the company to so much trouble that it will settle out of court rather than go to the great expense involved in having the case go before a jury.

CLINTON FIRSTBROOK LEAVING THE CITY.

Clinton F. Firstbrook, of East Front street, who has been associated with his brother, William J. Firstbrook, in the grocery business for the past six years, will leave on May 1 for Berkshire Valley, Morris county, where he will enter into a partnership with John L. Spencer, proprietor of one of the largest and best known general stores in that section of the State. The Plainfield firm will practically have full charge of the business during the greater part of the year, as Mr. Spencer spends the winter months in various places.

Mr. Firstbrook has been an active member in Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and for many years was interested in the York Rite Masonic chapel. He will withdraw from all local activities as he will make his home at Berkshire Valley, which is located midway between Wharton and Lake Hopatcong. His wife is a niece of Mr. Spencer, with whom he is to enter partnership.

WHENCE CAME THE "SKIP STOP" ORDER?

Formal protest lodged with the Common Council indicates that Plainfield people do not take kindly to the "skip stop" rule as imposed upon them by the Public Service corporation. In objecting to this injustice they have every right and reason to receive full consideration and we trust that the Public Affairs Committee loses no time in finding out if the inconvenience is to be made permanent.

While the committee is carrying the complaints to the proper quarters, it might also be well to find out from just what source came the sanction for the "skip stops". When the plan was first broached last winter, on the plea that it would save coal, Fuel Commissioner Jenkinson refused to give his consent and passed the matter along to national Commissioner, Harry A. Garfield. We have read in no official bulletin any statement that Dr. Garfield had consented and local officials who have been consulted know nothing further about the proposition than that the Public Service put it into effect.

If walking a block or two out of the beaten path is going to help in the nation's struggle against Germany, not a single Plainfielder using the trolley will say a word against the plan. On the contrary he or she will give it the fullest sanction and walk even four or five blocks with the same cheerfulness and self-denial. On the other hand, if the "skip stop" game is only another one of the many eamouflaged buncos put across by the corporation, Plainfielders will be sure to find it out and act accordingly They have stood for a whole lot in the past from this combine of capital which seeks to monopolize public utilities but the time is approaching when the "worm" is to turn. To many it seems as though the "skip stop" is only a clever scheme to make the people believe that the Public Service is inspired only by patriotic motives or that the corporation wants to magnify the expense of trolley manipulation in order to clear the way for its application for an eighty per cent. increase in fares. Both have plausibility but investigation on the part of the Public Affairs committee and other civic organizations will reveal the truth. If it developes that the Public Service is trying to hoodwink the people, some method of bringing it to account should be adopted.

Under the charter, by which the Plainfield Street Railway Company was given the right to operate cars in Plainfield, stops must be made at every intersecting street corner. In taking over the old company the new owners were bound to abide by all its restrictions and it has no right to skip any corners unless the people give their consent. Walking two blocks out of the way, especially in stormy weather, is far from pleasant for people who have to use the trolley cars and they have a right to know where this "skip stop" comes from. The Public Affairs committee cannot act any too quickly for those who are waiting to find out if the trouble they have been put to is another clever little trick of the Public Service "strategy board" or whether it really emanated from the officials at Washington who are working out the problems of the war.

THE PRISON FARM EXPERIMENT.

Plainfielders are watching with much interest the opening of the new county prison farm at Berkeley Heights. The original suggestion for employing men in this manner instead of keeping them in idleness at the county jail came from City Judge William G. DeMeza and those who at first opposed the idea are now among its heartiest supporters.

Three men were taken from the county jail to the farm on Monday last and the next day three more followed. These are to be joined by groups of from five to ten until sixty short-term prisoners are located on the premises. It is believed that they can produce enough vegetables and fruit to maintain themselves and have enough left eventually to meet the expense of the farm. The property originally cost $6,000 and an estimate places the maintenance at $8,000 a year. The figures may seem quite large at first glance but if only half of it is overcome there will be no objection from the taxpayers of Union county. The small amount it will add to their bills will be fully compensated by the good that will be done the men who are sent to the place to do penance. They will live and work amid congenial surroundings, absorb enough pure air and sunshine to give them better and healthier bodies and start them on the road to right citizenship. The community will be much better off than if the unfortunates were kept at the county jail which, despite the alertness of the officials, is not always the proper place to keep a man locked up for as long as six months at a time.

The prison farm is now only in its infancy but it is the wish of every Plainfielder that it succeeds and every detail of the plan will be closely followed from this end of the county.

PLAINFIELD WELCOMES ASSESSMENT INVESTIGATION.

Comptroller Collins, of Elizabeth, seems to be quite disturbed over a suggestion that his municipality is paying taxes on a higher rate of assessment than the rest of the county. He has asked the county board for the Equalization of Taxes to go over the ratables in every district and find out whether or not there has been partiality in certain sections.

Plainfield will welcome any such move as this on the part of the County Board because it will bring experts into the discussion and experts will show that this city has been paying as much, if not more, than Elizabeth. Time and again the argument has been advanced that Plainfield assessors lived up to the law which calls for full valuation but that the assessors of other cities and towns kept as far below as could possibly be done without attracting too much attention. In making its rounds each year, the County Board seeks to even up valuations but the work is done in such a manner that it is almost impossible to see that justice is done. Under the plan as suggested by Comptroller Collins only experts will look over the properties and an equable form of assessment arrived at.

Plainfield is willing to pay its full share of county tax but objects to contributing a larger proportion than any one else. If Elizabeth feels that it has been the "goat" it is not alone in this respect as local property owners have repeatedly protested the high rate placed upon their possessions while the residents of other communities were allowed to "get away" with a three-fourths or three-fifths assessment. The investigation is fully welcome by this part of the county.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

Rumors run to earth are usually found to be groundless.

The Fuel Commissioners can now sit back quietly and gaze upon the activities of the Liberty Loan committee.

More power to your voice, Councilman Fort. May it ever be lifted in protest against contractors who push people off their own streets.

You may easily know whether you are willing for the soldiers to be fed and clothed. If you do not want to buy war bonds, you want the soldiers to do the fighting for you and board and clothe themselves.

Those poor "boobs" who are advocating the specifying of certain days on which St. Louis is to go without beer should stop the agitation at once. We have had enough suicide waves in this country without deliberately paving the way for another one.

Plainfield was brought closer to Germany by the transportation through the city of the captured crew of the U-58. Yes, and pretty soon, Germany is going to appreciate the fact that Plainfield is in the war by means of the splendid new transport bearing the Queen City's name which went down the ways at Elizabethport, Wednesday. May the "Plainfield" honor the people of this community by riding the waves with tons and tons of food for the boys "over there" until the Huns realize that she is in the fight to stay.

NOTICE

CUMPULSORY WORK LAW.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to Sec. 14, Chapter 151, P. L. 1918, issued by the Governor's proclamation as therein provided, all able bodied male persons between the ages of 18 and 50 years, inclusive, are required during the period of the war to be engaged in the following named business, profession, occupation or employment for at least 48 hours per week. The law applies to persons temporarily out of employment and to students and others dependents, and includes also those who are supported by others. The law does not apply to persons temporarily unemployed by reason of differences with their employers, nor to bona fide students or persons sitting examinations for stamps in trade or industrial pursuits. Nor is any person required to work a greater number of hours per day than is customary to constitute a day's work in the occupation in which he is employed to engage.

Inability to obtain employment is not an excuse unless application for same has been made to the Department of Labor, Trenton, N. J., and exemption certificate obtained. Failure to work will be provided as exemption granted.

Persons desiring employment should apply in person or by mail to the Department of Labor, Trenton, N. J.; or they may apply to the Chief of Police, Fourth and Sycamore Streets, who is charged with the enforcement of the law in the City of Plainfield, and will give full information on request.

The penalty for violation of the Law is $100 fine, 3 months in jail, or both.

WHEN THE WAR WILL END.

"Absolute knowledge I have none:
But my aunt's washerwoman's sister's son
Heard a policeman on his beat
Say to a lodger in the street
That he had a letter just last week
Written in the finest Greek
From a Chinese coolie in Timbuctoo
Who said the negroes in Cuba knew
Of a colored man in a Texas town
Who got it straight from a circus clown
That a man in Klondike heard the news
From a gang of South American Jews
About somebody in Borneo
Who heard a man who claimed to know
Of a Swell society female fake
Whose dear husband was will undertake
To prove that her seventh husband's sister's niece
Had stated in a printed piece
That she has a son who has a friend
That knows when the war is going to end."

What Does "War Time" Mean to You?

ARE you complaining because "war time" means coal shortage; less sugar in your coffee; less money than you think you ought to make?

What about the boys who are fighting for you in France?

For them, the trenches; the pitiless storms of rain and sleet; the ceaseless deafening bombardment of the guns; hunger, cold, and fever; wounds and death. For you,—a little economy and deprivation.

The Third Liberty Loan is your opportunity to prove the patriotism that is in your heart and on your lips.

Your opportunity to show yourself worthy of the heroism, the devotion, the self-renunciation of your soldiers and sailors.

Your opportunity to share, in some small degree, the sufferings of those who stand ready to make the supreme sacrifice for you.

All you can do is little enough. You simply lend your money. Do it, and be glad that you can do so much and sorry you can do no more.

What are you doing--- are you doing your full share for them ?

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. ANNA ALLEN-GARTHWAITE.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Allen-Garthwaite, whose death occurred Sunday morning after an illness of only two weeks with heart trouble, was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of her son, John Allen, of 820 West Fourth street. The service was in charge of the Adventists, of which she was a member, and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Members of the family acted as pall-bearers.

Mrs. Garthwaite was in her eighty-third year and had resided in this city for a long time, coming here from Belle Meade. She was a woman of retiring disposition but made many friends in the city and both death during her local residence. Besides her son, John Allen, with whom she resided, she leaves one other son, David Allen, of Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, and three daughters, Mrs. William Pasch, of Harrison avenue; Mrs. William Wilson, of Somerset street, and Mrs. A. L. Craig, of Toledo, Ohio.

MRS. JOHN F. SINGER.

Mrs. Catherine V. Singer, wife of John F. Singer, of East Fourth street, died Sunday after a long illness. She was thirty-four years old and beside her husband, is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Edward Kiley and Mrs. Mary Nixon, both of Binghamton, N. Y.

The body was taken to Mrs. Singer's former home at Binghamton, N. Y., where the funeral was held in St. Paul's church, that city, Wednesday morning, and burial was in the family plot in Calvary cemetery, Binghamton.

JOHN J. TOBIN.

John J. Tobin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tobin, of 411 Monroe avenue, died Wednesday morning after a brief illnessh wit spinal meningitis. The little fellow was in his ninth year and was a pupil at St. Mary's school. Beside his parents, he is survived by three brothers, Richard, Peter and Cornelius.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church this morning, when mass was said by Rev. Father Holstein. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

CHARLES R. LANGWORTHY.

The funeral of Charles R. Langworthy, a widely known resident of Plainfield, whose death occurred Wednesday morning after an illness of only two weeks, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Grace Episcopal church. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson will be in charge of the service. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Langworthy, who was seventy-five years old, was a native of Brooklyn, but had lived in Plainfield for many years, was associated with a New York dry goods house and had commuted to the city during his local residence. He was one of the many Plainfielders who were injured in the wreck of the 5:45 express at Westfield in January, 1903, but though his hurts were quite serious, he eventually recovered fully.

Mr. Langworthy leaves no near relatives. His wife passed away a few months ago, her death occurring a few days after the demise of her niece, Mrs. Thomas S. Wheeler, of Park avenue. Mr. Langworthy had no fraternal affiliations or civic connections, his only activities outside of business being at Grace church.

LORENZO S. McCRAY.

Lorenzo Sampson McCray, aged eighteen years, died Tuesday at his home at 642 West Fourth street. He had been ill a long time. The funeral will be held in the Shiloh Baptist church this afternoon and interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

MRS. PHOEBE A. PHILPOTT.

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends, a funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon over the body of Mrs. Phoebe A. Philpott, of 136 Westervelt avenue, whose death occurred Saturday night. It was held at the late home and was conducted by Rev. Dr. St. George Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. There were numerous floral tributes from friends of the family. Burial was in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall-bearers: Robert F. Dents, Howard R. Dents, Franklin Dents, William Dents, Harrison Pahn and Frank I. Lievers.

Mrs. Philpott was born at Weetherry, L. I., in 1833, her father having been a pioneer farmer in that section. The family homestead in later years was sold to William C. Whitney, secretary of war during President Cleveland's second term, who made it a part of his estate. Mrs. Philpott came to Plainfield forty years ago and had made her home here since that time. She was a member of Holy Cross church and attended service regularly until a short time ago. She had been in her usual health up to within two weeks of her death. Pneumonia brought about the demise. Mrs. Philpott's husband, Robert Philpott, died many years ago and her only near surviving relatives are a daughter and a son. They are Mrs. Josephine Dents, of Duer street, and Warner B. Philpott, of Westervelt avenue.

MRS. BARRETT TRENT.

Mrs. Marriott Trent, wife of Barrett Trent, died Sunday night after a long illness at her home, 111 Washington street. She was twenty-nine years old and beside her husband, leaves four sisters and two brothers. The body was sent to Sandford, N. C., where the funeral took place yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Street. Burial was in White Oak cemetery, Sandford.

Councilman Fort Takes "Slap" at Paving Company

Councilman Leslie Fort handed out a vigorous "slap" at the people responsible for the deplorable condition of affairs on Watchung avenue, where street paving is being done, during the course of the semi-monthly meeting of the Common Council, Monday night.

The matter arouse through the submission of bids for the construction of cement walks and abutments for the City Hall property. The lowest bid came from the Newark Paving Company, which has been doing the brick paving on Watchung avenue, and when a resolution was offered by Councilman Hylan that the contract be given the job at a figure of $2,558.40, Mr. Fort injected a little "pep" in the meeting by declaring that if it took the Newark Paving Company as long in proportion for the City Hall work as it did to finish up Watchung avenue, he did not see why the company should have the latest contract.

"This Watchung avenue business," continued Mr. Fort, "is an awful mess. Last fall the street was left in a deplorable condition and remained that way all winter, although enough complaints was shown the citizens and taxpayers to allow them enough room to get by. Now all vehicular traffic has been shut off entirely and the business men and other people using the street are objecting vigorously. I have received numerous complaints and have repeatedly been asked who is to blame for it all? There is no reason why the street should be closed up entirely as the contract calls for one side at a time and the blame for the imposition upon the people should be placed on the persons responsible."

Mr. Hylan, who is chairman of the street committee, gave the explanation that the Public Service Corporation was really at fault for the Watchung avenue muddle. The street railway department, he went on to say, was installing a double track at this point of the work and the failure of materials to arrive on time had held up the work. The Newark Paving Company is doing the double tracking for the Public Service but as it has all the necessary materials and equipment on hand at the present time, Mr. Hylan added that he believed the City Hall work would be finished quickly. The contract was accordingly given to this concern. Only one other bid for the work was submitted, that of the Shouler Cement and Construction Company, which gave a figure of $3,212.

Chairman Ackerman, of the Public Affairs Committee, reported that he had received a communication from Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, in response to the petition presented last month by property owners whose land abuts Cedar brook, asking that certain walls and other improvements be built to protect their ground. In this communication Mr. Reed stated that inasmuch as Cedar brook's course was through private property entirely, the petitioning owners would have to install the needed safeguards at their own expenses and that they could do anything they saw fit as long as bridges or street lines were not disturbed.

Mr. Ackerman also reported that the preparation of a service flag for the city was underway and that it would be completed shortly. The flag, he said, would contain about 500 stars as William M. Wherry and others who have been securing a list of the Plainfield boys in the army and navy had given this figure. The list has been made as nearly accurate as possible but in the opinion of many in the Council chamber the number is nearer 700 than 500. Mr. Wherry is still at work upon the honor roll and will be pleased to hear from anyone having names to submit.

Replying to a request from the Market Growers' Association, asking that the city provide a suitable covering place where the public market could be carried on in stormy weather, Mr. Ackerman said in behalf of the public affairs committee, that such a step was considered inopportune at this time. Last year's experiment had not been a complete success, he said, and the committee preferred to defer undergoing the expense of a permanent shelter. He offered the resolution that the association be requested to co-operate with the Food Commission in securing the needed quarters.

The West End Civic Association sent a communication to the Council asking that certain streets be improved. Special reference was made to the conditions at the corner of Berckman and East Second streets, Sumner and Emerson avenues. On East End body also entered a request of property owners living in Hillcrest avenue for sewer accommodations. The petition for this improvement was signed by W. C. Shackelton and others.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., applied for an increase of $50 in the appropriation for Memorial Day exercises.

On recommendation of Mayor Calkins, George Leland and Roy McDonough, members of the Fire Department, were advanced from Class B to Class A, and George Lee and Ludwig Hafile, members of the Police Department, from Class B to Class D.

The Police Board recommended that $122.40 be paid to Sergeant O'Keefe, for thirty-five days, during which he was absent from duty on account of sickness.

An ordinance establishing the lines of West Front street, between Grant and Jefferson avenues, was adopted on second reading. A public hearing of this ordinance will be held on May 6.

Edward V. Cox Made Head Of Scout Council

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Plainfield Council, Boy Scouts of America, was held Wednesday night at Scout headquarters. This was a special meeting called to elect a president to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Theodore G. Davis and to elect a vice president. Mr. Davis resigned at the last meeting of the council, as he is going to the East as a representative of the White Automobile Company. Another matter of importance was the nomination of Ernest K. Fowlkes as scout executive.

Francis K. Anderson, secretary of the council, opened the meeting and then called upon Mr. Davis, the retiring president, to take the chair. Then followed reports from the officers. Commissioner Boering reported an invitation from Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., to participate in the Memorial Day parade, which was accepted. Scout Executive Fowlkes told the council of his trip to Baltimore the first of the month to attend a three-day conference of scout executives from the Middle Eastern States. He also reported a few matters of routine business and told of the work of the scouts who are serving as assistants in the offices of the local Liberty Bond Campaign Committee.

F. M. Genung, of the nominating committee, reported the nomination of Edward V. Cox as president and Dr. George T. Moore as vice president. This report was accepted and Mr. Cox and Dr. Moore were unanimously elected.

Mr. Cox, who is connected with the Bell telephone system, accepted the office and in a short address called upon the members of the council for their co-operation and help. He spoke of the motto of the telephone company, which is service, and explained how he felt it applied to the Scout council in their work.

Clarence W. Spicer, of 417 Central avenue, was elected to membership in the council.

Edge After Coal Men Who Block Relief Work

Governor Edge, as the result of the information laid before him by Prosecutor Oscar B. Redrow, of Gloucester county, has taken prompt action to prevent wholesale coal dealers from thwarting the purpose of New Jersey's war measure known as chapter 52 of the laws of 1918, which permits municipalities of this State to buy and distribute food and fuel when through private property entirely, the petitioning owners would have to install the needed safeguards at their own expenses and that they could do anything they saw fit as long as bridges or street lines were not disturbed.

Mr. Ackerman also reported that the preparation of a service flag for the city was underway and that it would be completed shortly. The flag, he said, would contain about 500 stars as William M. Wherry and others who have been securing a list of the Plainfield boys in the army and navy had given this figure. Burial Of National Army Soldier In Hillside Tomorrow

The body of Herbert V. Hodgson, the young Scotch Plains man who died in the base hospital at Camp Dix Tuesday morning, will be buried in Hillside cemetery tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. A private service, devoid of military honors, will be conducted by Rev. D. C. Evans, of Pennington, assisted by Rev. George Read, pastor of the Scotch Plains Methodist church, of which the deceased was a member.

Private Hodgson, who was only twenty-three years old, was one of the forty-three national army men sent to the Jersey cantonment on April 3. He was still undergoing the quarantine period when he contracted spinal meningitis and was placed in the base hospital. Despite every precaution, the disease spread rapidly and his condition became hopeless soon after he was stricken.

The young man was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas V. Hodgson, of Glenside road, Scotch Plains, and was the second Plainfield district selective to pass away at camp. The first was Patrick Hugh Breen, of Muhlenberg place, this city, who died in March from heart trouble. Beside his parents, Private Hodgson is survived by four sisters and two brothers. They are the Misses Edna, Thomas, Otis and Lillie Hodgson, and Gordon and Norman Hodgson, all of Scotch Plains. Another sister, Hilda, was run down and killed by an automobile as she was returning home from the Scotch Plains Methodist church on a Sunday night in November, 1916. One of the other sisters and a friend, Miss Hattie Perrine, were badly injured at the same time.

"Annual" Peach Crop Failure Is Reported

In a report issued this week by the State Department of Agriculture it is shown that peach buds were killed by the cold weather of early winter. In South Jersey conditions at present indicate a good heavy crop; in the middle portion of the State a fair crop in some sections and almost nothing in others. In the northern portion only isolated sections escaped injury, and prospects are doubtful.

Experienced farm labor continues to be scarce throughout the State, the report declared. Through the Bureau of Statistics and Inspection the Agricultural Department is collecting the names of farmers throughout the State who have a farm for sale, and if enough are offered a circular advertising them will be published. Blanks for describing the farms will be sent upon the receipt of the names and the postoffice addresses of persons have them for sale.

State Authorities Will Discuss Tax Matters

Announcement was made this week by the State Board of Taxes and Assessment that the third annual conference of the officials of New Jersey charged with the administration of the tax laws will be held at the State House at Trenton on Tuesday April 23, beginning at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. These conferences have been largely attended in the past and have always been marked by much fruitful discussion for those interested in taxation matters.

Lucius T. Russell, of Elizabeth, president of the State Board, will open the third annual session, and Governor Walter E. Edge will follow the address of welcome. The features of the morning session will be an address by State Senator Harold B. Wells, of Burlington county, and a talk on the subject, "Tax Laws of 1918," by Lloyd Thompson, of the Union County Board of Taxation.

The afternoon session will be given over entirely to an open discussion from the floor by the delegates. It is assumed that there will be many phases of the new tax laws that will need to be threshed out by the assessors and other tax officials, and the entire afternoon will be given over to this purpose. The part of the program will be presided over by Frank B. Jess, of Camden, of the State Board.

In view of the tax revision acts passed by the last Legislature the State board feels the coming meeting will be of particular interest.

NOTES FROM THE PARK AVE. BAPTIST.

Bible school, 9:45; lesson, "The Transfiguration of Jesus," Mark 9:2-10.

In the absence of Pastor Swaffield, who is conducting evangelistic services in Pittsfield, Mass., for a week, his son, Rev. W. Douglass Swaffield, who conducted last Wednesday's prayer meeting, will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Swaffield will preach on "Liberty Through Bonds."

The Young People's 7 o'clock service will be in charge of Miss Hilda Van Winkle, topic, "Lessons from My Favorite Parable."

The evening service at 8 o'clock will be suspended and the congregation join in the Union Liberty Loan meeting at Crescent Avenue church, where Dr. Strong, of the First Baptist church, will speak.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Captain and Mrs. John H. Curtis, of No. 1164 Park avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Thelma Margaret, to Corporal Irving J. Pratt, also of this city. Corporal Pratt is now in the U. S. service, stationed at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I.

No date has been set for the wedding.

War Conference At Trenton On May 6

Preparations are now being made by the New Jersey State Council of Defense for a State war conference at Trenton on May 6. This is to be one of a series of big get-together meetings being held all over the country. All of these meetings are under the auspices of the various State Councils of Defense at the instance of the Federal Government. Most of them are tremendous two-day conventions, which bring together the county representatives, speakers and other war workers from all over the State. In many of the cases the State War Conference has proven one of the biggest events of the history of the State, and this is what New Jersey os planning to make it.

The conferences are designed to give an opportunity for active war workers to meet, exchange views and co-ordinate their plans—on the first day to get fresh inspiration from men who have a National or international view of the war, and on the second day to discuss local progress and local needs.

The following organizations doing war work in New Jersey will send all their war workers to this conference:

War Loan Organization, National War Savings Committee, Agricultural Extension Service, Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges, United States Employment Service, United States Public Service Reserve; Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense, Food Administration, Fuel Administration, Red Cross, State Department of Education, New Jersey Medical Section of the Council of National Defense and the Four-Minute Men.

President Wilson's own interest is in the plan for conferences is shown by the fact that he has sent personal messages to no less than fourteen of these gatherings. Officials in Washington hope that he will be able to send a similar personal greeting to the workers of New Jersey when they gather at Trenton in May.

Water Company Wants Permit For Stock Issue

Hearing was given by the Public Utility Commission this week upon an application by the Middlesex Water Company for authority to issue $125,000 additional common stock to take care of part of a bond issue that recently matured. The company has wells on lower Park avenue, just over the Plainfield line, and operates in several municipalities of Middlesex county. Frank Bergen, general counsel for the Public Service Corporation, is president, and former Governor Foster H. Voorhees, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Voorhees gave formal testimony as to the object of the petition and Mr. Bergen acted as counsel in the proceedings. Harry R. Carver, an inspector of the Public Utility Commission, appeared on the stand that additional allowances be made by the company for depreciation charges. He also said the books needed some revision to conform to the standard accounting system of the commission. Decision was deferred for conference by the commissioners.

"Camouflaged" Hats The Latest Trench Fad

The camouflaged hat is the latest in spring styles in the army. It appeared first among a number of men a few weeks ago, and is now becoming a real "sensation." The camouflage hat is a home-made affair in so far as the camouflaging goes. To the hat is stuck bits of burlap. It fit nicely to the helmet and thus bind it in place by the simple use of the rim with threaded corn. The main idea is to keep the hat from being noisy in the trenches. Wires and strips of camouflage are stretched across the trenches at intervals and you rave "to duck" under them. If you trip up too often and your hat scratches against the wire it fairly rings. Hence the burlap-noise-camouflage idea.

Every day that goes by brings more affection for the tin hat from the American fighting man. There are few who like trenches, or about artillery emplacements who have not had shell pieces bounce off their helmets. Without the tin hat these shell pieces would have meant death or at least a serious wound.

In the raid of March 25, Lieutenant Arthur Woods, of New York, came out alive to get the Croix de Guerre after seven pieces of shell had "registered" on his helmet. Two shells burst near him almost at the same time. His helmet was not camouflaged and almost played a tune as the flying steel hit it. After the raid Woods counted seven clinking dents in the hat.

California Draft Gets Charlie Chaplin

Charlie Chaplain, movie comedian, has been drafted and expects his call in June, it was announced at his studio in Los Angeles, Cal., yesterday. Although he is an Englishman, Chaplin has waived rights and expects to wear Uncle Sam's khaki in a short time. Chaplin is touring the country selling Liberty Bonds.

PERSONAL

Mrs. Charles Johnson, of Spooner avenue, has practically recovered after ten days' illness with pleurisy.

Mrs. Robert G. Slorah, of West Front street, who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital undergoing medical treatment, is reported as being considerably improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fay, whose home at 124 North avenue, in the Van Sickle building, was recently badly damaged by fire, will remove shortly to an apartment at 173 North avenue.

George Gage, of West Fifth street, who enlisted in the ordnance department last June, has been advanced to the rank of battalion sergeant major.

Stuart and Blakeslee Roberts, the twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Roberts, of Kensington avenue, have enlisted in the signal corps of the army. Both were graduated recently from Stevens Institute, Hoboken.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal R. Stafford, whose home has been at 1100 Putnam avenue, have purchased the residential property at 39 Grove street, the borough, and will remove there the latter part of the month. The premises were occupied for many years by the late Mulford Estil, and more recetly by the late Thomas C. Aldrich.

Arthur Robinson, of West Third street, was the only member of Company A, 311th Infantry, to receive a pass over the past week-end. He spent the time at the home of his father, S. J. Robinson, of West Third street. Private Robinson is now a student cook in the 311th Infantry and has made such remarkable progress in the culinary art that indigestion is an unknown quantity in his particular mess-hall.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Steiner, who were married last week at the home of the bride's mother in Danville, N. Y., have returned from a wedding trip and are now residing in a new home at Summit. Mrs. Steiner was formerly Miss Alice Florine Welch, daughter of Mrs. E. D. Welch, of Dansville, and has a wide acquaintance in Plainfield. Mr. Steiner's home was on Somerset street and for many years has been connected with the cotton brokerage house of A. D. Sith & Company, at 250 Broadway, New York.

Mrs. Henry Dressell and daughter, Winifred, of Vine street, the borough, have been spending the past week with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Opdycke, of New Germantown. They will return home next Sunday.

The Misses Goodwin, who have been residing at 61 Somerset street, have removed to a new location on Chatham street, as the building they have been occupying is to be torn down to make room for a garage which Fred Hand has planned to build.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Burke, of West Fourth street, are the parents of a baby daughter, who arrived at their home Monday.

John Loftus, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at the hospital at Camp Dix, is enjoying a ten days' furlough at his home on Spruce street. Albert Walpole, of Scotch Plains, who was also recently discharged from the camp hospital, is at his home in Scotch Plains for several days.

Miss Hasel Lyon, of Boonton, returned home Monday after a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Nash, Jr., of Martine avenue.

Samuel Kelderling, of West Second street, who is ship's cook in the navy, is home from the Newport, R. I., Naval Station on a ten days' furlough. Mr. Kelderling was employed for several years by Mefford R. Giles, but at the time of his enlistment was "night man" at Frank Bradt's lunch wagon.

E. Yarde Breese, of East Seventh street, who recently enlisted in military service, is now a captain of ordnance and is stationed at Dallas, Tex., as an instructor in the use of small arms.

Mrs. W. A. W. Burnett, of Sandford avenue, is among the latest to join the Plainfield "Colony" at the Hotel St. Charles, Atlantic City. She expects to remain about two weeks.

Sergeant John L. Rose, of New York, son of the late Lewis Rose, of this city, is reported as having been wounded in France on March 21. He is the grandson of John Ross, of East Sixth street.

William Hoffman, of 628 West Front street, who recently went West to take a position, is now located in a government munition factory at Madison, Wis. Mr. Hoffman is a patternmaker by trade, and has been employed in several of the local shops.

Raymond MacDonald and Walter Dalley, of North Plainfield, have enlisted their services in the United States Navy. Mr. MacDonald going as seaman and Mr. Dalley will go as a general electrician. Both boys will be sent to the training station in two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linke, of West Second street, received a message the past week, informing them that their son, George Linke, had arrived safely in France. The young man left Plainfield originally as a member of Troop D but was afterward transferred to one of the headquarters companies at Camp McClellan.

Harold Van Nest, of East Second street, known to his friends as "Toots," is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation performed a few days ago. He is recovering rapidly and may be discharged early next week.

Mrs. John H. Hall, of 152 Netherwood avenue, returned home Sunday after a three weeks' stay at Anniston, Ala. The trip was taken to visit her son, "Jack" Hall, who is a member of the field artillery stationed at Camp McClellan. The young men went out from Plainfield last summer as a member of Company K.

Congress May Increase Army To 3,000,000

Three million men for the American army will probably be authorized before the military appropriation bill, now pending, is passed in final form by Congress. This will be nearly doubling the strength of the fighting forces now available, the present personnel standing at more than 1,640,000 enlisted men and officers.

The army appropriation bill has not yet been reported. It is being framed provisionally by the military affairs committee of the House. The Legislators in charge of it are deferring decisive action on the amount of cash to be voted until the resumption of work by Secretary Baker. It is the expectation of the committee members that after they have had the opportunity of consultation with Mr. Baker and have listened to his account of conditions in France, the sum total of the bill will be raised to provide for the support of 3,000,0000 men in the army.

All this is another move in response to the fighting sentiment and the resistation of events that have been aroused by the German offensive against the British and French. The information that Mr. Baker is expected to lay before the House committee is relied upon to remove any question about the wisdom of planning an army big enough to meet all emergencies. The placing of the figures at 3,000,000 men does not mean that the total will go no higher. It only means that is the total which will be cared for in the pending financial supply bill. It is entirely possible that when the succeeding appropriation bill comes along it will carry funds to support an army of 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 men, all depending on how it goes in France.

That the speed-up plans for the transport of trained fighters to Europe are working out is beyond doubt. The greatly increased calls that the provost marshal general has dispatched to the different States for new quotas to report at camp is indicative of what is being done in the way of emptying the camps in this country.

The army appropriation bill, as it now stands, carries the large but not surprising total of $8,000,000,000. It will be doubled, or nearly so, of course, if the strength of the army is to be raised to 3,000,000 men. The $8000,000,000 total is on the basis of 1,640,000 soldiers. As a matter of fact, the army will be considerably stronger than that by the time the April quotas reach their training camps.

It has long been a matter of debate whether the present service law is sufficient to cover any and all subsequent increases in army strength that may be determined upon. It is now believed that so long as the matter is open to question it would be the better part of wisdom to obtain additional legislation to make the law entirely elastic.

The service law, as enacted, provided for summoning a minimum of a 1,000,000 men to the colors, to be raised in two increments. It was further provided that in order to maintain this army at full strength replacement calls could be issued and it was also provided the President could raise by draft men needed for special units. These two latter provisions have furnished considerable elasticity in maintaining a flow of men to the training camps.

In fact, the provost marshal general has been working under the replacement provision to a very considerable extent. There has been no general second call. Instead, there is in force the policy of calling men in quotas as they are needed to fill up vacancies in the camps or in the special organizations, like aviation. It is the belief of the soldier lawyers in the War Department that, under the replacement clause, the draft can keep on working without limit. But at this point arises the question whether or not this is a violation of the spirit of the provided which provided for the raising of 1,000,000 men. There has been some disposition in Congress to criticize the executive department for going too far in interpreting the original service law and consequently it is likely that to cure this situation further and broader powers will be sought.

Morton Separates Officers From Men To Cut "Home Ties"

Marking the step in the new policy of Major General Charles G. Morton, division commander, of placing officers with units not from the same home station, the assignment of Lieutenant Colonel George M. Battle, of Arlington, to the 114th Infantry, and Lieutenant Colonel Wilmer A. Cadmus, of Paterson, to the 113th became effective at Camp McClellan this week.

Hitherto Colonel Battle had been with the 113th, which contains most of his old unit, the First New Jersey, and Colonel Cadmus had been with the 114th, in which are most of the men of the Fifth New Jersey, to which Colonel Cadmus was assigned when he came to Camp McClellan.

General Morton believes officers can be more effective when they are with units whose commissioned and enlisted personnel are unknown to them. His shift of battalion commanders last week to the 113th, when Major William A. Camfield went to the third battalion and Major John H. McCullough to the first, was an outgrowth of this belief.

Until then Major Camfield, formerly an officer in the First New Jersey, had been with men drawn from that regiment, and Major McCullough, a Second Regiment man, had led the battalion made up from that regiment.

The plan will be carried out in all future assignments of officers. It is expected. Non-commissioned officers of the rank of sergeant may also be shifted away to new companies, all to the end that greater efficiency may be gained. General Morton does not intend, save where necessity demands it, to wipe out state lines in his assignments. In only a few cases have officers from one state been assigned to commands over men from another.

Both Colonel Battle and Colonel Cadmus had been with the regiments from which they were shifted from the formation last fall of the units. They have both been long in the service of the New Jersey National Guard.

Promotions in the medical department of the division this week raised Lieutenant William J. Whelan, of Paterson, to the rank of captain. Captain Whalen is with the 112th Artillery and formerly was a medical officer in the Fifth New Jersey.

Captain Walter L. Auten, of Asbury Park, has received an honorable discharge from the service and is on his way home. Fear that his health would not stand up under rigorous campaigning led a board to recommend his discharge.

Captain Auten commanded E Company of the 114th Infantry and formerly was head of H Company in the Third New Jersey Regiment.

Captain Conrad Johnson, a Virginian, who has been head of the infantry faculty at the officers' training camp at Camp McClellan, has been assigned to the 114th to report at the end of the school's course. He probably will take Captain Auten's place.

Lieutenant Alexander A. Green, a dental surgeon attached to the 104th Engineers, left Sunday for Fort Oglethorpe, where he will attend an army school in plastic dentistry. At the completion of the course he expects to be returned to the regiment. Lieutenant Green's home is in Salem, N. J.

Special orders issued over the week-end from division headquarters affect Jerseymen all through the division. Supply Sergeant Harry S. Hodson, of the 112th Artillery, goes to the headquarters of the ambulance section of the sanitary train.

Lieutenant Hirma Steelman, of Battery D of the 112th, whose home is in Atlantic City, was designated as assistant judge advocate of one of the division's court martial. Four men from the 112th were sent to the Rock Island Arsenal for a twenty-eight-day course in leather and personal equipment repairs. They were Corporal Frank E. White and Privates Clifford M. Ellers, Edward K. West and William Ferguson.

To consider recommendations for promotion in the artillery brigade Brigadier General W. C. Rafferty, Colonel Quincy A. Gillmore and Lieutenant Colonel Edward C. James were designated. Colonel Gillmore is head of the 112th Artillery and Colonel James is assigned to the 111th. Colonel Gillmore is at Fort Sill, but is expected back to Camp McClellan soon.

THE NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.

The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.

White Men Remaining In Class 1-A Number 135

Figures Given Out By Local Draft Board Today Indicate Last Of These May Not Be Called Until Fall

Figures compiled this week, by the Plainfield Draft Board show that there are at present remaining unclassified for general military service a total of 203 men, 135 white and sixty-eight colored. These are all "in what is known as "Class 1-A" and means that at the rate at which registrants are being called it will probably be next fall before the available list is exhausted.

From indications it is also apparent that Class 2 will not be reached at all this year unless for industrial purposes, as many new men will be secured through the registration of all youths reaching the age of twenty-one since June 5, 1917. The bill now being discussed in Congress will fix the date upon which they will present themselves for registration, probably some time in June of the present year. Their number will be sufficient to care for all drafts from Plainfield for well into 1919.

Walter Freeman, acting secretary of the Plainfield Board, has been working on the district figures for several weeks and only today secured his totals. He found that 2,952 men had received registration cards. Of this number, counting the twenty going today, 272 have been sent to camp. The Newark District Board still holds about three hundred appeal questionnaires that are being considered, but possibly only six can be put into Class 1-A. The remainder are industrial and other claims which the local Board cannot sanction, but which are valid and are upheld. Other figures compiled by Mr. Freeman are as follows:

White men inducted into service in 1917, 77; white men inducted in 1918, 148; colored men inducted in 1917, 27; white men enlisted or commissioned since registration, 216; colored men enlisted, 3; white men qualified for general service and waiting, 135; white men qualified for limited service and in waiting, 54; white delinquents, or men who have not returned questionnaires and are not in service, 159; white men yet to be examined, 32; colored men qualified for limited service and in waiting, 48; colored men qualified for limited service and in waiting, 8; colored delinquents, 22; colored men in Class 1-A yet to be examined, 6; total number of physical examinations conducted by Plainfield Board, 565; whites examined and held for full military service, 336; held for limited service, 64; rejected, because of physical defects, 76; colored men examined and held for full military service, 68; held for limited service, 8; rejected, 13; registrants examined in Plainfield, for other boards, 71.

The total of 181 delinquents is small in comparison with the number from other cities and is being lessened each day. Government agents and police are rounding up the men who are shirking service and as soon as found, are immediately sent to camp from unlimited military duty.

James W. Herrmann Receives a Sergeantcy

Privates James W. Herrman, of the U. S. Hospital Corp, who is the son of Henry White Herman, of 947 West Seventh street, has been made a sergeant and attached to the regular army unit now being mobilized under Captain Frederick Law, a noted head specialist of New York city. This unit will have charge of General Hospital No. 16 in France.

Sergeant Herrman has completed his course as X-ray technician at the U. S. Military School of Roentgenology (Cornell University Medical School), and also successfully passed his course in dark room technique under Silas Bourne, medical and surgical photographic expert, instructor for the Government.

Sergeant Herrman is expecting to be sent abroad soon.

Big Sendoff For Latest Selectives

By far the biggest demonstration that has yet been given departing Plainfield selectives was that accorded the twenty men from this district leaving for Camp Dix this morning.

Headed by the Liberty Band, the embryonic soldiers marched through the principal streets in company with a squad of Home Defense men, city officials, the Citizens' Committee, Boy Scouts and hundreds of pupils from the Plainfield High School who seized the opportunity to stimulate interest in Liberty Bond buying by making the affair a sort of Liberty Day parade. The Boy Scouts had their own drum corps and the high school boys and girls were divided into classes, each delegation carrying class colors and banners.

By the time the procession reached the North avenue station the crowd of spectators had reached several thousands. The 9:28 train, which took the selectives to Elizabeth, was a few minutes late but as it drew out from the station, the crowd burst into a tumultuous cheer. The selectives are due to reach Camp Dix at noon.

The twenty men were guests of honor at a dinner in the Queen City Hotel last night given by the Citizens' Committee. It was arranged by Chairman John J. Varley, who acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers. These were Mayor Leight Calkins, Rev. Father John F. Baldwin and Rev. Howard Clarke. Mr. Varley and members of the committee also spoke briefly.

Before going to the hotel, the boys were presented with Red Cross kits at exemption headquarters in the Babcock building and also were presented with tobacco, cigarettes and souvenir American flags. Claude Lackey was to have been one of the twenty leaving today but at the last moment was taken out because of an industrial claim being upheld. Salvatore Giacoponilla was sent in his place.

This is the corrected list of the twenty:

Muhlenberg To Graduate Record Class Of Nurses

The largest class that ever completed the course at Muhlenberg Hospital's training school for nurses will receive its diplomas at the annual graduation exercises to be held in the Hartridge Auditorium on Thursday night, May 23. Twelve young women, six of whom are from Plainfield, constitute the graduates. The previous largest class leaving Muhlenberg was that of 1914, which had nine members.

The Board of Governors is completing arrangements for the graduation program but has not yet decided upon the principal speaker. After the exercises, which include the address and presentation of diplomas and class pins, the nurses and their friends will enjoy a dance given by the Nurses' Alumae Association.

The twelve graduates are as follows: The Misses Viola McGoldrick, Margaret Pursel, Lillian Nugent, Margaret Smalley, Frances Buckley and Alma Thomas, all of Plainfield; Leah Sturrel and Virginia Cole, of Westfield; Marguerite Jahn, of Scotch Plains; Ann Fullerton, of Perth Amboy; Helen Davenport, of Somerville, and Irene McKee, of Elizabeth.

Although Muhlenberg was founded in 1883, it was not until 1896 that the first nurses were graduated from the training school. On this occasion three young women who had completed their course were awarded the coveted diplomas that permitted them to care for the sick as "professionals." They were: Miss Anna Wolfe, now of Forest Hills, L. I.; Miss Eleanor G. Trembly, now of Almira, N. Y., and Miss L. Grace Clark, now Mrs. E. A. Fryer, of Camden. In 1897 three more nurses were graduated and in 1898 the class was composed of only one young women, Miss Grace Adele Palmer, now of New York city. Since then the classes have averaged about five graduates each year, making a grand total of one hundred and one up to the present time. With the addition of the 1918 class the total to date will be 113 nurses who have completed the course at Muhlenberg. Of this number, many are now enlisted in Red Cross service doing their bit for Uncle Sam, either at home or abroad. These include Miss Elizabeth Wilson, of '07; Miss Clara Charlton, Miss Elizabeth Williams and Miss Helen Wilbee, of '10; Miss Ethel Humphrey, of '09; Miss Olga Anderson, Miss Mary Cleaves, of '12, and Miss Eleanor Schenck, of '13.

The members of the previous largest graduating class in 1914, were the Misses Anna Conant, Mary Kyle, Mary Scott, Margaret Penn, Sue C. Whitney and Ruth V. Kenney, all of Plainfield; Miss Sara Nevins, formerly of Jersey City, now of South Orange; Miss Jane Tabbert, of Modesta, Cal., and Miss Nora Abbee, of Greenfield, Mass.

IN THE CITY COURT.

Chauncey Stites, of Chatham street, North Plainfield, is one of the latest victims of the Plainfield police dragnet for speeders. He was fined three dollars in the city court Wednesday morning on a charge of riding his motorcycle along South avenue at a rate of about twenty-five miles an hour. In court, the same morning, Jackson Hedgman, colored, was arraigned on charge of non-support preferred by his wife but at the request of counsel the case was laid over until May 4.

CORPORAL PEARSON A VISITOR.

Oliver D. Pearson, Jr., of Manson place, who went to Camp McClellan last summer as a member of Company K, arrived in Plainfield Tuesday for a ten days' furlough. This is the first he has been at home since leaving Sea Girt with the Plainfield contingent. He now holds the rank of corporal.

'STEENTH FIREMAN QUITS.

Harry Mowrey, of Arlington avenue, has tendered his resignation as a member of the city fire department stationed at No. 3 house. He leaves next week to take a position as foreman in the Simplex factory at New Brunswick.

"BOMBER" HANES TO SPEAK.

"Bomber" Hanes, a member of the 24th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, wounded at the French front, has been secured by Plainfield Lodge of Elks to address an open Liberty Loan meeting at the clubhouse next Wednesday night. An urgent invitation is extended to all friends of the Elks to be in attendance.

Brainard was apparently pleased to be able to keep his $3 and informed the court that as he was an inveterate smoker the money would be well spent.

Quicksand Beds Cause Change In Saurer Addition

Quicksand, that ever baneful and dreaded enemy of the contractor, has caused a radical change in the structural plans for the big addition to the International Motor Company's Saurer plant on West Front street. The excavating work, which has been underway for several weeks, has revealed several big "pockets" of the treacherous ground formation, and in consequence adequate foundations cannot be laid.

After several thousands of dollars' work of concrete and stone had been dumped into the quicksand beds without any satisfactory result, the Frederick Ley Company, of Springfield, Mass., which has the contract for the $200,000 job, reported that some other course would have to be adopted. After a conference between all parties concerned, it was concluded to change the design of the addition. Instead of being a four-story and basement building two hundred and seventy-five feet long, it was decided to eliminate the excavating for a basement and make it a four-story structure three hundred and fifty feet long. This is the plan now being followed out and the work of making anchorages has gone along without any trouble.

The lower part of the property on which the big addition is being built lies in what was once a deep hallow. Years ago it acted as a sort of outlet for numerous springs at Rock avenue and West street, but as these are diverted when the old Plainfield sewage beds were located in that section. At the present time, the hallow on the surface appears to be fairly firm and it was not until the excavating was well underway that the trouble-some quicksand was discovered. Every known method of getting it to hold the heavy weight met with failure and in order to save valuable time and further expense the change of plan was hit upon as the best and easiest way out of the difficulty. It was originally estimated that the new addition would be completed in about sixty days, but this has now been lengthened to at least ninety days. The addition will give the Saurer plant an increase of 200,000 square feet of floor space.

The Frederick Ley Company, which has a big force of men employed at the job, makes a specialty of completing large contracts on the "hurry up" plan. It was this concern which electrified the Hoosak tunnel of the Boston and Albany Railroad, a distance of five and a quarter miles now being under Government contract for the new six million dollar Atlas powder plant near Wilmington, Del. This same firm built the big federal shipyard at Bristol, Pa., and the Marlin factory at New Haven, Conn. On the Marlin job, which was a government order, the men worked on day and night shifts through all the extreme cold weather of last winter. The night shift on two occasions kept going on outside from work while the thermometer registered a low as twenty degrees below zero.

CAPTAIN C. A. LOIZEAUX UNDERGOES OPERATION.

Captain Charles A. Loizeaux, of Hillside avenue, is a patient at the hospital at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, following an operation for appendicitis performed a few days ago. The telegram received by his father, J. D. Loizeaux, states that the attack was caught in time and the patient's recovery will probably be rapid.

Captain Loizeaux went out from Plainfield as a National Army man last September, but after being in the service only a short time passed the necessary examinations entitling him to a commission as lieutenant. He was assigned to the ordnance department as purchaser of lumber supplies and portable saw mill erection, acquitting himself in such a creditable manner that he was recently advanced to the rank of captain.

"JACK" CAULFIELD CALLED BACK TO ANNISTON.

Commissioned Officer "Jack" Caulfield, who arrived in town Wednesday for a ten days' furlough, was called back to Camp McClellan last night. He immediately left for Trenton to spend a few moments with his sister and then proceeded on to Anniston. It is understood that he has been assigned to a new firing squad and is to go overseas very soon.

COUNTRY CLUB OPENING.

The formal opening of the season at the Plainfield Country Club will take place tomorrow night, when a get together dinner will be served. The golf and tennis schedules will be announced soon. Tournament awards will be in War Savings Stamps

Private John J. Larkin First Plainfield Hero To Die Charging Enemy

"Somewhere in France" during the past week a clash occurred between American and German forces which took as part of its toll the life of the first Plainfield boy to die in actual combat. He was John J. Larkin, of 426 West Third street, a private in Company G, former Eighth New York Infantry, and one of the brave lads who have been defending the Stars and Stripes along the front line trenches since early in the present year.

Rev. Father B. M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, of which the young soldier was a communicant, was among the first to be informed of the lad's end. He immediately announced that a solemn high mass of requiem would be offered in St. Mary's next Monday morning and to which he extends an invitation to every one in Plainfield, Catholic and non-Catholic alike. Father Bogan will celebrate the mass, Rev. Father Hennessy will act as deacon and Rev. Father Holstere as sub-deacon. Father Bogan will also make an appropriate address dealing with the life that had been the first from this vicinity to be snuffed out and the choir, under the direction of Miss Mary Smith, will render special music. It is believed that the gathering will be one of the largest St. Mary's church has ever held, as the young man was extremely popular with all who knew him.

Just how the Prussian hand laid Private Larkin cold in death is not known as the brief official message coming from Washington Tuesday night, contained the usual information that he had been numbered among the casualties resulting from a clash at the enemy. The soldier boy's aunt, Mrs. Patrick Boyle, of the West Third street address, was the recipient of the telegram. She was given as his "next of kin" as she had brought him up from the time he was a mere child.

Private John J. Larkin.

Mrs. Boyle was greatly affected by the sad news as were also Private Larkin's only other relatives, his three sisters, all of whom live with Mrs. Boyle. They are Mary, aged twenty-four; Elizabeth, aged twenty-two, and Anna, aged seventeen. The two elder girls are employed locally, while Anna is a pupil in the eighth grade of St. Mary's grammar school. The father died two years ago.

Private Larkin was born in Brooklyn but he came to Plainfield at an early age to make his home with Mrs. Boyle. After finishing his school studies, he entered one of the local shops and remained for several years. Later he went to Danbury, Conn., for about twelve months but two years ago returned to Plainfield. He secured work at the Spicer plant in South Plainfield and was employed there when the United States declared war on Germany. He was then only nineteen years old but patriotism throbbed in every fibre of his body and he informed his aunt that he was going to be one of the first Plainfielders to defend the honor of America.

Because of having numerous acquaintances in the Eighth New York Regiment, he was to the headquarters of that unit just a year ago this month to offer his services. He passed all examinations and was quickly accepted, being assigned soon afterward to Company G. His regiment was made a part of the "Rainbow" division, the first to cross the Atlantic for overseas duty. Its formation includes the fighting "Sixty-ninth" and other New York regiments which are now upholding traditions established in the War of the Rebellion.

From letters received by Mrs. Boyle and Private Larkin's sisters, it is apparent that he was sent across the Atlantic about six months ago. Sometime later his division took over the American sector of front line trenches in Southern France and as had been upholding American dignity and the honor of Plainfield up to the critical moment when he went "Over the Top" for a dash at the enemy. It may be that he succumbed to a Prussian bullet, a bayonet thrust or the exploding of a shell, but whatever it was, the official despatch is confirmation of the fact that the young Plainfielder who gave up his life before he had lived it, was carrying out his intention as expressed to his aunt that he was going to be one of the first to carry the defense of Old Glory to a foreign shore.

"James Burns" Will Go To Grave Unknown

A diligent search on the part of the police has failed to disclose the full identity of the man known as "James Burns" who died in Muhlenberg Hospital early Sunday morning, following a fall downstairs at a West Second street house. His skull was fractured and at no time after the accident did he recover sufficient consciousness to tell anything about himself.

The body was taken to Higgins' undertaking rooms, where it is still being held but as the police investigation has revealed no relatives it will probably be buried at county expense tomorrow or Monday. Several persons have examined the features in the belief that they knew "Burns" but they found that they were mistaken.

"Burns" was about fifty years old and so far as can be learned had been in Plainfield only a month. He made the acquaintance of Fred Meeker and Martin Duffy and visited these two at their room at 201 West Second street Saturday night. In the course of conversation he said that he had lived in Scranton and other parts of Pennsylvania and that he had worked most of the time in factory plants. He was about to leave the house, when a mis-step in the dark sent him tumbling down the stairs, landing at the bottom with the injuries mentioned. Dr. Albert Pitts was called and had the man sent to the hospital. There was nothing in his clothing to indicate who or what he was with the exception of a card bearing his name, which said he had enrolled in the Public Service Research for war work.

D. J. COURAIN A FEDERATION OFFICER.

Daniel Courain, of West Fourth street, this city, was elected one of the vice presidents of the Federated Holy Name Societies when the last Sunday in November for the annual Newark diocesan convention. The organization embraces Union, Hudson, Essex, Passaic, Morris, Sussex and Bergen counties. Mr. Courain will represent Union. Joseph P. S. Fitzpatrick, of Jersey City, was chosen president.

John Muir On Wounded List

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Muir, of West Sixth street, this city, today received an official telegram from Washington stating that their son, John Muir, aged twenty-two years, had been seriously wounded in action in France.

Young Muir enlisted last July in the signal section of the Aviation Corps and after several months' training in Texas, went overseas as a member of the "Rainbow" division. He has been on the French front since last January. A short time before war was declared he received an honorable discharge from the navy after serving four years as a "Jackie" on board the battleship "South Carolina."

Joseph B. Muir, another son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Muir, is also a member of the signal section of the Aviation Corps and has been in France since last January.

German Prisoners To Do Road Work

The War Department plans soon to offer the States an opportunity to obtain as road builders German prisoners held in this country. Some of these men are already engaged on road construction in the vicinity of Forts McPherson and Oglethorpe, Ga., but the department intends to enlarge the scope of this and permit States to bid for their services.

States obtaining the prisoners must pay for their maintenance, but the Government will pay for guards, including a small amount of money for tobacco and the like.

Only enlisted men will come under the plan, for under The Hague conventions officers are exempt from manual labor.

At present this Government is negotiating with Berlin through the Spanish representatives over questions of pay so that there will be no inequalities between amounts of imprisoned American officers and what we pay German officers.

Bond Sales Nearing Goal

With Plainfield's total of Liberty Bond sales placed at $1,187,150 today, no doubt exists but what the local quota will be reached.

In the Plainfield High School tonight, a rousing Liberty meeting will be held which, it is believed, will send the purchase figures well toward the million and a half mark, only a step away from the full quota of $1,718,550. Mayor Leighton Calkins will preside at the meeting and the bright particular "stars" will be H. H. Southern and Julia Marlowe, who will speak and recite.

Other speakers will be Lieutenant P. W. Still, a returned Canadian officer, and members of the Loan Committee. The Camp Dix quartet will sing and the Liberty orchestra will furnish an instrumental program of music.

Plainfield's biggest observance of "Liberty Day" today will be a demonstration arranged by the Stoddard Aero Corporation this afternoon. It will consist of a parade of 1,000 employes and an aeroplane flight of one of the machines made by the concern. Overton Rounds, the Standard's principle editor, will rise from the company's plant at Elizabeth, fly to Orange and thence to Plainfield, landing at the Plainfield Country Club golf grounds. The latter place will be the terminus of the Plainfield parade and the crowd will be in waiting when Rounds descends.

HOME ON FURLOUGH.

John Henry, of Sumner avenue, and Charles Lee, of Grove street, are home from the Officers' Training School at Camp Meade for a ten days' furlough. Both passed their examinations successfully and are to receive lieutenant's commissions.

His Daddy Has Gone To War

POOR LITTLE KID! He has played hard all day with the toy soldiers his father brought home to him the day he left for France. And he's been keeping his spirits up because his father said to him—"Boy, take care of your little mother—and keep her happy till I come home again." And he has been trying very hard to back up that soldier in France. As his head sinks down on his arm he sees that big soldier—his gun in hand, his face set towards Victory.

And as the soldier goes "Over the Top" he turns his head and smiles—smiles at the boy who means so much to him—who stands to him for home, country, love, happiness, success—all he holds most dear.

Look well at this Child! He represents the future of America—the future of Liberty—do your share to help his father win the great fight for all the children of the world.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

A miniature flood was produced at West Front street and Exchange alley, Monday, when a big auto truck knocked over a fire hydrant. Patrolman Nolan was in the vicinity and gave a hurry summons to the Water Company employes. The rush of watre was shut off before any damage resulted. Dewey Barbiri, of Carlstadt, driver of the truck, was placed under arrest, but after paying for the wrecked hydrant was released.

In the city court, Tuesday morning, Joseph Parsons, a colored taxicab driver, was arraigned on a charge of fast driving preferred by Frank Zwinon, of New Brunswick. Zwinon claimed he was running his automobile on South avenue and had to run the machine upon the sidewalk to award being run down by Parsons. One wheel on the Zwinon machine was demolished. Parsons had several witnesses in court to prove that he was not running more than twelve miles an hour adn the charge was dismissed. In court the same morning, Robert Cornell, of Orange, was fined $3 for running his automobile over the speed limit. He was arrested on South avenue by Patrolman McGinley.

Mrs. John Manley will again have charge of the Children's Chorus for the Decoration Day program of the G. A. R., and the first assembly was held in Reform Hall yesterday afternoon. The attendance was large but many more children who can sing are needed and are asked to be present at the second gathering on Thursday of next week.

Franklin A. Langworthy has been elected superintendent of the Sabbath school of the Seventh-Day Baptist Society, this city, to succeed W. C. Hubbard. The new superintendent was welcomed to his new work Saturday by Dr. H. M. Maxson, associate superintendent.

Court Watchung, Daughters of Isabella, have issued invitations for a patriotic dance to be held in Columbus Auditorium, Friday night, May 10. DeLisle's Jazz orchestra will furnish the music.

Members of the Gesang and Turn Verein, assisted by the Ladies' Auxiliary, are arranging for a Red Cross benefit to be held in Saengerbund Hall on Tuesday night, May 21. This is the date on which the new Red Cross drive for more funds will begin. The affairs will be doubly auspicious. The program will include vocal and instrumental selections, dancing and prize bowling. Henry Hawrand is chairman of the committee and his associates from the Saengerbund society are Karl Hermann, John Retzer, J. Baur and Fritz Witt. The assisting committee from the auxiliary is composed of Mrs. Herman Klinsman, Mrs. G. O. Keller, Mrs. Carl Felber and Mrs. M. Mennenbach.

Harry S. Derflinger, of 115 Deer street, the borough, is among the local young men who recently enlisted in the army through Corporal Ernest Feck at the Watchung avenue postoffice buildings. The war game is not new to Derflinger as he has seen service on several previous occasions. He is a veteran of the Spanish War, was one of the first American soldiers to go over the walls at Peking during the Boxer uprising and also fought the Bolos in the Philippines. He is a carpenter by trade and has been acting as secretary of the Plainfield Trades Council.

As a result of the "bottle day" collection taken last Saturday by women volunteers who visited the stores and residences in the city and borough, the Visiting Nurses' Association secured $305 to be used for the care of sick babies during the coming summer.

James DeLisle and Nicholas Tucro, two fruit peddlers claiming Newark as their home, were arraigned in the city police court Monday morning on a charge of beating their horse. A fine of $10 each was imposed on the two culprits and they paid the money rather than go to jail for forty days.

WELSH FARMS BUYS CREAMERY AT CHERRYVILLE.

The Welsh Farms Dairy, of this city, has purchased from C. L. Peterman, a completely equipped creamery at Cherryville, Hunterdon county. Beside the creamery buildings and modern appliances for pasteurising milk, the premises include an acre of ground, two residences for workmen and an ice pond.

The property is located two and a half miles from the Stanton station on the Lehigh Valley Railroad and five miles from Flemington. The Welsh Farms will purchase its milk and cream supply from the nearby farmers and after treating it at the creamery will ship it to Plainfield by motor truck. The purchase deal was made through Thad Doane, Jr., of Park avenue.

FIRE CAPTAINS EXCHANGE COMMANDS.

At the request of the councilmanic fire committee, Chief A. D. Jennings on Wednesday made a transfer of Fire Department captains. Captain George Fehring, who has been at headquarters since former Captain William Townley was elevated to assistant chief, was sent to No. 4 house at Netherwood and Captain James Fitzpatrick, who has been at No. 4 for several years was brought down to headquarters.

No reason was advanced for the transfers other than that a change at intervals bettered the service, as it gave the officers a better knowledge of conditions in different parts of this city.

Nelson Peterson, of Watchung avenue, has returned to Plainfield after a six months' stay at Anniston, Ala.

PLAINFIELD'S HONOR ROLL.

In today's issue of the Record readers will find a list of approxiamtely 850 Plainfield young men and women who have enlisted in their country's service and who form what is to be known as the city's "Honor Roll." These names have been compiled primarily through the efforts of William M. Wherry, Jr., who has done everything possible to record every individual going from this community but who realized more and more as he went along that it was a stupendous task.

The main obstacle to making the list complete has been enlistments with out of town units. No check can be kept upon them outside of the records at Washington, which will not be available until after the war, and even then, the enormity of the task is beyond ordinary conceptions. For this reason, Mr. Wherry, Mayor Calkins, the Public Affairs Committee of the Common Council and all others entrusted with the responsibility of making up the honor roll, seek the co-operation of every citizen in Plainfield.

Keep in mind that this honor roll is to be placed in the City's archives that future generations will use it as an official reference and when the history of the great struggle is recorded it will enable Plainfield to substantiate its claim of giving more sons and daughters than any other municipality in this section, population considered. Keep in mind also that the beautiful service flag, now being prepared and soon to be unfurled, will flutter in the breeze as a symbol of Plainfield's manhood and womanhood engaged in the titanic task of forever suppressing the autocratic Hun. It would indeed, be a deplorable oversight if one name was left off the glorious banner and it remains for those who are here to see that no such mistake is made.

When Mr. Wherry first began his gathering of names, the impression prevailed that Plainfield had contributed all told, about 500 soldiers and sailors. As the list grew larger and larger, it was soon seen that this number would be exceeded by at least 300 and now the total has got to the 850 mark. We are firmly convinced that Plainfield has given the country a thousand of its flower of manhood and womanhood and the only way to validate the claim is for every resident of the community to present the names within their keeping. Don't wait for someone else to make the report. Scan the list as it is printed in the Record today and if you find the name of a relative or friend missing, send it to Mr. Wherry at once. Plainfield's honor roll must and will be complete, from the highest ranked officer down to the humblest dough-boy assigned to kitchen duty. The credit that is now being given those "doing their bit" will pale to insignificance by the agitation that is destined to come in succeeding years. The honor roll will tell to whom honor is due.

GOVERNMENT FUNDS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES.

In seeking a solution of Plainfield's housing problem, the Business Men's Association has taken up a question that has been perplexing this community for nearly a year. Should the organization succeed in providing a remedy it will earn the gratitude of industrial workers who have been put to great inconvenience and at the same time be of no small aid to the Government in manufacturing supplies.

At the beginning of industrial activity at the commencement of the war in Europe, Plainfield was said to have had fully 300 vacant houses. Today there is hardly a moderate priced dwelling that is not tenanted and should there be one it is only because of conditions that make it uninhabitable. Even the mansions in the Netherwood and South End sections, renting from fifty dollars to one hundred dollars a month, have all been leased, so great has been the influx of men in all walks of life. From this it can be seen that the housing problem has become a serious proposition and concerted action was necessary.

So far the Business Men's Association has reached only the point of discussion. A committee was appointed which has conferred with manufacturers, real estate men and merchants. Facts gleaned by conferences are being sorted over and when the course becomes clear the association will push the matter to a finish.

Inasmuch as the building of more homes will entail a great expense it seems as though the Business Men's Association might solicit some of the Government funds being provided for this purpose. Congress appropriated many millions of dollars to be used by communities in promoting building operations, a special committee being appointed to sanction all requests. Newark and Elizabeth are among the nearby cities that have applied for money and according to report they are to be given a proportionate quota. Plainfield is entitled to a large sum because of a number of plants making munitions and if the proper credentials are shown, we believe that it will be forthcoming. The Government needs the men, the men need the homes, the Government has the necessary financial needs and there you are.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

It is not merely knowing what to say that counts so much as knowing when to say it.

Before bowing to the inevitable, be certain that it is not a case of mistaken identity.

Exchanging bachelors quarters for a better half is not necessarily marrying for money.

One of the greatest blessings of old age is that insurance solicitors give a fellow a rest.

The Saints be praised. At last the white-winged dove of peace is fluttering about the City Hall.

It is all right so long as a man and wife are one; but it is all wrong when they are one too many.

If you would hear only pleasantries concerning yourself, just confine your conversation to yourself.

The real daylight saving proposition is to put in a real day's work. You can't obtain by shifting the hands of a clock what you fail to achieve because your own hands remain idle.

If the cops keep on bringing in auto speeders from that particular section, South avenue might well be termed "the Flivver Trap."

And as you go along don't forget that producing more is the first great need, for it is after production that conservation can be practiced.

The Mayor wants you to celebrate Liberty Day but don't take it all out in shouting and wondering why somebody didn't get up a big parade. Digging down in your jeans and producing the necessary simoleons to buy a Liberty Bond is the real way to obey the Executive's command.

What gets us about this Brunson dairy affair is where was the North Plainfield Board of Health during all those days that the deplorable conditions existed? Surely an inspection weeks ago would have shown that things were not right and a change made accordingly, before it remained for a fire to reveal the danger to which milk users were being subjected.

THINGS WE WOULD LIKE TO KNOW—

If there is any one in Plainfield who does not get more thrills from the sight of one troop train than listening to ten patriotic addresses?

Where John Dahl gets all his men from?

If "Doc" Giddes and "Perce" McVoy think as much of trout fishing now as they did before it cost them $46.75?

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

OLIVER B. LEONARD.

The First Baptist church held a large assemblage of relatives and friends Tuesday afternoon, when the funeral of Oliver B. Leonard, Plainfield's widely known resident who died on Sunday last, was held. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, who took occasion to speak of the exemplary life of the deceased and the factor he had been in the influence and work of the First Baptist congregation.

During the service a quartet composed of Mrs. Rogert Gidden, Miss Jessie Haines, William Holmes and Erwin Leland sang two two hymns, "How Firm a Foundation" and "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand." The floral tributes were magnificent, consisting from various departments of the First Baptist church, business associates of other days and friends of the family.

Burial was made in the family plot in Hillside cemetery, the deacons acting as honorary pall-bearers, while the honorary pall-bearers were the following members of the Probasco Bible Class: R. R. J. Chandler, Claude N. Dorney, Horace Bunker, Hamlet L. Luckey, Duncan Patterson and Murray Stows.

The death of Mr. Leonard came after a period of failing health beginning several months previous. It was not generally supposed, however, despite his advanced years that the indications were serious and when the demise was reported Sunday afternoon, it occasioned mingled regret and surprise.

Mr. Leonard was born in this city on December 25, 1829, the family residence at that time being in the old Leonard homestead on West Front street, now the property of Dr. C. B. Lathurow. His parents had been pioneer residents in this section and were among the town's most highly respected people. After completing his education in the local "academies," Mr. Leonard took a preparatory college course at Bucknell University and later entered Rochester University, from which he was graduated in 1861. His father was publisher of one of Plainfield's early newspapers, The Central New Jersey Times, and he began his business career as an assistant in this enterprise. Under this direction, the paper, which was a weekly, became one of the most influential in Union county. It had for its closest contemporary the Constitutionalist, printed by Force Brothers, and the two periodicals conducted fierce campaigns as backers of the two principal political parties, Republican and Democrat. The Times was a staunch supporter of G. O. P. principles, while the Constitutionalist stood for all that Democracy represented.

The Leonards' interest in the Times were eventually sold to other parties and Oliver B. Leonard secured employment with the Lawrence Cement Company in the New York office. He remained with the concern for thirty-five years, retiring from active work about ten years ago.

When a young man, Mr. Leonard joined the First Baptist church, remaining as one of its most active workers up to the time his last illness began. He was at one time superintendent of the Sunday-school and for forty-two years had been congregational clerk. Probably no other man in the city had a wider knowledge of old Plainfield residents and because of a natural liking for genealogy he devoted much of his time to writing articles of the city's early inhabitants. A number of these have appeared in print.

In 1865, Mr. Leonard married Miss Elizabeth Marsh, daughter of Elston Marsh, a leading citizen of Plainfield for many years. Mrs. Leonard died a short time ago and the only surviving relatives of the deceased are one son, Elston Marsh, of this city, and a brother, Rev. William J. Leonard, of Roxbury, Mass. Another son, James Leonard, died a few years ago, leaving one son, William Thompson Leonard.

MRS. AUGUSTUS J. BRUNSON.

The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude Thyra Brunson, wife of Augustus J. Brunson, president of the First National Bank, will be held at the family home on Greenbrook road this afternoon. Rev. Howard Clarke, pastor of the Congregational church, will officiate and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Brunson's death occurred Tuesday afternoon, after a brief illness with pneumonia. She was forty years old and was the daughter of Mrs. Mary D. and the late Daniel E. Isard, of Mount Lebanon. Her home had been in Plainfield since her marriage to Mr. Brunson in 1903. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Beside her husband, she is survived by a son, Van Devanter Brunson, and a little daughter, Elizabeth.

MRS. RICHARD E. DAVIS.

Mrs. Sarah I. Davis, wife of Richard E. Davis, of 221 New street, died Tuesday in Muhlenberg Hospital, after a brief illness. She was received at the institution on April 18 for medical treatment. The funeral was held at 402 Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Davis had been a resident of Plainfield for the past forty years, coming here from Norwich, Conn., at the time the Potter Press Works removed to this city from Hope Valley, R. I. Her first husband, the late Frank Shattle, was employed by the concern when it began business and removed to Plainfield to continue in its service. He was one of the oldest employes at the time of his death a few years ago.

Mrs. Davis had a wide acquaintance in the city and was known as a woman possessing threable traits. Beside her husband, she is survived by two sons, Frank J. Shattle, of West Sixth street, and Elmer Shattle, of Jersey City.

OTIS CORBETT.

Otis Corbett, sixty-nine years old, who for a number of years was a member of he New York firm of Phelps, Doremus & Corbett, furniture dealers, and later associated with the Almone Manufacturing Company, of New York, died Sunday at his home, 6 Rockview avenue, the borough, after a long illness. He was born in Brooklyn, and after living in New York for several years, removed to Plainfield, where he resided for a time. While engaged in the furniture business a disastrous fire resulted in the firm dissolving. Mr. Corbett came to Plainfield in 1905 and purchased the Commercial Mills and Elevator on South Second street, which he conducted until ill health prevented. He leaves his wife, who was Miss Amellia Phelps, of New York, and five children.

The funeral was held at the family home Tuesday afternoon, and was in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong. Burial took place in Woodlawn cemetery, New York, Wednesday.

MRS. MARY STILES.

Mrs. Mary Stiles, widow of George M. Stiles, and a resident of Plainfield for many years, died Monday morning at her home at 810 East Second street, following a long illness. She is survived by one daughter, Miss Mary Edna Stiles.

The funeral was held at the late home Wednesday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, of which Mrs. Stiles was a member. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

GEORGE MARTIN.

George Martin, colored, of 418 East Third street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital this morning. He was twenty-five years old and the son of the late Edward Martin, for many years a porter at the North avenue station. The young man is survived by his mother, one brother an a sister.

RUTH ELIZABETH MAY.

Ruth Elizabeth Day, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin May, of 57 Woodbine avenue, died Tuesday night, after a brief illness with diphtheria. A private funeral service was held at the graveside Wednesday afternoon, when burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, April 15, 1918, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, viz:

AN ORDINANCE

to Ascertain and Establish the Boundaries of a Portion of West Front Street.

WHEREAS, The Common Council judges that the public good requires that the boundaries of a portion of the line of West Front Street be ascertained and established as hereinafter set forth, pursuant to Section 16 of the Act of 1917, Section 1—(a).

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the boundaries or side lines of a portion of West Front Street be ascertained and established as follows:

(1) That the point of beginning shall begin at an iron monument on the easterly line of said West Front Street, as established by ordinance approved April 5, 1915, said monument being distant seven hundred and ninety-three and ninety-three hundredths (793.93) feet along said line of West Front Street, measured from an iron monument in the intersection of the southerly line of said Avenue and said West Front Street, said first mentioned monument being distant two hundred and twenty-three (223) feet, at right angles, in a northwesterly direction, from the northwesterly line of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, said running thence (2) northwesterly, parallel and two hundred and eight (208) feet at right angles to said line of West Front Street, to an iron monument in the southerly line of Jefferson Avenue and said West Front Street; and

That the boundaries or side lines of said West Front Street, as herein described, shall be twenty-three (23) feet, at right angles, on each side, from the above described point of beginning.

Section 2. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances which are inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

was presented and said ordered to be considered and acted upon by a vote of the Common Council at the regular meeting to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 142 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, on Monday, May 6, 1918, at eight o'clock p. m. of that day, and at such meeting ample opportunity will be given to all parties in interest to present their objections or contentions by said ordinance to be presented their views with reference to the same by writing or otherwise as the Common Council may at that time direct. Notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Common Council to consider said improvement set forth in this ordinance in the manner and that as public corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 157 West Front avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the hearing directed by the date of this notice, or to present their views with reference to the same in writing or otherwise as the Common Council may at that time direct. Notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Common Council to consider said improvement set forth in this ordinance in the manner and that as public corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 157 West Front avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the hearing directed by the date of this notice, or to present their views with reference to the same in writing or otherwise as the Common Council may at that time direct.

Section 3. That this ordinance shall take effect immediately upon the passage thereof and publication according to law.

The foregoing ordinance was approved by the Mayor on the 15th day of April, 1918. The bonds authorized thereby will be issued and delivered after the 16th day of May, 1918, and before the 16th day of June, 1918, at such time or times as the Common Council may determine.

JOHN J. CARROLL,

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Courain, of West Fourth street, are the happy parents of a baby daughter who arrived at their home a few days ago.

Mrs. Catherine C. Brown, of South Second street, has received official word that her son, Private Louis Denton Brown, a member of the Field Artillery, has arrived safely in France.

Mr. and Mrs. Theisphore Parent, Jr., of 334 Manson place, are rejoicing over the arrival of a young son, born to them this week. Mrs. Parent was formerly Miss Elizabeth V. Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Schlief, of Scotch Plains, formerly of Plainfield, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lillian Schlief, to Bradley Barrett, of Fanwood. No date has been set for the wedding.

Private Edward Heath, of North avenue, who recently went to Camp Dix, from this district, returned to his company Tuesday, after a four days' furlough. He is soon to enter the mobile ordnance corps and is to assist in bringing newly made army trucks from Detroit overland to the Atlantic seaboard.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner W. White, of West Eighth street, are the parents of a son born to them a few days ago. Mrs. White was formerly Miss Sylvia Curtis, daughter of the late T. H. B. Curtis. Mr. White is in Uncle Sam's service as a sergeant in the Gas Defense division stationed on Long Island.

Miss Alice Moran, of Hampton, returned home Monday, after a pleasant visit with her cousin, Miss Cecilia Fee, of Spruce street.

John E. Nicol, secretary to the late Congressman John H. Capstick, returned to Washington, Wednesday, after spending a week at his home on Richmond street. Mr. Nicol is closing up the Washington affairs of his deceased employer and will shortly return to Plainfield permanently, pending acceptance of one of several positions that have been tendered him.

Thomas Dorgan, of Liberty street, has been confined to his home for the past week by a severe attack of lumbago.

John J. Casey, of 450 West Third street, is home on a ten days' furlough from his duties as a sanitary inspector in the Government reservation at Portsmouth, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Cato, who were married last Saturday afternoon by Mayor William L. Smalley, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston, of Fairview avenue, are now located at Jackson Heights, L. I., where they will reside temporarily. Mrs. Cato was formerly Miss Marguerite Woolston, one of the borough's best known young women. At the ceremony she was attended by Miss Elizabeth St. Ives, of New York, while John C. Fox, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. Mr. Cato's home is at Oakland, Cal., but he has been stationed at College Point, L. I., as a chief aeronautical and mechanical engineer for the L. W. F. Engineering Company of that place.

More Registrants Pass Physical Test

Forty registrants from the Plainfield district who for various reasons had not undergone their physical examinations were passed upon by the local Medical Board at the Evergreen Avenue School, Saturday afternoon. Thirty-two were accepted for general military service and nine were reported to the Union County Medical Advisory Board for examination on the following Tuesday.

Eighteen other registrants who were notified to be present at the gathering of last Saturday did not appear. They are now being looked up by agents of the draft board and unless satisfactory explanation can be given will be inducted into service immediately.

These are the thirty-two men who were accepted for general service:

Alexander Armstrong
Charles Reisenberger
Walter Allen Boynton
Antonin Christ
David D. Conway
Samuel Cornetas
Jesse D. Cotgreave
Stmon R. Debbie, Jr.

Blakeslee's Opposition Costs the State $35,000

At a special meeting of the State Highway Commission in Jersey City this week it was decided by a vote of six to one to purchase 190,000 worth of road building equipment and 60,000 barrels of cement for the use of convict labor on the building of State highways this year.

The objecting member was George A. Blakeslee, of Jersey City, who has been opposing convict labor for several months and held up plans on this ground, claiming that this class of labor is not efficient.

It is said that as a result of Mr. Blakeslee's attitude, the prices of material the State has now decided to buy have increased approximately $35,000. At a recent meeting at Trenton, Mr. Blakeslee succeeded in stopping the approval of plans for convict labor on the roads, because of the fact that he refused to vote for the motion, and without his vote there was not a sufficient majority.

The equipment and cement will be used by the State Commission on section of route No. 2, between Trenton and New Brunswick; route No. 1, between New Brunswick and Elizabeth, and route No. 9, between Elizabeth and Phillipsburg.

Frank Springer Is Greatly Perplexed

Frank Springer, the very accommodating baggage master at the Plainfield station of the Central Railroad, doesn't know whether he should become a candidate for Congress in the Fifth District or not. Frank is perplexed and has his own reasons for being mentally twisted. He is satisfied, however, that he can fill the bill as baggage master, questions his own status as a statesman and has grave doubts as to his knowledge as an agriculturist.

Following out the general suggestion of President Wilson to conserve by tilling the soil, raising chickens and so forth, he bought three roosters. He selected the roosters himself, because they were larger than chickens, and had them sent to his home.

Next day he gathered in three eggs and was telling his friends, Frank Shattle in particular, of his rare good luck.

Frank Shattle thought a little and then handed out some explaining.

Frank Springer then started to do some thinking on his own account. He has reached the conclusion that he is not certain whether he bought roosters, or what, and that therefore he is not fitted for a farmer or an agriculturist, whether he would be a howling success as a Congressman or otherwise.—Newark Town Talk.

Trolley Companies Give Reasons For Service Curtailing

In an effort to acquaint the public with the reason for certain innovations such as cutting down the service and ordering "skip-stops," the traction company's estate are issuing letters in circular form. The Trenton and Mercer County Traction Company is one of the first to adopt this measure for off-setting criticism and the Public Service Corporation is among the other concerns that is to follow suit. Plainfield is among the municipalities that is suffering from the shortened trolley facilities and the protest against them have been within reason as no official explanation was forthcoming. The reasons advanced by the Trenton and Mercer Company are compiled under the caption, "Help Us Help Win the War," and are as follows:

"The Council of National Defense has issued to the electric railways of this country, through the Electric Railways War Board, a call for their utmost co-operation toward winning the war.

"The council asks especially that we postpone all expenditures on new construction or replacements that can possibly be avoided.

"While this will interfere for the time being with certain of our plans, there is no question what our duty is. We must give the patriotic aid that is asked, and we shall. The call says in part:

"'During the first seven months of 1917 the States and cities of the United States pent more money for public improvements than for the corresponding period of 1916. In so far as these expenditures were not absolutely necessary they were against the interests of both public and the electric railways because:

"'1. Labor was taken from pursuits essential to war purposes.

"'2. Capital was withheld from enterprises necessary to war purposes.

"'3. The burden of taxation was increased at a time when taxpayers were least able to bear them.

"'4. The cost of such improvements was many times in excess of the cost in normal times.'

* * *

"The council has sent the following to us and to all the electric railways of the whole country:

"'Every effort that this country is capable of should be applied to bring the war to a successful conclusion. During the period of the war any new enterprise or undertaking should be tried and justified by this test: Will the men, money and material so applied best contribute in this way to the winning of the war?

"'New enterprises which are not fundamental to the efficient operation of the country's necessary activities should not be undertaken.'

* * *

"The Electric Railways War Board has sent to all companies, a bulletin in which they point out ways of saving coal, saying under the heading: 'Unnecessary Service:'

"'First—It is entirely possible, without great inconvenience to the public, to eliminate many of the runs in the early morning and after the public have been taken home in the evening. This should be done.

"'Too frequent headway in the middle of the way on lines in sparsely settled territory, and insufficient loading on other lines should be remedied.

"'Second—A large saving in power can be secured by the elimination of unnecessary stops. The experience in cities where the 'skip-stop' has been tried proves that not only can economies be brought about, but the service can be greatly improved.

"'Third—The heating of cars by electricity and even by coal entails great use of fuel. The Fuel Administration especially recommends that the amount of heat in cars be cut down. Heating of waiting stations by electricity should be done away with.'"

Food Administrator Names County Supervisor

William S. Tyler, New Jersey food administrator, has taken his first step in seeing that Union county observes the order to use wheat substitutes by appointing Ernest Zeek, of Plainfield, to search out violations. As soon as they are reported to Mr. Zeek, he will establish the truth of them and communicate with Mr. Tyler.

The State administrator decided to take some action in the matter after he learned that all of the bakers in the county were not observing the rules for 25 per cent. substitute for wheat in bread and other products. Those who are found disobeying are liable to either a heavy fine or to having their place of business closed for a period of days.

Goverment Advises Early Coal Orders

"Place your order for coal now, even if there is no chance for immediate delivery," says the fuel administration in a statement today reiterating its determination to effect distribution of all coal possible during the summer months for next winter.

"With the country's coal supply largely ordered ahead," the statement add, "the fuel administration will be in a position to act promptly and facilitate the movement of an adequate supply of coal to meet the demand. The railroads will be enabled to judge of the traffic facilities which must be made available for aiding coal production and for distributing the supply."

THE NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.

The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.

Germany Underestimated, Kaiser's Dentist Tells Local Clinical Society

That Germany's resources and abilities have been underestimated, that her armies cannot be beaten until reverses come to break the spirit of the German people, that her greatest internal problem at the present time is the obtaining of a sufficient food supply to maintain her starving masses and that the Junker class is responsible for many of the political moves charged against the Kaiser are among the forceful statements made by Dr. A. N. Davis, personal dentist to Emperor William for fifteen years, in an address to the Plainfield Clinical Society at a meeting at Dr. Frank C. Ard's home on Park avenue, last Thursday night.

Dr. Davis came back from Germany in January of the present year, consequently his information is of the very latest and most important nature. What he had to say to the gathering of local professional men had previously been given to the United States authorities as a matter of desirable military information although the Washington authorities received further facts and figures not to be made public. The Clinical Society gathering was one of the largest the organization has ever enjoyed and the remarks of Dr. Davis were received with rapt attention. By many of those in attendance, the intimate information of the Prussian ruler and the Central Powers after nearly four years of war was regarded as the most authentic that had yet been given to Plainfielders.

The home of Dr. Davis is at Piqua, Ohio, but in 1903 he went to Germany for the expressed purpose of performing dental work for the Kaiser and incidentally for other members of Prussian royalty. Associated with him was Dr. William D. Law, a resident of Michigan. Dr. Davis did all the Kaiser's work and was thus in a position to hold many conversations with the now most hated man in the world but of these he made no reference in his address of Thursday night. Professional etiquette, he declared, would not permit him any such breach of confidence, yet, as a true patriot, he had given President Wilson and his departmental heads whatever of value there was in his knowledge of conditions in Germany.

Dr. Law was also much in contact with royalty during his stay at Berlin. Like Dr. Davis, he possesses a vast amount of knowledge relative to German affairs and people and the talked informally of what he had observed. It was mainly through Dr. Law that his associate came to Plainfield for the Clinical Society meeting.

Dr. Davis was in Frankfort at the time of Germany's original declaration of war in July, 1914. To the Clinical Society, he described in vivid detail, the wild confusion that followed as aliens attempted to leave the country and native people hurried hither and thither attending to their own or the government's business. He himself attempted to motor back to Berlin but his car was commandeered by the military authorities, depriving him of transportation for several days. Eventually he made his way back to the Capital by train, continuing to make his home there and practice his profession despite the impending clash between the United States and Germany.

The treaty of 1799, Dr. Davis said, was of great advantage to the American residents of the German empire as under its terms the citizens of either country are allowed nine months in which to wind up their business affairs and depart for their native heath. As far as he could learn, the doctor said, everyone from the United States was accorded fair and liberal treatment during the exodus of 1917, mainly for one reason. This is that Germany realizes that there are far more German people in America than there are Americans in Germany and that any injustice would meet with prompt retaliatory measures, the difference in population giving the balance of effect to the United States.

Americans who ask for passports, Dr. Davis went on to say, bar their careers in Germany checked back to the very day of their arrival in the empire. If there was the slightest infraction of any rule found marked against them by the military police or if by any inadvertent remark that had been overheard it seemed as though they had discriminated against Germany, permission to leave the country was refused. Dr. Davis said nothing about returning to the land of his birth until last fall despite the fact that his country had declared war against Germany many months before. If he had said anything about it, he explained, before he was really ready to go, he would never have gotten the necessary official sanction. As it was, a special detail was placed on his case and when it was found that his conduct had been exemplary the passports were made out. He arrived in New York in January last, more than six months after Dr. Law had landed in the same city. The latter left the empire soon after war was declared.

"Since getting back here," Dr. Davis went on to say to the Clinical Society, "I find that the American people are prone to underestimate Germany's resources or her capabilities. This is vastly wrong. All that has been said about her efficiency is true. Instead of preparing for this war for forty years, as many Yankees say in their discussions, she has been making ready for more than 150 years. Even back to the time of Frederick the Great, her rulers and war boards understood the value of military preparation and her resources and powers have been so centralized as to give her a most ponderous and formidable military machine.

"The German armies have been pushing forward," the doctor continued, "mainly because the force directing them has maintained confidence and pushes them ahead. Once let a defeat come, or a series of reverses and it will be a different story. The German people have been so coached and educated that once they are gotten on the backward run their retreat and demoralization will be greater than their forward movements or implacability. Should the ruling forces in the slightest degree, there is no holding off the defeat that is sure to come as these forces find not the great army afield is the real backbone of German military tenacity."

Dr. Davis exploded the popular American theory that Leudendorf is the military brains of the Central Powers. This position, he said, is held by Field Marshal von Hindenberg, who stands head and shoulders above anyone else in Germany as a strategist or practical fighter.

"Germany, like any other country," continued Dr. Davis, "has her political parties and their influence is not to be denied. The Junker, of wealthy class of politicians, exercises powers over Emperor Wilhelm that frequently tie the Kaiser's hands. This has been the case in the rivalry between Leudendorf and von Hindenberg. Leudendorf has been the idol of the Junkers and they elevated him to the office of chief military adviser, relegating von Hindenberg to a field command. Von Hindenberg, however, is the idol of the masses and the demands of the people became so insistent that the Kaiser had to recognize the field marshal and give him the prominence he enjoys, which is in keeping with his ability. His knowledge of European politics is amazing, his methods of handling great bodies of men are examples of undeniable efficiency and his sagacity as a planner has no equal in Germany or Austria. Von Hindenberg is the man of the day."

Referring to the scarcity of food in Germany, Dr. Davis said there had been no exaggeration in the United States. Conditions have become so bad there is only a sufficient supply for the military, naval and working forces, the very young and the old being classed as "non-producers" and left to get along as best they may.

"Thousands of old men and women," said Dr. Davis, "are succumbing to diseases brought on by insufficient nourishment and babies' lives are being shortened for the same reason. Germany has a certain amount of food but unless you are a fighter or a munitions worker, you get little. The Empire has no use for an unimportant, non-producing individual."

"The scarcity of food," the physician asserted, "has opened the way for a tremendous system of graft. Although you will hear people in this country declare there is no such thing in the empire. Everybody is limited by card to a certain amount of food but where supplies can be diverted for a money consideration it is done by even the soldiers and police. Previous to my departure from Berlin, I found myself one of the sufferers of the food shortage. One day a policeman came to my back door and asked me if I wanted to buy a pound of butter, although according to the card system I was not entitled to it. On saying that I would like to have it the policeman responded by showing me the coveted butter and remarking I could have it for eight dollars. I paid the amount gladly and I would have given twenty-five dollars so anxious was I to enjoy the taste of real pure creamery butter."

Dr. Davis then told of another evidence of grafting which came to his notice during the great fuel scarcity of 1916 and 1917.

"It was a German soldier who came to my door this time. In front of the house he had a small wagon load of coal so concealed as not to attract notice. We had had none of the precious commodity in some time and the soldier by some method had found out that I was in a mood to discuss questions of supplying demand. After a few preliminary remarks, the small wagon load of coal became my property but the transaction cost me seventy-five dollars. This sort of grafting goes on in the principal cities all the time and the people must of necessity submit to it as no satisfaction is gained by making complaint. The one hope the masses entertain beyond the early ending of the war is that the day will come when they can have plenty of food and be able to buy it without submitting to official extortion. As for myself it was one of the happiest days of my life and the greatest pleasure I have had in years to see displayed in the New York store windows, on my return, quantities of butter, eggs and other food that could be bought in large or small lots for a comparatively low price. Only those who have actually gone without a sufficient amount of food for a long time can realize the thrill that comes with such a sight."

Passing on to the German cruelties that have been given so much exploitation in America, Dr. Davis said that he had no knowledge of these purported atrocities. He spoke of having seen the man-handling of a Russian at the time war began in 1914, the unfortunate fellow being thrown off a train and repeatedly kicked in the face by solt, but beyond that he had no personal knowledge of inhuman acts.

In his concluding remarks, Dr. Davis spoke of the kind treatment accorded him by Ambassor James W. Gerard during the last days of the latter's stay in Germany. When the Ambassador said good-bye to Berlin, he gave the dentist all the food supplies that he had carefully conserved at his residence.

"When you keep in mind how scarce real food is in Germany, and what it meant to be so favored," Dr. Davis explained, "you can appreciate my gratitude to him."

After all his explanations and intimate pictures of conditions in Germany, Dr. Davis finished by saying that he had no doubt as to the ultimate outcome of the war. The United States, he said, is a wonderful nation with unlimited wealth and supplies and that in the end her increasing weight is bound to tell. Victory is only a matter of time and that time is coming quicker if the people realize fully the task that is ahead and work in unity for its favorable accomplishment.

Dr. Ard, as host of the occasion, was warmly thanked for the profitable and entertaining evening that had been spent by the Clinical Society members, each one of whom felt that he had been greatly benefited by Dr. Davis' personal account.

F. D. Fuller's Funeral Tomorrow Afternoon

The funeral of Floyd Dunning Fuller, whose death occurred yesterday morning after a long illness will be held at the late residence on Arlington avenue tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The service will be in charge of Rev. Howard E. Clarke and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Fuller, who was sixty-nine years old, had lived in Plainfield since 1887, coming here from New York. He was engaged in the produce business for a long time but of late had been retired. He was a member of Queen City Lodge, I. O. O. F. He leaves beside his wife, two daughter and three sons. They are Mrs. Louise Tilsworth, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Carrie Fedderman, of Dunellen; George Fuller, of Buenos Ayres, S. A., Joseph Fuller, of this city, and Roy Fuller, a member of an aviation corps stationed in Texas.

CORRA RYNO SERIOUSLY ILL.

Corra Ryno, of Codington avenue, is seriously ill with pleuro-pneumonia. The illness began early last week with a chill and Mr. Ryno's condition has steadily been growing worse. He is under the care of Dr. William H. Anthony, assisted by Dr. Zeglio. Mr. Ryno was advertising manager for the Daily Press for twenty-five years, but recently has been connected with the Union Grain Company.

Board Names Eleven Men For Service

The Plainfield Draft Board today announced the following list of names who are to go to Fort Slocum on Monday, May 13, in response to the call issued from Adjutant-General Gilkyson.

John J. Curran, Bayard B. Alcorn, Luigi Appezato, John Wilson, Thomas P. Peterson, John P. Hanrihan, Waldorf C. Ulrich, John DeForge, Charles H. Clark, Michael Gilman and Joseph F. Melick.

The list is subject to change before entraining on the date mentioned. The men will leave on the 10:58 train from the North Avenue station, have lunch at the Jersey City terminal and then proceed by New York subway to the Grand Central station. Here they will entrain for New Rochelle, the station nearest Fort Slocum. Before leaving the city the selectees will be given a farewell demonstration similar to the others held in Plainfield recently.

Through a call received by the local Draft Board today, grammar school graduates have an excellent opening for industrial service in the army. This call asks for 150 young white men who have completed the grammar course to enter Browne University at Providence, R. I. for a special course at the expense of the Government fitting them for positions as electrical workers, woodworkers, auto repairing and other mechanical duties either at the front or behind the lines. Men having had some experience in mechanical lines are preferred and applications may be made now to the Plainfield Board in order to have all eligibles report to the commanding officer at Browne University by May 15.

Police Fail To Find Missing Wilma Wilson

A search by the local police has failed to disclose the whereabouts of Wilma Wilson, the eight-year-old daughter of Walter Wilson, of 816 West Third street, who disappeared Tuesday afternoon while on her way home from St. Mary's School.

The belief now exists that the child was taken away by relatives of her deceased mother, with whom she had been living up to a month ago, at which time her father gained possession of her by a ruse. Wilma was seen by several playmates to enter an automobile in which two women were seated. They were recognized through description but when their home not far from Newark was visited, the place was found to be closed up. It is the opinion of some that the women took the child to New York city in order to escape difficulties in New Jersey.

Walter Wilson, the father of the little girl, is a member of a naval aero squadron now on the way to France. He has been in the service since last summer. His wife, who died several years ago, was a native of Matawan.

Park Avenue Church Losing Its Steeple

A. S. Phillippi, a Perth Amboy contractor, yesterday commenced work tearing down the steeple of the Park Avenue Baptist church. The tall spire, which rises to a great height, has been one of the most conspicuous "sky line" marks in the south side of the city but as it has proven a great expense to keep in repair, and serves no particular purpose, the church trustees decided to remove it.

On several occasions since it was erected more than thirty years ago the steeple has been struck by lighting, thus disproving the old belief that the electrical fluid never makes a return visit to the same place. The work of repairing the damage done each time has been difficult and expensive and rebuilding the tall spire only invites more trouble. An ornamental squared tower will take the place of the steeple at the present base.

The Park Avenue Baptist church is the second local house of worship to be deprived of its commanding spire. The first was the First Baptist church, which lost its lightning-inviting perpendicular a few years ago.

Trust Comyany Offers Prizes For Gardeners

Leading its support to the National Agricultural Association's plan as expressed in the slogan: "Save your country by planting ten million gardens in 1918," the Plainfield Trust Company has inaugurated a local contest for gardeners. Many handsome prizes and money rewards are to be given the amateur vegetable growers of Plainfield who excel in their products or producing "patches."

Miss Adele Kirby, assistant treasurer of the Plainfield Trust Company, has already done a great work in stimulating interest in the plan by addressing the pupils of the Plainfield and North Plainfield schools on the value of home gardens as a means of helping the Government in the food crisis. It is safe to say that from the manner in which she presented the idea and the incentive of prizes beside Uncle Sam, will be responsible for many thousands of dollars worth of vegetables produced this season. The contest is opened to anyone in Plainfield or within a radius of ten miles.

The prizes to be awarded by the Plainfield Trust Company are as follows:

One silver cup, twenty-five gold medals, twenty-five bronze medals, for the best looking gardens; fifteen gold medals, fifteen silver bronze medals for the largest ears of field corn, fifteen gold medals for the largest potatoes, in addition to the above prizes, eight gold medals and seven silver medals will be awarded to those who mail the Plainfield Trust Company photographs of the best looking lot of poultry to the number of twelve or over, that are ninety days old or over, raised by themselves from baby chicks or setting hens of any breed, started after the opening of this contest. To the farmers or those who have more than five acres of ground five gold medals and five silver medals will be awarded on photographs of the best looking flock of poultry to the number of one hundred or over, of any breed.

Full particulars and helpful hints for garden work can be obtained by applying at the Plainfield Trust Company.

George Simon Will Take College Course

George L. Simon, the well known local motorcycle and cycling expert, is the first Plainfield registrant to take advantage of the government's offer of two months' instruction at the Rhode Island State College at Kingston, R. I., for all young men wishing to enter the service as mechanical experts.

Mr. Simon is well down on the waiting list of local selectives but at his own request was inducted into service this week. He has conducted a motorcycle and bicycle repair shop at 179 North avenue for the past four years and has a practical knowledge of mechanics. With the two months' technical course provided by the government, he will prove a most invaluable man for the army ordnance department. He will leave for Kingston next Monday, turning the business over to his brother, William Simon, who will conduct it in much the same manner as heretofore.

George Simon was for years one of the foremost bicycle riders in Union county, taking part in numerous track meets and road races. In many instances he proved superior to all other contestants. He was one of the organizers of the Plainfield Cycle Club and piloted the members on numerous big "runs" through the State. He was also one of the first in this vicinity to take up motorcycling.

The Plainfield Draft Board is considering the applications of other registrants who wish to enter the service voluntarily although none have been selected beyond Mr. Simon as yet. Among those applying are the following, their choice of assignment being specified: Walter I. Firstbrook, sporting editor of a local paper, clerk; Ludwig Heftl, at present a member of the city police force, plumber; Raymond Mosher, at present employed in a machine shop, lathe hand; Gabrielle Brunetti, cobbler; William A. Schorb, Jr., auto mechanic, and Duncan L. Patterson, machinist.

Plainfield Now Certain Of Securing Bond Quota

With only $78,750 more to secure within the next thirty hours, it seemed certain at noon today that Plainfield would go "over the top" in its local sales of Liberty Loan bonds.

The total number of subscriptions up to date is placed at $1,690,750, while the quota assigned for this district is $1,769,500. A big push was given the sales by the address of "Bomber" Hanes, a picturesque Canadian soldier, who saw three years of fighting on the west front, to a crowd of four hundred Elks and friends at the Watchung avenue clubhouse Wednesday night.

When Hanes completed his thrilling story of German atrocities and fierce battling in "No Man's Land" the bond sales started under the direction of Chauncey F. Stout. Marion Ackerman, chairman of the Plainfield Home & Defense League commission, began a "drive" by offering to take out a fifty-dollar bond for every member of the Home Guard at the meeting. The number was found to be seventy-two, making a $3,600 subscription for Mr. Ackerman.

Former Assemblyman Roger P. Murray joined the drive by offering to take a $1,000 bond if anybody would duplicate it. He found a taker in P. Edward Wiech. Once again Mr. Murray offered to take a thousand dollar bond if anybody would cover it and the exciting little game rolled the grand total of sales for the Elks up to $50,000. Mr. Murray's own purchases on this occasion were $6,500 worth. Beside this he has visited the Plainfield Trust Company every day since the sale commenced and taken out a $100 bond each time.

More Pay In Sight For All Classes Of Police And Firemen

Realizing the urgent need of advancing the pay if the city police and fire departments are to be kept up to the proper point of efficiency, both the police and fire committees of the Common Council are now at work on a plan to give the men of all classes an increase in wages. Just what the amount will be is not definite at this time, the figure having to be guided by the amounts apportioned each department according to the budget adopted for the present year.

Some time ago a plan was devised for giving a bonus to all the firemen with the exception of Class A but this has been found not to be satisfactory. At the same time the police have been circulating a petition asking the city fathers for an advance in salary and this has been receiving hundreds of signatures, showing that the taxpayers are willing that the men should receive a wage sufficient to meet the increase cost of living.

The police, in the course of their pies for a better recompense, have pointed out that where a year ago eight dollars a month would provide them with the necessary uniforms and equipment they are compelled to buy, the average is twelve dollars per month at the present time. This is an item that is not figured out by the citizens who point out the amount of salary the men are now receiving. The firemen have an equal expense as they must provide everything in the way of uniforms from overcoats down to rubber boots and rubber coats. In North Plainfield and nearby cities the outfits for both police and firemen are supplied by the municipality.

There is a possibility that the plans for the wage increases may be in shape for presentation at next Monday night's Council meeting. If not, according to one of the city fathers, the necessary resolution will be introduced at an early date.

NURSES ON A VISIT.

Miss Helen Wilbee and Miss Ethel Humphrey, of this city, and Miss Eleanor Schenck, of Scotch Plains, members of Red Cross Nursing Unit No. 38, spent yesterday with local friends. They were stationed at General Hospital No. 9 at Lakewood during the month of April but are now located at an equipment station in New York.

ANDREW NARGI.

Andrew Nargi, aged thirty years, died yesterday at the home of his brother, Joseph Nargi, of 209 Liberty street, following a long illness. He was a machinist by trade and unmarried. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

DOUBLE FUNERAL AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

St. Mary's church, this city was the scene of a double funeral this morning when a mass was said for Joseph Basiak and his wife Kate, former residents of Elizabeth who died at Bonnie Burn this week. The wife passed away on Monday and the husband on Tuesday. They married two years ago but separated and were reconciled on meeting unexpectedly at the sanitarium.

Following the mass, which was said by Rev. Father Holsters, burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

New Prosecutor Has 100 Cases For Grand Jury

With the opening of the Union County Courts for the May term next Tuesday morning, Walter L. Hetfield, of this city, will make his first appearance in public as prosecuting attorney. According to present indications there are about 100 criminal cases to be prosecuted to the Grand Jury, all of which have been worked up by Mr. Hetfield and his assistant, Donald McLean. There are no important criminal actions coming from Plainfield although there are a number of the usual petty offenses.

Judge Carlton B. Pierce will preside during the session and will deliver his first charge to the Grand Jurors, one of whom is former Congressman Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth. The civil cases listed so far are few in number with only a few promising legal battles. A large number in addition will be added after the first cases get underway on Tuesday.

Plainfielders who will serve on the Grand Jury are as follows: John H. Greene, Jr., Francis Hampson, Frank J. Hubbard, Harry C. VanBenschoten, William N. Fairchild and William J. Whelan. Francis Henderson will be the only Scotch Plains man on the jury.

The petit jurors from Plainfield will be: Edwin Lawrence, Augustus V. Sekring, Charles R. Banks, Charles A. Sturdevant, Frederick Kelsey, Harry A. Robinson, R. Burnett Rogers, O. T. Runyon and Fred A. Thomas.

Elks Plan Dance As Red Cross Benefit

Although originating or aiding many other enterprises in behalf of war work, Plainfield Lodge of Elks is now engaged upon another scheme to be held soon. It will be a recreation and dance to be held in the High School Auditorium on Wednesday night, May 29, Decoration Day eve, taking the place of the regular monthly dance scheduled for the Elks' club. The entire proceeds will be donated the local chapter of the Red Cross and from the enthusiasm already displayed it will be a social as well as financial success.

Frank R. Emmons, chairman of the Elks' permanent dance committee, has been appointed to have full charge of the coming event. He has already named a committee of fourteen assistants and in addition has received word from Lasgren & Greene, the well known local firm of decorators, that they will transform the auditorium with flags, bunting and evergreens such as it has never been changed before. Other business men and members of the organization have also promised to take a hand in the decorating with palms, plants and cut flowers so that the place will be hardly recognizable. As the Elks have a reputation of doing a thing right, once they begin, Plainfielders may be sure of a most delightful time while aiding in the worthiest war work of the day.

The committee which will assist Mr. Emmons is composed of the following: Hilaire Blatz, secretary and treasurer; Herman Kling, J. A. Moore, George McVoy, Exalted Ruler James W. Hart, Past Exalted Ruler F. J. Blatz, Past Exalted Ruler Frank Smith, Mayor William L. Bradley, William Casubroon, William Mowrey, Fred Lynn, Theodore Vodenback, M. C. VanArsdale and Harry DeMeza.

PLAINFIELD'S HONOR ROLL OF YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN IN THE GOVERNMENT'S SERVICE TODAY STANDS AT THE AMAZING FIGURE OF 996. SINCE THE PUBLICATION OF THE FIRST LIST IN THE RECORD LAST FRIDAY, NAMES OF SOLDIERS, SAILORS AND NURSES NOT LISTED HAVE BEEN POURING IN TO WILLIAM M. WHERRY, JR., BY MAIL AND TELEPHONE. THE NUMBER WOULD HAVE GONE OVER THE 1,000 MARK BUT FOR THE FACT THAT INFORMATION GLEANED BY THE PUBLICATION OF THE LIST SHOWED MORE THAN A SCORE OF SERVICE MEN WHO DID NOT BELONG TO THIS DISTRICT AND DUPLICATIONS THAT WERE BROUGHT ABOUT THROUGH PEOPLE BEING UNACQUAINTED WITH FULL NAMES.

IT MUST BE BORNE IN MIND THAT THE PLAINFIELD HONOR ROLL IS NOT TO CONTAIN THE NAMES OF A YOUNG MAN OR WOMAN LIVING IN NORTH PLAINFIELD, DUNELLEN OR SCOTCH PLAINS. THESE ARE BEING TABULATED IN THEIR RESPECTIVE DISTRICTS. THE PLAINFIELD HONOR ROLL IS FOR THE CITY LIMITS OF PLAINFIELD EXCLUSIVELY AND IT IS DESIRED TO MAKE THE LIST ABSOLUTELY CORRECT IF POSSIBLE. SCAN THE NAMES AS THEY ARE PRINTED AGAIN TODAY AND IF YOU FIND THAT A FRIEND HAS BEEN OVERLOOKED OR SOMEONE IS IN THE LIST WHO BELONGS ELSEWHERE, PLEASE COMMUNICATE WITH MR. WHERRY AT 927 CENTRAL AVENUE, OR CALL THE RECORD OFFICE DIRECT ON THE 'PHONE. WE KNOW THAT THE HONOR ROLL NUMBERS MORE THAN 1,000 AND YOU CAN HELP IN GIVING HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE. Comforts of Home

What do home comforts amount to if your future is not of the kind that you heartily enjoy?

The Main Thing--THE GOODS

They are here in large variety and they are right in finish, style and price.

No doubt about it. The proof is the way people are buying.

Depend upon it, there is furniture here that you will be very glad to have in your home.

For men with limited amounts to spend, but who want real home comforts, here is a stock it would indeed be hard to improve upon.

Now Is the Time to Look to Your Bedding

Certainly there is no part of the home furnishing where quality counts more than your bedding. Ours is the sanitary, lasting kinds; all Mattresses, Springs, Beds and Pillows are most attractively priced just now.

Iron Beds $4.50, $6.50, $8.50, $10.50
Brass Beds $14.00, $21.50, $25.50, $27.00
Guaranteed Springs—
$7.00, $8.00, $9.00, $10.00
Pillows .....$1.25, $1.50, $1.98 each
Combination Mattresses $7.00, $9.50
Soft All Cotton Mattresses ...$12.50, $15.00
Bed Couches $11.50, $15.00, $19.50

THE CITY'S NEW BUILDING CODE

Plainfield's new building code, on which city officials and building experts have been working all winter was completed this week and will be presented to the Common Council for adoption next Monday night.

While there have been many changes in the numerous important clauses, the details of these will not be given out until later. The building committee of the Common Council engaged Alexander Milne, the local carpentering contractor, now in charge of all the Standard Aero corporation's new work at Plainfield and Elizabeth and Arthur E. Smith, structural iron contractor, to revise the code. They first consulted all the builders in the city to learn of individual views before getting down to actual revision and consulted numerous authorities in other cities before reaching a final decision. No change was made unless it was found to be really necessary and for the best interests of the building trade and public in common.

When Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed went to Florida early last winter, he took a rough draft of the new code with him, spending much of his time while away in making the alterations conform with legal requirements. This was also a big task but at the final meeting of all concerned this week it was seen that he had accomplished his work in a most satisfactory manner. The last code adopted by the Plainfield Council was issued in May, 1911. So many changes have occurred since then that several of the most important restrictions were becoming out of date and it has been realized for some time that local contractors should have something newer to go by. Like everything else that is suggested today, the expense at first seemed to be almost too big but now that the problem has been worked out it is readily seen that the money has been well expended. For the expert services they rendered, which in themselves are almost beyond money consideration, Messrs. Milne and Smith received $500. This is all the cost contracted outside of the printing. This would have had to been done any way as for several months there has not been a spare copy of the old building code in the city offices.

From what little has been given out about the new code, we are confident that Plainfield will have a set of building regulations second to none in New Jersey. They come at a most opportune time as there is now underway in this municipality about half a million dollars worth of new construction work, a figure that has never before been duplicated in the city's confines. The need of more factory space, the urgent demand for moderate priced dwellings and the branching out of business houses have all combined to make the building proposition one of the days most important problems. With the close of the war and the subsequent organization of the country's industrial energies the erection of residences in every town like that of Plainfield will undoubtedly soar to great heights, consequently, the introduction of a new building ordinance at this time is most timely and apropos. The one the City Fathers have just had prepared will continue to make this district a city of well built homes and prevent dishonest contractors from endangering human life by using inferior material or slip-shod methods of construction. All who have taken part in the code preparations are to be congratulated even though the full text of their recommendations is not at hand.

FAIR PLAY IN THE RATE INCREASE

The Public Utilities Commission on Tuesday of this week granted the Municipalities another adjournment in the Public Service Corporation's hearing on the excessive rate increase. This has been taken as good news by the people of all the places affected as it shows that the commission is anxious for fair play, giving the opponents of the increase request every opportunity to prove that five cents is enough for the ordinary trolley ride

As previously stated in this paper, Plainfielders appreciate conditions but can also tell the difference between a legitimate request and a trumped-up demand. The Public Service has as yet failed to show any real reason why it should get from two to five cents more from each passenger and by those various little tricks of which its learned counsel is the master, it has sought to keep the public from finding out too much about its inside affairs. For the little ride that Plainfield people get up and down town, undeniably one of the smallest stretches in the state a nickel is none too much right now. Under conditions previous to the beginning of the war five cents was an overcharge to everyone except those riding from Dunellen, or Scotch Plains. The Public Service should have made enough in those "good old days" to establish a sinking fund for just such emergencies as now exist instead of trying to shove the burden of wartime prices on the suffering public.

Plainfield has contributed $500 to the fight against the fare increase. It is in the fight to stay and will double or triple the amount to keep the Public Service from gouging money from its citizens to line the pockets of wealthy investors.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS

On your way to the back yard, Mr. Gardener, its up to you to tuck those onions in their little beds.

—o—

Today, right now, this very minute, immediately if not sooner put down your name for that Liberty Bond. Remember its the last "silver bullet" that's going to win this war.

—o—

When it comes to stirring up enthusiasm for Liberty Bond buying guess there are no flies on the Plainfield, Elks. That $50,000 worth subscribed after "Bomber" Hanes talked Wednesday night shows the "BEST PEOPLE ON EARTH" believe in giving our boys and girls something else beside moral support.

—o—

Nobody in Plainfield got apprehensive when General Crowder said the draft calls in May would be the biggest yet. This little old town is way over its quota now and still has a fine bunch of selected boys ready and anxious to answer the call. Just tell us how many you want Mr. Crowder, that's all.

—o—

Take a little tip from us so you won't be surprised later on. When that big service flag with 1,000 and some stars is unfurled in front of the City Hall this burg of ours is going to have a demonstration that will make all other "get togethers" since the war began look like a back woods political parade. Store up your "pep" now, you organizations and leading citizens, because you will be called upon for your share.

—o—

The draft dodgers who have ran out of excuses can get a little consolation from the Bible, if they only know it. Here is the way Deuteronomy, 24th Chapter, fifth verse, gives the hastily married ones a chance to prove an alibi: "When a man has taken a new wife he shall not go out to war neither shall he be charged with any business but shall be free at home one year and shall cheer up his wife which he hath taken."

George Brower and family, of lower Clinton avenue, will remove today to Nyack, N. Y., where they will make their home in the future.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Marie Getzen, of Newark, to Irving Kantzman, of this city. The ceremony was performed Tuesday night at the Arms Mansion, Newark, by Rev. Dr. Joseph Price, of Temple Sholem, this city. The attendants were Miss Frances Kuntzman and Isaac Kuntzman, sister and brother of the bride. Twenty-five friends from Plainfield, Newark and other places were present. Following a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Kuntzman will make their home at 122 Plainfield avenue.

Collis Case, of East Front street, who has been sanitary inspector in charge of the sanitary work at Houston, Texas, is to be transferred this week to Ashville, N. C., where he will perform similar work for the Government.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wilson, of West Front street, left this week to spend a few days with friends at Bridgeport, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Mottley, who have been residing at 21 Fairview avenue, the borough, have removed to 37 Lincoln place.

Miss Catherine Hanrahan and her brother, Vincent Hanrahan, former Plainfield residents, but who now live at Greenville, returned Monday after a visit at the home of Miss Florence Russ, of West Fifth street.

Frank A. Langworthy, of West Sixth street, returned a few days ago after a stay at Alfred, N. Y., to which place he was called by the death of his father.

Edward P. T. Smith, of the borough, who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital for the past few weeks following an operation, is reported to be improving slowly.

Private Arthur Holmes, of Company F, 113th Infantry, returned to Camp McClellan this week after a ten days' furlough at the home of his parents on Woodland avenue.

Private Oliver Pearson, Jr., one of the old time members of Company K, left for Camp McClellan on the 1:18 train Wednesday morning after a ten days' furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Pearson, of Manson place.

Fred M. Bettman, of Duer street, who was recently taken to his home following an operation and stay at Muhlenberg, is reported to be gaining steadily and with prospects of an early recovery.

Supply Sergeant John Henry, of Sumner avenue, who recently qualified for an officer's commission, left Plainfield this week for Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C., following a ten days' furlough at home.

George L. Bird, of 616 Monroe avenue, is a patient in Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation for appendicitis performed last week. His recovery has been satisfactory and he will probably return home during the coming week.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Augenblick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augenblick, of East Second street, to Maurice L. Mann, of Stebbins place. No date has been set for the wedding. Miss Augenblick was graduated from the Plainfield High School last year and is extremely popular. Mr. Mann, who is the son of S. Mann, is located in Philadelphia as divisional manager for the Southern Manufacturing Company of Richmond, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Firstbrook, of East Front street, left this week for Berkshire Valley, Morris county, where they will make their home in the future as Mr. Firstbrook has entered into a business partnership at that place.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Lillian Lustig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lustig, of East Sixth street, formerly of Schenectady, N. Y., to Edward Marks, of Norwood avenue, the well known orchestra leader. The wedding date has not been set.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Goetzmann, of West Third street, left Wednesday for Allegheny, Pa., where the former has accepted a responsible position with a manufacturing concern holding a large Government contract. He was previously employed at one of the local machine shops.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Abel, who were married last Saturday night, have returned from their honeymoon trip and are temporarily residing at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard V. Sutton, of 268 Netherwood avenue. Mr. Abel was formerly Miss Violet Frances Sutton.

"Jack" McCarthy, who has been stationed at Camp Sevier, South Carolina, is spending a twelve-day furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCarthy, of Lee place.

Private Edmund Walter, a member of the Medical Corps, stationed at Camp Upton has been enjoying a furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walter, of East Second street. He expects to go overseas within the next few weeks.

James C. Tunison, of Harrison avenue, is home from Camp Greene, North Carolina, on a ten days' furlough. He went out of Plainfield, last summer as a member of Company K and was transferred from Camp McClellan to an artillery division stationed at Camp Greene.

Corporal Peck Still Breaking Recruit Records

By securing 14 more men during the past week, Corporal Ernest D. Peck continues to break all previous records for enlistments in Plainfield since the draft law went into effect. His total since assuming charge of the local office in the postoffice building is now thirty-six and evidences are that the number will be forty by the middle of next week because of the number of applicants under consideration.

As previously stated in the Record, Corporal Peck is an "old timer" at the army game. He put in nine years as a member of the Coast Artillery, being stationed most of the time at Key West, Fla., and when he returned to civil life in 1917 he had been awarded the rank of sergeant. He re-enlisted in March of the present year and was assigned by Major Bloom, of Newark, to Plainfield, for recruiting duty, this being his home town. His success has been so great that the Plainfield office has been made a permanent one instead of a temporary station to stimulate interest among young men of military age.

The manner in which Corporal Peck explains to applicants just what part of the army they are best fitted for and the inducements that the various branches of service have to offer are responsible in no small measure for the large number of enlistments. He also derives numerous methods of bringing the young man and the recruiting officer in closer touch with each other. Each has had its effect in turn. The latest innovation of Corporal Peck's is to secure the services of Sergeant John Borden, of the Regular Army, to sound bugle calls at the local theatres. The he will do for the first tomorrow afternoon and night at the Plainfield, Proctor's and the Lyric. It is safe to say that every man and woman in Plainfield is interested in the army's bugle calls but few are able to tell them apart. Sergeant Borden has been a bugler for many years and as he sounds the calls tomorrow he will explain each one.

The attention of young men not in the draft age is again called to the fact that enlistment can now be made in all branches of the army with the exception of the aviation signal corps. These include the artillery, cavalry, infantry, medical department, engineers, quartermaster corps and ordnance department. The young men ranging in ages from sixteen to twenty-one and others from thirty-one to forty-one are urged to call on Corporal Peck to learn full particulars. There is a special opening for able-bodied young colored men in the stevedore regiment, which takes care of the loading and unloading of transports. This is only a beginning step which paves the way for promotion and better opportunities.

The regular army is also very much in need of technical men, a fact which Corporal Peck wishes to impress on young Plainfielders capable of handling tools. The age limit ranges from eighteen to twenty-one and from thirty-one to forty-one. The specialties in this division are at the present time for telegraph operators, both wire and radio, telephone men and telephone switchboard operators, telegraph and telephone linemen, repairmen, cable men, cable splicer, photographers and moving picture experts, chauffeurs and repairers of autos, gas engines, carrier pigeon experts, cooks, clerks, buglers, horseshoers and cobblers.

The 14 young men enlisted by Corporal Peck this week, together with their addresses and assignments are as follows: Emil H. Hirsch, North Plainfield, cavalry; Charles J. Ferguson, Martinsville, infantry; Ehrick Parmly, 119 Crescent avenue, and Walter L. Lebrourel, South Plainfield, quartermasters corps; Alden B. Buhot, 41 Duer street; Charles M. Vanderbeek, 206 Grandview avenue; William A. Bowden, 736 South avenue, and Clark Ungemach, 224 East Fifth street, coast artillery corps; Eric Moore, Westfield, and Herbert L. Penn, Plainfield, medical department; Raymond W. Medick, 306 Hunter avenue, and Daniel W. Snyder, 1021 West Third street, engineers, in the regular army; John W. Ellis, 713 Midway avenue, and William J. McEvoy, 208 Prescott place, infantry.

County Tax Board Tour Off For The Present

The trip of the Union County Board for the Equalization of Taxes about the county, Plainfield included, scheduled for this week, for the purpose of having Karl Schaffer, of Elizabeth, point out the instances of under valuation he alleged exist, has been postponed indefinitely. The matter is not to be dropped, but will be taken care of in the near future.

When Mr. Schaffer appeared before the tax board a week ago and repeated the assertions made in an open letter to the Elizabeth City Council he was asked if he would conduct the board on a tour of the county. He claims that there are properties outside Elizabeth that should have a higher personal tax valuation before the revaluation of Comptroller Collins should go into effect in Elizabeth.

The dates that Schaffer set on which he could make the trip were not satisfactory to the members of the board. It will try to be arranged for, however, before the coming assessments are levied.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Rev. E. I. Case, of this city, who has been acting as pastor of the Temple Baptist church since the resignation of Rev. C. G. Conover, several weeks ago, has been asked by the congregation to accept the charge permanently. The decision was reached at a congregational business meeting Wednesday night and the call was unanimous. Mr. Case's last pastorate before coming to Plainfield was at Florence.

Dr. Rogers L. Cooley has been reappointed school physician for North Plainfield, and Frank Rowley has again been named as clerk to the Board of Education. The appointments were made at a meeting of the school trustees Monday night, at which the following sinking fund commission was also named in compliance with a recent act passed by the Legislature: Mayor William L. Smalley, J. K. Arnold, J. A. Van Mater, Elmer Wheeler and Dr. J. S. Cooley.

Acting in behalf of the twenty selectives who received such a rousing send-off last week, John W. Deike, Cornelius Regan, Andrew Brady and William Kelly have written a letter of thanks to John J. Varley, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, which arranged the dinner at the Queen City Hotel last Thursday night, and the parade Friday morning. This is the letter as Chairman Varley received it: "On behalf of the last contingent which left Plainfield, April 26, we wish to express our sincere appreciation to the Citizens' Committee for its grand work in sending us away with a smile."

Patrick J. Waldron, a former Plainfielder, who has been living in New York, but who was listed as a Plainfield registrant, was sent to Camp Dix, Wednesday, in charge of Police Lieutenant Higgins. Waldron was cited to go to the cantonment last Friday, but at the last moment made an appeal on the ground that as he was born in Ireland and had only his first papers he was not a citizen. The claim was not recognized and Waldron was instructed to present himself to the local board. He failed to make good a promise that he would be in Plainfield at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and when he showed up at 11:30 the police officer was delegated to see that there was no further delay in placing Waldron in service. He was locked up at headquarters and started on the way to Dix, Wednesday noon.

Arthur Schackleton, an employe of A. E. Force & Company, was arrested at Front and Somerset streets Tuesday noon by Patrolman Flatley, the latter claiming that Schackleton drove his automobile recklessly and barely avoided knocking a horse down. The complaint was sustained but because of circumstances Judge DeMeza suspended sentence.

The property of the late Albert C. Stebbins located on West Seventh street, passed into the possession of Muhlenberg Hospital this week, the institution being named as residuary legatee. The property was occupied by Mr. Stebbins at the time of his death and is valued at $14,000. The testator was general manager of the Pond Machine Tool Co. for many years. Counsellor Asa Randolph acted as administrator of the estate.

Washington Camp, No. 71, Patriotic Order of America, is raising a fund of $100 for the purpose of purchasing regimental colors for the 113th infantry regiment stationed at Camp McClellan, and numbering many Ulainfield boys in its roster. Generous donations have already been made by Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M. and Old Glory Council, No. 62, Sons and Daughters of Liberty. Any one wishing to contribute is asked to communicate with Mrs. M. A. Cable, of 1304 Park avenue.

The Women's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital has fixed upon Saturday, June 1, as the date for the annual tag day in behalf of the institution. In past years this effort has always resulted in several thousands of dollars being added to the hospital treasury and it is hoped that the coming tag day will prove no exception to the rule. The corps of volunteer workers will visit every part of the business and residential districts on the date in question and any amount, no matter how small, will be gratefully received for the care of the Muhlenberg patients unable to provide for themselves.

Dr. Maximilian Grossmann, owner of the three cottages on Johnston's drive which were destroyed by fire last Friday afternoon places the loss at about $20,000. This large figure is due to the fact that one of the destroyed buildings contained his private library of 5,000 volumes, paintings, manuscripts, valuable photographs and films which Dr. Grossmann collected during his travels about Europe. There were also many valuable household effects and other furniture. What started the fire is a mystery, although the theory has been advanced that it was caused by a brush blaze in the nearby woods.

The annual spring musicale to be given by the Sisters and pupils of Mt. St. Mary's College, originally announced to take place on Sunday afternoon, May 12, has been postponed until Sunday, May 19.

The Earnest Workers' Bible Class of Grace M. E. church began a two days' rummage sale in the Stevenson building on West Front street, yesterday afternoon. A large number of donated articles were sold and the remainder will probably be disposed of before tonight. The proceeds will be used in the purchase of Liberty Bonds.

Fully three thousand persons witnessed the unfurling of North Plainfield's municipal service flag in front of the borough hall last Sunday afternoon. The young men and women who went out from North Plainfield to "do their bit" are represented by 158 stars on the big banner. Addresses were made by Henry White Hermann, of this city, and Mayor William L. Smalley. The people standing by hang patriotic songs under the leadership of Guy Sutton, D. Fred Aungst and T. S. Armstrong.

Court Watchung, Daughters of Isabella, have completed all arrangements for the patriotic May dance in Columbus Auditorium, Friday night, May 10. DeLisle's orchestra will furnish music and numerous surprises will be on the program. The committee in charge is composed of Miss Minnie Hepner, chairman; Helen Regan, Mary Wilson, Helen Deady, Bessie Parent, Helen Casey, Betty Mara. The refreshments will be in charge of a special committee composed of Mrs. Gramery, Mrs. Brandt, Mrs. Brylarski and Miss Mae Wood. Tomorrow night at Columbus Auditorium, the Daughters of Isabella will give an informal dance in honor of the soldier and sailor boys who are home for the week-end furloughs.

The bakery shops of the Fay Baking Company at 516 West Third street and Isadore Pearl, of 511 West Third street, which were closed up last Saturday by Inspector F. E. Mygatt, became of violations of the U. S. Food Administration rules governing the baking business, will be reopened next Monday. These two instances are the first that have been reported locally and leniency was shown but in the future more drastic steps will be taken.

A "first-aid" class has been organized by the West End Civic Association for the purpose of learning how to help in the care of wounded. The first meeting was held in the Washington School Auditorium last night, when a lecture and demonstration were given by Dr. C. B. Burrow. There will be nine other lectures and instructive sessions in the course, one to be held each week. Up to the present time the following association members have enrolled as members of the class: T. C. Vail, W. J. Boyd, Joseph Miller, Jacob Sachar, J. F. Wharton, Fred J. Kreker, Edward C. Hadden, R. D. Williams, A. H. Heritage, Stephen J. Higham, Alex Stewart, S. H. Williams, Rufus LaRue, Edward Dean and F. W. Cook.

Two hundred persons were in attendance at the reception given Rev. and Mrs. Berryman H. McCoy by the congregation of the First Methodist church, Tuesday night, Mr. McCoy being the new pastor to succeed Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson. Dr. James R. Joy was in charge during the evening and the speakers included Samuel Bingaman, Mrs. A. B. Meredith, C. L. D. Albin, Rev. Dr. F. J. Huback, Rev. J. W. Flynn. The church quartet rendered a musical program arranged by Organist Clifford Braider.

The former law firm of Reed & Hetfield has now been changed to Reed, Hetfield & Crane. District Court Judge J. Henry Crane, who has been in partnership with City Judge William C. DeMeza, joined the Reed & Hetfield forces on Wednesday of this week. The new firm will continue to have its offices in the Marsh building at Park avenue and Second street as heretofore.

Plainfield Theatre Offers Good Bill

Audiences at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night were immensely pleased with the new program of vaudeville and pictures which Manager Shannon has secured for the last half of the week and which will be repeated today and tomorrow.

The four Harliquins, a European novelty act, introducing comedy pantomime, singing and dancing, is the feature attraction of the vaudeville numbers. The act is very much out of the ordinary and made a most pleasing impression. A dramatic playlet entitled "The Voice," presented by Lew Herbert and Company of six people, held the breathless attention of the audiences last night and stands as one of the best sketches, if the term may be applied, that Plainfielders have seen here in a long time.

Other numbers on the program as it will be repeated for the rest of the week are: "Buddy" Doyle, singing and talking comedian; Rachee's pantomime monks; Clancy and Cline, songs and comedy, and Jackson and Nicholas, "Two Classy Cut-ups."

There will be no legitimate attractions at the Plainfield all next week, vaudeville and pictures holding the boards from Monday until Saturday. The bill for the first half of the week, commencing Monday, will have for its feature the sensational seven-reel photoplay,

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

CHARLES EDWARD STEINER.

The funeral of Charles Edward Steiner, one of the best known residents of this community, whose death occurred suddenly in Newark last Sunday night, was held at his late home at 24 Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Howard E. Clarke, pastor of the Congregational church, was in charge and the attendance was very large.

During the service a quartet composed of Dr. O. B. Whitford, E. C. Whitford, C. L. Lewis and Clyde Doane, sang "Crossing the Bar" and "Faith of Our Fathers." Many large floral pieces were in evidence, several of them coming from departments of the Congregational church and fraternal organizations to which Mr. Steiner belonged.

Burial was in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall-bearers: Philip Suffern, Dr. Frank Clawson, Elias Bird, Everett L. Morgan, M. C. Van Arsdale and S. H. Whitney.

The demise of Mr. Steiner was entirely unexpected and came as a decided shock to his hosts of friends. He spent last Sunday afternoon at the home of his son, Clarence Steiner, at Roseville, and was on his way home in company with Mrs. Steiner on a trolley car bound for Newark when he was taken with a heart attack. He was hurried to the Newark General Hospital, where death ensued late at night.

Mr. Steiner was a life-long resident of North Plainfield, having been born in the borough fifty-eight years ago. He was the son of Mrs. Mary and the late John N. Steiner, the former still living on Somerset street. Thirty-one years ago Mr. Steiner entered the employ of S. H. Whitney, the East Front street carpet dealer, remaining continuously in his employ from that time until the day of his death. For many years he had been acting as manager of the business and also of Mr. Whitney's realty and other affairs, occupying a position of trust that came with his integrity and devotion to duty.

Mr. Steiner was undoubtedly one of the most unselfish men that Plainfield has ever seen. He was never too busy to do a kind act or favor for some one else, his only recompense being the knowledge that it was appreciated. He was a staunch and upright Christian, always seeking to exemplify the principles of his faith. He was a charter member of the Congregational church, in which he had been an active worker for a long time in addition to holding the office of treasurer. At the twenty-fifth anniversary of the church's founding, a few years ago, he was awarded an honor pin for his splendid record as an attendant of the Sunday-school, a department in which he was more than ordinarily interested.

Mr. Steiner had been to church and Sunday-school as usual Sunday morning and left after dinner for a visit with his son, Clarence Steiner of Roseville. He was on his way back to Newark when the fatal heart attack came upon him. He had been a sufferer from this ailment for a long time, its acuteness at times being more pronounced undoubtedly because of the shock of his son Carl's death just a year ago. The latter, who died in California, was more of a "pal" to his father than a son and the demise of the younger man was a great blow to the parent.

The deceased was a member of Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, and Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. Beside his mother, and the son mentioned, he leaves his wife, who was Miss Theodosia Martin, of North Plainfield, one daughter, Miss Annette Steiner; three brothers and two sisters. The brothers are George Steiner, of Detroit; John and Albert Steiner, of Somerset street. The sisters are Mrs. Charles W. French, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Miss Mary Steiner, living at the home of her mother on Somerset street.

SIMON W. FRANCE.

The body of Simon W. France, who died Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ida F. Reed, of 1278 Park avenue, were sent Tuesday to his native home at Wooster, Ohio, where the funeral and interment will take place today.

Mr. France was one of the oldest residents of Plainfield, being in his ninety-first year at the time of death. He had been in failing health for some time because of infirmities produced by age. He came here from Brooklyn fifteen years ago, since which time he had made his home with his daughter. Beside Mrs. Reed, he leaves one other daughter, Miss Melissa France, and a son, Thomas France, both living in Brooklyn.

HENRY L. MOLLESON.

Henry L. Molleson, son of Elizabeth and the late Henry L. Molleson, died Tuesday night at the home of his mother at 156 East Second street. He was about 38 years old and followed the trade of painted. His illness had been a chronic ailment which had kept him ill most of the time during the past few years. Beside his mother, he leaves one brother, Chester Molleson, of this city.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Molleson's home this afternoon at 3:30 and will be in charge of Rev. Mr. McCoy, of the First Methodist church. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

MRS. RUSSELL PYATT.

Mrs. Russell Pyatt, aged twenty-eight years, died Tuesday afternoon at her home on lower Clinton avenue, in the Samptown district of South Plainfield. She had been ill but a short time. She leaves no near relatives beyond her husband. The funeral will be held at the late residence this afternoon at 1:30 in charge of Rev. Mr. Townsend, of the South Plainfield Baptist church. Burial will be in the Samptown cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM B. DALLEY.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Dalley, wife of William B. Dalley, whose death occurred after a long illness, was held Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bertram F. Tallamy, of 548 West Front street. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Mrs. Dalley was a member, was in charge and the gathering of relatives and friends present included many from Raritan and Hunterdon county, where she had lived in previous years. Two selections were sung by Elmer D. Cutting.

Burial was in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall-bearers: Peter B. Hodge, H. Hagerman, J. B. Cole, Levi Klein, William Dalley and C. Hagerman.

Mrs. Dalley had been a resident of Plainfield only for about a year, having removed here from Raritan. She was born at Pleasant Run, Hunterdon county, seventy years ago and had lived in that vicinity the greater part of her life. Her marriage to Mr. Dalley took place fifty years ago last Christmas and the golden anniversary was celebrated in this city at the time. Beside her husband and Mrs. Tallamy, she leaves one other daughter, Miss Rita S. Dalley, of this city; one brother, John K. Thompson, and a sister, Miss Sophia Thompson, of Readington, Hunterdon county.

County Endeavorers' Annual Rally Here Next Friday Night

Trinity church, this city, will be the mecca for hundreds of Christian Endeavorers from this vicinity next Friday night, May 10, as on that occasion the Union County Christian Endeavor Union will hold its annual rally here.

Assemblyman Arthur E. Warner, of Elizabeth, who has been acting as president of the Union during the absence of Frederick L. Mintel, of Rahway, now engaged in Y. M. C. A. work at Camp McClellan, is completing all arrangements for the program. Mr. Warner announces that Senator William N. Runyon, of this city, will make the principal address and that others will be given by John T. Sproull, president of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, and perhaps Mr. Mintel. The last named sought to enlist in the U. S. Army but was rejected because of poor health. He then took up Y. M. C. A. work at army camps and made such great physical gains through outdoor life at McClellan that he is now eligible for service and may be inducted into the regular ranks.

The speakers' committee feels gratified at having secured Senator Runyon as his ability is only too well known and of late has been dated up almost nightly for Liberty Bond and other patriotic gatherings. He will speak on a timely and decidedly appropriate subject. The general public is given a cordial invitation to attend the meeting which he is to address.

Assemblyman Warner has announced these plans for the meeting: There will be afternoon and evening sessions, the afternoon meeting being a Junior rally, followed by brief conferences on four departments of the union's work. The Junior rally will begin at 4:30 p. m., and will be in care of Miss Mary C. Hoagland, of Elizabeth, the county superintendent. The conferences will be in charge of the superintendents of the departments, and they will be held from 5:30 to 6:30.

Trinity church Endeavorers will serve supper at 6:30 o'clock, and the rally in the church will begin at 8. The program will include, aside from the addresses by Senator Runyon and Mr. Sproull, the presentation of a simple, inexpensive service flag representing the young men of the county societies who are in the service. Facts concerning the number of men are being obtained by the secretary, Miss Myra Donavan, of this city, who will also give a resume of the year's work.

New Checking Account Rules Now In Effect

The new rules adopted by Plainfield's banks to govern checking are now in effect and so far as known have given satisfaction to patrons, the latter realizing that the change was brought about by the increased cost of operating financial institutions.

Under the new system, any checking account averaging less than $100 per month will be assessed fifty cents to pay for the service. Even at that, the account is carried practically at a loss to the banking house. For all other checking accounts the boards of directors of each of the banks have made this table:

Interest will be allowed only on checking accounts maintaining an average balance of $1,000 or more; and such accounts will receive interest only on the excess of $300. On average balances of $1,000 to $5,000 interest at the rate of 2 per cent. will be paid on the excess of $300. On average balances of $5,000 to $50,000 interest at the rate of 3 per cent. will be paid on the excess of $300. None of these conditions apply to the regular savings accounts, which will receive 4 per cent. interest as heretofore.

Councilman Martin Heads $25,000 Company

Councilman Theodore A. Martin is named as the principal stockholder and agent of the newly incorporated Martin Express Company, of this city, articles for which were filed at the office of the county clerk this week. The incorporation will carry on the work which Mr. Martin has previously been doing as an individual and will continue to have its office at 305-307 East Third street.

The company is capitalized at $25,000. Councilman Martin is credited with holding 24,998 shares; Anna G. Martin one share and Adam Martin one share.

To My Patrons and Friends:

On Monday, May 6th, the undersigned will leave Plainfield for Kingston, Rhode Island, to take up a special mechanical course in preparation for service in the United States Army.

My bicycle and motorcycle business, which is well established in this city, will be continued in charge of competent repair men who will give my patrons expert service and conduct the business as it has heretofore been conducted until my return.

I take this opportunity to thank all those who have so generously patronized me, and although I regret leaving Plainfield and my many friends, I am glad to enter the services of our Goverment to do "my bit" towards the successful prosecution of the war.

Very Truly Yours,

Hearing on Trolley Fare Increase Gets Second Postponement

The hearing before the Public Utility Commission on the petition of the Public Service Railway Company to be allowed to raise its fare has been adjourned until Wednesday, May 8. The hearing was in progress in Newark. Adjournment was taken Tuesday on the insistent demand of Marshall Van Winkle, chief counsel for the cities which are opposing the company, and representatives of the Public Service opposed his motion strongly.

Mr. Van Winkle based his demand on the fact that important data wanted by counsel for the opposition had been held up by the company. Edmund Wakelee, vice president of the Public Service, at first was inclined to ridicule this statement. He said that, so far from this being the situation, the desired data had really been filed for reference a month earlier than the date set by the Public Utility Commissioners.

President Donges, of the Utilities Board, took a hand and showed that Mr. Van Winkle was right in his contention.

Mr. Wakeless and Mr. Van Winkle clashed again when the corporation's lawyer charged the representative of the protesting cities with lagging, and with dilatory tactics. Mr. Van Dinkle was alleged to have been slow in getting up his case, and to have wasted most of the month since the previous adjournment.

Mr. Van Winkle, in making his fight for adjournment, said: "I was rather surprised when I made application to find the other side strongly opposed to it. We have not been able to get some of the exhibits we require. Particularly is this true of the divisional report of the corporation, which we must examine, and which was not filed with the commission until quite recently. The 1917 report was only filed at the urgent request of you commissioners.

"I do not say it boastfully, but I do say, that if we are given reasonable time we will defeat this petition. We want to aid your commission, and the only way we can do this is to have time properly to prepare our case. A delay to permit further investigation will, we believe, facilitate the presentation of our case. We will probably be able for one thing, to abbreviate our cross-examination of the witnesses already produced. We recognize what is called the emergency phase of this application, and we are really trying to treat it that way."

"We cannot treat this case as an ordinary case of law," said Mr. Wakelee. "We cannot extend the courtesies of delay and adjournment of such cases. This emergency exists, and is getting greater as each day passes. We have been on the job. I have a time sheet showing the time the experts of the opposition have put in, and there has been no great rush. They'll have to be more diligent than they have been."

At the conclusion of the arguments the commissioners took a recess, then announced that the adjournment had been granted.

MORE BONDS and LESS BLOOD

DURING THE FIRST YEAR OF THE WAR THE TAKING OF A GERMAN TRENCH COST ENDLESS LIVES. THE FIELDS OF FRANCE WERE SOAKED WITH THE BLOOD OF FRENCH AND BRITISH SOLDIERS.

LAST WEEK A WOUNDED OFFICER IN NEW YORK DESCRIBED HIS PART IN HAIG'S ADVANCE. HIS REGIMENT TOOK A GERMAN TRENCH WITHOUT LOSING A SINGLE LIFE. THE GERMAN TRENCH WAS DEMOLISHED.

THESE ARE SIMPLE FACTS. YET THEY ARE FACTS WHICH GO STRAIGHT TO THE HEARTS OF THE MEN AND WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES WHOSE BOYS ARE GOING INTO THE TRENCHES DURING THE NEXT FEW MONTHS.

THESE FACTS DO NOT CONSTITUTE AN APPEAL. THEY SIMPLY EXPRESS THE DEEPEST, STRONGEST, MOST LASTING EMOTION OF THE HUMAN HEART—THE LOVE OF SONS AND HUSBANDS AND BROTHERS.

THE BRAVERY OF MEN, THE OFFER OF THEIR LIVES—IS THE GREAT GLORY OF MANHOOD TODAY. BUT THE SAVING OF THESE MEN FROM UNNECESSARY RISK IS THE TRIUMPH OF MODERN SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

THIS IS THE WHOLE STORY. LET US GIVE OUR MEN THE MOST WONDERFULLY COMPLETE PROTECTION THAT THE GENIUS AND POWER OF UNITED AMERICA CAN DEVISE. GUNS AND SHELLS SAVE LIVES. LIBERTY BONDS PROVIDE THE GUNS AND SHELLS. IS THERE ANYWHERE IN THIS GREAT, YOUNG NATION A MAN OR WOMAN OR CHILD WITH HEART SO COLD AS TO HESITATE? WHERE THE CHOICE IS CLEAR BETWEEN LENDING OUR MONEY TO OUR GOVERNMENT AND PERMITTING ONE UNNECESSARY DROP OF BLOOD TO BE SHED BY OUR BOYS IN FRANCE—WHEN IT IS BONDS OR BLOOD—WHO WILL DENY WE WILL TAKE THREE, FIVE, YES, FIFTY BILLIONS OF BONDS IF NECESSARY?

GO TO ANY OF THE UNDERSIGNED BANKS AND PUT EVERY DOLLAR YOU CAN SPARE AT WORK SAVING LIVES AND BRINGING THOSE BOYS HOME ALIVE AND VICTORIOUS.

Work Of Army Engineers Vital To America's Success In War

The army Engineer Corps is now larger than the United States Army was at the beginning of the war. Thousands of engineers are staging the war in France, attending to all the work of construction for the American army from building wharves and piers at the American ports of disembarkation to the installation of water pipes in the first-line trenches. Thousands are still in this country, working on military investigations, training in the training camps and awaiting the order to sail.

"Modern warfare," says an officer of the Army Engineers Corps, "has largely become a conflict between the engineers of the countries engaged." Time and again has victory depended upon the alert intelligence and prompt action of a company of engineers; time and again have engineers saved the day in an emergency. Bridges have been demolished to prevent the advance of an army, and engineers have calmly gone to work and built them up again; railroads have been hastily thrown across agricultural areas to facilitate a sudden movement of troops, and in some places modern filtration plants have been rapidly constructed where troops had to remain for a week or so and where the drinking water was tainted.

The army engineer in this war is like a theatrical business manager. He must attend to all the practical details of the play—the scenery, the electrical lighting apparatus, camouflage and transportation accommodations for the company. But the modern army is a road company of a strenuous order. Its acts are always unexpected and always different, so that the engineer never has any idea what will be demanded of him next. In this new western drive a company of American engineers were suddenly called upon to fight and instantly they dropped their tools, with which they had been building a branch railway connection, and picked up their guns. By the swift decision of their commander these engineers entered the battle at the psychological moment and prevented the enemy from taking the town. He had acted upon his own initiative—the engineering initiative, which is seldom wrong. "Hey, boys, we've got to get into this!" was all he said.

The magnitude of the engineering task encountered in this war is little appreciated by the layman. Little, so far, has been said about that phase of it. The engineer is invariably modest, shy of publicity—always a man of action rather than a talker. Unlike most scientists, the engineer claims no special or superior knowledge of the universe. Engineering, he will tell you, is merely the use of common sense, and he quite unconsciously that he is claiming for his profession one of the most extraordinary things in the world.

Perhaps this is why engineers may be relied upon in an emergency—why in the midst of bursting shells, flame and the noise and din of an inferno, this engineer stands calmly watching the proceedings and coolly figuring out the sensible thing to do. Of course, it must be remembered that engineers are trained for war as no other men are trained for it. Even in times of peace, the engineer is the fighter of the race. The things that he fights are varied, such as disease, mountains, rivers, floods, deserts, but always his fight is constructive. He fights to build, not to destroy.

And, to a great extent, this is the fight of the engineer in war. Suppose, for example, that the American army of several hundred thousand men suddenly decided to camp in a stretch of woods in the midst of several nice but old-fashioned farms near your towns. There would be no barracks, no drainage, no drinking water, no lighting facilities, no connection with a base of supplies ten miles beyond. A rather helpless situation for an army, isn't it?

Yet that is what would constantly occur in Europe if it were not for the engineer. Out of this stretch of woods and old-fashioned farms the engineer must build a military city, with housing facilities for the soldiers; shelter for munitions, pipes for drinking water with several pumping stations, artificial scenery to mislead the enemy, lighting facilities that extend even to underground dugouts along the line of the trenches, and narrow gauge railways connecting with the nearest base of supplies.

The French government has set aside seaports for the use of the American army. Hence, one of the first tasks of American engineers reaching France last fall was to put these ports into perfect working con*dition for the landing of supplies and* troops. Following the first company of engineers which sailed from New York, went also a shipload of engineering machinery. According to the Chief of Engineers of the army, the value of railroad materials and rolling stock alone purchased in advance of the American occupation in France was about five times the value of all the supplies bought in this country for the Panama Canal during the past four or five years.

Both France and Great Britain have constructed many new railroads throughout France since the war, but these are already so sorely overtaxed that the Americans could not hope to make use of them. American railroads, with American trains, locomotives and rails are now being operated by the railway division of the American army engineer corps in *France from the ports of disembark*ation to interior points within a short distance from the western front. Over these troops and supplies are now being hurried to the scene of action. The wounded are also removed by these railways, as well as the salvage of the battlefield, for modern military economy requires the rescue and re-usage of cartridge cases and metal pieces.

In the forests about the fighting zone American foresters are cutting huge quantities of timber, and American engineers are turning this into new cantonments, wooden ties, telegraph poles and warehouses. Many are operating sawmills in which the rough timber is turned into adequate working material.

Other American engineers are engaged in the construction of military roads, which are so necessary to the swift transportation of supplies. Germany, having prepared for war for the past fifty years, had such roads at the beginning of hostilities, but France was not so well equipped. Roads that offered certain advantages to an invading enemy have had to be filled in, and others in different locations hastily constructed. American engineers have built roads for the American army with American road machinery. It is necessary that as little strain as possible be put upon the resources of France, which have already been taxed to the uttermost, so American working equipment is used in every case when the construction is for the American army.

All these things and many others, the nature of which is not divulged by the army, are done by American engineers at the front. One company of engineers is working a series of quarries; others work solely on maps of the fighting zone; others are dredging a new harbor "somewhere" on the French coast, and still others are in charge of gas and flame attacks and of placing underground mines for the destruction of the Germans.

In this country, the engineering common sense of which engineers speak so lightly, is being applied to certain ordnance problems with gratifying success. All these activities, of course, are clothed in the darkest secrecy.

"We are not giving any information to the enemy if we can help it," said an officer in speaking of these secret activities of the Engineer Corps. He is one of the builders of the Panama Canal, but still regards engineering as an unremarkable science. Nevertheless, he recognizes its usefulness. "In spite of our best efforts," he says, "the war will probably last much longer than most of us imagine it will last. Its conclusions and results will depend largely upon the absolutely self-sacrificing efforts of the engineers of the United States." Among the Plainfield young men who are already in France as members of the Engineers' Corps are David Clarin, Frank Webster, William Maguire, Kenneth Phillips and Alvah Brownlee.

How Women Workers Are Helping In Britain

The recently opened Imperial War Museum Exhibit, at the Royal Academy, London, has an interesting and valuable section devoted to the work of women in munition production.

"All the papers speak of this in glowing terms," reports the Foreign News Service of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense. "There are also photographs showing women doing everything from the heavy work of navying and laboring operations to the finest toolroom work and the making of scientific instruments.

"Over 1,000,000 women are now in munition work in the United Kingdom, and a notice of the exhibition says that 80 per cent. of the magneto parts used by the army are made by women, 30 to 40 per cent. of the aero parts, and 20 to 30 per cent. of the aero engines."

Discussing What To Do With German Prisoners

German soldiers captured by General Pershing's forces are being held in France pending decision as to their disposition.

That they should be brought to America is the feeling in army quarters, but whether this will be accom*plished depends largely upon* what General Pershing recommends and upon what Germany says in negotiations now pending.

England and France have had to keep Germans in France and England lest Germany send Allied prisoners to Turkey, where they might suffer from Turk abuse. Whether the United States negotiations undertaken with Spain as intermediary can persuade Germany to permit return of Teuton prisoners to the United States without facing retaliations is unknown yet.

Army men suggest that they would be available for farm or other labor, but admit Germany will perhaps insist they be kept in France so that a certain amount of tonnage shall be used in supplying them.

Prison camps at Fort McPherson, Oglethorpe and Douglas can be readily arranged for 10,000 to 15,000 prisoners each. At present the camps contain more than 2,000 Teutons, not including interned German sailors.

The Y. M. C. A. glee clubs, comprising more than 100 men and women, will give a concert at Camp Merritt, May 8, and one at Camp Dix, May 15.

Abolishment Of County Election Board First Radical Change Made By New Law

Plainfield politicians who have made a close study of the amendments to the election laws passed at the last session of the Legislature have just come to the conclusion that the amendments make a radical change in the method of naming county and district election boards, as well as providing radical changes in the designation of polling places, and do not provide for the compensation of election officers as did the old act of 1916.

The first radical departure from the old law is the abolishment of the present Union County Board of Elections, consisting of Fred Zior, chairman, Frank J. Pfaff and George J. Stewart, all of Elizabeth, and Andrew McCardell, of this city. This board will officially die on September 1, 1918.

The new law places the naming of a new county board, as well as district boards of elections, in the hands of Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen, of this Supreme Court circuit, and Judge Carlton B. Pierce, of the Court of Common Pleas of Union county. Formerly the Governor named the county boards.

District boards are to be named by the county boards, thereby doing away with the civil service commission feature, which has heretofore had the naming of district boards. The new laws further provide that females, as well as males, may be named to the district boards, and provides that volunteers can also be accepted and empowers the sheriff of the county to summon persons to act as election officials on the same lines as grand juries are now summoned. It provides a penalty of $100 fine for those summoned who do not show up and can give no sufficient reason for their not accepting the draft.

School children will be provided with additional holidays, as no school can be held in schoolhouses devoted to primary, registry or general elections. This will give the school children an addition of four days' vacation during the school year.

School teachers can volunteer as election officers on district boards in municipalities of 10,000 population and over. Volunteers must state their preference as to political belief, but in no case shall failure to do so bar *an applicant for an election board po*sition.

Under the old law the county board certified to the civil service commission a list of those who were eligible. Examinations were held and from the eligible list thus provided by the commission the judge of the Court of Common Pleas named the district boards. Under the old law women were not permitted on any boards of election.

The new law further provides that the Judge of the Common Pleas Court shall fill vacancies on district boards.

Municipal clerks hereafter cannot select the polling places, this work is to be done by the County Board of Elections and schoolhouses are to be given the preference. In case more than one election district uses the same schoolhouse two sets of officials must be provided, one for each district.

The county board shall consist of four persons, two of each political party casting the highest and the next highest vote at the last preceding general election. One shall serve for one year, and shall be so designated when named, and the other three shall serve for two years each.

The judges shall certify to the Governor before the first day of July each year the names of the four persons for the county board. They shall be named by the Governor before August 1. The Governor is given the power to reject any nomina*tions sent by the judges. If the* judges fail to name the county board members the Governor is also empowered to fill the places.

The county board is to file with the sheriff of the county on August 20 the names of those selected for election service, and he shall serve notice upon such persons in the same manner as jurors are summoned.

Changes in the primary hours have fixed them from 12:30 to 9 P. M. No school shall be held during registry days, primary or general election days when schoolhouses are used.

Ward workers are trying to decipher the new law. The induction of women into the political atmosphere has raised somewhat of a storm, but the women believe they can do fully as well as the men.

It is believed many district boards, composed of four members, will have women sitting with them. District boards are allowed to select their own officers, being a judge of election and a clerk. The district boards *are to be kept equally divided be*tween the two dominating parties.

THE NEW EDISON
"The Phonograph with a Soul"

It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.

The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.

Come into our store and witness a demonstration of this marvelous instrument.

"Free Lance Fakes" Out Of War News With "Dark Ages"

"Twentieth Century Correspondents" With Real Freedom Report Battles Well And Truthfully-Have Privileges From All Big Belligerents.

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD.

There have been three stages in war correspondents' activities in the great war.

Every one of them might have been noticed by the careful newspaper reader if he had read between the lines of the war dispatches.

The first stage may be known as the "free lance days." The public, then hungry, was misled in that period. In the mass of war news no small amount of fake and lies were fed to it by unscrupulous adventurers who were ot trained correspondents and who had no reputation for veracity to sustain.

The second stage is called by European war correspondents the "dark ages." The public suffered in this stage, too, because thought it got fewer fakes and fewer unreliable stories, it got no other news of any sort, except the official reports, and these it had learned to take with a grain of salt.

The third stage, the one we have entered only recently, is the stage of the new twentieth century war correspondent.

The harum-scarumness of those early free-lance days is almost unbelievable, as one looks back on it now. Every word that a correspondent wrote for this news-hungry public was pure gold.

Who "saved" the American consulate at Antwerp when the Germans seized the town?

It was like this: As the Germans approached Antwerp many agacious humans fled the town, among them some of the consulate employes and officials. Shells were falling on the city and those of the correspondents who were not joining in the retreat were hiding in cellars.

Who did the "saving?" That's the question. Americans have read at least three different thrilling stories of the incident. The consulate stood on a little side street, two doors off the main street, but there was a lot to the latter which made it possible to obtain a view of the main street for a distance of about two blocks.

Was the "rescuer" a moving picture man who hurried to the consulate when he saw the Germans were marching into the town, placed his camera in one of the windows, and under the shelter of the American flag and a window curtain photographed the lines of incoming conquerors, not knowing that he was the only human being in the house?

Or was it a correspondent from a small newspaper, who, entering the place and finding it empty, sat down at the consul's desk and wrote a story about how he had taken charge of the deserted American consulate?

Is it true that this correspondent made ten copies of the story, left one by accident on a table and thus played into the hands of a third correspondent who found it and wired it to his own newspaper as his own experience?

But if those early days of the war made faking easy, they were, nevertheless, happy times, too, for the honest newsgetter. We could get around in those days when we were regarded as "nothing more than civilians."

I heard that expression first on the same day that I heard the first shot in the great war. That shot was fired under the window of my room in the Hotel St. Antoine at Antwerp, at 2:30 a. m., September 2, 1914.

I was seeing the first armed resistance against a zeppelin. I saw the sparks on the bombs which the zeppelin was dropping; I saw the bombs whirl through the air in mad circles; and I heard the terrific explosions. I knew that I had come across a great newspaper story. I got into my clothes and dashed down the stairs to the front door.

A soldier stood there. "You can't pass out," he said, "you'll be killed."

"Never mind that part of it," I said. "I'm a newspaper man and I've got business out there."

"You're men are only civilians to me," said the soldier. "You can't go out."

Nevertheless, the story was printed that night in New York and many other American cities. I found a man who was going to Ostend in an automobile. He carried my copy to the telegraph office in that town, and had no difficulty in getting the officials to send it.

It was the fall of Antwerp that ended the happy, free-lancing days on the civilian side. As civilian war correspondents remarked, with a sigh, as he crossed the Scheldt river and departed from Antwerp in the retreat: "Antwerp has fallen. Thank God, the day of the free-lance faker has passed."

And then came what the war correspondents call the "dark ages," when the war offices came to look upon correspondents not as unclassified civilians, but as pests who must be kept down.

Paris, in those "dark ages," was as desolate as London. I found the correspondents there in the spring of 1915 almost desperate from inaction. Henry's bar was their meeting place, and there they exchanged their tales of woe.

The War office would not recognize them; they had been informed that any individual attempts on their part to get to the front by stealth or sneaking would be severely punished.

One or two brave spirits who risked it were prevented from sending any news of any sort—even the daily communique—to their papers for the space of ten days. Richard Harding Davis, Phil Simms, Charles Wythe Williams, Henry Beach Needham—all were at one time or another silenced by such punishment.

The way I wandered during those "dark ages," I hurried to Italy, hoping that perhaps the Italians had not heard of the newest wrinkle in war office procedure regarding correspondents.

That was a glorious evening in Udine; the star of hope was brighter than any of the other lights in the Italian sky that gleamed above us as we diner in the garden of the quaint old Italian inn.

Breakfast started off gloriously, because after breakfast I was going to begin to see things.

"Signor Shepherd?"

I looked up and behold a dtective. He didn't need a star to identify him. He had the curling mustache, the thick-soled shoes, the turtle forehead and the cigar stump.

"I'm him," I said, not wasting good grammar.

"You may finish your breakfast. I will wait for you."

All the gentlemen I met within the next sixty minutes were kind but firm in their declaration that I could not remain in Udine. The detectives even permitted me to go directly to Gen. Cadorna's headquarters, where an Italian count received me most graciously and said:

"Well, you may remain in Udine if you wish to; but if you do, we'll be forced to shoot you."

Two hours later, because a train didn't leave sooner, I departed from Udine.

It was a light that dawned in Germany, spreading through the war offices of Europe, which finally dispelled the gloom of the "dark ages." The British kept their first battle of Ypres a secret from the world for four months.

But the Germans were guilty of a stupidity almost as great, for Von Hindenburg's first defeat of the Russian army in the Mazurian lake region did not reach the world until Karl von Wiegand, then of the United Press, got back to Berlin as a news story, and persuaded the German War office to let him go to eastern Prussia and make a news story out of the victory.

That one story served to prve to the Germans the value of proper handling of news. In short time they had appointed a man in the war office whose sole duty was to arrange for trips for war correspondents to the various fronts.

The allies soon felt the force of this German move. To offset the German propaganda, the allies began to grant certain privileges to correspondents, and those privileges exist today.

Most of the faking of old days is gone. The free-lance adventurer who used to write his entertaining tales has dropped out of the game; though harmless fakes, intended merely to glorify the writer while not misleading the public on an important matter, even now find their way into print occasionally.

Such a story was that of the correspondent who, after being presented to President Poincare of France, with a number of other correspondents—a purely formal proceeding—wrote that "the president of France, learning that I was with a party of correspondents, sent a courier across the fields to ask me to come to meet him. He thanke me for all I had written in support of the ally cause."

President Poincare speaks no English, and this particular correspondent speaks no French; and what really occurred was that, as the line of correspondents passed the French president, this one, coming to his turn, offered his hand, smiled—and passed on down the line.

The new twentieth-century war correspondent knows a great deal about war, in spite of the restraints put upon him. He is under fire, oftentimes, and he has a grasp of the technical side of war. He writes only about what he has actually seen or what comes to him from official sources, and his stories are strictly censored.

"If you read a story by Richard Harding Davis," said Major Fredderick Palmer to me one day recently, "about a little yellow dog in some out-of-the-way village you could be sure, not only that Davis had really been in that village, but that he had really seen the yellow dog."

The Richard Harding Davis standard of truth is the standard of all the men I know in Europe who today are sending America its war news.

Ralph de Libro, of Randolph road, who went out from Plainfield last fall as a member of the first contingent going to Camp Dix, is now in France. He was originally a member of Company A, 311th Infantry, but was afterward transferred to a provisional brigade. In a letter from him received by Escolo Brancatti, of Terrill road, de Libro says he is enthusiastic over the service and anxious to get up to the front line trenches.

Dix Becoming A 'City of Canvass'

With the arrival of the necessary tentage at the cantonment, Camp Dix is fast being made into a city of canvas as well as barracks. The new quota of drafted men which started to arrive last Friday, has made necessary the securing of additional quarters and on all sides the tents are being erected in the company streets to accommodate them.

The new men are coming from New Jersey, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Illinois, New York and Delaware, and more than 9,500 are expected soon. Lieutenant-Colonel C. C. Kinney has completed arrangements for attaching the newcomers to the various regiments for rations and quarters and as fast as they reach the camp and are examined they are attached to their temporary quarters pending the time they are assigned to companies.

Experience gained during the last few months in handling the various draft movements has perfected the system of receiving the men and now they are assimilated into the life of this camp without any sign of disorder or lack of management.

At the present time, Camp Dix is filled to capacity and about every regiment is up to full strength. The new men, however, will be attached to these regiments and the overflow is being housed in the tents. The question of erecting the tents on one of the large fields was at first decided upon, but it was finally decided to keep the new men with an organized unit and that when the barracks were filled the tents would be distributed.

Many of the new men are now occupying these tents, but it is likely that they will soon be taken over by the "veterans."

With the coming of milder weather the men in the barracks are turning their attention to the appearance of the ground in front of their "homes." Grass plots and flower gardens are taking the place of the bare spots. Many of the companies have expert landscape men, and they have transplanted woodland shrubbery, and birch fences have been erected. Division headquarters also has been improved by the addition of a grass plot.

Many changes in officers and men of Camp Dix recently journeyed to Bloosmburg, Pa., in two special Pullman cars to receive degrees in the Caldwell Sovereign Consistory, S. P. R. S., Thirty-second Degree.

The following promotions have been announced in the 311th Infantry Regiment: To be sergeant bugler, Sergeant Orderly Michael Fee; to be band sergeant, First-class Musician Samuel Kirkham; to be band corporal, William Staats, musician of the 1st class; to be color sergeant, Sergeant Edward Batt.

The camp was crowded with visitors on Sunday. As no passes were issued this week, many relatives and friends of soldiers traveled to Camp Dix. The big attraction was the baseball game which the divisional team and the cost accounting team of the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Allies Plan Pool Of Aircraft Work

A pool of allied aeroplane production to speed work of all kinds of planes is now in force, it was learned this week.

The American Government, at least for the time being, will devote itself largely to producing training, bombing, scouting and photo planes, releasing French and British manufacturing plants for tremendously increased production of battle planes.

This new program, it is stated, will be the most optimistic feature of the Senate Military Committee report on aircraft production being completed today. Each member of the committee has completed a report on a certain feature of the long inquiry, and the committee met this week to whip the report into form.

The statement of the committee which will cover all points that censorship will allow published at this time, includes the entire subject of war supplies production. It is encouraging in the main because of the promise it holds out for increased production in all branches later. Aeroplanes, for instance, will not show rapid development and shipment much before September, it is indicated. Light artillery and machine gun production is progressing encouragingly, it is stated.

PLAINFIELD RECRUITS LEAVE FOR PARIS ISLAND.

William Egel, of 1403 West Fourth street, and Clarence Weber, of 1145 West Fifth street, who enlisted in the Marine Corps through the Newark office this past week, left today for Paris Island, N. C., to begin their training.

Jeremiah Hefferan, of Lee place, is numbered among the latest recruits accepted by the Newark office. He has been assigned to the Navy and will temporarily be stationed at Brooklyn. Mr. Hefferan is a brother of Mrs. J. J. Lindsay, of Lee place, who arranged the farewell gathering in his honor during which he was presented with a wrist watch.

STATIONED AT FORT McALLEN.

William Hugo Hartpence, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hartpence, of 215 Watchung avenue, who recently enlisted in the army, is now located at Fort McAllen, Texas. He has been assigned to the 13th Cavalry and will probably remain in Texas for his period of training.

Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and sealed with the corporate seal of the City and shall be attested by the city clerk, and the coupons shall be signed with the facsimile signature of the city clerk. Said bonds may when ordered by resolution of the Common Council be sold for an amount not less than the par value thereof, and there shall be raised by tax each year hereafter while any of said bonds are outstanding and unpaid such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all the outstanding bonds and the principal of said bonds as the same shall respectively become due and payable. The amount of money necessary to be raised for the purposes here said is $2,500.

Sec. 4. It is hereby determined and declared:

(a) The probable period of usefulness of the said steam roller is ten years.

(b) The average assessed valuation of the taxable real property (including improvements) of the City of Plainfield computed upon the next preceding three valuations thereof, in the manner provided in Section 11 of Chapter 232 P. L. 1916, as amended by Chapter 240 P. L. 1917, is $37,411,868.

(c) The net debt of said City of Plainfield computed in the manner provided in said Section 11 of said act as amended, is $1,-979,800.

(d) The annual statement and the supplemental statement required by Section 12 of said act as amended have been made by the Treasurer and Chief of Plainfield the chief financial officer of said city, and filed in the office of the city clerk as required by said act as amended.

Adopted by the Common Council, April 16, 1918.

Approved by the Mayor, April 18, 1918.

LEIGHTON CALKINS, Mayor.

Attest:
JOHN J. CARROLL, City Clerk.

The foregoing ordinance was approved by the Mayor on the 18th day of April, 1918. The bonds authorized thereby will be issued and delivered after the 15th day of May, 1918, and any suit, action or proceeding to set aside or vacate this ordinance will be begun on or before the said last mentioned date. The said ordinance will become operative ten days after the publication thereof after the final passage unless within said ten days a protest or protest against the incurring of the indebtedness authorized by said ordinance shall be filed in the office of the city clerk, signed by the owners representing ten per cent. in amount of the assessed valuation of the lots whose names appear on the last preceding assessment roll of the city.

Service Here Tomorrow For Lieutenant La Porte

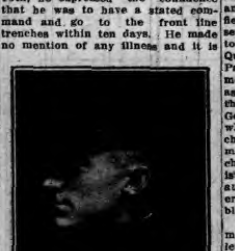
In St. Joseph's church, the borough, in which he had performed his religious duties for many years, a solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at 7:30 tomorrow morning for the repose of the soul of Lieutenant Edmond J. LaPorte, the first North Plainfield young man to give up his life, as a member of the American Expeditionary Force in France. Somewhere "over there" on May 2nd from fell victim to peritonitis, which developed after he had undergone an operation at a base hospital for an acute attack of appendicitis. There had been no intimation of this ailment in any of his letters received by his mother and the formal telegraph message from Washington, announcing that death had ensued came as a distinct shock to family and friends alike.

The mass tomorrow morning will be said by Rev. Father Campbell, curate of St. Joseph's, assisted by Rev. Father Hart as deacon and Rev. Father Hennessey, of St. Mary's, as sub-deacon. Special music will be rendered by the church choir, of which the deceased lieutenant was once a member and of which his father has been leader for many years. As the young man had hundreds of acquaintances in all parts of the city and borough, it is believed the attendance will be very large.

Inquiries directed to Washington, after the sad news had been broken to the family, produced the reply that there was no further information at hand regarding the circumstances of Lieutenant LaPorte's death, but the War Department would have the body brought to America after the war. All personal effects, the message read, would be forwarded to Plainfield, as soon as possible. This is the customary procedure followed out by the Government and the families and friends of soldiers who sacrifice themselves for their love of country, know that it is all that can be said or done under the present trying circumstances.

Lieutenant Edmund J. LaPorte was born in Brooklyn, but his parents removed to Plainfield when he was two years old, continuing to reside in the borough since that time. That was twenty-two years ago, making the young officer twenty-four years old at the time he passed away in the army hospital in far-off France. As a youth he attended the North Plainfield schools, graduating from the High School department in 1910. He possessed a natural aptitude for newspaper work and a short time after the graduation took a position on the staff of the Daily Press. Later he became sporting editor of the Courier-News, acquitting himself in a most creditable manner and making a reputation for himself as an authority on sports. He has always been prominent in scholastic athletics during his grammar and High School years, a fact which aided him greatly in his journalistic work.

About two years ago, Mr. LaPorte went to Virginia for added laurels in the fast fields and thence to Beaver Falls, Pa., where he became city editor of the Evening Tribune. He was discharging the duties of this position when war was declared against Germany. He imbibed the spirit of President Wilson's liberty message and last summer decided to answer his country's call. Enlisting at Pittsburgh, the nearest recruiting point from Beaver Falls, he was accepted as an applicant for the Officers' Training Corps and was sent to Fort Oglethorpe, Chattanooga, Tenn. He entered upon his work with such determination that when his examinations were taken at the conclusion of the prescribed three months' course, he was commissioned as first lieutenant. From Fort Oglethorpe he was sent to Camp Pike, at Little Rock, Ark., for six weeks. From this point he was ordered to an Atlantic port and on January 29th, in command of a large unit of officers, went overseas. He had been acting as provisional officer from the time of his arrival in France but in a letter received by his parents on April 16th, he expressed the confidence that he was to have a stated command and go to the front line trenches within ten days. He made no mention of any illness and it is apparent that appendicitis attacked him at about the time he expected to be looking at the enemy across "No Man's Land."



LIEUT. EDMUND J. LA PORTE
For Whom "Taps" Sounded in France on May 2.

Besides his newspaper work in Plainfield, Lieutenant LaPorte is remembered by many for his ability as a dancer. When the recent craze of modern steps first began, he acquired the art to a high state of perfection and became an instructor. H conducted evening classes that were soon filled to their capacity, when many others were in waiting at the time he left the city. On several occasions the young artist gave exhibitions of modern dancing that drew large crowds to Columbus Auditorium and other places. He was frequently urged to go on professional rounds, as a dancer, but never considered the proposition seriously.

By nature, Lieutenant LaPorte was of a jovial, light-hearted disposition, a fact which aided him in his faculty of making friends. He also possessed an excellent singing voice and his company was eagerly sought by his young acquaintances. It is safe to say that of the four Plainfield and North Plainfield young men who have passed away while serving in the present great conflict he was by far the best known, consequently his demise has occasioned a wider range of personal regret throughout the community.

Beside his parents, Lieutenant LaPorte's nearest surviving relatives are two sisters, the Misses Frances and Virginia LaPorte, and one brother, Vincent LaPorte.

HELD ON THEFT CHARGE.

Accused of having stolen a pocketbook from Mrs. Edith H. Fraser, of Park avenue, and of having taken 100 pounds of sugar from Frank Cullen's store, David Schroeder, of 1543 Stevens avenue, Brooklyn, a driver for the Shultz bakery, was arrested in this city, Wednesday. He was held in $500 bail for a hearing today before Judge DeMeza, but because of a lack of witnesses the matter was put over until tomorrow.

M. W. CASTERLINE BUYS LUNCH BUSINESS.

Mulford W. Casterline, of this city, has purached from Haberle & Draper, the trolley station lunch room located at 312 Watchung avenue, near East Fourth street.

Mr. Casterline, who has a wide acquaintance through his years of employment at the Queen City Hotel, the Kensington and other places in town, will continue the business along the same lines as those followed by Haberle & Draper since they established it seven years ago. Beside serving all kinds of lunch and "short orders," he will also carry cigars, cigarettes and tobacco.

ROPE CHAPEL AUXILIARY TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

The Hope Chapel Auxiliary to the Red Cross will hold a benefit entertainment at the Chapel next Thursday night when Ivah Bell Squier, soprano, will give American Indian songs, dances and legends in costume. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the auxiliary's war fund.

CORPORAL LITTLE HOME.

Corporal Albert I. Little, who has been stationed at Camp McClellan since last summer, is at his home on West Seventh street for a few days' furlough. He arrived in town last night, accompanied by Mrs. Little, who has been living at Anniston since last fall.

SOLDIER BEING HELD.

Private Joseph Bennett, who took "French leave" from his division at Camp McClellan and was arrested at his home in this city, Tuesday, is still being held at police headquarters pending instructions from the military authorities.

William Little, of East Sixth street, left for Camp McClellan this morning after a ten days furlough at home.

Mrs. William R. Townsend, of Gresham Road, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation performed yesterday morning. She was reported today as doing well.

HIS FINGERS CRUSHED

James Hurley, of Westervelt avenue, received three crushed fingers in an accident at the Saxer Motor plant Wednesday when his hand became caught in an automatic machine The injury was dressed by Dr. C. B. Lufburrow and it will be several weeks before he can return to work.

Mrs. Edward Opdycke, of New Germantown, returnedhome yesterday after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Kinkle of Lincoln place.

Selected Men May Enlist In New Tank Corps

The newly organized United States Tank Corps of the National Army has been thrown open to selected draft men for immediate enlistment, according to a message received by Corporal E. D. Peck, recruiting officer in charge at the local office in the post-office building.

The message further adds that Lieutenant George W. Sutton, Jr., will be in Plainfield next week for the purpose of explaining the duties and advantages of the Tank Corps in an effort to secure men from Plainfield who will be called for general service later on. Those enlisting are to be sent to the Tank Training Quarters at Camp Colt, Gettysburg, Pa. This branch of service calls for men of a high degree of intelligence, as much depends upon the work of these new war machines, and the Government specially desires recruits who have been tractor drivers, auto chauffeurs, heavy auto truck drivers, motorcyclists, auto electricians, machine gun mechanics, bench machinists, lathe hands, acetylene welders, auto engine mechanics, telephone operators, wireless buzzer operators, blacksmiths and cooks.

The opportunities for advancement in the Tank Corps are excellent and Plainfield men who have been deliberating on joining the army would do well to give this branch serious consideration. Lieutenant Frank Neal, of West Front street, was the first to be assigned to the Camp Colt training quarters from this city, and has already acquitted himself in a most creditable manner.

Corporal Peck secured three more recruits for army service this week and has another four ready for physical examination next Tuesday. The three men who have been accepted and were sent to Fort Slocum yesterday are the following: John F. McNamara, 745 South Second street, assigned to field artillery; Roy M. Wyckoff, 522 Arlington avenue, to heavy field artillery, and Michael Sinker, Terrill road, Fanwood, cavalry.

Plainfielder Home After Tour Of 26,732 Miles

Completing a theatrical engagement of thirty-five weeks as a singer and dancer with the musical comedy success, "Watch Your Step," Walter F. Hamilton, Jr., of Verdon street, the borough, returned to Plainfield Monday after travelling 26,732 miles since the show's opening at Scranton, Pa., last August.

The company went straight to the Pacific coast, making stops only at the largest cities between New York and San Francisco. After playing San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles and other California cities, the show began a general tour which included more than half the States in the Union and parts of Canada. The concluding performance was at London, Ontario, last Saturday night.

Mr. Hamilton states that business was good during the entire season despite the fact that many cities had been almost depleted of their able-bodied young men and in Canada the heavy hand of war has kept the people from social and amusement activities. After a two months' rest at home, Mr. Hamilton will start on another tour with a new musical comedy now in preparation.

Firemen Save Barn From Destruction

Prompt arrival of the fire department saved the barn and coal tresle located in the rear of George O. Stiven's yard at Front street and Grant avenue from destruction by flames this morning.

The blaze was discovered at 10:30 and an alarm from box 83 brought the West End and down town apparatus to the scene in a very short time. The barn was filled with hay only a few days ago and this gave the men a lot of trouble but the blaze was confined to the upper floor and did not even get through the roof. Spontaneous combustion is believed to have started the fire.

The damage is placed at $1,000 on the building and $250 on the contents.

PATROLMAN RUSS ENLISTS IN NAVY.

Patrolman William Russ, of West Fifth street, is among four local young men reported by the Plainfield Exemption Board today as having enlisted in the service. Patrolman Russ is to go to Brooklyn as a member of the Naval Reserve.

The other men enlisting and thereby removing themselves from the Class I-A eligibles are R. B. Poucher, of Woodland avenue, a second class seaman in the navy; Gustav T. Nelson, of North avenue, naval reserve, and Clarence Weber, 1145 West Fifth street, marine corps.

Potter Firm Consolidates With Others

The Potter Printing Press Company, of this city, announced today that the corporations known as the Potter Printing Press Company, Whitlock Manufacturing Company, of Derby, Conn., and the United Printing Machinery Company, of Woodsocket, R. I., have merged their good will, patents, plants and other properties into one organization, to be known as the Potter Printing Machinery Company with the main office at Boston, Mass.

This consolidation places this new company at the head of the printing press industry, both as to financial resources and variety of printing machinery manufactured. The combined products will be made in the near future. In a new factory, equipped with the most modern appliances.

Announcement was made about a year ago of the sale of the Potter Printing Press Company's real estate and machinery to the Wood Newspaper Machinery Corporation, which has continued to manufacture the Potter products.

Shortly after this transfer the Potter Company closed the largest contract ever given for special color offset presses, which has since kept the Wood Company working to capacity.

In 1855, the late Charles Potter founded this business. It was later incorporated into the present company, and this industry was moved to Plainfield from Rhode Island in 1879. The Potter Company was the pioneer of the metal working industries of this city.

The retiring officers are Horace W. Fish, of New York, president; William C. Hubbard, sales manager of the Cooper-Hewitt Electric Company, vice president, and Charles Potter Titsworth, secretary and treasurer, both of this city. Mr. Titsworth will assume the direction of the Potter products with the new organization. His office will be in New York city and he will continue to reside in Plainfield.

Jerome Leary Gets "Super's" Position

A change in the departmental heads at the Elizabeth plant of the Standard Aero Corporation has resulted in Jerome W. Leary, of this city, being made night superintendent of the big Bayway plant shops. The selection of Mr. Leary is considered a splendid move on the part of the corporation officials, as he is a man of wide mechanical and executive experience. He was for many years superintendent of motive power for the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, with headquarters at New Haven, and came from that city to Plainfield to assume charge of the Aluminum Plate and Press Works, now the Hall Press Works, of West Dunellen.

Mr. Leary retired from the manufacturing field to assume the proprietorship of the Otto Hotel, now the Queen City, which he renamed the Iroquois, and conducted for five years. Recently he has been a foreman at the Wright-Martin aircraft plant at New Brunswick, leaving this position there to join the Standard forces. Mr. Leary, whose home is on Watchung avenue, is highly popular in Plainfield and his hundreds of friends wish him every success in his new position.

Completes Twenty-five Years Of Practice Here

Dr. Frank C. Ard, of Park avenue, is today observing what might be termed a silver anniversary, as it was just twenty-five years ago on this date that he began the practice of his profession in this city.

Dr. Ard, who is a native of Westfield, N. Y., has become one of the most eminent eye, ear, nose and throat specialists in the East. For many years he was on the active staff of the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary and is still on the advisory board. He has also been in charge of the eye and ear department at Muhlenberg Hospital and has won an enviable reputation for his success in handling difficult cases. His friends in Plainfield, who are numbered in the many hundreds, extend congratulations on the occasion of the anniversary and express the wish that he continues his noble work in the community for at least another quarter of a century.

ANOTHER FIREMAN QUITS

The usual weekly resignation from the Fire Department was received at Headquarters this morning. The latest one to leave is Carl Ulmer, who returns to his trade of electrician with Ryder & Graves next Monday.

Plans For Coming Red Cross Parade Promise Big Doings

Plans now being completed by J. Whitney Baker and others making way for the local Red Cross drive for $70,000 as Plainfield's share for the second $100,000,000 war fund, indicate that there will be a grand street parade on Saturday, May 18th, eclipsing the procession that started off the last Liberty Loan campaign.

This parade will be in charge of Mr. Baker as marshal and will mark the beginning of the drive in Plainfield. The Home Guard, Red Cross units and patriotic organizations will be in line. It is also hoped to have a number of large floats and extensive displays, not yet attempted in any of the recent processions. On Friday night, May 24th, there will be another demonstration in the form of a big mass meeting in the Plainfield High School Auditorium and several prominent speakers, one of them a distinguished soldier, back from the front, will make addresses.

Plainfield's quota of $70,000, it is believed, will easily be raised within the week, begining May 20th. The district includes, beside Plainfield, North Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Fanwood, South Plainfield, Dunellen and Watchung. The territory is to be mapped into districts and canvassers will visit everyone for contributions. The Marsh building at Second street and Park avenue is to be headquarters during the campaign.

At a meeting of the Plainfield-North Plainfield Chapter of the Red Cross Monday night, at which George L. Babcock acted as chairman, the following committees were appointed: Executive committee:

Charles W. McCutchen, John P. Stevens, Wilbur H. Rogers, F. L. Sill, William H. Wherry, Jr., A. A. Tilney, Frank J. Hubbard, Mrs. Henry E. Butler, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Miss Margaret Mead. J. W. Sandford will be the war fund cashier and Joseph P. Yerkes will be the office manager.

The war fund committee will be as follows:

Charles W. McCutchen, Hon. William N. Runyon, Wilbur H. Rogers, H. H. Pond, F. L. Sill, Louis K. Hyde, Samuel Townsend, C. B. Tyler, A. E. Force, Max Tepper, William Newcorn, John C. The following chairmen of committees were announced:

Publicity, Dr. James R. Joy; speakers, W. M. Wherry, Jr.; booths, Mrs. A. C. Penn; schools, Miss Emelyn B. Hartridge; industrial, Thomas C. Vail; finance, Joseph W. Sandford; theatres, William Newcorn; citizens, Wilbur H. Rogers.

New Judge Honored by Bar Association

Judge Carlton B. Pierce, who, with the opening of the May term, will preside over the first session of the county courts as judge of the Common Pleas, was the guest of honor Tuesday at a luncheon given by the Union County Bar Association in the parish house of the First Presbyterian church, Elizabeth. Twenty-one members of the organization, including a number from this city, were present to welcome him.

William D. Wolfskeil, president of the association, made an address of welcome to Judge Pierce and Judge J. Henry Crane, of Plainfield; Surrogate Charles N. Codding, Assistant Prosecutor Donald McLean and former Surrogate George T. Parsot also made a few remarks. Judge Pierce replied to the words of greeting, and while doing so took occasion to thank the members of the association for their assistance and co-operation since he ascended the bench.

Before the luncheon the regular business session that always follows the opening of a term of the county courts was held at the courthouse. A resolution was introduced and unanimously adopted at that time, providing that those members who have enlisted in the country's service shall be exempt from the payment of dues while away.

City Gets Back $2,500 Of Exner Liened Money

After Four Years Of Litigation, Vice-Chancellor Stevenson Renders Decision In Suits Arising From Failure Of Plainfield High School Contractors

After remaining in the Court of Chancery for the past four years, the mechanics' lien cases arising from the failure of the Paul J. Exner Company, of New York, to finish the big addition to the Plainfield High School, were brought to near completion this week through a decision handed down by Vice Chancellor Stevenson. In a mass of testimony covering forty-four typewritten pages and dealing with every phase of the complicated situation it is gleaned that the Board of Education is to receive $2,500 for the trouble it was given in not having the school building finished at the time specified in the contract. Other amounts are allowed the Board but these are to cover payments that had been made to the architects as extra fees, legal expenses and an assigned claim past the City National Bank. The proceedings are not entered as yet, however, as the Vice Chancellor left several points in abeyance until he receives further detailed testimony.

When the addition to the High School was finally completed by John Dahl, who took over the work when the Paul J. Exner Company, the original contractors, "fell down" on the job, there remained due from the Board to the Exner Company $14,099.55. Various liens were filed against this amount by those who had supplied the Exner Company with materials, and the matter found its way into the Court of Chancery, where it came up before Vice Chancellor Stevenson for determination under the provisions of the Municipal Lief Act.

After hearing testimony for a dozen days scattered over a period of a year or so and final argument about two years ago, the Vice Chancellor has since been endeavoring to crack the legal nuts presented to him by the various lawyers interested. He has finally prepared his conclusions and the lawyers are now trying to find out where they "get off."

At the court hearing the Board of Education claimed that the amount due the Exner Company was wiped out by the liquidated damages of $50 under the contract for delay in finishing the work, and for claims arising under the provisions of the electrical and plumbing contracts with the Exner Company.

The court disallows most of the claims of the Board, but allows $2,500 damages for delay, $443.85 for legal expenses, and $560 for architects' compensation, and also allows $1,584.52 paid by the Board to the City-National Bank under an assignment by the Exner Company. There is, therefore, left $9,066.18 to be distributed among the lien claimants. The Vice Chancellor intimates that only those claimants who filed their claims prior to April 21, 1924, will be able to participate in the distribution. He suggests in taking additional testimony in the matter and fixes Friday, May 24, at Jersey City, for the final act in the legal drama.

Among the local people who filed liens are the A. M. Griffen Co., J. D. Lofreau Lumber Co., Albert Rajotte, A. J. Bouti Layering & Carpentering and C. C. Randolph Co., and among the local lawyers representing both local and out of the town people in the litigation are Harry C. Runyon, Isaac P. Ruayon, W. A. Coddington, Coddington & Blatz, Swackhamer & Bird, Carols C. Gallup, and W. H. Angleman.

E. R. Ackerman Enters Race On Fifth District

Announcement by former State State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman that he would enter the September primaries as a candidate for the nomination of Congressman on the Republican ticket is contained in the following open communication received by the Record yesterday:

Editor of the Record:

Judging from the approval which I have heard concerning my recent statement as to the Congressional situation in the Fifth District, I would indeed be lacking in gratitude if I did not publicly acknowledge my appreciation of the kindly spirit with which it was received by many people of both dominant parties in Morris and Union counties. It is indeed a great satisfaction to learn that I have so many friends on all parties. I have also received numerous and urgent expressions of opinion from different sections of the district stating that I ought to place myself at this critical time at the service of the people. These approvals and favorable opinions I have carefully weighed and my conclusion is that as this is the moment for impersonal and patriotic action I will and hereby do announce that I am a candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket at the September primaries for the term beginning March 4, 1919, and for the short term as well if the Governor shall issue a proclamation concerning the same. Under the law I appoint myself my campaign manager, and the Plainfield Trust Company as the depository for funds.

As outlined in my previous statement, the sole object to which our utmost endeavors must be directed is the prompt winning of the war, and if in any way I can be made serviceable thereto, I shall be most glad. The magnitude of the conflict in which we are engaged precludes the consideration of any narrow partisan view on any question; and while relinquishing none of my liberal adherence to the principles of the Republican party, yet at a time like this no purely political attitude should command the least respect. If nominated and subsequently elected, all my efforts will be continuously, strongly and persistently exercised toward attaining victory in the great war at the earliest possible moment.

Until complete victory is attained, our thoughts and activities are with our brave soldiers, sailors and all those in war service, and all who minister to them. Nothing, therefore, must be allowed to interfere with providing them with their full quota of necessities in order that they may adequately and successfully perform their difficult task.

If I should be so honored as to be elected to Congress from this district I will give the full measure of my services toward carrying out the duties connected with the great office of responsibility.

Dinner and Parade For Selected Men

Plainfield's 11 selectives slated to leave for Fort Slocum next Monday morning will be given as large and as enthusiastic a send-off as has been accorded any of their predecessors, according to Chairman John J. Vallely, of the Citizens' Committee.

The demonstration program will begin at the Queen City Hotel tomorrow night when the young men will be served with a dinner commencing at 6 o'clock. At its conclusion addresses will be made by speakers assigned by Herman Schwed and David Kenney, appointed as a committee for the purpose. Monday morning the selectives will assemble at the Exemption Board's headquarters in the Babcock building, where they will be presented with a silk flag, cigarettes, tobacco and a useful present as a gift from the Citizens' Committee. The local theatres will receive the comfort kits provided by the local chapter of the Red Cross.

At about 9:30 there is to commence a street parade in which the newest national army men will have the position of honor. It will be headed by St. Mary's Fife and Drum Corps, which has generously offered its services, and a detachment from the Plainfield Home Guards. In addition there will be a squad of police, city officials and representatives from local patriotic organizations. Chairman Vallely is particularly anxious to have women in line and asks that any Red Cross units or any club having women members make an effort to take part in the procession. Those intending to do so should send him word as soon as possible.

Mr. Vallely also makes the request that merchants along the line of march show their patriotism by decorating the front of their places. This was done quite extensively when the last selectives went out and was a great source of satisfaction to the boys. The line of march will be west along Front street to Watchung avenue, to North avenue, to Park avenue and the railroad station.

The departure from this city will be on the 10:58 train to Jersey City. Lunch will be served at the Communipaw Terminal after which the trip will be resumed by way of the ferry and New York subway to the Grand Central station, where the contingent will entrain for New Rochelle, the nearest landing point for Fort Slocum. It is probable that the men will be at Slocum only a few days as they are destined for transfer to cantonments in various parts of the country.

No changes have been made in the personnel of the contingent since it was announced last week as follows:

John A. Curran
Bayard R. Alcorn
Luigi Appessio
John Wilson
Thomas P. Pendleton
John F. Hannigan
Waldorf C. Ulrich
John oDForge
Charles H. Clark
Michael Gilman
Joseph P. Malick

PERSONAL

Mrs. Josiah Browne and daughter, Miss Elizabeth B. Browne, of Watchung avenue, have been registered at the Hotel Walcott, New York, during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen and daughter, Miss Margaret McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, the borough, returned this week after a stay at Old Point Comfort and Hot Springs, Va.

William Huttman, of West Front street, returned this week after a stay at Eau Claire, Wisc., in the interest of the Standard Aero Corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Jr., formerly of Plainfield, but now of New Bedford, Mass., are the parents of a daughter born to them on April 29. Mrs. Ackerman was formerly Miss Martha Smith, of Chicago. The young couple have been making their home at New Bedford because of Mr. Ackerman's government assignment to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a course in hydro aeronautics.

George L. Bird, of Monroe avenue, who has been a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation, was able to leave the institution a few days ago. He is now well on the road to recovery and may soon be about again.

Mrs. Harry Geiger, of Washington street, has returned home after an extended visit with her daughter in New York State.

Mrs. James P. Mottley, of West Fifth street, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital, Sunday, following recovery after an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Begg, of Paterson, are the parents of a son born to them at Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday morning. Mrs. Begg was formerly Miss Ray Warnock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place.

George W. Blair, of East Seventh street, received word this week that his son, Ernest W. Blair, a member of a provisional regiment unit, had arrived safely in France.

Louis Cahill, who went out of Plainfield last summer as a member of Troop D and since stationed at Camp McClellan, has been spending a ten days' furlough at his home on West Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Allen, of 820 West Fourth street, are rejoicing over the arrival of a son who came to their home Tuesday morning. Mrs. Allen was formerly Miss Grace Graves, daughter of Councilman Charles C. Graves.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Helen Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Harrington, former Plainfield residents now living at Winchester, Mass., to Lieutenant James Ormsbee Murray, son of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Murray, of this city. The ceremony took place last Saturday afternoon at the Church of the Ephiphany, Winchester, and was witnessed by a gathering which included a number of Lieutenant Murray's fellow officers at Camp Devon, Mass. The young couple will temporarily make their home at Princeton as the bridegroom is a member of the Signal Corps reserves stationed at that point.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gaub, of Duer street, the borough, are the parents of a daughter born to them Monday morning. The little girl arrived on the birthday of her brother, Edward Gaub, Jr., who was two years ago.

Edward P. T. Smith, who has been in Muhlenberg Hospital for several weeks following an operation, was removed this week to the home of his parents, Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith, of Fairview avenue.

Public Service Restores Three Trolley Stops

According to the protests of citizens, the Public Service Corporation has restored Darrow avenue and West Fourth street Park avenue and West Fourth street, and East Second street and Watchung avenue as trolley stations after they had been in the skip-stop rule which went into effect last month.

This fact was reported by Chairman Ackerman, of the public affairs committee, at the May meeting of the Common Council, Monday night. When the skips were first inaugurated, R. D. Williams and others complained about Darrow avenue; Chief A. D. Jennings, of the fire department, protested against the Second street skip, and the traveling public in general objected to West Fourth street and Park avenue being left out. Mr. Ackerman stated that Corporation Counsel Reed had agreed to the skip-stops because of the plan being a war measure but nevertheless the company had been appealed to. The response came with the restoration of the corners mentioned.

A protest against the condition of Sheridan avenue was made by J. D. Lolzeaux and others owning property on that thoroughfare. This street was cut through the old Leonard tract of Plainfield avenue and curbed and macamadized at private expense. The city was afterward asked to take over and maintain it but this has not been done. The severe weather of the past winter has left the street in a bad condition and the property owners feel that the city is lax in not giving the proper encouragement to investors who live up to all requirements before submitting a street for public acceptance. Chairman Ackerman, of the public affairs committee, reported that State Fuel Commissioner Jenkinson had informed him, in response to inquiries, that the authorities at Washington were discussing a plan to average the price of Old Line and Independent coal. The difference in price as it exists now has met with vigorous opposition on the part of the Plainfield people and the State Commissioner was asked if something could not be done.

Arthur E. Smith and Alex Milne, who were commissioned some time ago to compile a building code, advised the Council that they had completed their labors and suggested that the code be printed and copies made available for builders.

Health Officer Chandler advised the Council that the sewer system should be extended to Hillcrest avenue, where cesspools are giving a great deal of annoyance.

Henry Liefke petitioned for sewers in West End avenue and suggested that the Council make arrangements for connecting with the pumping station on the North Plainfield side of Greenbrook, as it would be impossible to run sewers from West End avenue into the present sewer system in West Front street.

L. W. Davidson, of Netherwood terrace, also asked for sewer service in that street.

Mayor Calkins recommended the advancement of Timmis Carrol and George Angerbauer from Class E to Class D in the fire department and oseph Miner from Class F to Class E. The recommendation was endorsed. The Mayor also appointed James McDonough and Joseph Miner regular members of the fire department.

The Council authorized the city clerk to advertise for proposals for furnishing 1,000 feet of fire hose. Bids will be received May 20.

D. F. Stewart, H. N. Adams, R. T. Willis and Fred Schermond were appointed special policemen.

On May 20 proposals will be received by the Council for constructing a storm sewer in West Front street. An ordinance authorizing the construction of the sewer was adopted on third reading Monday night.

Agreements entered into by the city with the Manganese Safe Co. and with Amoretta E. Frazer for a right-of-way through property in the West End were returned to the Council for filing, having been properly executed.

A resolution authorizing the sale of $35,000 joint sewer bonds was adopted Monday night. These bonds are a portion of the original sewer appropriation that have not been disposed of. Sealed proposals for buying the bonds will be received on June 3.

Common Council Passes Resolutions Of Regret

At Monday night's meeting of the Common Council, the following resolutions of regret at the death of Oliver B. Leonard, for many years holding the office of city clerk, were adopted on a resolution offered by Councilman Ackerman.

"RESOLVED, That this Council has learned with deep regret of the death of Oliver B. Leonard, who was for some years the faithful and efficient clerk of the Council, and in that capacity endeared himself to the members by his ability, high character and amiable qualities. Mr. Leonard has, during a long life, filled in the City of Plainfield a unique position, having been in a pre-eminent sense the Genealogist and Historian of Plainfield from a very early day. We sincerely deplore the loss by his death, and desire to convey to the members of his family our profound sympathy."

Justice Bergen Warns Against Seditious Acts

In his charge to the Grand Jury at the opening of the May session of the Union County courts at Elizabeth Tuesday morning, Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen, laid particular emphasis upon the importance of dealing with cases involving the circulation of seditious remarks or the committing of seditious acts. He made reference to the New Jersey laws recently enacted to cover such cases.

"We are today in a serious struggle for our liberty," said the Justice, "and those who are not with us in New Jersey are against us. It is your duty to bring indictments against persons whom the county prosecutor might have evidence against as to their activities against this country. The new laws place upon the statute book are there to be enforced. The new laws make it a misdemeanor to print, publish or circulate any matter that advocates that persons should not enlist in the army or navy of the United States. It prohibits the uttering by word of mouth of any remarks tending to discourage enlistment. It prohibits the holding of meetings, where five or more persons are present, for the purpose of propaganda work in discouraging men from enlisting in either the army or the navy.

"The law also prohibits any one from teaching or advocating any cause which, does not aid, abet and assist the United States in the fullest prosecution of the war.

"Any one who opposes the Government's program," said the justice, "is guilty and should be indicted upon the proper evidence being placed before you. YYou are not to judge the case, merely to scan the evidence laid before you and present indictments if you think in your judgment a prima facie case has been established. It is for the courts to hear both sides.

"The prosecutor informs me he has evidence to submit to you against persons who might come under this law. I urge that you give it your careful attention. I do not say there are such persons, but if the evidence presented convinces you the person has been uttering, circulating or pronting such matter, it is your duty to bring in indictments."

The justice also cautioned the Grand Jury with reference to excise violations. He said their personal opinions should not prevent them from acting where the law is clear, particularly where the cases might seem only trivial. He said: "The law is on the statute book, whether it agrees with your personal judgment or not. You cannot set up your judgment against that the of Legislature.

"I know this Grand Jury will do its duty and I therefore send you to your task fully realizing you will carefully observe the rules as laid down."

Frank N. B. Close, of Cranford, was named as foreman of the Grand Jury which took up its work at once. It will hold morning sessions until it completes its work. It is understood only fifty complaints are to be acted upon, the smallest number for a great many terms.

Constable Frederick Teipel and Alexander Ayers were assigned in attendance on the jury by the court.

The Plainfield members of the Grand Jury are: John H. Greene, Jr., Francis Hammann, Frank J. Hubbard, Harry C. VanEmburgh, William N. Fairchild and William J. Whelan. Those from this city on the petit jury are Edwin Lawrence, Augustus V. Searing, Charles R. Banks, Charles A. Sturdevant, Timothy J. Meaney, Harry A. Robinson, R. Burnett Rogers, O. T. Runyon and Fred A. Thomas.

The Supreme Court cases listed for the term from Plainfield are the following:

Herbert Buxton vs. Harry G. Rupple, et als., W. A. Coddington for the plaintiff and Frank S. Moore for the defendants; William R. Codington vs. New Jersey Insurance Company, Codington & Blatz for the plaintiff, McCarter & English for the defendant; J. Alexander Wilson vs. Plainfield Union Fire Company, William Newcorn for the plaintiff and Codington & Blatz for the defendant; Samuel Gross vs. Walter M. Conover, et al., Collins & Corbin for the plaintiff and City Judge William G. DeMeza for the defendants.

The following Plainfield cases are listed for the Circuit Court:

The Newark Orphan Asylum vs. The Board of Chosen Freeholders, County of Union; action at law, Frederick S. Taggart for the plaintiffs and Francis J. Blatz for the defendants.

Walter W. Mooney Company, Incorporated, vs. Paul Zuckenberg et als.; mechanic's lien. Vincent W. Nash, Jr., for the plaintiffs and Stamler & Stamler for defendant.

Frank E. Zeller vs. Percy C. Allen on lien claim. William Newcorn for the plaintiff and Martin B. Stutsman for the defendant.

Ethel R. Hunter vs. Caroline Brandegee, action at law. Harry C. Runyon for the plaintiff and Clark McK. Whittemore for the defendant.

May Register Men On Quarterly Plan

The necessity for quarterly registration of men who become 21 if the demand for men increases was impressed upon the House military affairs committee yesterday by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

He asked for an appropriation of $15,000,000 to cover the work of his department during the next fiscal year. Some of the items were made larger than seemed absolutely necessary, because of the possibility that quarterly registration will have to be resorted to, he said.

Last year's total of $19,000,000 was appropriated for the use of the provost marshal general's office. Of this amount $6,000,000 remained untouched, General Crowder said.

No Oil This Season For Roads Or 'Skeeters

The streets of Plainfield and other municipalities in Union county will have no sprinkling with oil this summer, owing to the conservation urged in this commodity. The Union County Mosquito Commission has decided to omit oiling this season and to devote more time to ditching. Thirty-five inspectors and laborers are now at work and it is expected that by the next month sufficient progress will have been made to insure even greater relief than that provided last year.

As a further means of expediting the work of the inspectors, the commission has voted to purchased an automobile. Conferences with the commissions of Essex and Hudson counties will soon be held.

News of the Theatre

"So Long Letty" Coming Next Week

"So Long Letty," a typical Morosco farce with music settings, will be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre on Tuesday evening, May 14. Complimented with long runs on both the Pacific and the Atlantic coast before reaching here, it will be surprising if it is not greeted with the same enthusiasm shown wherever the play has been presented.

The catchy dialogue and humorous situations are more responsible for the success of the performance than the music, which is light, wholly modern and very catchy in spots. The farce is a burlesque upon trial marriage and the affinity idea. Its lesson is that while a man's own fireside might at times bore him, in the last analysis it is "home, sweet home."

Letty, a wife, who cares more for the cabaret than the kitchen, who is joined for "better or for worse" to Henry Robbin, a tidy homebody, who spends his afternoons off in trimming the hedge and puttering around on the lawn. The couple live in a queer colony on a California beach, where abandoned street cars are used for homes. The next car neighbors are Grace Miller, a portly domestic person with a lisp, and her husband Harry, who rends to red neckties and poolroom cigars.

The Robbins and the Millers get an idea that they are mismated and the plot to rearrange the matrimonial alignment by way of the divorce court. The women, however, refuse to do anything blindly and demand a week of try-out of the new arrangement, Tommy being bunked in the wood closet of the Miller home and Harry taking his rest in the hammock on the Robbins' porch at nights. As usual the last few minutes straighten out all the kinks.

The book for "So Long Letty" was written by Mr. Morosco, the producer, and Elmer Harris, while Earl Carroll provided the music and lyrics. These are the same men who wrote "Canary Cottage," another of Mr. Morosco's successful musical plays. "A typical Morosco cast" has been assembled for the principals and there is a large chorus of California beauties which is enhanced with an augmented orchestra.

A Bunch of Laughs In "A Dog's Life"

Charlie Chaplin, that funny fellow who makes millions of people laugh every day, will be the bright particular star at the Plainfield theatre today and tomorrow. At all performances, afternoon and evening, he will be seen in his latest comedy creation entitled "A Dog's Life," said to be, by those who have seen it, positively the funniest film ever thrown on the screen. Ordinary laughter gives way to hysterical humor as Charlie canters through his inimitable gyrations and gets into one mix-up after another. "A Dog's Life" is an absolute cure for the blues and as a picture is proving popular with both old and young.

There will be vaudeville at the theatre today and tomorrow in addition to funny Charlie. There will be five numbers, each one of them a cracker-jack. The headliner is the Clifford Trio of scenic acrobats in an offering entirely different from anything else. There will also be Rollin and Ray, comedians; a travesty entitled, "Oh, Oh, Othello," presented by Gilman and Company; Begere, a versatile young woman with a singing novelty, and Champion Smith and Wylie in a comedy variety production.

The program at the theatre next Monday and Wednesday will be a combination of a feature photo-play and vaudeville. The former will be the sensational dramatic production, "The Price of a Good Time," in which one of the strongest casts ever assembled portrays the leading roles. The story is one that is true to life in every detail and with the aid of the producer's skill is presented in a manner that leaves a helpful impression on the thoughtless people of the present day.

Barnum and Bailey Show To Appear At 'Brunswick May 18

There is to be a real circus day this year—a Barnum & Bailey circus day. Adanva guards of the Greatest Show on Earth announce that this season's route carrites it close enough to be visited by everybody in this vicinity. Thirty acres of tents will be set, and the big show will be exhibited in New Brunswick on May 18.

A wonderful new program is promised, and it is claimed that this season the monster entertainment has more and better things to show than ever before. Starting with a magnificent pageant entitled, "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," the circus will occupy three hours or more with events in air, on platforms and rings, and in the huge hippodrome surrounding. Not one moment will be lost in all of the spaces of the vast enclosure.

The opening feature is the first attempt at Chinese pageantry in the history of American circuses, and it has been described as the most gorgeous presentation ever attempted. The story of the genie slave of the magic lamp is too well known to need description here. However, it may be well to call attention to the possibilities for display in coloring and magnificent settings in the Chinese locale, and to the fact that Barnum & Bailey have spent $1,000,000 to reproduce all of its glorious possibilities.

The circus program, which follows the pageant, is made up almost entirely of names and acts new to the American public, the cream of all continental circuses having rushed to the big show's European agents for booking on account of the closing of most of the big foreign circuses. There is a complete Chinese circus, replete with thrilling aerial and acrobatic feats; the famous Hanneford family, champion riders of Europe, will display their wonderful skill; Signor Bagonchi, the dwarf bareback rider, described as the equestrian comic of the century, will thrill and convulse with laughter; Pallenberg's wonderful bears will ride on high bicycles, skate and perform on the trapeze; there will be more clowns than ever before, and in the menagerie will be seen many new specimens of wild and untamed animals. There are a dozen of new baby animals in the great zoo.

There will be more than one hundred acts, and to name and describe them would occupy too much space.

The parade, which is entirely new, will start from the show grounds in New Brunswick as nearly 10 o'clock in the morning as possible. It will be three miles in length and there will be six bands, three calliopes and a steam piano to create music for the marching throng.

PROPOSALS FOR STORM SEWER.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, at a regular meeting held Monday, May 6, 1918, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on Monday, the twentieth day of May, 1918, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the construction of the storm sewer contemplated in the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the renewing and Replacing the Storm Sewer in a portion of West Front Street," approved April 15th, 1918, as amended by the plans adopted by the Common Council, March 18, 1918, and in the specifications adopted by the Common Council, May 6, 1918, referring also to plans entitled, "Sewer System, City of Plainfield, N. J., Sheet 1, 1895, Plans of Castings, March, 1895, and "City of Plainfield, N. J., Plan for Storm Sewer Inlets, January, 1917," and filed in the office of the City Clerk, No. 151 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals, the Common Council will immediately proceed to publicly unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make public record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Common Council.

The Engineer's approximate estimate of the quantities of material required, and the work to be done, is as follows:

850 feet 24-inch vitrified pipe storm sewer; 130 feet 15-inch vitrified pipe inlet connections; 100 feet 12-inch vitrified pipe inlet connections; 4 Manholes, 9 Inlets; 1 Retaining Wall; 4,000 bd. feet Lumber; 56 cu. yds. crushed stone foundations; 10 cu. yds. concrete foundations.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for $200. The amount of bond required will be equal to the estimated cost of the work.

The Common Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive defects in bids, or to accept any bid as they shall deem for the best interest of the City.

Duplicate plans may be examined, and forms of proposal, specifications, contract and bond, may be obtained at the office of Andrew J. Sweet, Street Commissioner, 151 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Proposals should be addressed to John J. Carroll, City Clerk, and endorsed "Proposals for Storm Sewers."

AN ORDINANCE

to Ascertain and Establish the Boundaries of a Portion of West Front Street.

WHEREAS, The Common Council judge that the public good requires that the boundaries or side lines of a portion of West Front Street be ascertained and established as provided for in Chapter 152 of the Laws of 1917, Section 1—(a).

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the boundaries or side lines of a portion of West Front Street be ascertained and established as follows:

Beginning at the point of said street shall begin at an iron monument in the center line of said West Front Street as established by ordinance approved April 2, 1894, said monument being distant twelve hundred and eighty-three and ninety-three hundredths (1283.93) feet along said center line, in a southwesterly direction from an iron monument in the intersection of the center lines of Grant Avenue and said West Front Street, said first mentioned monument being distant two hundred and thirty-three (233) feet on right angles, in a northwesterly direction, from the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, and running thence in a southwesterly direction and parallel with said right of way line, to an iron monument in the intersection of the center lines of Jefferson Avenue and said West Front Street.

That the boundaries or side lines of said West Front Street, as herein ascertained and established, shall be distant thirty three (33) feet at right angles, on each side, from the above described center line, as said boundaries or side lines are now laid out and dedicated to the public.

That the curb lines of said West Front Street shall be distant twenty (20) feet at right angles, on each side, from the above described center line.

Section 2. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances which are inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Adopted by the Common Council, May 6, 1918.

Approved by the Mayor, May 8, 1918.

LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor.

WHEREAS, It appears to my satisfaction, by duly authenticated record of the proceedings for the voluntary dissolution thereof by the unanimous consent of all the stockholders, deposited in my office, that the "AMERICAN SASH, DOOR AND LUMBER COMPANY," a corporation of this State, whose principal office is situated at No. 129 East Fourth Street, in the City of Plainfield, County of Union, State of New Jersey (Louis G. Van Nest being the agent therein and in charge thereof, upon whom process may be served), has complied with the requirements of "An Act concerning corporations (Revision of 1896)" preliminary to the issuing of this Certificate of Dissolution.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, THOMAS F. MARTIN, Secretary of the State of New Jersey, Do Hereby Certify, that the said corporation did, on the twenty-third day of April, 1918, file in my office a duly executed and attested consent in writing to the dissolution of said corporation, executed by all the stockholders thereof, which said consent and the record of the proceedings aforesaid are now on file in my said office as provided by law.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at Trenton, this twenty-third day of April A. D. one thousand nine hundred and eighteen.

SEAL.

THOMAS F. MARTIN,
Secretary of State.

ROBERT NEWTON CRANE,

PERSONAL

Mrs. Josiah Browne and daughter, Miss Elizabeth B. Browne, of Watchung avenue, have been registered at the Hotel Walcott, New York, during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen and daughter, Miss Margaret McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, the borough, returned this week after a stay at Old Point Comfort and Hot Springs, Va.

William Huffman, of West Front street, returned this week after a stay at Eau Claire, Wisc., in the interest of the Standard Aero Corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Jr., formerly of Plainfield, but now of New Bedford, Mass., are the parents of a daughter born to them on April 29. Mrs. Ackerman was formerly Miss Martha Smith, of Chicago. The young couple have been making their home at New Bedford because of Mr. Ackerman's government assignment to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a course in hydro aeronautics.

George L. Bird, of Monroe avenue, who has been a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation, was able to leave the institution a few days ago. He is now well on the road to recovery and may soon be about again.

Mrs. Harry Geiger, of Washington street, has returned home after an extended visit with her daughter in New York State.

Mrs. James P. Mottley, of West Fifth street, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital, Sunday, following recovery after an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Begg, of Paterson, are the parents of a son born to them at Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday morning. Mrs. Begg was formerly Miss Ray Warnock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place.

George W. Blair, of East Seventh street, received word this week that his son, Ernest W. Blair, a member of a provisional regiment unit, had arrived safely in France.

Louis Cahill, who went out of Plainfield last summer as a member of Troop D and since stationed at Camp McClellan, has been spending a few days' furlough at his home on West Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Allen, of 820 West Fourth street, are rejoicing over the arrival of a son who came to their home Tuesday morning. Mrs. Allen was formerly Miss Grace Graves, daughter of Councilman Charles C. Graves.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Helen Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Harrington, former Plainfield residents now living at Winchester, Mass., to Lieutenant James Ormsbee Murray, son of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Murray, of this city. The ceremony took place last Saturday afternoon at the Church of the Ephiphany, Winchester, and was witnessed by a gathering which included a number of Lieutenant Murray's fellow officers at Camp Devens, Mass. The young couple will temporarily make their home at Princeton as the bridegroom is a member of the Signal Corps reserves stationed at that point.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gaub, of Duer street, the borough, are the parents of a daughter born to them Monday morning. The little girl arrived on the birthday of her brother, Edward Gaub, Jr., who was two years ago.

Edward P. T. Smith, who has been in Muhlenberg Hospital for several weeks following an operation, was removed this week to the home of his parents, Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith, of Fairview avenue.

Public Service Restores Three Trolley Stops

According to the protests of citizens, the Public Service Corporation has restored Darrow avenue and West Fourth street Park avenue and West Fourth street, and East Second street and Watchung avenue as trolley stations after they had been in the skip-stop rule which went into effect last month.

This fact was reported by Chairman Ackerman, of the public affairs committee, at the May meeting of the Common Council, Monday night. When the skips were first inaugurated, R. D. Williams and others complained about Darrow avenue; Chief A. D. Jennings, of the fire department, protested against the Second street skip, and the traveling public in general objected to West Fourth street and Park avenue being left out. Mr. Ackerman stated that Corporation Counsel Reed had agreed to the skip-stops because of the plan being a war measure but nevertheless the company had been appealed to. The response came with the restoration of the corners mentioned.

A protest against the condition of Sheridan avenue was made by J. D. Loiseaux and others owning property on that thoroughfare. This street was cut through the old Leonard tract off Plainfield avenue and curbed and macadamized at private expense. The city was afterward asked to take over and maintain it but this has not been done. The severe weather of the past winter has left the street in a bad condition and the property owners feel that the city is lax in not giving the proper encouragement to investors who live up to all requirements before submitting a street for public acceptance. Chairman Ackerman, of the public affairs committee, reported that state Fuel Commissioner Jenkinson had informed him, in response to inquiries, that the authorities at Washington were discussing a plan to average the price of Old Line and Independent coal. The difference in price as it exists now has met with vigorous opposition on the part of the Plainfield people and the State Commissioner was asked if something could not be done.

Arthur E. Smith and Alex Milne, who were commissioned some time ago to compile a building code, advised the Council that they had completed their labors and suggested that the code be printed and copies made available for builders.

Health Officer Chandler advised the Council that the sewer system should be extended to Hillcrest avenue, where cesspools are giving a great deal of annoyance.

Henry Liefke petitioned for sewers in West End avenue and suggested that the Council make arrangements for connecting with the pumping station on the North Plainfield side or Greenbrook, as it would be impossible to run sewers from West End avenue into the present sewer system in West Front street.

L. W. Davidson, of Netherwood terrace, also asked for sewer service in that street.

Mayor Calkins recommended the advancement of Timmis Carrol and George Angerbauer from Class E to Class D in the fire department and Joseph Miner from Class F to Class E. The recommendation was endorsed. The Mayor also appointed James McDonough and Joseph Miner regular members of the fire department.

The Council authorized the city clerk to advertise for proposals for furnishing 1,000 feet of fire hose. Bids will be received May 20.

D. F. Stewart, H. N. Adams, R. T. Willis and Fred Schermond were appointed special policemen.

On May 20 proposals will be received by the Council for constructing a storm sewer in West Front street. An ordinance authorizing the construction of the sewer was adopted on third reading Monday night.

Agreements entered into by the city with the Manganese Safe Co. and with Amoretta E. Frazer for a right-of-way through property in the West End were returned to the Council for filing, having been properly executed.

A resolution authorizing the sale of $38,000 joint sewer bonds was adopted Monday night. These bonds are a portion of the original sewer appropriation that have not been disposed of. Sealed proposals for buying the bonds will be received on June 3.

Common Council Passes Resolutions Of Regret

At Monday night's meeting of the Common Council, the following resolutions of regret at the death of Oliver B. Leonard, for many years holding the office of city clerk, were adopted on a resolution offered by Councilman Ackerman.

"RESOLVED, That this Council has learned with deep regret of the death of Oliver B. Leonard, who was for some years the faithful and efficient clerk of the Council, and in that capacity endeared himself to the members by his ability, high character and amiable qualities. Mr. Leonard has, during a long life, filled in the City of Plainfield a unique position, having been in a pre-eminent sense the Genealogist and Historian of Plainfield from a very early day. We sincerely deplore the loss by his death, and desire to convey to the members of his family our profound sympathy."

Justice Bergen Warns Against Seditious Acts

In his charge to the Grand Jury at the opening of the May session of the Union County courts at Elizabeth Tuesday morning, Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen, laid particular emphasis upon the importance of dealing with cases involving the circulation of seditious remarks or the committing of seditious acts. He made reference to the New Jersey laws recently enacted to cover such cases.

"We are today in a serious struggle for our liberty," said the Justice, "and those who are not with us in New Jersey are against us. It is your duty to bring indictments against persons whom the county prosecutor might have evidence against as to their activities against this country. The new laws placed upon the statute book are there to be enforced. The new laws make it a misdemeanor to print, publish or circulate any matter that advocates that persons should not enlist in the army or navy of the United States. It prohibits the uttering by word of mouth of any remarks tending to discourage enlistment. It prohibits the holding of meetings, where five or more persons are present, for the purpose of propaganda work in discouraging men from enlisting in either the army or the navy.

"The law also prohibits any one from teaching or advocating any cause which does not aid, abet and assist the United States in the fullest prosecution of the war.

"Any one who opposes the Government's program," said the justice, "is guilty and should be indicted upon the proper evidence being placed before you. YYou are not to judge the case, merely to scan the evidence laid before you and present indictments if you think in your judgment a prima facie case has been established. It is for the courts to hear both sides.

"The prosecutor informs me he has evidence to submit to you against persons who might come under this law. I urge that you give it your careful attention. I do not say there are such persons, but if the evidence presented convinces you the person has been uttering, circulating or pronting such matter, it is your duty to bring in indictments."

The justice also cautioned the Grand Jury with reference to excise violations. He said their personal opinions should not prevent them from acting where the law is clear, particularly where the cases might seem only trivial. He said: "The law is on the statute book, whether it agrees with your personal judgment or not. You cannot set up your judgment against that the of Legislature.

"I know this Grand Jury will do its duty and I therefore send you to your task fully realizing you will carefully observe the rules as laid down."

Frank N. B. Close, of Cranford, was named as foreman of the Grand Jury which took up its work at once. It will hold morning sessions until it completes its work. It is understood only fifty complaints are to be acted upon, the smallest number for a great many terms.

Councilmen Frederick Teipel and Alexander Ayers were assigned in attendance on the jury by the court.

The Plainfield members of the Grand Jury are: John H. Greene, Jr., Francis Hammann, Frank J. Hubbard, Harry C. VanEmburgh, William N. Fairchild and William J. Whelan. Those from this city on the petit jury are Edwin Lawrence, Augustus V. Searing, Charles R. Banks, Charles A. Sturdevant, Timothy J. Meaney, Harry A. Robinson, R. Burnett Rogers, O. T. Runyon and Fred A. Thomas.

The Supreme Court cases listed for the term from Plainfield are the following:

Herbert Buxton vs. Harry G. Runkle, et als., W. A. Coddington for the plaintiff and Frank S. Moore for the defendants; William R. Coddington vs. New Jersey Insurance Company, Codington & Blatz for the plaintiff, McCarter & English for the defendant; J. Alexander Wilson vs. Plainfield Auto Tire Company, William Newcomb for the plaintiff and Codington & Blatz for the defendant; Samuel Gross vs. Walter M. Conover, et al., Collins & Corbin for the plaintiff and City Judge William G. DeMeza for the defendants.

The following Plainfield cases are listed for the Circuit Court:

The Newark Orphan Asylum vs. The Board of Chosen Freeholders, County of Union; action at law. Frederick S. Taggart for the plaintiffs and Francis J. Blatz for the defendants.

Walter W. Mooney Company, Incorporated, vs. Paul Zuckenberg et als.; mechanic's lien. Vincent W. Nash, Jr. for the plaintiffs and Stamler & Stamler for defendant.

Frank E. Zeller vs. Percy G. Allen on lien claim. William Newcorn for the plaintiff and Martin B. Stutsman for the defendant.

Ethel R. Hunter vs. Caroline Brandegee, action at law. Harry C. Runyon for the plaintiff and Clark McK. Whitemore for the defendant.

May Register Men On Quarterly Plan

The necessity for quarterly registration of men who become 21 if the demand for more men increases was impressed upon the House military affairs committee yesterday by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

He asked for an appropriation of $15,000,000 to cover the work of his department during the next fiscal year. Some of the items were made larger than seemed absolutely necessary, because of the possibility that quarterly registration will have to be resorted to, he said.

Last year's total of $19,000,000 was appropriated for the use of the provost marshal general's office. Of this amount $6,000,000 remained untouched, General Crowder said.

No Oil This Season For Roads Or 'Skeeters

The streets of Plainfield and other municipalities in Union county will have no sprinkling with oil this summer, owing to the conservation urged in this commodity. The Union County Mosquito Commission has decided to omit oiling this season and to devote more time to ditching. Thirty-five inspectors and laborers are now at work and it is expected that by the next month sufficient progress will have been made to insure even greater relief than that provided last year.

As a further means of expediting the work of the inspectors, the commission has voted to purchased an automobile. Conferences with the commissions of Essex and Hudson counties will soon be held.

News of the Theatre

"So Long Letty" Coming Next Week

"So Long Letty," a typical Morosco farce with music settings, will be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre on Tuesday evening, May 14. Complimented with long runs on both the Pacific and the Atlantic coast before reaching here, it will be surprising if it is not greeted with the same enthusiasm shown wherever the play has been presented.

The catchy dialogue and humorous situations are more responsible for the success of the performance than the music which is light, wholly modern and very catchy in spots. The farce is a burlesque upon trial marriage and the affinity idea. Its lesson is that while a man's own fireside might at times bore him, in the last analysis it is "home, sweet home."

Letty, a wife, who cares more for the cabaret than the kitchen, who is joined for "better or for worse" to Henry Robbin, a tidy homebody, who spends his afternoons off in trimming the hedge and puttering around on the lawn. The couple live in a queer colony on a California beach, where abandoned street cars are used for homes. The next car neighbors are Grace Miller, a portly domestic person with a lisp, and her husband Harry, who runs to red neckties and poolroom cigars.

The Robbins and the Millers set an idea that they are mismated and the plot to rearrange the matrimonial alignment by way of the divorce court. The women, however, refuse to do anything blindly and demand a week of try-out of the new arrangement. Tommy being banked in the wood closet of the Miller home and Harry taking his rest in the hammock on the Robbins' porch at nights. As usual the last few minutes straighten out all the kinks.

The book for "So Long Letty" was written by Mr. Morosco, the producer, and Elmer Harris, while Earl Carroll provided the music and lyrics. These are the same men who wrote "Canary Cottage," another of Mr. Morosco's successful musical plays. "A typical Morosco cast" has been assembled for the principals and there is a large chorus of California beauties which is enhanced with an augmented orchestra.

A Bunch of Laughs In "A Dog's Life"

Charlie Chaplin, that funny fellow who makes millions of people laugh every day, will be the bright particular star at the Plainfield theatre today and tomorrow. At all performances, afternoon and evening, he will be seen in his latest comedy creation entitled "A Dog's Life," said to be, by those who have seen it, positively the funniest film ever thrown on the screen. Ordinary laughter gives way to hysterical humor as Charlie canters through his inimitable gyrations and gets into one mix-up after another. "A Dog's Life" is an absolute cure for the blues and as a picture is proving popular with both old and young.

There will be vaudeville at the theatre today and tomorrow in addition to funny Charlie. There will be five numbers, each one of them a cracker-jack. The headliner is the Clifford Trio of scenic acrobats in an offering distinctly different from anything else. There will also be Rollin and Ray, comedians; a travesty entitled, "Oh, Oh, Othello," presented by Gilman and Company; Begere, a versatile young woman with a singing novelty, and Champion Smith and Wylie in a comedy variety production.

The program at the theatre next Monday and Wednesday will be a combination of a feature photo-play and vaudeville. The former will be the sensational dramatic production, "The Price of a Good Time," in which one of the strongest casts ever assembled portrays the leading roles. The story is one that is true to life in every detail and with the aid of the producer's skill is presented in a manner that leaves a helpful impression on the thoughtless people of the present day.

Barnum and Bailey Show To Appear At 'Brunswick May 18

There is to be a real circus day this year—a Barnum & Bailey circus day. Absent guards of the Greatest Show on Earth announce that this season's route carrites it close enough to be visited by everybody in this vicinity. Thirty acres of tents will be set, and the big show will be exhibited in New Brunswick on May 18.

A wonderful new program is promised, and it is claimed that this season the monster entertainment has more and better things to show than ever before. Starting with a magnificent pageant entitled, "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," the circus will occupy three hours or more with events in air, on platform, and rings, and in the huge hippodrome surrounding. Not one moment will be lost in all of the spaces of the vast enclosure.

The opening feature is the first attempt at Chinese pageantry in the history of American circuses, and it has been described as the most gorgeous presentation ever attempted. The story of the genie slave of the magic lamp is too well known to need description here. However, it may be well to call attention to the possibilities for display in coloring and magnificent settings in the Chinese locale, and to the fact that Barnum & Bailey have spent $1,000,000 to reproduce all of its glorious possibilities.

The circus program, which follows the pageant, is made up almost entirely of names and acts new to the American public, the cream of all continental circuses having rushed to the big show's European agents for booking on account of the closing of most of the big foreign circuses. There is a complete Chinese circus, replete with thrilling aerial and acrobatic feats; the famous Hanneford family, champion riders of Europe, will display their wonderful skill; Signor Ragonghi, the dwarf bareback rider, described as the equestrian comic of the century, will thrill and convulse with laughter; Pallenberg's wonderful bears will ride on high bicycles, skate and perform on the trapeze; there will be more clowns than ever before, and in the menagerie will be seen many new specimens of wild and untamed animals. There are a dozen of new baby animals in the great zoo.

There will be more than one hundred acts, and to name and describe them would occupy too much space.

The parade, which is entirely new, will start from the show grounds in New Brunswick as nearly 10 o'clock in the morning as possible. It will be three miles in length and there will be six bands, three calliopes and a steam piano to create music for the marching throng.

PROPOSALS FOR STORM SEWER.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, at a regular meeting held Monday, May 6, 1918, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on Monday, the twentieth day of May, 1918, at 8:00 o'clock p. m. at the Council Chamber, No. 149 Front Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at which time and place the Common Council will receive sealed proposals for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the construction of the storm sewer contemplated in the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for Renewing and Extending the Storm Sewer in a portion of West Front Street." Approved April 18th, 1918, as provided for in the plans adopted by the Common Council, March 18, 1918, and in the specifications adopted by the Common Council, May 6, 1918, referring also to plans entitled "Sewerage System, City of Plainfield, N. J. Sheet 4, 1895. Plans of Castings, March, 1895; and "City of Plainfield, N. J. Plan for Storm Sewer Inlets, January, 1917," all filed in the office of the City Clerk, No. 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals, the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents thereof in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make public report of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Common Council.

The Engineer's approximate estimate of the quantities of material required and the work to be done, is as follows:

850 feet 24-inch vitrified pipe storm sewer; 150 feet 15-inch vitrified pipe inlet connections; 700 feet 12-inch vitrified pipe inlet connections; 2 Manholes, 9 Inlets; 1 Retaining Wall; 4,000 bd. ft. Lumber; 50 cu. yds. crushed stone foundations; 10 cu. yds. concrete foundations.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for $200. The amount of said check will be equal to the estimated cost of the work.

The Common Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive defects in bids, or to accept any bid as they shall deem for the best interest of the City.

Duplicate plans may be examined, and forms of proposal, specifications, contract and bond, may be obtained at the office of Andrew J. Gewett, Street Commissioner, 15 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Proposals should be addressed to John A. Carroll, City Clerk, and endorsed "Proposals for Storm Sewers."

JOHN J. CARROLL,
City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE
to Ascertain and Establish the Boundaries of a Portion of West Front Street.

WHEREAS, the Common Council judge that the public good requires that the boundaries or side lines of a portion of West Front Street be ascertained and established as provided for in Chapter 152 of the Laws of 1917, Section 1—(a).

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the boundaries or side lines of a portion of West Front Street be ascertained and established as follows:

Begin the center line of said street shall begin at an iron monument in the center line of said West Front Street as established by ordinance approved April 5, 1894, said monument being distant twelve hundred and eighty-three and ninety-three hundredths (1283.93) feet along said center line, in a southwesterly direction from an iron monument in the intersection of the center lines of Grant Avenue and said West Front Street, said first mentioned monument being distant two hundred and thirty-three (233) feet, as right angles, in a northwesterly direction from the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, and running thence in a southwesterly direction and parallel with said right of way line, to an iron monument in the intersection of the center lines of Jefferson Avenue and said West Front Street.

That the boundaries or side lines of said West Front Street, as herein ascertained and established, shall be distant thirty three (33) feet at right angles, on each side, from the above described center line, as said boundaries or side lines are now laid out and dedicated to the public.

That the curb lines of said West Front Street shall be distant twenty (20) feet at right angles, on each side, from the above described center line.

Section 2. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances which are inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Adopted by the Common Council, May 6, 1918.

Approved by the Mayor, May 8, 1918.

LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor.

SENATOR ACKERMAN AND THE NOMINATION

All doubt that former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman would enter the primaries for the nomination of Representative from the Fifth Congressional District and go before the voters in November as a candidate to succeed the late John H. Capstick, was removed yesterday when the well known Plainfield man declared he was in the race. His declaration was simultaneous with another one from Hamilton F. Kean of Elizabeth in which the latter stated that he was willing to try for Congressional honors if he could be of any use to the people. This means that the Elizabeth man will be in the primary fight and with Richard A. Boardman of Plainfield, also a contestant, indications are that the three cornered competition will be one of the most interesting the district has seen in years.

Some time ago Mr. Ackerman startled the voters of Union and Morris counties by asserting his belief that the nomination should be given some man known to be in possession of all the qualifications without any primary contest. His idea, he explained, was to avoid a waste of energy at this critical period of the nation's history when every possible iota of help was needed by President Wilson and his executives. The idea is not at all bad but a careful consideration shows that it is not practical. The State and Federal statutes lay down the rules by which men shall be nominated for Congressional honors and though it would be a fine thing to follow out Mr. Ackerman's suggestion it cannot be done. The contest must be opened the same as usual and the candidate picked by popular vote the same as it has been done for many years.

It is a scource of satisfaction to the voters of the Fifth district, however, that Mr. Ackerman has decided to go into the primaries and take his chances. He is a man of established legislative ability through his terms in the New Jersey Senate and no one doubts but what he can be of great help to the people at this time. Such men as he are needed in the House of Representatives and the people of Union and Morris counties will have an able representative should he be given Mr. Capstick's seat. His entrance to the primaries is another indication of his broad-mindedness in that he is willing to participate in a political contest even though he believes that some other method should be adopted in selecting a candidate at the present time.

Mr. Kean, who is a brother of the late Senator John Kean, is a man of great business experience and versed in county and state politics. He also possesses the necessary credentials for congressional honors and he will find many supporters if he places his name on the primary ballot. The third figure being mentioned for the race, Mr. Boardman, is a lawyer practicing in New York and while not so well known in the political world is a man of undeniable fitness. Being from Plainfield too, it will make an interesting feature of the primary campaign with another contestant hailing from the same town.

The feeling that exists toward Mr. Ackerman is best expressed in the following tribute from a well known Plainfielder after reading the former Senator's announcement as published in the Record of today:

"This announcement is typical of the man, and through it all breathes but one thought of service to help in winning the war. No extended praise of Mr. Ackerman is necessary as he is too well known in Plainfield to need it from us. No doubt Elizabeth, Westfield and Morris county having had the honor of a representative will be glad to recognize Plainfield's just claim at this time, since it is able to present a candidate like Mr. Ackerman who combines all the qualifications for the position in such a marked degree."

"GIVE UNTIL IT HURTS"

The splendid result achieved by Plainfield in the sale of Third Liberty Loan Bonds is evidence that the community feels its duty in having to provide for the boys who are fighting in the French trenches. They responded most nobly and while we are extending our congratulations it is opportune to mention that another task is now approaching. This is the Second Red Cross Campaign for a $100,000,000 War Fund, of which Plainfield is asked to contribute $70,000.

Coming closely on the heels of the big Liberty Loan Drive, it may seem as though it were asking too much of the citizens to donate so much ready cash but when one stops to think of the sacrifices that are being made by the soldiers and sailors there can be no word of complaint. Giving money is the least we can do if we are not among those doing the actual fighting and any indication of a murmur can only be met with the slogan that has been so frequently used: "Give, Give, Give until it hurts".

The boys who are overseas are shouldering the biggest burden that mortals have ever sought to bear and if they are not backed up by the people at home they cannot be expected to maintain the spirit that is needed for certain victory. The money that is raised by the Red Cross takes care of them when they have become wounded on the battlefield, it provides many little comforts that the Government of a necessity must overlook and above all the raising of the big fund shows that the non-fighters are with them body and soul. So far they have had this backing and even though the $100,000,000 campaign came so soon on the heels of the Liberty Loan we feel confident that the amount needed will be oversubscribed.

While Plainfield's quota may seem large it is not such a great amount when distributed between the city, the borough and the suburbs. It means only a little more than a dollar from each man, woman and child and what is that in comparison with the sacrifices being made by the boys who are to receive its benefits. Everyone can be of help in this campaign and we earnestly trust that the patriotic men and women who are paving the way for the canvass to begin on May 20 will be able to report to headquarters at the close of the seven-day campaign: "Plainfield has realized her responsibilities and the $70,000 awaits your call".

A SUGGESTION FROM THE TROOP TRAINS

Long troop trains, occupied to their full capacity by khaki-uniformed young men, are speeding through Plainfield in increasing number of late, headed in the direction of the Atlantic seaboard. The windows of the coaches are up and eager faces, shining with the aspiration and impetuosity of youth are looking out, appealing for such recognition as is due men who are on their way to take their places as defenders of a great cause and do their part in a stupendous emergency. Faces are shining with the light that radiates from the hearts of men who have heard and are obeying the call of comrades hard pressed. There is a waving of hands and cheers are heard and they are gone.

The onlooker does not ask any questions of his neighbor about their destination. He does not inquire about what part of this great Nation these troops are likely to represent. He knows without asking whither they are heading. He realizes how soon it may be that they will have a hand in the awful business that is going on "over there" where the lurid skies come down to meet the torn and battered earth where civilization again struggles for supremacy against barbarism. He has a feeling in his heart that he is brother to them all—that Americans all have been born again out of the womb of this great crisis.

He does not ask questions, for he is busy with his own emotions. He exults to see America pouring its man-power into the great struggle; he exults at the eagerness of these representatives of his land and his cause. He is holding back, however, at the same time the constrictive muscles that are bent on closing his throat as the thought comes that many of these boys, so eager for the great adventure, will never see again the land they love.

Who is there among onlookers, however, if he is possessed of any of the elements of manhood, if he has ever felt in his heart any passion for service to humanity and to civilization, who would not gladly change places with one of these boys? Duty or conditions over which he has no control compel him to have only an indirect, inactive part in the great business in which the Nation is engaged. He turns sadly away as he realizes how humiliating and inglorious it will be during all the long future years for him to explain to his inquiring grandchildren how it was that he failed to have a man's full part in the greatest task ever undertaken in the defense of civilization. He realizes that nowhere does a service star mark his place in the great work whereby mankind was rescued from the death clutch of barbarism.

There is only one thing the man who is compelled to stay at home can do to hush the objurgations of his own better self. He can do with full heart and all his ability every task that comes to his hand that helps in any way to win the war.

THINGS WE WOULD LIKE TO KNOW—

Why the Netherwood people don't tell the Public Utilities Commission about the rotten trolley service they are getting?

With Senator Runyon's office directly on the opposite corner from him, where our friend down the street gets that stuff about "Millie" Elderton having the largest acquaintance of any man in Plainfield?

How on earth the "information" girl at the local telephone office thinks any ordinary person can figure out what she says when you ask for a number?

If the crack in the Park avenue pavement, between Sixth and Seventh streets, is an indication of faulty construction or aftermath of last winter's record-breaking frost?

Since the old Manganese Safe plant on Clinton avenue has been sold for $175,000, if the assessors will think twice before putting down this year the old realty valuation of $85,800?

What the Board of Education is going to do with the $2,500 it has been awarded from the Paul J. Exner reserve fund?

Since he knows all about the inside and outside of the Halls of Congress, why Corporation Counsel Reed does not run for Representative himself?

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS

Some men are so fond of blowing their own horn that they will not hire a chauffeur.

The reason some men never become celebrated is because they never get beyond celebrating.

We sincerely trust that none of the selective boys leaving for Fort Slocum next Monday are superstitious about the thirteenth.

What's the use of hoping for the best and preparing for the worst when you know you have to take what comes?

Mr. Hoover has accomplished some wonderful things in food conservation but he will never become a sure enough national hero until he finds a way to keep good dinners from being wasted on poor appetites.

Lots of folks understand the "ins" of politics, but if more understood the "outs" there would be fewer of them in.

When you give credit to the people in town who are "doing their bit," don't forget the accommodating gentleman at the Arlington avenue ice plant who plays a tune on his steam whistle to let us know the troop trains are coming.

One of the biggest surprises in the entire food situation is the way in which the profiteering sharks have overlooked boosting the price of coffee. Get busy, men, there's some rich pickings in those Java beans.

The most consistant thing about the Public Service Corporation is its inconsistancy. It lays great stress on the fact that the City ordinance permits it to run cars on the Netherwood line on a half hour schedule and says that ordinances were made to live up to. Sure enough but that same ordinance says that only a five cent fare shall be charged in the City of Plainfield, no mention being made of War time emergencies. If its alright to stick to the ordinance and the Netherwood service why not stick to the ordinance in the five cent fare proposition?

Another thing about the Public Service Corporation. It claims that the skip-stops were inaugurated purely as a patriotic move as they save two hundred pounds of coal per day for each car operated. Taking the patriotic plea at its face value, we would like to ask the traction company if it will give the money saved by not using so much coal to the Red Cross chapters of the towns in which it runs the trolley lines?

Mr. Hamilton Kean pauses in the busy rush to remark that he will become a candidate for congress if he can be of any use to the people. He can be of use to the people alright but the trouble with the people is they seldom get the use that belongs to them and refuse to give the call which Mr. Kean so eagerly awaits. However, he will get a call from the merry little bunch down around the courthouse and it will work out just as though there was a mad cry from the entire populace.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The following officers have been elected by the Whittier-Evergreen Parent-Teacher Association: President, Mrs. George Brisbane; first vice president, Ralph D. Starry; second, Mrs. Henry V. Hubbard; secretary, Mrs. Frederick Gunung; treasurer, Mrs. T. Budenbach.

Indications point to a large attendance at the patriotic May dance to be given in Columbus auditorium tonight by Court Watchung, Daughters of Isabella. DeLisle's orchestra will furnish music and the program will include the serving of refreshments. Miss Muriel Hegne is chairman of the committee of arrangements and she is being assisted by the Misses Mary Wilson, Helen Deady, Bessie Parent, Helen Casey, Betty Mara and Helen Regan. Refreshments will be in charge of Mrs. Gramery, Mrs. Brandt, Mrs. Brynlarski and Miss Mae Wood.

The possibilities of women becoming rural mail carriers are seen in the Government's announcement that females can take the examination for the rural carrier service to be held at Perth Amboy and New Brunswick on May 25. At previous examinations a sufficient number of men did not apply and it is believed that the only way to cover the surrounding country properly is to induct women into the service. So far Plainfield has had not shortage in the rural service, but it is apt to occur at any time.

Damage estimated at $50 was caused by an awning fire in front of the Plainfield Water Company's office at 175 North avenue Tuesday night at 6 o'clock. It is believed that someone threw a lighted cigar butt from an upper window which lodged in the awning top. The fire department reached the scene in response to an alarm from box 21 and extinguished the blaze with chemicals. The akning was completely destroyed and the front of the office badly scorched.

A. V. Dunham, of Chatham street, the borough, was elected vice president of the Tri-County Association No. 1 of the National Association of Letter Carriers at the quarterly meeting in New Brunswick, Saturday night. Mr. Dunham is attached to the carrier staff of the local postoffice and was in attendance at the meeting with several other Plainfielders. Next meeting of the Tri-County Association will be held at Perth Amboy.

Local music lovers enjoyed a rare treat at the Plainfield High School auditorium, last night, when the Military Band of the Fifteenth Coast Artillery gave a delightful concert. Leroy Grainger, who left the possibilities for a brilliant career to follow war work, was the soloist and his numbers were warmly encored. The proceeds from the affair, which will be quite large, will be applied to the treasury of the local Red Cross chapter.

Complete returns of Liberty Bond sales for the third loan show that the International Motor Company bought a total of $500,000 of the securities. Of this amount the company officials bought $335,000 worth and the employes of the Plainfield shop subscribed $65,000. The Mack plant at Allenton, Pa., took $50,000 worth of the bonds and the Hewitt branch in New York, $40,000.

Joseph Carroll, of West Front street, who has been a member of the city fire department since last December, resigned this week to take a position with the Standard Aero Corporation at the Elizabeth plant. His in the city's service he was stationed at the West End house.

A large delegation of members of Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, paid a fraternal visit to the Pythian Sisters' organization at New Brunswick, Wednesday night. The affair was arranged by a committee of which Frank Putnam was chairman.

Joseph Newman, of 120 Duer street, the borough, left this week for Browne University, Providence, R. I., where he will take the special course offered by the Government to fit young men for special mechanical divisions in the army.

Lloyd Leftwich, a brakeman employed by the Reading Railroad, died early Sunday morning as he was being rushed to this city on an engine after being badly injured coupling cars at Manville. It was the intention of the other members of his train crew to take him to Muhlenberg Hospital but he ceased to breathe just before Plainfield was reached. The body was taken o Higgins' undertaking rooms and on Monday was shipped to the unfortunate man's home at Norristown, Pa. Leftwich was thirty years old and leaves a wife and three children.

Frederick Tunison, of Truell Court, was arraigned in the city court Tuesday morning on a technical charge of reckless driving preferred by Patrolman Muir after an accident at Park avenue and Sixth street, Monday night, when Tunison's automobile collided with a motorcycle ridden by Bernhardt Gulberg, of 710 South avenue. Gulberg received cuts and bruises which were attended to by Dr. T. S. Davis, who later had the young man sent to Muhlenberg Hospital. He left the institution Tuesday morning. At the court hearing it developed that the collision was purely accidental and as Tunison offered to pay for Gulberg's treatment and to replace the demolished motorcycle, the charge was dismissed.

The newly elected officers of the Children's Home Association are now in charge of the organization and preparing a program of summer activities. The details of these will be announced in the near future. The new officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Martin J. Cooley; vice presidents, Mrs. Frederic E. Mygatt, Mrs. D. W. Taylor, Mrs. E. E. Parvin and Mrs. J. P. Stevens; recording secretary, Mrs. Frank Rowley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Horace Phillips; treasurer, Miss Ella Gerrell.

A motor truck belonging to Gorman & Lee, of New York, skidded on the car tracks on West Front street, opposite the International plant Tuesday morning and crashed into an automobile driven by W. C. Newman, of the Plainfield Auto Tire Company, damaging the latter machine quite badly. The driver of the truck offered to pay for repairs to the damaged automobile, and no arrest was made although Newman reported the matter to police headquarters.

Dr. F. W. Cornwell, of East Seventh street, who was commissioned as a captain in a Medical Reserve Corps last July and who has since been doing duty at Fort Ontario, Oswego, N. Y., has been promoted to the rank of major of the Medical Reserve Corps. He expects to be in Plainfield on a furlough within a short time.

Lieutenant Pat O'Brien, a young American whose exploits in Europe as a member of the Royal Flying Corps have become far famed through his escape from Germany after being taken prisoner, has been secured by the North Plainfield Home Defense League to address a meeting in the Somerset School on Wednesday night, May 22. Lieutenant O'Brien was being taken to a detention camp in Germany but leaped from the window of a rapidly moving train and by degrees made his way over the border to Holland, from which point he returned to America. He joined the British army at the outset of the war and was active on the west front for nearly two years.

At the annual meeting held this week, the Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. elected these officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Samuel P. Case; first vice president, Mrs. Philip Suffern; second vice president, Mrs. James E. Kimball; third vice president, Mrs. Carman Parse; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Thomas F. Hylan; recording secretary, Miss Edith B. Little, and treasurer, Mrs. Charles C. Randolph.

First Lieutenant Frederick Goddard, of East Ninth street, who has been acting as aide on the staff of Brigadier General William C. Rafferty, of the 54th Artillery Brigade stationed at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., was relieved of that work this week and assigned to the 111th Field Artillery for line duty. Lieutenant Goddard went South with Troop D of the old New Jersey cavalry and squadron as a second lieutenant, and when that outfit was reorganized to become Battery F, of the 112th Heavy Field Artillery, he was selected by General Rafferty as an aide.

"The Tiger Rose" A Belasco Triumph

"Tiger Rose" has held first place in the heart of New York all season because of the strength and purity of its love theme; the picturesqueness of its Alberta setting; the beauty of the production given it by David Belasco, and the exquisite portrayal of its dominating character by Lenore Ulric.

Steeped in romance; throbbing with human interest; gripping in its tremendous climax, the tensity is yet frequently relieved by flashes of brilliant comedy and that delicious sense of humor which persistently threads its way through the story.

The pains to which David Belasco goes to secure the true atmosphere for a play is demonstrated in his engagement of a full-blooded Sioux Chief for the portrayal of an Indian role in "Tiger Rose," now in its seventh month of capacity business at the Lyceum Theatre, New York.

Chief Whitehawk was in possession of practically no dramatic training when Mr. Belasco found him for "The Heart of Wetona," in which play the Indian's largest articulate responsibilities consisted of a grunt or two. He has more to do in "Tiger Rose," having risen to the importance of numerous lines in the play, all of which Mr. Belasco had to teach him with much labor, for he spoke little English and required an infinite amount of patience on the part of the producer.

Miss Helen Brynlarski, of Duer street, the borough, entertained over the past week-end, Miss Conrad, Miss Nightingale and Miss O'Rourke, all of Newark.

Letters Written By Private John Larkin Reaches Plainfield After His Death In Action

Letters written by soldier boys in France are generally eagerly received and read with delight by the folks back home but three missives arriving in Plainfield the past week produced bitter pangs and added grief instead of joy.

The epistles were all penned by Private John J. Larkin, of this city, who was killed in action on April 21, while serving with Co. G, 8th U. S. Infantry. A brief telegram from Washington conveyed this news to his three sisters living on West Third street and more than a week later the post-mortem letters, each one filled with brotherly affection, assurances of his safety and fears that the war will soon end, were delivered by the postman. There was one letter for each sister, Mary, aged twenty-four; Elizabeth, aged twenty-two, and Anna, aged seventeen, the latter a pupil in St. Mary's Grammar School. They were filled with little personal affairs such as exist between brothers and sisters bereft of parents and at the close in each instant the young private, who was soon to give up his life for his country, marked in kiss crosses which he said were meant to mean "a million." To Anna, his younger sister, he added the tender postscript prettily worded: "With oceans of love and a kiss on each wave," a most tender little sentiment to be treasured by the receiver as long as she lives.

This is the letter which Private Larkin wrote his elder sister, Mary, an employe of the Nat Levy Company, the Watchung avenue skirt manufacturerrs:

"My Dear Sister:

"Just a few lines to let you know I received the magazines and was glad to get them. They contain lots of good reading and I wish I had more of them. They keep a fellow busy reading so at night he can stay in instead of going out, so I am glad to have you send them. * * *

"I was in the trenches for ten days and came out safe. There is nothing to this war, but I hope the Lord will spare me so I can come home again. Don't be worrying because I told you I was in the trenches. War will end soon with the help of God, and we all will be back home again.

"I have no more news to send, till I hear from you, so I will close my letter with my best love and kisses, hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, as ever,

"Your loving brother,
"JOHN."

The above letter bore no sending date, nor any post mark which would indicate the time it was mailed. The second letter, written to the young soldier's sister, Elizabeth, was also devoid of date but was evidently inscribed a short time before his life was taken in a dash at the enemy. This is the letter:

"My Dear Sister:

"Just a few lines to let you know I received your most kind and loving letter and also the candy, which was very nice. It was so long since I had American candy that when I tasted it I could have eaten a whole store full.

"There was some fine reading in the magazines you sent me and I would like to have more of them. * * *

"I had a letter from Cousin Anna the same day I received yours and she said it was very cold in New York. We had some cold weather over here, but it did not last long. We boys are working hard every day, drilling and going through other maneuvers. Sometimes I get put to carrying water, a mile walk. I wish the war was over myself so I could get back to God's country as this country looks like a land that had been started but forgotten to be finished." A fellow cannot understand the people here as they are all foreigners to us. * * *

"The war can't last much longer. The people in Germany have nothing to eat and the soldiers can't fight when their stomachs are empty. Peter Flaherty will never make a soldier. He's too slow and had a right to stay home in the first place. I will close my letter with lots of love and kisses, as ever, your loving brother,

"JOHN."

Confidence that the great war would soon be over was expressed among other things in the third letter addressed to the schoolgirl sister, Miss Anna. He also referred to writing Murry Nichols, a former pal who lives on West Third street, stating that he had not received a reply and had withheld a second letter until getting one back. He gave the pfomise that he would write Murry again but this letter will never be written. This is the third epistle:

"My Dear Sister:

"I received your most kind and loving letter and also the cigarettes and was glad to hear from you. I was in the trenches when I received them and they sure came in handy. I was in for ten days and now I am in a rest camp.

"Tell Elizabeth I took out $5,000 worth of insurance and signed it over to her. If anything happens to me she gets every cent. This war will be over in a few months from now. The English are cutting the Germans down like grass.

"It is fine weather over here. I wrote to Murry Nichols, but I did not receive an answer yet. I was waiting for an answer so I will have to write him again.

"Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,

"Your loving brother,
"JOHN."

GEORGE FIRSTBROOK NOW WITH STAMFORD ADVOCATE.

George E. Firstbrook, the well-known former local newspaper man, who has been acting as city editor of the Greenwich, Conn., Press, has assumed the position of assistant city editor of the Stamford, Conn., Advocate. Mr. Firstbrook made the change on Monday of this week, but will continue to make his home at Greenwich.

Ralph L. Marrow, formerly city editor of the Plainfield Daily Press, is the managing editor of the Greenwich Press and drafted Mr. Firstbrook from the editorship of the Montclair Herald, which position he held for a year and a half.

LEAVES FOR THE SOUTH.

Robert Hartshorn, of Madison avenue, left yesterday for Fortress Monroe, Va., to begin a summer engagement as trap drummer in the Hotel Chamberlain Orchestra. Mr. Hartshorn has been connected with several Plainfield orchestras and also served as drummer for the Standard Aero's recently organized band.

CORRA RYNO.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends which completely filled the late home on Codrington avenue, the funeral of Corra Ryno, a widely known and life-long resident of this locality, was held Monday afternoon. Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which the deceased had been a faithful member for many years, was in charge of the service, which was of a simple nature. The clergyman read portions of the Scriptures, offered prayer and made a few remarks touching on the Christian character of Mr. Ryno and the steadfast principles which he observed in relation to his fellow men.

The Elks' quartet, composed of Bertram F. and William J. Tallamy, Joseph C. Martin and Elmer D. Cutting, sang two hymns in addition to chanting the Lord's Prayer. They were "The Vacant Chair" and "Nearer My God to Thee." The display of floral tributes was magnificent, more than a dozen large set pieces standing out prominently as an evidence of the deep feeling held by intimate associates. In addition there were other pieces from Plainfield Lodge of Elks, Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. and departments in Trinity Reformed church.

Burial in the Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: Charles L. Force, Elias H. Bird, Bertram F Tallamy, John Oswald, J. V. E. Vanderhoef and Albert W. Pangborne. Mr. Ryno's death came early last Saturday morning after an illness of about ten days with pleuro-pneumonia. He had previously been in poor health for a umber of years but had been able to be about as usual and news of his untimely end came as a distinct surprise to the hundreds of people who knew him. It was realized several days before the end that his condition was critical as he did not possess the constitution needed to ward off the attack. He was under the care of Dr. W. H. Anthony, who later called Dr. P. J. Zoglio in consultation but despite every effort the latter failed to rally from a semi-conscious condition developing just before the demise occurred.

Mr. Ryno's parents were well known residents of Plainfield at the time of his birth in this city on May 1, 1870. At the early age of ten years he entered the employ of W. L. & A. L. Force, proprietors of the Force Brothers' printing establishment, on "Cherry" street or Park avenue as it is known today. This concern published the Weekly Constitutionalist, the city's leading newspaper at the time, and Mr. Ryno acted in a general capacity for the members of the staff. The telephone was an unknown quantity then and boys or "runners" brought in most of the news or advertising copy.

When Force Brothers started the Daily Press in 1887, Mr. Ryno was made mailing clerk and circulation manager. Later he became bookkeeper for the concern and afterward advertising manager. The latter position was still held by him in 1911 when the Daily Press Publishing Company, headed by former Governor J. Franklin Fort, purchased the newspaper from the late A. L. Force. Mr. Ryno remained with the new concern until two years ago, at which time he resigned, ending a newspaper career of thirty-eight years. From then on he had been employed by the Union Grain Company, of East Third street, holding the position of bookkeeper at the time his illness began.

It is safe to say that "Corrie" Ryno, as every one called him, had as many acquaintances as any man in Plainfield. In more ways than one he was a self-made man as despite the disadvantage he labored under in not being able to continue school because of the early death of his father, he rose to a most responsible position in the community. The early success of the Daily Press was due to no small measure to his business ability and the faithfulness with which he discharged his arduous duties made him of great assistance to employers and business men alike. He was always affable, never obstrusive and continually in the possession of a cheerful spirit that made it a pleasure to talk with him. He has always been looked upon as one of Plainfield's pioneer daily newspaper men and his departure is deeply regretted by his many associates of the "Fourth Estate" of other years.

Beyond his connection with Plainfield Lodge of Elks and Franklin Council of Juniors, Mr. Ryno's only interest outside of his home was Trinity Reformed church. He had been a member of thi sconsregation for many years and was a devoted worker in several of the departments. Beside his wife, his only surviving relatives are one daughter, Mrs. Emma Dunlap, wife of Sergeant Worley Dunlap, stationed at Camp McClellan; one sister, Mrs. Edward Williamson, and a half-brother, Harry Cleveland, both living in Newark.

Mrs. Dunlap has been at Anniston, Ala., during the past few months. When it was realized that has father's condition was serious she was telegraphed and though she started North as soon as possible, she did not reach Plainfield until late Saturday night, many hours after Mr. Ryno had passed away. Sergeant Dunlap was unable to get leave of absence from Camp McClellan at the time the message was received but secured a furlough later and arrived in this city Monday night. The latter is a native of Maryland and wedded Miss Ryno the past winter.

MRS. JOSEPH A. GEARY.

Mrs. Helen Jaeger Geary, wife of Joseph A. Geary, formerly of Philadelphia, but now in the service of Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., died Monday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Jaeger, of 318 Lee place. She had been ill nearly a year with a chronic complaint which developed while she was living in Philadelphia. After her husband had been selected for the National Army last fall, she returned to Plainfield to reside with her mother. Although she continued medical treatment, Mrs. Geary grew worse and her condition had been critical for several weeks before the end.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church this morning, when a large assemblage of relatives and friends attended a requiem mass offered by Rev. Father Hennessy. Numerous floral tributes were extended by friends of the family. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Geary, who was twenty-two years old, was born in Plainfield, her father being the late Albert Jaeger. She attended St. Mary's School and was a communicant of St. Mary's church and a member of the Children of Mary. Beside her mother and husband, she is survived by one sister, Mrs. William Walsh, of Lee place, and two brothers, Charles and Albert Jaeger, living at the mother's home.

Although messages were sent to Mr. Geary at Camp Greene, no furlough pass was issued until Monday afternoon, because of military preparations at the big reservation. He started for Plainfield as soon as his permit was granted but did not reach here until Tuesday night.

BEVERLY ARTHUR BOOS.

Beverly Arthur Boos, the thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boos, of Webster place, died in Muhlenberg Hospital late Saturday night from internal injuries received in a fall several weeks ago. The funeral was held at the parents' home Tuesday afternoon in charge of Rev. H. St. George Burrill, of Holy Trinity church, and burial was in Hillside cemetery. Members of the Boy Scout troop, to which the lad belonged, acted as pallbearers. One of the set floral pieces was presented by the troop and another one came from Plainfield Lodge of Elks, of which the father is a member.

Beverly was of a bright and happy disposition and was readiness to grasp school lessons or anything of an instructive nature which promised a successful future. His untimely death is mourned by all his school friends and associates and evokes the sympathy of the community for the bereaved parents. Beside his mother and father, he leaves three brothers and three sisters. The oldest brother, Grant, is a member of the 113th Infantry stationed at Camp McClellan. The other brothers are Sterling and Donald and the sisters, Ruth, Jeanette and Frances.

MISS MARGARET MAGURK.

The funeral of Miss Margaret Magurk, whose death occurred Monday at the home of her aunt, Miss Catherine Grennan, of Avon Park district on lower Park avenue, was held in the Sacred Heart church, South Plainfield, Wednesday morning. The requiem mass was said by Rev. Father Baldwin in the presence of a gathering numbering many friends from Plainfield, New York and Brooklyn. Burial was made at Bridgeport, Conn., Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Magurk had been a resident of New York for many years, following her profession as graduated nurse. She secured her training at Bellevue Hospital, New York, and though her work was in the metropolis recently she had made her home when off duty with her aunt. She was ill for a long time before death ensued.

Beside the aunt mentioned, Miss Magurk leaves one brother, Frank Magurk, of Bridgeport, and three sisters, the Misses Anna and Catherine Magurk and Mrs. Michael Quinn.

WILLIAM J. FORCE.

William J. Force, aged sixty-seven years, a life long resident of New Dover and numbering Plainfielders among his acquaintances, died at his home Monday afternoon after a brief illness. He was a farmer by occupation and passed away on the same farm owned by his father and on which he was born. He is survived by his wife and one son, Walter Force.

The funeral was held at the late home yesterday afternoon and was attended by a number of Plainfielders. Burial was in the New Dover M. E. cemetery.

MRS. CATHERINE McCARTHY.

Mrs. Catherine Carty, widow of Michael Carty, died Wednesday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Skinner, of 430 Orchard place, at the advanced age of eighty-seven years. She was born in Ireland but came to Plainfield sixty-six years ago yesterday. Despite her weight of years, she possessed all her faculties until the end, her last illness being of short duration. Her descriptions of Plainfield as it was when she first made it her home were interesting and authentic, never failing to hold the close attention of all who heard her. Mrs. Carty was one of the oldest communicants of St. Mary's church and of the early days of the parish she also possessed a fund of information of great value in the preparation of records.

Beside Mrs. Skinner, with whom she made her home, the deceased leaves one other daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Hope, and two sons, Thomas Carty, of Orchard place, and James J. McCarthy, of Park avenue.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

MISS ELLEN MAHONEY.

Miss Ellen Mahoney, aged seventy years, died in Muhlenberg Hospital, early yesterday morning, after a long illness. She made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Skinner at 446 West Fifth street, but had no relatives nearer than Canada. Word has been sent to the latter and the funeral arrangements have not been made pending a reply from them.

Draft Statute Upheld By U. S. Supreme Court

Men raised under the draft can be sent anywhere in the world to fight for the United States, the Supreme Court has decided.

The action of the court upholds the selective draft law in every particular.

The right of Congress to conscript men for foreign service was attacked by Robert Cox, Kansas City drafter sent to Camp Funston.

He asked for a writ of habeas corpus directing Major-General Leonard Wood, in command of the camp, to release him from service on the ground that there was no constitutional right to compel him to fight in foreign lands. This was denied by a Kansas court.

Chief Justice White, on announcing the decision, also denied the motion to hold General Wood in contempt for sending Cox to France while his case was pending.

The court also censored Cox's attorneys for their briefs in the case, which the Government charged were "scandalous and seditious."

It was also asked that the briefs be stricken from the files.

"We find that the briefs were amenable to the Government's characterization and the attorneys should be severely censured," said White, "but believe this can be done better by leaving them with the court. Instead of tending to cause repetition of such statements, their very unwarranted character would tender to the contrary."

Deciding the constitutionality of the case, Chief Justice White said:

"Congress is not restrained either directly or indirectly in raising men by qualifications as to where they shall fight. The authority for conscription does not rest on the militia clause of the Constitution or the old militia laws, but on the broad ground of powers the States delegated to the Federal Government by approving the Constitution."

Egde Will Retain Governor's Office If Made Senator

For the purpose of countering any campaign maneuver based on constitutional technicalities, Governor Edge yesterday issued a statement citing precedents and authorities tending to show that if elected to the United States Senate for the term beginning March 4, 1919, he will not have to relinquish the Governorship until the beginning of the regular session of Congress in December, 1919, or but six weeks before the constitutional termination of his term as Governor and not then, if he did not so elect. The statement by the Governor was called forth by allegations that the Governor, under the constitution, would be obliged to resign his office as chief executive of the State in March, 1919, or ten months before the end of his term as Governor.

Governor Edge in his statement says he does not want the State misled into the belief that he will give up his duties as Governor for any considerable period before the constitutional end of his term or before his work at Trenton is advanced as far as his term as Governor would permit.

"If elected United States Senator I shall not present my credentials to the United States Senate until December, 1919," says the Governor in his statement, "unless a special war session of Congress of such importance as to require full representation should make it necessary for me to change my plans with the approval of the people. And even in that event, it would follow the completion of my third and last legislative session."

The Governor quotes paragraph 5, article 6 of the State constitution which says "No member of Congress, or person holding an office under the United States shall exercise the office of Governor; and in case the Governor or person administering the government shall accept any office under this State or of the United States, his office as Governor shall thereupon be vacant."

Manifestly, Governor Edge says, the acceptance of the office is the vital thing and he contends that the Governor of New Jersey, elected to the office of United States Senator, continues to be Governor and to be responsible for the discharge of the duties of that office until such acceptance is manifested by the presentation of his credentials to the body to which he is elected, and the taking of the oath of office. He cites a number of precedents given by the Secretary of the United States Senate contained in the cases of Governor Hoke Smith, of Georgia, and Governor David B. Hill, of New York. The Governor also points to the precedent set by President Wilson in remaining Governor of New Jersey after his election as President up to the time of his first inauguration and says that as in that case a mere election does not constitute an acceptance and create a vacancy under the section of the State constitution in question.

Exemption Allowed Merchant Sailors

Simultaneously with the inauguration of a Nation-wide recruiting campaign for officers and men for the American Merchant Marine, the United States Shipping Board will impress upon local exemption boards in New York and New Jersey the need of granting exemption to all men known to be mariners, and to all volunteers for the Shipping Board's training ships. This announcements was made today at the Shipping Board Recruiting Service offices, No. 11 Broadway, New York.

Such exemption is provided for in a recent regulation:

"Service on a merchant ship in the present emergency takes the place of military service and is fully as important as service in the trenches," said Henry Howard, director of the United States Shipping Board Recruiting Service. Inexperienced men between 21 and 30 will be exempted while receiving preliminary training on the Shipping Board's new training ships, and will be paid while so training.

"Any man who can serve as an officer on a ship and does not come forward now is deserting his country in its time of greatest need. The Shipping Board Recruiting Service wants to hear direct from every licensed deck officer and engineer in the country. Experienced men without licenses will be given intensive training in the Government navigation or marine engineering schools to qualify them as officers."

National headquarters of the Shipping Board Recruiting Service are at Boston. In New York State 409 druggists will act as special enrolling agents, and in New Jersey 136 will do similar work. Inexperienced men between 21 and 30 will be signed on by these agents.

Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, has been appointed to act as recruiting agent in Plainfield for this purpose and will be glad to furnish information to anyone calling at his place of business.

BIRTH OF A SON.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Randolph, of Grant avenue, are the parents of a baby boy whoce came to their home Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Randolph is one of Plainfield's crack baseball players, at one time pitching for the Albany team of the New York State League.

Rigid Investigation Of Aircraft Program

Reopening of the Senate military committee's investigation of the aircraft program under consideration by members today, depends, it is understood, upon the weight of additional information on the situation to be submitted by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor.

Borglum, who recently made a report to President Wilson on the air program unfavorable to the work thus far accomplished, conferred with committee members yesterday after charges of irregularities and delays in airplane production had been made on the floor of the Senate. Borglum agreed to produce additional information and the committeemen decided to await his report.

In the course of yesterday's debate many Senators favored an investigation with a view to criminal prosecutions, but Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, acting chairman of the committee, said the committee was without power to deal with criminal prosecutions, which, he said, would properly be under jurisdiction of the Department of Justice.

Local Men Named On Latest Officers' List

Washington's latest list of men who have qualified for commissions at the third series of officers' training camps contains the names of John T. Caulfield, of Plainfield, and Charles A. Lee, of North Plainfield, both of whom are entitled to a lieutenantcy. Caulfield attended the school at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., while Lee, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee, of 50 Grove street, was graduated from Camp Meade, Maryland.

The announcement of these names does not mean that the men named will become officers immediately, but are carried on the army records as eligible officers and are to be commissioned at such times as suitable vacancies occur.

Carney Award Of $22,500 Record For Union County

The verdict of, $22,500, awarded Miss Sarah Carney, of this city, by a jury in the Circuit Court, Wednesday night, in her suit against Frank Carpenter, of Cherry road, Plainfield; William Alderman, and the firm of Alderman Brothers, of New Haven, Conn., makes a new record in the amount of damages given in any one case in Union county.

While it was expected, because of the permanency of the plaintiff's injuries would result in her getting a substantial compensation it was not by the general belief that she would get anywhere near one-half of the $50,000 asked for. As the trial developed, however, it became apparent that Miss Carney's counsel, William V. Rafferty of this city, had prepared a most excellent case and that a big award would be made. This was substantiated by the fact that the jury remained out only one hour after the two-day hearing had been completed. The three defendants are not paying money collectively as the law forbids its being assessed individually.

Carpenter and Alderman were the drivers of two automobiles that collided at Central avenue and Third street, Plainfield, on September 28 of last year, when they ran across the sidewalk and pinned Miss Carney against the stone wall. The Alderman firm owned the vehicle driven by Alderman. The application of William Newcorn, counsel for the Connecticut Wrecking Company, also named as defendant for a non-suit was granted by Judge George S. Silzer.

The defendants were represented by William Newcorn, Runyon, and Autenreith and George W. V. Mory.

William V. Rafferty, who handled the case for Miss Carney, is one of the youngest lawyers practicing in Union county and his success in winning a record verdict has caused veteran legal lights to extend congratulations. In his preparation he showed a mastery of detail and in court his conduct of direct testimony and cross-examination was faultless. Mr. Rafferty's home is on Sandford avenue, but his offices are located in Newark. His legal studies were commenced at Georgetown University and completed in the office of V. W. Nash, Jr., in this city.

Big Verdict For Adolf Rossler

After deliberating but half an hour a jury in the Circuit Court at Elizabeth, Monday afternoon at 5:45 o'clock rendered a verdict of $15,000 in the action of Adolf Rossler, of East Second street, this city, against the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which had occupied the greater part of the day before Judge George J. Silzer. The verdict is one of the largest awarded in Circuit Court in this county in some time.

Rossler sued for alleged permanent injuries received as a result of an engine backing into a standing train in the Jersey City terminal of the company, by reason of which Rossler was hurled against some seats and suffered injuries from which he has never recovered.

The trial developed into a disclosure of medical testimony, the plaintiff being upheld in his contentions by Doctors Peter J. Zeglio, Farmer Plainfield man, deserted his three small children in this city. Cory and his wife have been separated and when the former left town the children were left to shift for themselves. They eventually were turned over to the overseer of the poor, who now has them in charge.

Chief Kiely set out to find Cory and found that he has recently been working in the New York Airbrake Company's plant at Watertown. He will be held at the latter place until extradition papers can be secured to bring him back to Plainfield for trial.

William H. Murray and Norman W. Currie, all of Plainfield. The defense produced Dr. Albert Pittis. The case was stoutly contested by both sides. Daniel W. Applegate, of East Fifth street, this city, represented Rossler in the action.

Previous to receiving the injury, Rossler was employed by Clifford L. Applegate, at the latter's market on East Front street.

June 5 Registration May Add 225 Names To Class 1-A List

Chairman Charles W. Runyon and Chief Clerk Walter H. Freeman, of the Plainfield District Draft Board, estimate that at least 250 and possibly 300 young men will be added to the local registration list on June 5, when youths who have reached the age of twenty-one since registration day last year, must place themselves on record in compliance with the latest congressional order.

Applying the same ration as predicted by Provost Marshal General Crowder, it is believed that three-fourths of the new registrants will be eligible for general military service, thereby adding from 180 to 225 selectives to Class 1-A. These will be placed at the bottom of the list of those remaining from last year, now numbering about 40.

Details for the registration have been completed by Chief Clerk Freeman, who announces that the young men must present themselves at the Exemption Board office in the Babcock building some time between the hours of 7 o'clock in the morning and 9 o'clock at night on Wednesday, June 5. The usual identification cards will be issued and later the same procedure as of last year will be carried out to place the men in rotation for call. An extra force of clerks will be on hand June 5 in order to facilitate the handling of the registrants. According to the Congressional bill and President Wilson's proclamation the registering of men arriving at the age of twenty-one will be conducted every three months.

The Plainfield district includes this city, Fanwood, Scotch Plains and Mountainside. At the original registration last June a total of 2,952 men between the ages of twenty-one-one and thirty-one were recorded, from which about 500 were secured for military service.

Estimates by Major General Crowder, provost marshal general, indicate that probably three-quarters of a million men will be obtained for the army by the registration of all youths who have attained twenty-one years of age since June 5 last.

Plainfield Man Jailed For Deserting Children

Acting on information from Chief P. S. Kiely, the police of Watertown, N. Y., yesterday arrested Richard Cory, a former Plainfield man, who deserted his three small children in this city. Cory and his wife have been separated and when the former left town the children were left to shift for themselves. They eventually were turned over to the overseer of the poor, who now has them in charge.

Chief Kiely set out to find Cory and found that he has recently been working in the New York Airbrake Company's plant at Watertown. He will be held at the latter place until extradition papers can be secured to bring him back to Plainfield for trial.

His resignation at Rochester was a cause of deep regret to the people of the Pittsburgh district where he has become closely identified in all Christian and civic work.

YOUNG WOMAN HURT WHEN AUTOS COLLIDE.

Miss Carrie Quipp, of Watchung, is in Muhlenberg Hospital because of injuries received at 6 o'clock last night, when an automobile driven by her father, in which he was riding, collided at Mountain avenue and Somerset street, the borough, with another machine owned and driven by E. F. Feickert.

The Quipp machine was overturned and the young woman was pinned beneath, sustaining bad bruises and a possible fractured rib. Mr. Quipp escaped injury, as did also Mr. Feickert, but the latter's car was badly smashed.

"HANK" SCHILLINGER ENLISTS.

Twelve Nurses Graduated From Training School

Twelve young women, forming the largest class ever graduated from Muhlenberg Hospital's training school for nurses, received their diplomas at the annual graduation exercises in Partridge auditorium, last night. Six of the young women are from Plainfield, while the others are from nearby or distant cities.

A large assemblage of relatives and friends witnessed the exercises, which were conducted by Frank J. Hubbard, president of the Muhlenberg board of Governors. Mr. Hubbard presented the diplomas to the members of the class, while Dr. Ellis W. Hedge pinned the training school pins on the snowy white uniforms of the graduates. Rev. Howard R. Clarke, pastor of the Congregational church, made the principal address, in which he pointed out the importances of the life duty the young women were entering upon and extolling the profession which is now proving a big factor in the progress of the world.

Following the formal program, the nurses and their friends enjoyed a dance which lasted until midnight. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Van Epa brothers' orchestra. Potted plants and ferns were used extensively in decorative scheme on the stage and each of the young women received bouquets of cut flowers from friends.

The members of the class, several of whom will not complete the course for a month or two yet and their home addresses, are as follows: The Misses Viola McGoldrick, Margaret Pursel, Lillian Nugent, Margaret Snyder, Frances Bulkley and Alma Thomas, all of Plainfield; Leah Sturrel and Virginia Cole, of Westfield; Marguerite Jahn, of Scotch Plains; Bonne Muldrow, of Perth Amboy; Helen Davenport, of Somerville, and Irene McKee, of Elizabeth.

The previous largest class graduated from Muhlenberg was that of 1914, which had nine members.

Elks' Benefit Dance Promises To Exceed All Previous Efforts

Plainfield Lodge of Elks' Red Cross benefit dance, to be given in the High School auditorium next Wednesday night, promises to be one of the most successful social affairs the fraternal organization has yet conducted.

Frank R. Emmons, chairman of the committee of arrangements, asserts that there will be a very large attendance and the numerous features in contemplation will send every one away more than satisfied. Beside the Plainfielders to attend, there will be visiting delegations from Elk lodges at Somerville, Elizabeth, New Brunswick and Dover. Van Epa Brothers' orchestra is to furnish the music and beside elaborate floral decorations there will be a patriotic display of flags and bunting entwined with Elk colors in an original arrangement planned by Laggren Greene.

An additional feature not yet announced is the awarding of ten dollars in gold, donated by Exalted Ruler James W. Hart, as a "flower prize." The details of this will be announced on the night of the dance. Plainfield Lodge is to have no minstrel show or musical comedy production this year, giving Wednesday night's affair in place of either of them. The entire proceeds are to be added to the treasury of the Plainfield chapter of the Red Cross. Tickets may be purchased now at Miller's, Randolph's, Hodge's and Naglo's pharmacies or at Red Cross headquarters.

Frank R. Emmons, who is chairman of the Elks' permanent dance committee, is at the head of the committee for next Wednesday night's affair, associated with him in making the arrangements are Thomas A. Moore, Herman Kling, Hillaire Blatz and George McVey. In addition to these there is an assisting committee from the lodge consisting of Exalted Ruler James W. Hart, Past Exalted Ruler Hillaire Blatz, Past Exalted Ruler Frank H. Smith, Mayor William L. Smalley, William Cansbrook, William V. Mulvey, Fred Lynn, Theodore Bundenbach, M. C. Van Arsdale and Harry De Mera.

NEW HOME ENLISTMENTS.

Corporal E. D. Peck, in charge of the local recruiting office, reports these enlistments since last week: Joseph R. Cutter, 36 Sandford avenue, assigned to Coast Artillery; Harvey S. Apgar, 322 Bergen street, assigned to Engineers Corps of the regular army. Five more young men have made applications to Corporal Deck and will be examined tomorrow.

CITY'S FIRST "FARMERETTE."

Miss Muriel Hopper, of Lee place, is the first Plainfield girl to be accepted as a "farmerette." She enlisted in New York city last week, passed the physical examinations successfully and left yesterday to begin work on a farm near Orangeville, N. Y.

Big Sendoff Planned For Next Week

Arrangements for the customary send-off were made for the fifty-eight selectives who are to go to Camp Dix next Wednesday morning at a meeting of the Plainfield citizens' committee last night.

The men will assemble at the Y. M. C. A. at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, at which time they will be given a supper served by members of Court Watchung, Daughters of Isabella. Afterward they will be presented with silk flags, tobacco, cigarettes and a souvenir, in addition to the customary gift cross kits. Addresses will be made by Mayor Calkins, Chairman John J. Varley and others.

The selectives are to depart on the 9:38 train Wednesday morning, and the usual parade from Draft Board headquarters through the business district to the North Avenue station will take place at 9 o'clock. The procession is to be headed by the Liberty Band, which has donated its services for the occasion. All interested citizens or patriotic organizations are invited to join in the parade.

It was brought out at last night's meeting that the citizens' committee is practically out of funds for the farewell demonstration and an appeal is made for more donations. It will be a problem between now and Wednesday to secure the necessary expenses of the farewell, so no time is to be lost. Contributions may be sent to Treasurer William R. Townsend at 149 North avenue.

These are the fifty-eight men who are to go to Camp Dix next Wednesday, according to the revised list issued by the Plainfield Draft Board today:

The following eight men have been named as alternates and in the event of their not being taken Wednesday, the first five will form the contingent of five ordered by the Government to be sent to Fort Slocum some time during the five-day period commencing May 29:

Clinton Fish Reeder, William L. Rosenberger, David Pregar, Francis J. Kohler, Stephen Tony, John J. Maloney, Raymond S. Morrell and William J. Mahoney.

RAILROAD MEN DRAFTED.

The Plainfield Draft Board announced yesterday that because of failure of sufficient railroad men to enlist, the Government had ordered the drafting of John T. Donnelly, of 660 West Fourth street, and J. Russell Hopter, of 1163 South Second street. Both have been employed as pushers on the Plainfield pushing engines. They will be sent to Camp Dix on June 1 and from there will be transferred to another point for railroad duty, probably going overseas in a short time.

POSTAL EXAMINATIONS.

Assistant Postmaster William Sharp announces that an examination for the position of clerk or carrier will be conducted at the Plainfield postoffice on Saturday, June 8. Full particulars can be obtained by application to Mr. Sharp at the postoffice.

City's Quota Passed; Second $70,000 Sought

With Total Of $70,134.14 Collected In Four Days, Red Cross Workers Believe Tonight's Big Meeting Featuring James W. Gerard Will Double Allotment For Plainfield

With $70,134.14 reported in hand at 9 o'clock this morning, Plainfield's Red Cross drive committee has set itself to duplicate the quota of $70,000 between now and next Monday, the date set for the close of the campaign.

The big mass meeting at the High School auditorium tonight is calculated to produce enthusiasm convertible to many large donations. Booths are to be placed in the stores about town and in other ways the canvassers will go about their laudable task with renewed vigor.

Yesterday's collections amounted to a total of $16,920.55. Of this the women brought in $2,213.97 and the men $13,806.58. During the week there have been a number of large contributions, notable among them being $5,000 each from Charles W. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, and Nathan Hofheimer, of Warrenville. These amounts were turned in by Mrs. Isaac Schwed, who made the solicitations.

The monster mass meeting, which will be held in the High School auditorium tonight, promises to be the largest affairs of its kind ever given in Plainfield. The tremendous enthusiasm shown by the Red Cross workers in this city during the present week will find its culmination at the big gathering, when Plainfield will unquestionably go "Over the Top," upholding the fair name of this community for meeting an obligation promptly and generously.

The unusual opportunity is offered at this meeting of listening to that famous orator, Ambassador James W. Gerard, the man who told the truth about the Kaiser to his face. Ambassador Gerard will also tell the truth to the people of Plainfield tonight, the truth about many things which we do not know now and which we ought to know.

He will tell us why the Red Cross needs our help, and he will tell us why we should not only be willing but eager to respond not pinchingly but generously. The people of Plainfield should realize the fact that the need is great when men of such prominence as our late Ambassador to Germany place their services at the disposal of the American Red Cross.

Therefore, there promises to be such an outpouring of Plainfield men and women tonight that the seating capacity of the High School auditorium will be taxed to the limit, because in addition to the chief speaker of the evening there will be others whose story will perhaps be quite as interesting to many of us.

Gerhard M. Dahl, vice president of the Chase National Bank, of New York, occupies an important post as chairman of the Red Cross war fund drive for the Atlantic Division. Many Plainfielders have had the opportunity of listening to Mr. Dahl speak at various important occasions in New York city and elsewhere, as he is a banker of note and a finished orator. His eloquence is placed at the disposal of the Plainfield Committee of the Red Cross tonight, and they will be fortunate who have the opportunity of listening to his eloquence.

With two such prominent speakers, tonight's meeting necessarily must be a rousing success, but another man who will interest and amuse the audience is young Lawrence Aber, a chief boatswain's mate in the United States Navy. This young man has seen service, and plenty of it, both in the English navy and the American navy. He talks straight from the shoulder without the mincing of words, and pictures a story of stirring life among seadogs which no one can portray unless one has been a part of them.

The presiding officer of the meeting will be Charles W. McCutchen.

The singing of the Star Spangled Banner, tonight, will be led by Clifford A. Braider, the leader of the Plainfield Chorus Choir. Mr. Braider soon leaves this city for service abroad, as he has decided to go to France and engage in Y. M. C. A. work.

The music of the evening will be furnished by the noted Marsh orchestra, whose Victor records are familiar in almost every household.

There will be no admission charged for this Red Cross meeting. It is free to all who may enter, and the doors will be open at 7:15 o'clock.

Pond Shop To Issue A Paper

A shop paper, similar to that issued by the Standard Aero Corporation and other manufacturing plants, is soon to be issued by the officers of the Pond Shop. According to the present plan it will be of sixteen pages, in magazine form, issued monthly, and devoted exclusively to personal news among the 1,000 employes of the big factory and matters of interest in the manufacturing world.

Chester Sours, a member of the office staff, is at present in charge of the business arrangements and an editorial board is to be formed within a week. The publication has not yet received a name but the officers of the plant have offered a prize of ten dollars for any employe suggesting a catchy title acceptable to three judges. Men of all departments are elated over the prospect of having a publication "all their own" and are already at work gathering material for the first issue. This will be out the latter part of next month.

More Local Doctors Enter Army Service

Four more Plainfield physicians, making ten in all, have entered the U. S. army service. The latest to enlist are Drs. Charles B. Lufburrow, Norman H. Probasco, Norman W. Currie and J. C. Anderson, who enlisted at Newark, Wednesday. Dr. Albert Pittis also applied for army acceptance but was refused because of a defect in one hand, brought about by the severe case of blood poisoning which nearly cost him his life about a year ago.

The doctors of Plainfield and North Plainfield held a meeting at the Homestead on Washington avenue, Tuesday night, to discuss the proposition of enlistment. Ways and means for taking care of the civil population and the families of physicians who go away were discussed and agreed upon. Those remaining behind, and who cannot enter the army because of age limit, will care for the practice of the volunteers on a percentage basis. The four physicians who enlisted Wednesday are now awaiting the Government's call.

Among the local medical men who are already in the service are Dr. W. W. Cornwell, Dr. Sidney R. Whitworth, Dr. George H. Cracey, Dr. H. D. Corbenaler and Dr. W. W. Simerson.

Former Local Men Win Loan Prizes In "Automobile Row"

Two well known former Plainfielders, Mathiew D. Sweeney and Florence S. McCarthy, both of whom have become prominent in the automobile field, have received Government prizes for efficient work in New York city during the third Liberty Loan campaign. A special award of $100 was offered for the man in the trade who would secure the greatest amount of subscribers in "automobile row," as the stretch on Broadway between Forty-fifth street and Columbus Circle is known. This was captured by Sweeney, who turned in a total of 415 subscribers, with sales amounting to $78,500. A second prize of twenty-five dollars went to McCarthy for securing 405 subscribers, whose purchases amounted to $76,000.

The winner of the first prize, "Mat" Sweeney, is manager of Charles E. Miller's uptown automobile supply store at 924 Eighth avenue, a position which he has held for the past ten years. His home is at 645 Amsterdam avenue, New York. McCarthy, who is better known as "Billie," resides at Newark and is general sales manager in New York for the Winton Automobile Company. He was at one time a member of the Plainfield police force, acting as plain clothes man, and resigned to become salesman for the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company. His rise in the automobile world has been rapid and the present time, he is regarded as one of the most expert salesmen in the New York district. It seems a co-incidence that two former Plainfielders should carry off the Liberty Loan honors in "Automobile Row" against scores of competitors and their friends here extend congratulations to both.

Edward Sachar Selected For Officers' School

Edward Sachar, of 531 West Third street, this city, who has been stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, since his enlistment in the army last summer, is among the members of his division picked to attend the fourth officers' training school at Camp McArthur, Waco, Texas. He began the course during the past week.

Sachar has been a member of Company B, 27th Machine Gun Battalion, and has been acquitting himself in a most creditable manner. News of the selection for the officers' training school was received with great satisfaction by his many friends here and he is counted upon to become eligible for a commission.

Miss Callahan Becomes Engaged

From far-off France comes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Helen Callahan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Callahan, of East Second street, to Lieutenant Dr. Earl Beatty, of Detroit, Mich.

Miss Callahan went abroad nearly a year ago as an nurse attached to a naval unit and has since been attached to a naval base hospital in France. There she met Dr. Beatty, who is assistant surgeon in the same hospital, and a romance developed which ended in the engagement announcement reaching Plainfield yesterday. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Callahan was graduated from a Brooklyn hospital and when in Plainfield made her home with her father on East Second street. The latter died last winter, several months after she had gone overseas.

Formal announcement of the engagement was made at a dinner party in the Hotel Moderne, Brest, France, at which twenty friends of the contracting parties were present.

BOROUGHITES PLAN TRIP TO PACIFIC COAST.

Jacob Voehl, of Grove street, the borough, one of the best known residents of this locality, will leave next Wednesday in company with his daughter, Mrs. Eliza J. Carney, also of Grove street, for a trip to California. They will make a stay of perhaps four months at the home of Mrs. Carney's daughter, Mrs. Arthur D. Austin, of Van Nuys, Cal., where Mr. Austin has a large fruit farm. The trip is being taken on the advice of a physician for the benefit of Mr. Voehl's health. He is now eighty years old and has not been at all well during the past few months.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin are former residents of Plainfield who have been in California for a number of years. At the present time their farm is undergoing developing for the production of paper shell walnuts and apricots and while hundreds of trees are maturing Mr. Austin is devoting most of his time to the raising of chickens. At present he has 4,000 fowls of the finest breed.

The newsmen of the country to which Mr. Voehl is going, with the added fact that he will have a pleasant time with his two-year-old great grand-son, Charles Carney Austin, it is believed will make a great improvement in his health. He and Mrs. Carney will go from Plainfield to Wayne Junction, at which place they will take a B. and O. train for Chicago. From the latter point they will go over the Santa Fe route to Van Nuys. Hhey will be accompanied from this city as far as Washington by Mrs. Carney's son, John Carney, of Roanoke, Va., who will arrive in Plainfield tomorrow for a brief visit.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The North Plainfield men who are to form part of the Somerset County quota of selectives leaving for Camp Dix next week were given a reception in the Borough Hall, last night. The affair was in charge of the North Plainfield Defense League and Red Cross workers. Addresses were made by Mayor William L. Smalley, Captain Wells, Andrew E. Kenney and Dr. H. C. Krebs. After refreshments had been served, the selected men were presented with sweaters and comfort kits by members of the Red Cross.

Eugene Traubner, who is to leave for Camp Dix next week, as a Plainfield selective, was given a farewell reception Tuesday night by Samuel Shipkin, proprietor of the Queen City market at his home, 117 Johnston avenue. Mr. Traubner has been employed at the market for the past year and a half and has been held in high esteem by his employer and fellow employes, all of whom were at the gathering. Several hours were passed in the enjoyment of music, refreshments and other features. In conclusion, Mr. Traubner received best wishes for an early and safe return to his old position.

Martin Duffy, Thomas Duffy, William Robinson, Joseph Greene and James McCann were arraigned in the city court Wednesday afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct and fighting on West Second street. Owing to the high cost of living, and the fact that the men are needed for industrial purposes, Judge DeMeza suspended sentence but warned all five to get to work at once or be brought back for jail sentences.

Over two hundred boys and girls have responded to the war garden appeal by enrolling at the Kenyon Gardens. Two hundred children are cultivating plots eight feet by twelve, and twenty-five have lots eighteen feet by twenty-six feet. Greater interest is shown by the young gardeners in their crops. The beets, swiss chard, radishes, lettuce, string beans, tomatoes and sweet corn are already well above the ground and need only care to make them contribute to the cause of feeding the world. In addition to the children's plots there are about four acres which are being cultivated by the association with the assistance of the older boys of the gardens. This ground has been planted to golden bantam sweet corn, onions, string beans and tomatoes. As these crops mature the public is welcome to purchase them at the gardens.

William Ross, of 811 South Second street, enlisted in the United States Marine Corps, Tuesday, and left yesterday for Paris Island, S. C. He is the son of Mrs. Mary Ross, and was at one time a member of the Twenty-third New York Infantry.

The fire department was called out at 8:20 Wednesday morning, for a blaze in a barn on the Gebagan property at 519 Belvidere avenue. The premises are occupied by Walter Guttman, who noticed smoke issuing from the building. Prompt arrival of the Netherwood apparatus prevented the barn from being destroyed but it was damaged to the extent of $500 and a further loss of $1,000 resulted from the burning up of an automobile and other contents. Chief A. D. Jennings was unable to assign the origin of the blaze beyond the possibility that it might have been spontaneous combustion.

Clifford A. Braider, of Putnam avenue, who has been active in local musical circles for many years, has enlisted in the Y. M. C. A. foreign secretarial service. It is probable that the will be sent abroad early next month. Mr. Braider has served as organist and choir leader at both the First Presbyterian and First Methodist churches, resigning his position at the latter this week. He organized the chorus choir for the Biederwolf evangelistic campaign and was the first director to realize the possibilities in the voice of Miss Anna Case, now a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company and one of America's foremost singers. Miss Case was at one time a member of the First Presbyterian church choir under Mr. Braider and through him she secured her first operatic engagement.

Albert Early, who succeeded Benjamin Phelps, as principal of the North Plainfield schools, has resigned this position. The resignation was made known at the regular meeting of the borough Board of Education, Monday night, and as it became effective immediately Miss Mary M. Montague was made acting principal for the remainder of the school year. Mr. Earley has given no intimation as to his plans for the future.

Catching his hand in an automatic machine at the office of the Sabbath Recorder, where he is employed, Roy Stewart, of Lincoln place, suffered the loss of part of one finger. The injury was dressed by Dr. Gray and it will be a week or more yet before Mr. Stewart is able to return to work.

Representatives of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, who have been making a canvass to secure the signatures of women who favor suffrage, report that ninety-three per cent. of the women approached favor the movement.

Edward M. Van Buren, who recently traded his property on Central avenue, for the LeRoy Gates place at 826 First place, has sold the latter premises to District Court Judge J. Henry Crane. Judge Crane will take possession after a number of improvements and alterations have been made.

Peter Briscoe, of West End avenue, has resigned his position as train man in the New Jersey Central's passenger service to engage in the long distance trucking business. He has purchased a large motor truck capable of carrying big loads to any part of the State or adjacent territory. His office will be at his home at 15 West End avenue.

Alternations now underway at the store in the Finger building at 116 West Front street, formerly occupied by Fred H. Firstbrook, are being rushed through completion in order that a restaurant and lunch-room may be opened on the premises as soon as possible. The venture is being planned by William Wagner, of West Fifth street, who has been acting as assistant manager of the Queen City Hotel. He resigned this position this week in order to complete arrangements for the new restaurant. Mr. Wagner has had a long and varied experience in this business, principally at Pittsburgh and Atlantic City, and his friends bespeak success in his latest undertaking.

A careful investigation of the Plainfield Storage Company's warehouse on East Third street, where a fire occurred early last Saturday morning, shows the damage to be about $500, divided evenly between building and contents. The blaze started through spontaneous combustion developing in a quantity of crude rubber belonging to the Century Rubber Company and located in a compartment on the first floor. The engineer of a passing train who saw the smoke attracted the attention of Patrolman Kelly by blowing his whistle and the policeman turned in an alarm at 4:37. Two streams of water were played on the flames for more than half an hour before they were extinguished. The fact that the building is of concrete kept the fire from spreading and drains placed in the floor permitted the water to run off without occurring further damage.

News comes from Camp McClellan that Private Joseph L. Bennett, who was arrested in Plainfield for absence without leave, had been returned to headquarters and is to undergo court martial. The absentee was escorted from Plainfield to the camp by Private Floyd Galbraith, of Somerville, who was sent to this city for the purpose. Bennett was arrested at his home on West Fourth street by Chief Kiely more than two weeks ago, being held at police headquarters until the army man arrived. Bennett gave no explanation for taking "French leave" but remarked at police headquarters that he was very sorry he has done it and would "make good" in the army if he was given another chance.

Clinton Berrien and Alfred Seal, both of Plainfield, are among the privates selected from Battery F, 112th Heavy Field Artillery, to attend the fourth officers' training school commenced at Camp McClellan on Monday of this week. The successful passing of all examinations at the end of a three months' course will entitle them to a commission as second lieutenant. Berrien's home is on West Seventh street and Seal previous to his enlistment lived at 189 North avenue.

An automobile party of Plainfielders bound for Camp Dix, had a narrow escape from serious injury last Saturday morning, when their car, a Maxwell, owned and driven by Albert F. LaRock, of West Sixth street, was run into by a Packard owned and driven by James J. Archbold, of 204 Franklin street, New York. The accident occurred on the Cranbury turnpike, five miles south of New Brunswick. La Rock's car was at a standstill when the crash occurred and was badly wrecked. The Packard also suffered considerable damage but the occupants in either vehicle were unhurt beyond a severe shaking up. In the Plainfield party beside Mr. La Rock, were John F. Casey, Mrs. John Gallagher, Miss Margaret Casey, Miss Mary Hibbits and Mrs. Sylvester L. Beattie.

Claude W. Elphee, who left Plainfield with the contingent of selectives on February 25, was recently promoted to a corporalship at Camp Dix and put in charge of the 311th Infantry mail service. He will continue in this position after the battalion arrives in France.

THE BEST MOTHER IN THE WORLD.

God loves a cheerful giver,
That's a loving maxim of old.
Live and let live is another,
So donate freely with your gold.
The Red Cross seeks your subscription
To assist our boys over there,
So come to their aid a-smiling
And thankful to do your share.
Our boys they were found not wanting
When they answered their country's call.
They gave up home, love and mother,
So let us sacrifice our all.
The Red Cross comes to you pleading,
Beseeching you, begging your aid.
It's a duty that you owe them,
A debt that you can't leave unpaid.
Think of the homes that are vacant
That were once contentment and joy.
Think of the comfort your dollars
Will mean to the brave soldier boy.
The Red Cross work is untiring,
And late in the night they have toiled.
They've been an aid to our soldier
And the Best Mother in the world.

By Chas. P. Frotigh.

Harry Barry Enters The Merchant Marine

J. Harry Barry, of Howard street, the borough, left last Sunday afternoon for Boston, where he entered the United States Merchant Marine service. He will undergo his preliminary training at the Boston Naval School and will later be assigned to a training ship.

Mr. Barry is a member of the Ford Taxi Company, which comprises beside himself, his two brothers, Charles and George, who will conduct the business as heretofore. This is not Harry's first experience in Uncle Sam's service although it is his initial attempt in the naval end. He was an enlisted man in Troop D at the time the Plainfield unit was sent to the Mexican border in 1916, serving until its return to this city in the fall of that year. He secured an honorable discharge at that time and was barred from re-enlisting because of having a dependent mother. Conditions have changed since then and because of the great demand for men he decided to enter the Merchant Marine, passing all examinations in a most creditable manner.

Mr. and Mrs. George V. N. Veghte, of Jackson avenue, the borough, are the parents of a daughter, born to them a few days ago.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. DANIEL T. WEBSTER.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Webster, wife of Daniel T. Webster, died Monday evening at her home at 429 West Second street, following an illness of four months. She first suffered a slight paralytic stroke, which developed complications and for several weeks her condition had been critical.

The funeral was held at the late home Wednesday afternoon and was private. It was in charge of Rev. Robert Love, who also sang two hymns, "Abide With Me" and "Asleep In Jesus." Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

Mrs. Webster was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart, of Watchung, and was born at that place seventy-one years ago. After her marriage to Mr. Webster, she removed to Plainfield, residing from that time in the same house in which she died. She was a woman of strong Christian character and greatly liked by all her neighbors. She was especially fond of flowers and the grounds surrounding her home on West Second street were always kept in a most attractive manner, so much so that on one occasion some years ago the local Improvement Association awarded her a prize for the best appearing yard in the West End.

Beside her husband, Mrs. Webster is survived by one son, George Webster, of 429 West Second street.

WILLIAM HOWARD TOMS.

The death of William Howard Toms, until two years ago a resident of Warrenville and one of the best known farms in Warren township, occurred Tuesday night at his home in Whitehouse. He had been located on a farm two miles south of Whitehouse Station since the spring of 1916, following the sale of his property at Warrenville to M. Hofheimer. Although not seriously ill with a malady, only three weeks ago, Mr. Toms had been ailing for the past six months, principally from Bright's disease. A week ago last Sunday, he was compelled to take to his bed and sank rapidly from then on.

The funeral will be held in the Springdale Methodist church, of which he was a member, this afternoon, and Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville, will conduct the service. Burial will be in the Springdale cemetery. A delegation from Court Plainfield, I. O. F., will have charge at the grave.

Mr. Toms was born at Warrenville in August, 1849, and always made his home there until the removal to Whitehouse as mentioned. The family homestead was located at the corner of Mountain avenue and Mt. Bethel roads and has recently been added to the big Hofheimer estate.

Mr. Toms was a wagon-maker by trade, following this occupation at Warrenville, where at one time he had a large shop. On reaching the age of twenty-one, he took an active interest in Somerset county politics and held numerous offices, one of which was coroner for one term between 1904 and 1907. He was serving in this capacity during the memorable Williams murder case, in which he took an active part in preparing evidence for the prosecution of George Wood. Mr. Toms always had a liking for farming and after the sale of his place, he decided to take up the tilling of the soil and purchased the fine place of 135 acres on which he died. Beside the wide acquaintance he had in Warren township and Somerset county, the deceased numbered scores of Plainfielders as his close friends. He had a way about him that everybody liked and his company was sought by all with whom he came in contact.

Beside being a member of Court Plainfield, I. O. F., he also belonged to Fairview Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Mt. Bethel. His surviving relatives are his wife and six sons. The latter are John, of Bitch; Howard and Irving, of Harrison avenue, North Plainfield; Leslie, of Philadelphia, a government employe at the Hog Island shipyards; Herbert and Harold, residing at the parental home at Whitehouse. There is also one sister surviving, Mrs. John Allen, of 824 West Fourth street, this city.

EDWARD P. GAVIN.

St. Joseph's church, in the borough, held a large assemblage of relatives and friends on Wednesday morning, when a solemn high mass of requiem was said for the repose of the soul of Edward P. Gavin, forty-five years a resident of North Plainfield. Rev. Father P. J. Hart was in charge of the service and special solos were sung by members of the church choir. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The pall bearers were the following: James Buckle, Patrick McDonough, Frank Mobus, Sylvester Sharkey, Charles Debele and Robert McCormack.

Mr. Gavin was a native of Ireland, where he was born seventy-eight years ago, but came to America when only a youth. After spending a short time at Troy, N. Y., he removed to North Plainfield and had made the borough his home from then until the time of his death. He was a farmer by occupation and owned one of the most attractive places in this vicinity. It is located on Columbia avenue, just off Greenbrook road, and adjoining the Cadmus property, which extends from Greenbrook road to the foot of the Watchung mountains.

Mr. Gavin and his two sons, Dennis, and Joseph, operated his acres successively for half a century. The father retired from active work about seven years ago, following the death of his wife, and it has since been conducted by the younger son, Dennis. The remains are one of the few places in the Plainfield or North Plainfield district that have been kept intact and are still conducted as a farm and not as a "gentleman's" estate.

Despite his advanced years, Mr. Gavin enjoyed good health until about three weeks ago, at which time he contracted pneumonia. His illness at once became critical and for nearly a week before the end his death had been momentarily expected. Recently he had been making his home with a daughter, Mrs. Albert Rajotte, of 70 Jefferson avenue, just on the dividing line where the Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen boundaries meet.

Beside his daughter, Mr. Gavin leaves the two sons mentioned, Dennis E., who still occupies the old homestead, and Joseph P., proprietor of a large hotel at Tuxedo Park, N. Y. There are also one brother, Benjamin Gavin, of Salem, Mass., and two grandchildren, Lauretta and Maria, the daughters of Joseph Gavin.

WILLIAM VINCENT CASE.

The funeral of William Vincent Case, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Case, of Lee place, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital, Sunday, from injuries received the day before when he was knocked down by an automobile in front of his home, was held in St. Mary's church, Tuesday morning. The service was in charge of Rev. Father B. M. Teegan, and the gathering present included the school mates and many friends of the little fellow in addition to acquaintances of the family. Among the numerous floral tributes extended was a large set piece from the shop mates of Mr. Case, the boy's father, at the Pond Tool Works.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, the following play mates of the unfortunate lad acting as pall bearers: John Regan, John King, Albert Wisenried, Alfred Green, Martin Flatley and William Kiely.

The fatal accident occurred last Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. In company with a number of other boys, Vincent, as he was always called, was playing a game of ball on a lot next to his own yard. A "hot liner" was knocked into Lee place, and in running to get it the boy failed to notice the approach of a machine owned and driven by Otto Stapf, a Clinton avenue huckster. The little fellow was struck on the head by the mudguard, sustaining a fractured skull.

John King, a neighboring resident, picked the little fellow up and hurried him to the office of Dr. P. B. Cregar on Grant avenue. The physician ordered the boy taken to Muhlenberg Hospital and he died there at 4:40 Sunday morning. Stapf surrendered himself to the local police and in company with his counsel, City Judge William G. DeMeza, went to Elizabeth, Monday morning, when Judge Pierce held him in $1,500 bail on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Beside his parents, Vincent is survived by two brothers, J. Edsal and Paul J. Case.

ALBERT JACKSON LEADER.

The funeral of Albert Jackson Leader, for forty years a prominent resident of North Plainfield, was held at the late home at 63 Duer street, Tuesday night. Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was in charge and the attendance was very large. Burial was made in Cypress Hill cemetery, Brooklyn, Wednesday morning.

Mr. Leader's death occurred at noon Sunday, after an illness of five years, brought about by complications following an accident. A fall from a neighbor's porch resulted in a fractured leg and a general shock to his constitution that necessitated his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. After his discharge from the institution he was able to be about for a time but never fully recovered.

Mr. Leader was born in Essex, England, in 1845, and was educated at Cambridge. When a boy, and full of boyish vigor and with a fondness for out door life, he often went on hunting trips with the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward VII) and carried the game bag for the Prince over the royal preserves.

At the time of his death, with a desire to see the world, he went away from home and came to New York, where he started at the bottom in the printing business in the New York Tribune. It was his pleasure to have an acquaintance with its founder, Horace Greeley, who saw to his promotion in the mechanical department, until finally he became make-up man and held that position for twelve years. When Mr. Greeley turned over the Tribune to his son-in-law, Whitelaw Reid, Mr. Leader resigned from the Tribune and went into business for himself, founding the Leader Printing Company of New York. He came to this city in 1879 and had resided on Duer street, North Plainfield, since that period.

The deceased was a man who was very fond of home life and took especial interest in baseball games and outdoor sports. He was affiliated with Trinity Reformed church, of this city.

Early in life Mr. Leader was married to Miss Margaret McKee, of Brooklyn, who survives him. There are also two brothers and two sisters surviving, who live in England.

Clippings from an Old Scrap-Book Tell of Plainfield As It Was In Middle of Nineteenth Century

Interesting accounts of life in Plainfield during the middle of the last century are contained in an old scrap book found a few days ago by Miss Lillian Olmstead, the Watchung avenue newsdealer. It was hidden away in a recess of the basement beneath his store and was originally the property of the late Frazee Marsh, the compiler, who was one of the leading residents of the town during his day.

Mr. Marsh was born near Rahway in 1798, coming to Plainfield with his parents when only a child. At the time of his death, in 1874, he lived at what is now East Third and Church streets. He had a family of seven sons, all but two of whom continued to reside in Plainfield from the time of their birth until their death. The last son to pass away was Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, who died early in 1916. The other sons were Washington and Aaron, who moved to Elizabeth, N. Y.; Albert, Alexander, Warren and Franklin, all of Plainfield. There are many descendants of these sons still living in this vicinity. The late Craig Ali Marsh, corporation counsel for many years and the late Warren Marsh, were grandsons of Mr. Marsh.

Frazee Marsh was of a literary turn of mind and wrote many articles which were published in the local newspapers of his day. These were the Plainfield Gazette, founded in 1835, and the Plainfield Union, first published in about 1845 by the late Hilton R. Cushing, grandfather of Recorder Fred W. Hand, of the borough. Mr. Marsh commented on topics of the day which appeared in the Gazette and the Union and which he clipped from these newspapers for his scrap book. The document has many accounts of happenings in Plainfield between the years of 1840 and 1860 and also other stories of interest, as Mr. Marsh saw them, from the New York newspapers at that time.

One of the most interesting of the articles written by Mr. Marsh bears no date but was evidently printed about 1855 and compares life in Plainfield at that time with life in the village fifty-five years previous to 1800. Mr. Marsh's comparison of his time with 1800 strangely enough applies to the condition of present-day life with that of 1855, the time the article was published in the village paper. The article is true to life and is given in full as follows:

"For the Plainfield Gazette.

"FIFTY-FIVE YEARS AGO;

"Or, Now and Then."

"A certain philosopher has said it is progtable sometimes to take a retrospective view of the past, in order to make a wise improvement in the present, and we intend to be true, and having a leisure hour from other business, I have devoted it to the investigation of the improvements made in the past fifty-five years—comparing things then with those of the present day. And if any of your readers shall receive either pleasure or profit from the perusal of these few lines, I shall feel amply repaid for my labor.

"Fifty-five years ago the village in which we live was called Pinchgut, containing less than one hundred inhabitants, and at present it contains about four thousand inhabitants, also eight churches, three hotels, several stores, and any quantity of beer shops. The first post office was kept by the father of the present post master, and although the postage was but six cents per letter, and twelve if I have been informed the amount collected the first year was only five dollars—now the postage is only three cents per letter, and the amount collected yearly is some twelve hundred dollars. Fifty-five years ago there was no manufacturing done in the place, now many thousand dollars worth are manufactured yearly. Fifty-five years ago there was no newspaper printed in the village, and the only papers received were brought once a week by a post-rider from a neighboring city; now we have two printing establishments, each issuing some hundred papers weekly; besides there are sold in the village over two hundred daily papers printed in New York, also several periodicals and weeklies—likewise a library of good books and a reading-room for our citizens. Fifty-five years ago there was no railroads in the United States, now there is six thousand miles. Then a ferry was established, now there are seven hundreds. Then persons going from this village to New York, took their own conveyance, or stage, to Elizabethport, from thence by sail boat, and considered themselves fortunate if they arrived the first day. Now by railroad and steamboat the trip is made in two hours. Fifty-five years ago evening meetings and lectures commenced at early candle-light, now not till seven or eight o'clock. Then all well regulated families retired to bed at nine o'clock, except on courting nights, when the young people were privileged to set up a little later. Then it was customary to rise at early dawn, the young folks getting up first to build fires, fodder the cattle, etc., and to have breakfast over before sunrise; now twelve o'clock is by some called reasonable bedtime, and to rise before the sun is thought foolish. Now the old folks have to build the morning fire and get the breakfast, and by eight o'clock some of the young folks, by being called two or three times, by great exertion get up to eat. Fifty-five years ago men occasionally drank good stout cider and toast at their own fireside, now many men and boys drink large quantities of lager beer, but not at home. Fifty-five years ago there were but few stores, and the merchants sold at small profit, for having once sold in the store a part of the day was considered at an end, for the purchaser was not then ashamed to be seen carrying home what he had honestly purchased; but now stores are more plenty, and each merchant is under the necessity of keeping extra help, for by the time a boy can run a segar he can be seen carrying a bundle along the street, and often the purchase of a few cents' worth has to be sent home. Fifty-five years ago coal was hardly thought of, now there is consumed over three thous and tons in our village yearly, and over two thousand tons pass through it daily to other places. Fifty-five years ago the man that was poor was not ashamed to own it, now poverty by some is considered a crime, and very many schemes are resorted to to cloak and keep up appearances. Fifty-five years ago boys were willing and reading to assist their parents at any kind of labor, and at bed-time were found at home; now they prefer to strut along the streets with a segar in their mouth, and at night may be found in some beer shop spending the money their fathers have earned. Fifty-five years ago young women were not ashamed to be seen in the kitchen helping their mothers, now it is thought more polite to dress and sit in the parlor all idle—fold hands, or walk out to make calls. Then they spun, wove and made their own clothing, now they think it better to purchase foreign silks and satins. Then they wore good calf-skin shoes with thick soles, now pernell or satin shoes with thin soles are more fashionable. Fifty-five years ago women were fresh and hearty, and when a man clasped his wife around the waist he had an arm full of solid flesh and blood; now they too often look pale and sickly, and when spoken to appear all skin and bone, and but little substance. Fifty-five years ago every house was warmed by wood fires, now they are heated by coal. Then when the fire went out some of the children were sent to the neighbor to borrow a few coals, or else they have to apply to match costing one cent. per hundred. Fifty-five years ago men were elected to office for their honesty and capability, now more for availability to carry out party purposes. Then it was considered an honor to hold office, now office holders are looked upon with suspicion, and few honest men are willing to accept it.

"There have been many other changes which have taken place within the last half century, which might be profitable to note, but I shall for the present rest by merely remarking that fifty-five years ago the writer of this article was a young boy, now almost an

"OLD MAN."

Mr. Marsh frequently used the nom de plume of "Old Man" but more often he signed himself "A Blunt Man," because of the pertinent way in which he wrote of local happenings. Its used the latter at the end of another description of a visit paid to Plainfield as it was in 1852 and which was published in the Union under the caption, "Plainfield As It Is." The article follows:

"For the Plainfield Gazette.

"PLAINFIELD AS IT IS.

"Messrs. Editors:—It has long been a matter of surprise to me that some one of your able correspondents has not given to the public some account of our beautiful village. While the journals of the day are teeming with the beauties and advantages of other places, we have been left unnoticed. And although I am a plain man and not given to flattery, and perhaps unable to do the subject justice, still I shall make the attempt; not to gratify my own vanity, but for the information of those who live in crowded, dirty, and sickly places; that they may know where to flee to find health and comfort. Plainfield lies in the centre of an extensive and beautiful plain. On the South and West the village is a mile and a half from the Central Railroad, which will compare favorably with any in the State, and over which pass several trains of cars each way daily from New York to Easton, etc.

"On the North and East one mile distant and running parallel with the village is a range of green mountains clothed with verdure from their base to the summit, broken here and there by gorges or gorlies into many wild scenes of most picturesque beauty not surpassed in sublimity and grandeur and historic recollections by any mountains in Switzerland. At this season of the year it is especially beautiful with its trees clothed in rich foliage of deep and glorious green, all calculated to fill the mind with gratitude and admiration of Him that created it, and pronounced it very good. On the summit of this mountain may be seen 'Washington's Rock,' so called from the fact, that here the Father of his country with a band of sturdy yeomanry with the fire of liberty burning in their breasts, watched the movements of the British army, the enemy of liberty, and the rights of man; and although not willing to listen to the voice of reason, were made to quail before the bayonets of freemen, and glad were they to return back to their tyrannical master.

"From this rock is a view of several miles over the plains below, and the eye may feast on the fields of the husbandman which by the blessings of Providence are crowned with glorious beauty and abundance. Plainfield contains, about three thousand inhabitants, its support is derived from manufactures, which is done here to a considerable extent, not only by the citizens of the place, but over one thousand persons in the surrounding country are employed in one branch alone by some of our enterprising manufacturers. There are eight places of public worship to which all are invited to attend. There is a large and well established Free School perhaps second to none in the State; there are also several private schools conducted by competent teachers, which are also well attended. The village contains two printing presses which issue weekly some hundreds of newspapers. (The Press is ever a lever of mighty power, and when conducted fearlessly, and with the view of the elevation of the human mind, are instruments of great good, and when editors do their duty manfully they should always receive the approbation and support of the community, and the friends of liberty. There are also a number of stores, and trade is carried on to a considerable extent. Plainfield is admired by travellers passing through it on account of its neat and cleanly appearance, and as a place of health perhaps it is not surpassed; in proof of this we have only to allude to the fact that while sickness are falling by cholera in the cities and villages surrounding us, we have as yet escaped without a single case. Plainfield is well watered, and then such water, one has no need to travel to Saratoga and other celebrated springs for health, nor can fake drink their fill without money and without price, and it may be this is the water which the Spaniards so eagerly sought for on this continent in the fifteenth century, the drinking of which was said to renew old age with youth. I always esteem it is doubtless just as good.

"Plainfield has many advantages and facilities for manufacturing other places, and persons wishing to reside in the country and do business in the city, can by living here have their children educated cheap, and can take the morning train and arrive in New York in time for business, and return again at evening to the bosoms of their families. Our village has within a few years grown rapidly, and some wealthy men who have made their money in the city, live it much, with stately buildings, and beautiful gardens. Lots are still cheap and there is yet room for those who are weary with the noise, dirt, and sickness, to which large cities are subject; and as for truth, justice, and equality, will here receive a hearty welcome. I have thus given a faint sketch of Plainfield as it is, and perhaps have come far short of doing it justice, as I profess to be neither critic nor scholar, but a friend to all virtue and good.

"A PLAIN BLUNT MAN."

A third article worthy of reprinting from Mr. Marsh' scrap book was written after he had taken a trip to Niagara Falls, beginning September 20, 1858. Traveling in those days was nothing like it is now, still he made the journey in a much shorter time. It required only five days and included a visit at the home of his two sons in Elmira. Mr. Marsh possessed the power of description and he detailed his sail up the Hudson River, his trip across the Empire State and his entire journey down the old "Erie and New York Railroad," now the Erie Railroad, in detailed accuracy, painting many word pictures as he related what he saw for the "benefit of posterity." The account of his trip is as follows:

"For the Plainfield Gazette

"THE FROLICK OF AN OLD MAN,

Or, Five Days' Travel.

"Dedicated to My Grand Children.

"Many years ago a great philosopher declared that 'a boy kept constantly within doors is only half a boy,' and however much of a philosopher I may be, I am free to confess that I am not a little of what I have seen, and that but in a feeble manner. I have not wrote it for the inspection of the critic, but for the gratification of my grand children, hoping that they may be pointed through the world make use of those faculties which God has given them, to a wise improvement of all his mercies. And thus ends my frolick, having traveled a thousand miles in five days. In which time I remained in Elmira. I consider it money well laid out, and that it has made me a wiser and better man.

1919 Auto Tags Are Approved By Dill

The color scheme of the New Jersey automobile registration markers for 1919, will consist of white numerals on a dark green background. This combination of colors has been approved by State Motor Vehicle Commissioner William L. Dill, who, after seeing a sample, declared that it is one of the prettiest and most attractive plates that the State has ever used.

For 1919 the automobile number plates will be manufactured in the New Jersey State prison, under the "State use" system which has taken the place of the old prison contract labor methods, which have been finally wiped from under the active direction of Governor Walter E. Edge. The State has a sufficient supply of steel on hand, the necessary machinery has been installed, and enough of the prisoners have already been given the instruction to enable them to operate the stamping plant, though expert plate makers will be continued in charge of the work, at least for this year.

Progress has been so marked in this new undertaking by the State that sample plates have already been turned out. Secretary of the Prison Labor Commission, under the direction of which the new undertaking is being carried out, delivered to Motor Vehicle Commissioner Dill his first sample plate. He was more than satisfied with it and, after it had been put to severe hammer and bending tests, he made known the fact that it is probably the best plate ever used by the State.

Army Will Handle All Mail For Soldiers

The long drawn out controversy between the Postoffice Department and the War Department over mail to France has been settled.

Hereafter the military authorities will handle all mail destined for members of the American forces in France from points of sailing.

MILITARY DANCE.

A military dance will be given in McCormack's studio on West Front street tomorrow night, by a number of local young women. Dudley Ives Hand, chairman; Miss Mary Wilcox, committee in charge of the arrangements is composed of Mrs. Rae Arnold, chairman; Miss Mary Wilcox, Miss Gertrude Hilman and Miss Helen Rogers.

Plainfield, New Jersey, Friday, May 24, 1918.

THE RAISE IS NOT ENOUGH.

The Common Council's plan to increase the pay of police and firemen is a most worthy proposition and one that meets with the approbation of practically every citizen. There might be a few short-sighted taxpayers who are not in accord with the executives' policy but fortunately for all concerned, their number is not great enough to interfere with the passage of the ordinance.

The average increase of $100 is most welcome to each man receiving it and their appreciation should repay the councilmen for any adverse criticism that might arise. How anyone could question the act, however, is beyond comprehension as in reality the raise should be even greater than that announced. One hundred dollars a year is really only two dollars a week and how far does two dollars go toward meeting the advanced cost of living? The amount is only about ten per cent., while the rise in foodstuffs and ordinary living expenses met by the firemen have jumped to fifty and sometimes as high as 100 per cent. The increase might just as well have been made $200, as it could be raised almost as easy as the one hundred dollars. In Jersey City, the advance was $300 for nearly all classes of police and firemen, while numerous other New Jersey municipalities have given their men from one hundred and fifty dollars to two hundred and fifty dollars.

The Council's action at this time is most opportune inasmuch as the two branches of service have gradually been reaching the danger point in their shortness. Each one has been losing men for the past six months and try as they could the superior officers could not get probationers enough to do the work in a proper manner. Take the fire department, for instance. At the time, it is about ten regulars short of what has been declared an efficient working force. Resignations have been occurring at regular intervals and only because the pay was insufficient to meet the abnormal cost of living. Candidates for the department have not been easy to get at a minimum salary of $950 a year, out of which a hundred dollars must be expended for uniform and equipment and one per cent. of the monthly remittance taken out for the pension fund. Even with the increase of fifty dollars, for the lowest class, the fire department offers no particular inducement at this time, even to a man who is capable of ordinary labor. The unskilled workman today is demanding fifty cents an hour and is getting it, whereas the firemen work twenty-four hours, six days a week, for his salary of eighteen dollars or more a week.

Much the same condition applies to the police department although it has not been as short of men as the other branch of service. At the present time the police fund has an $8,000 surplus accumulating through resignations of patrolmen whose pay had been arranged for in the annual budgets. The taxpayers will not really feel the increase of one hundred dollars this year and the fire department raise will also be pretty well off-set by the reduction of the working force.

As stated at the beginning of this article, the police and firemen appreciate the raise but when all things are taken into consideration they cannot be blamed for coming back like Oliver Twist and saying, "We want some more."

COL. COLGATE'S REPLY TO DR. SAUNDERS.

Former State Senator E. R. Ackerman's audacious but well meant suggestion that no costly and energy consuming congressional campaign be held this year because of the war, the nomination of Congressmen instead being conferred upon some man agreeable to all concerned, continues to be a topic for discussion in various parts of the State.

One of those replying to the Plainfield man's declaration was former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, who expressed himself as follows: "It would be a most courteous and gracious act for ex-Senator Ackerman and his fellow partisans to center upon some fair-minded member of the majority party of the nation who has conscientiously supported the President for the past four years. It seems to me that no man is more competent to uphold the President in times such as these than one who has always been in full sympathy with him."

The words of Dr. Saunders have reached Hudson county and in that hot-bed of politics they are looked upon with suspicion, inasmuch as the North Plainfielder is close to Washington, and there is a possibility that he said one word for somebody else and six for himself. Some of the leaders thought they had better get busy and find out what Colonel Austin Colgate, candidate for the United States senatorial nomination thought of the proposition and this is the way the Colonel regarded Mr. Saunders' statement, as made public yesterday:

"In regard to the Congressional situation in the Fifth District, not being a voter there and being a candidate myself for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, it would be unbecoming in me to say more than that I shall in no wise interfere and shall back no candidate of my own choosing. As to the larger view of the position taken by Dr. Saunders, it gains importance from the fact that he himself is stated to be 'a possible candidate for the nomination for United States Senator,' and in any event he is high up in the councils of the Democratic party in the State and the nation, and thus what he says may be taken as the keynote of the campaign in New Jersey, and if this is so, it strikes a false note.

"If Dr. Saunders' views are logical, it would mean that not only in the Fifth Congressional District, but in all other Republican districts, and also as regards the U. S. Senatorship in a Republican State, there should be no candidates except those who belong to the President's party.

"Such a proposition would at once destroy all representative government and would class all Republicans immediately as disloyal and partisans. In my own platform I have stated my views clearly on the subject of support of the President and the war in these words: 'That the paramount issue is the successful prosecution of the war against Germany and her subservient allies. The measure of our devotion and whatever sacrifice may be required must and shall equal the ideal for which we strive. There is no room for mere partisan criticism or obstruction; our leaders speak for a nation united. There is a place for fair and constructive criticism in a democracy such as ours unless we concede that the intelligence of the nation is vested in a chosen few.'

"I yield to no one, be he Republican or Democrat, in loyalty to my country, but I do not grant it wise or necessary that the legislative branch of the Federal Government should be solely left in the hands of one party, even in war times."

PRODUCTION PER MAN VALUE MUST INCREASE.

With the second draft already announced the number of men withdrawn from civilian occupations and devoted directly or indirectly to military service in an active or industrial sense will shortly equal 12,000,0000 men, or one-third of the men in this country listed as engaged in gainful occupations; thus, when the direction of production is altered, it is necessary to speed up our other industries one-half to overcome and make up this loss by lengthening the hours and increasing intensity of application each workman must increase his work output daily. Also men of the so-called leisure classes must engage in work of a productive nature. All able-bodied men and women should work, not only in the reconstruction of industries, but reconstruction of the household. Domestic service should be reduced and set free for industries and other occupations. The vacations of the older school children can and will be used for purposes of appropriate industry. Increased work output of all classes is necessary and the efficiency of each working group must be raised to the maximum.

Since it is the duty of labor to work harder so it is the duty of capital to work for lower returns. Plainfield needs more houses. Capital to accomplish them, should bear its burden and not insist on a pre-war valuation in helping to finance the construction of these houses. This is no day for the spectator patriot—we must save for war and work for war.

A BOX BARRAGE OF BELLICOSE BRIEFS.

Put up that subscription now or else shut up when the troop trains go by.

How hath the mighty fallen? We use to worship the American dollar but now it ranks only with two pounds of bacon or half a bushel of wheat.

Looks as though the Newark Paving Company wanted to stay in Plainfield for life. It bid on another job Monday night and lost out only by a narrow margin.

These be the days when the newspaper headwriters have to be mighty careful. It would be a very natural mistake for any of them to write it "airgraft" instead of "aircraft."

The news dispatches say that Southern women are doing their bit by sending their own home made biscuits to the boys in the trenches. A West End friend of ours opines that if they send the rolling pins over also, married life will be one, grand sweet song.

A year ago last winter we went shy of potatoes. More recently it was a shortage of sugar that gave us annoyance and now we are told that next it will be soap and matches. The only rose in this bunch of thorns is inside information that the production of flat-irons is about normal.

This boycott on using the old name of "Sauer Kraut" may be pleasing to the spectator warriors, but it has its drawbacks. When the electric power goes off suddenly, what satisfaction is there in yelling: "Where was Moses, when the light went out? Down in the cellar, eating 'Liberty Cabbage.'"

Those East End people picked the right man when they made Charlie Sminck their representative in the City Council. At the meeting Monday night he displayed the best little bit of pep that has cropped up in the session chamber in many a day. Sort of put us in mind of the good old days when "Billie" Tyler insisted on his right to ask questions and tell the pussy footers where they got off. There have been times since then when Council meetings were as interesting as the sporting page of the War Cry and Mr. Sminck's "heavy artillery duel" with Mr. Hylan seems like a rainbow of promise.

Referring to the plan of local physicians to discuss the advisability of entering the service, the Courier-News said among other things, Tuesday night:

"There are a number of physicians who are willing to offer their services; in fact, some have made application but on account of personal affairs at home have not felt as though they could leave at this time. They say that their going away would mean much more than the loss of practice."

Perhaps you wrong the doctors, Mr. Reporter, but since you have specified them, who is there among us who is not sacrificing "personal affairs at home" or losing more than practice in going away? What about the lawyer, the merchant, the chief, the iron-moulder and the butcher's apprentice. Haven't they all put family affairs in the discard and given up practice or position paying them many times more than thirty dollars a month and found? There are no such things as personalities in this war and the battle is being fought for the doctors the same as any one else. However, Friend Scribe, your wording is immaterial inasmuch as Plainfield's doctors are just as loyal a board of physicians as there is in the United States and none of them consider home affairs when the call is received. Our percentage of enlistments from this profession is above the average and there are others waiting to go the moment Uncle Sam lifts the age limit.

WHAT BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When the "cracker barrel" clubs had something else beside the war to argue about?

When nobody poked fun at you if your appeared with a straw hat before May 15?

When raiding parties inflicted heavy casualties on the farmers' 1 x 8 fence rails every time the West End boys needed a new backstop for their baseball diamond?

When the boarding mistress offered no objection if you repeated on the butter and did not bawl you out in front of everybody when you fell two weeks behind on pay but quietly placed a sponge cake on your plate?

When you walked home with her from church after the Wednesday night prayer meeting and she invited you in to hear how good she could play "Rock of Ages" on the new melodeon which father bought direct from Estey's?

When David Kenyon brought the much heralded steam man to Plainfield from Newark and announced that it was going to tote his rig to the Middle West but got no further than Richmond street because the mechanical devise refused to lift its feet over rough places?

Refused Four Times By Army, "Hub" Reynolds At Last Sees Hope In Call By Draft Board

After four unsuccessful attempts, Herbert Reynolds, or "Hub," as everybody knows him, has succeeded in getting a real chance to enter the army. He has been called by the Somerset county Draft Board as one of the North Plainfield selectives to leave for Camp Dix next week and the undersized patriot now believes that nothing can stop him from climbing into one of Uncle Sam's uniforms. He bases his impression on the fact that draft physicians have been accepting even one-legged men and everything but helpless cripples, consequently as it was only his weight and that kept him from dashing at the Germans long ago, he is the happiest conscript in New Jersey.

"Hub," who was for many years office boy for the Daily Press, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Reynolds, of Watchung avenue. When war was declared against Germany he had been a member of Company K for two years but the rigid examination conducted when the unit was mobilized at Sea Girt found him ten pounds light in weight and he was sent home. Determined to get a crack at the invading Huns he visited the cavalry recruiting office in New York and managed to get passed on to Fort Hamilton, but here again his entrance to the regular army was stopped. The doctors found that the missing pounds had not been made up and would not take him. Next "Hub" sidled into the hospital corps recruiting station at Newark and induced the officer in charge to send him to Fort Slocum as a possibility. It took ten days for the examining officers there to find out that he was about half an inch short in height and five pounds under light in weight. This was encouraging as I previously the avoirdupois had been ten pounds below that necessary for a regular soldier.

Still determined to show Uncle Sam what he could do if only placed on the French front, the undaunted young boroughite visited the quartermasters' station in New York and asked to be let in. He was turned over to a doctor but after a half hour's examination he came back some crestfallen and "stumped" for the time being. He was all right in every detail, the physicians said, except that he needed about five more pounds of weight. Try as he would he could not make this up but when the new draft regulations were announced he found that ninety-eight pounds was all that he had to show and this he possessed. He gave up trying on his own accord, preferring to let conditions take their course, and presto—the Somerset County Draft Board got him. In contrast to many robust young men of six feet or more, who were sorry they were "physically fit," the diminutive Reynolds was in the seventh heaven of delight when the examination official told him he had "won a swift" in the national "raffle." He will resign his position at the Spicer plant in South Plainfield tomorrow and can be counted upon to be on hand bright and early next Wednesday morning, when the North Plainfield contingent starts for Somerville.

Strangely enough, "Hub's" brother, Frank, is also one of the selectives to go away next week. The latter was formerly a member of the city fire department, but has recently been working at the Standard Aero plant. In addition to the two Reynolds, the North Plainfield contingent will be made up of the following:

Emil J. Haas, Alfred G. Winn, Edmond D. Thomson, James A. McGunnell, William E. Dewey, Edwin S. Smalley, Edward R. Scarlett, Ernest Neal, Roy Wood, George W. Ralph, Charles Angelo, Charles J. Beimble, Harry Hand, Morris V. Brokaw, Peter I. Rowe, Charles J. Conaway, Carmen Velenzano and Walter H. Carver.

"Jack" Oswald's Check For Seventy Cents Proves Chicago Has At Least One Honest Man

"Jack" Oswald, the East Front street confectioner, is authority for the statement that the much-maligned Chicago has at least one honest person. The man who would have gladdened the heart of Socrates is F. H. Negley, a resident of the Windy City, who visited Plainfield recently in company with an automobile party. The members stopped at Oswald's for some of his delicious cream, its fame having extended as far as the shores of Lake Michigan. Absent-mindedly, Mr. Negley walked out of the place without paying the cost of the treat and in a rush of trade the departure of the party was not noticed by the store employes.

Yesterday Mr. Oswald received the following letter from Chicago, wrapped around a check for seventy cents on the First National Bank of that town:

"Dear Sir:

"Enclosed please find my check for seventy cents, also your ticket which I overlooked paying before leaving your place.

"Kindly pardon the oversight in not doing so, and oblige,

"Yours truly,

"F. H. NEGLEY."

"I am not going to cash the check," said Mr. Oswald to the Record man. "I am going to have it placed in a frame and keep it on the wall to refute the Eastern misbelief that Chicago is a city of conscienceless trimmers."

Plainfield Schools Lead County In Red Cross Membership

Between March 1 and April 1 the public schools of the county increased their purchases of Thrift Stamps 100 per cent. over the previous total, added many members to the Junior Red Cross, contributed liberally to the fund for the purpose of carrying on the work of that organization and subscribed to nearly $500,000 in Liberty Bonds.

Elizabeth holds the lead for Thrift Stamps with $39,634.45, but Westfield is close behind with $39,626.92. Plainfield has the largest Red Cross enrollment, with 2,683 student workers, and also far outstripped the other towns in contributions, with a total of $6,612.19.

Of the third Liberty Loan issue a total of $429,115 was subscribed. Westfield took the lead with $108,265. Elizabeth came close behind.

The table showing what each community did follows:

Clark—Thrift Stamps sold, $134; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 106.

Cranford—Thrift Stamps sold, $3,511.62; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 1,032; Liberty Bonds subscribed, $19,075.

Elizabeth—Thrift Stamps sold, $39,634.45; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 1,958; Liberty Bonds subscribed, $102,040.

Garwood—Thrift Stamps sold, $506.20; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 445; Liberty Bonds subscribed, $3,650.

Hillside—Thrift Stamps sold, $1,418.89; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 730; Liberty Bonds subscribed, $3,650.

Kenilworth—Thrift Stamps sold, $96.

Linden—Thrift Stamps sold, $1,322.67; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 677; Liberty Bonds subscribed, $8,650.

Mountainside—Thrift Stamps sold, $44.74; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 37; Liberty Bonds subscribed, $350.

New Providence Borough—Thrift Stamps sold, $369.62; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 250; Liberty Bonds subscribed, $2,400.

New Providence Township—Thrift Stamps sold, $83.75; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 151.

Plainfield—Thrift Stamps sold, $15,062.32; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 2,883; Liberty Bonds subscribed, $64,000.

Rahway—Thrift Stamps sold, $5,026.45; enrolment Jr. Red Cross, 423.

Your Red Cross Fighting Dollars

Your Army and Navy fights to make the "World safe for Democracy."

Your Red Cross fights to make it fit for Democracy.

Fights for your soldiers—yours and your allies—in trench, canteen and hospital.

Fights for the little children, to save them for the nations' upbuildings of tomorrow.

Fights for the swarms of homeless, dazed refugees and "repatriates" thrown out from the war's black whirlpool.

Fights the white plague, tuberculosis, that takes a greater toll than lead and steel.

Fights in every war stricken country to uphold a wrecked and suffering humanity in its struggle for a free existence.

One hundred million dollars to "carry on."

No power of taxation, no interest rate to urge those dollars.

Each one a volunteer, sent willingly and by the heart alone.

The noblest fund of all the billions of this war's vast budgets—because the freest given.

What share is yours? What sacrifice to mobilize those Fighting Red Cross Dollars?

Every cent of every dollar received for the Red Cross War Fund goes for War Relief.

The American Red Cross is the largest and most efficient organization for the relief of suffering that the World has ever seen.

It is made up almost entirely of volunteer workers, the highest executives being without exception men accustomed to large affairs, who are in almost all cases giving their services without pay.

It is supported entirely by its Membership Fees and by voluntary contributions.

It is today bringing relief to suffering humanity, both military and civil, in every War torn allied country.

It plans tomorrow to help in the work of restoration throughout the world.

It feeds and clothes entire populations in times of great calamity.

It is there to help your soldier boy in his time of need.

With its thousands of workers, its tremendous stores and smooth running transportation facilities, it is serving as America's advance guard—and thus helping to win the war.

Congress authorizes it.

President Wilson heads it.

The War Department audits its accounts.

Your Army, your Navy and your Allies enthusiastically endorse it.

Twenty-five million Americans have joined it.

PERSONAL

Miss Helen Hall, of Jackson avenue, has returned to her position at the Plainfield Trust Company, after two weeks' detention at home by an attack of the mumps.

Lieut. Joseph Van Deventer, of Woodland avenue, left this week for Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C., after a two weeks' furlough at home. Previous to coming to Plainfield, for his respite from military duty, he had been stationed at Camp Meade, Balt.

Joseph A. Lane, the well known theatrical man, has returned to his home on East Front street, following a brief stay at Muhlenberg Hospital after a slight operation.

Frank Reid, who has been in charge of the New Jersey Central's freight department at Annandale, has been transferred to the Plainfield force at the Richmond street freight yards.

Fred Dickerson, of East Second street, returned to his company at Camp McClellan, this week, after a ten days' furlough at home.

William Wyman, of East Front street, has been confined to his home during the past few days by a combined attack of tonsilitis and chills and fever.

Mrs. A. Allard, of Pond place, is seriously ill at Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation on her throat performed a week ago by Dr. W. H. Murray and Dr. C. B. Lufburrow.

John J. Curran, known to his friends as "Buddie," who left Plainfield for Fort Slocum with nine other Plainfield selectives, on May 13, has been transferred to Fort Myer, Va., as a member of Company B, 312th Cavalry.

The home of former Sheriff and Mrs. B. Frank Coriell, of West Fifth street, was the scene of a wedding Monday night, when their daughter, Miss Lucy M. Coriell, was made the wife of Allan W. Layton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Layton, of West Front street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John S. Gardner, of Somerville, who united the bridegroom's parents many years ago. Mrs. J. W. Hageman, of Cranford, acted as matron of honor, and LeRoy Layton, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Miss Edith Coriell, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McD. Coriell, and niece of the bride, was flower girl. Following the ceremony and reception the young couple left on a wedding trip which will be concluded tomorrow. The wedding was originally set for June 5, but the date was brought forward because of Mr. Layton leaving next week for Camp Dix as a member of the latest Plainfield National Army contingent. Both Dr. and Mrs. Layton have been active in the work at Trinity Reformed church.

Private Douglass Van Winkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Van Winkle, of Park avenue, is convalescing in the hospital at Camp McClellan, following an attack of diphtheria, which developed three weeks ago. As soon as he is out of quarantine he will return to Plainfield for a two weeks' visit. Private Van Winkle is attached to the 113th Heavy Field Artillery.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Swafield, of East Ninth street, have returned home from Atlantic City, where they attended the May meetings of the Northern Baptist convention.

C. Henry Betzenberger, of East Fifth street, returned this week after a stay at his former home at Allentown, Pa., previous to entering the service. He has made application for enlistment in the radio-telegraph service. Mr. Betzenberger was formerly manager of the local Western Union Telegraph office in the North Avenue station.

Miss Anna Marky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Marky, of West Front street, and Harry F. Suydam, of Plainfield avenue, were married last Saturday afternoon in St. Mary's church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Hennessy and Miss Mary Lappin and John Suydam acted as attendants. The couple will make their home with the bride's parents for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, of Fairview avenue, the borough, have received word that their son, Lieut. William P. Taylor, an aviator in the American forces, has arrived safely overseas. Lieut. Taylor completed his training course in Oklahoma and Texas and visited his parents shortly before going across.

Mrs. Lesie R. Fort, of Cedarbrook road, has returned after a visit with her father, Alvah H. Osmun, of Madison.

Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Anderson, who have been stopping at the home of Miss Gertrude Sharp, on East Second street, for the past few weeks, left this week for Passaic, where Mr. Anderson will take up his duties as pastor of the First M. E. church of that place.

Samuel Stranahan, of Harrison avenue, the borough, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation performed a few days ago. He was reported this morning as "resting comfortably."

Dr. Ray S. Stevens, of this city, is now located at Langley Field, Hampton, Va., where he is attached to a post hospital as a member of the dental division of the medical corps. William Rushmore, of Park avenue, is stationed at the same field as a member of the aviation corps.

An "American Creed" As It Is Viewed By Henry W. Herrman

In direct contrast to the German "creed" as it has been exploited in Europe through the meeting of fire, pillage and destruction, Henry White Herrman, of West Seventh street, this city, has prepared an American creed. The forebears of Mr. Herrman on both sides of his maternal line are of good old New England stock and he has inherited the principles that are bred only in a land where the people are free, independent, liberty-loving and altruistic.

Mr. Herrman has gained an enviable reputation as an orator, one of his latest appearances in this respect being at the raising of North Plainfield's service flag. The sentiments he expressed in several of his addresses were so gratefully appreciated by many of his listeners, that they importuned him to put his creed in print. This he has done but in order to show the decided contrast between the German creed and the American as Mr. Herrman sees it, we print the former as follows:

The German Creed.

"A German Creed, as derived from German deeds and written in blood in Belgium, Poland, Serbia, Roumania, Russia, Northern France and everywhere that Gentle German Kulture spreads its benign sway.

"As a German—

"I believe in the German Race as a race of supermen, a race of men superior to all other races, past, present or future, wiser than the Greeks, more masterful than the Romans and divinely appointed to give the World a Kulture superior to anything that has yet appeared. I am a German and I admit it.

"I believe in the State—the Government of the Faderland as the highest expression of Kulture on this earth. For that State Germans are born, for that they live, for that they must be willing to die. The State can do no wrong—right and wrong are not possible terms for the State. The State is above laws and codes. What the State does is Law. Whatever the State needs to make it strong or powerful or prosperous it has a perfect right to claim or take or do. The State admits no inferiority, no equality with any other Power—it is or of right ought to be SUPREME—Deutschland uber alles. I am a German and I admit it.

"I believe in the Emperor, the Head of the State, the superman of supermen. He who rules by Divine Right. He who is above Laws and Morals, who speaks and the nation obeys, whose WILL is THE LAW for peace or war; whose avocation is peace, whose vocation is war. The War Lord of a nation that is an army and an army that is a nation with a WILL to POWER. Hoch der Kaiser. He und Gott rule the World. I am a German and I admit it.

"I believe in ME. I am a Master, you are a slave. You exist only to minister to me. There are only two classes of men in this world, only two kinds of nations—masters and slaves, supermen and vassals. The strong are entitled to take all they need or want. Their strength to take it is their right to mastership; their Will to Power and their power to will is the MIGHT that makes RIGHT. Pity, sympathy, brotherhood, service, sacrifice and all forms of LOVE as between men can have no place in the minds or thoughts or actions of supermen—that is the spirit of the slave—it is the spirit of subjection, self-derision, self-mutilation. Supermen, masters, those who would be strong and rule must be egotistic, self-confident, aggressive, cruel if need be, crafty, arrogant, vengeful, above laws, above and beyond morals, with a Will to POWER that appropriates what it wants. I am a superman—a Master, born to rule—I have a Will to Power, I want the Earth. I am a German and I admit it.

"I believe in the survival of the fittest—in the law of the tooth and claw—in the rule that Might makes Right. I believe that the Earth is Germany's and the fulness thereof, that no nation has rights that Germany is bound to respect; that no people has rights or possessions that we cannot take as and when we please. Therefore we will bomb and burn and destroy with shot and shell and ride through blood to the saddle girths until every hostile flag is in the dust and only the Black, White and Red floats to every breeze on land and sea and German Will is Law. I am a German—the fittest to survive, and I admit it."

This is the American Creed which Mr. Herrman expresses as the essence of thought from every patriotic citizen of this country:

An American Creed.

"As an American—

"I believe in Human Rights whereby life, liberty, and happiness, in the pursuits of peace and industry, may be secure;

"I believe in Individual Rights whereby every persons may through education, industry, and community-given opportunity become a useful citizen and patriot;

"I believe in Intellectual Rights whereby the people shall use but not abuse the right of free assemblage, free press, free conscience, free schools, free church and free State;

"I believe in Property Rights whereby every individual may reap the reward of his or her effort, under just laws made by the citizens or their chosen representatives and thus guarantee that there shall be no taxation without representation, no confiscation without compensation, and no invasion without restitution;

"I believe in Civil Rights whereby just government shall derive all its rights and powers from the consent of the governed; whereby all municipal, State or National government shall function for the good of the MANY, not the FEW, and recognize the principle that government exists for the good of the individual and not the individual for the good of Government;

"I believe in Majority Rights whereby the majority shall rule by reason, not riot; by law, not license; by liberty controlled by law; by laws controlled by constitutions;

"I believe in Civic Duties equal to rights and privileges, whereby a government of the people shall require from the people, in peace and war, not MERE ALLEGIANCE but a patriotic devotion and an unselfish service which will make our STARRY BANNER blazon on every sky and glory of human liberty and the spirit of our Republic—wisdom, justice, and moderation—with malice towards none, with charity for all;

"I believe in National Rights whereby the NATION shall be sovereign within its own domain and develop its own culture in so far as customs, institutions, and programs do not MENACE the peace, health, or possessions of other nations; whereby the Nation shall be strong on land and sea, armed to uphold RIGHT and resist WRONG; a prepared people, a union of freemen welded in the unbreakable bonds of individual liberty, collective justice and national honor;

"I believe in International Rights whereby civilized nations acting collectively, shall require all nations to recognize the HIGHER LAW of universal conscience and comity; and shall compel by force those not responsive to such law, to submit to International Public Opinion, operating through a League of Nations formed to enforce Peace and Righteousness and to make the world safe for Democracy.

"Therefore, I believe in Democracy, because such freedom begets robust, independent manhood surcharged with energy, enterprise, and daring. Democracy breeds men and not serfs."

Goverment Operation Of Steel Plants Likely

Government operation of steel plants appeared this week as a possibility to speed up the manufacture of arms.

Whether the Government will put its representatives into the steel plants and operate them on a war program or whether the steel men will voluntarily refuse steel to their peace time customers, depends upon action of a joint committee of steel men and officials of the War Industries Board, in session at Washington.

Some Government officials are insisting upon 100 per cent. of the steel output, entailing complete abolition of non-war use of steel. Steel men doubt the necessity of this and are collecting figures now to prove their contention.

It is possible they will consent to a short time draft by the Government of every pound of steel on condition they be allowed later to supply their non-war customers.

Officials made it plain following the meeting at Washington that they would tolerate no delay. Unless steel men act voluntarily within a brief time officials will exercise their full power under authority of President Wilson and go into the steel plants themselves.

All Loyalists Eligible For Red Cross Service

Denial is made of statements that persons of German antecedents for as far back as three generations are not accepted for foreign service by the Red Cross. General Manager Gibson, of that organization, in a formal announcement, says:

"The statement is entirely repugnant to the purposes and spirit of the organization. While the Red Cross must necessarily be thoroughly satisfied of the unqualified loyalty of its personnel here and abroad, the rule of the Red Cross is that if, after investigation, a person is found to be thoroughly loyal and patriotic, he or she will be enrolled for foreign service, even though of German descent. Each case is determined upon its own merits."

"Over the Top" Here Next Week In Picture Form

"Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey is one of the greatest natural actors ever to come under my supervision," states Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, and producer of "Over to Top," starring Empey, which will be presented at the Plainfield Theatre for four days, commencing next Monday.

This is a significant tribute to the fighting hero of the Somme, for Albert E. Smith is noted as a maker of stars, having introduced to the screen such present-day celebrities as Earl Williams, Harry Morey, Anita Stewart, the Sidney Drews, Clara Kimball Young and innumerable others.

In reply to Mr. Smith's statement, Sergeant Empey merely smiled and said, "The trenches do funny things to a man. A puppy dog might go into them and come out a poet. I don't know what acting it. When I go before the camera, I forget the director, the camera man and the studio. As practically all the scenes of the play are actual episodes I have experienced, the thing is easy for me. I simply live them over again—and get the same thrills I did originally. Sometimes I get too realistic, as when I knocked down two 'German' guards. That's what a fellow would naturally do, if he could, wouldn't he?"

Combination Bill At The Plainfield

For the remainder of the present week, patrons of the Plainfield Theatre are offered a combination bill of a feature photoplay, "Lest We Forget," and new vaudeville acts. This program was shown for the first yesterday afternoon and gained instant favor.

The vaudeville numbers include The Four Marvelous Wells in an absolutely new acrobatic act that keeps that audiences in close attention from start to finish. Ann Walters, a charming comedienne, in a repertoire of character songs, and Shannon and Troise, musical comedy stars.

The United States Government, through its various departments, has given substantial evidence of deep interest in the great Metro screen spectacle, "Lest We Forget."

Because this stupendous spectacle shows many incidents which bear directly on the entry of the United States into the world war, cordial cooperation has been extended to the producers by both military and civil departments.

General Lester, in command of the National Army Camp at Yonkers, New York, furnished a detachment of three hundred troops for service in constructing the trenches used in the battle scenes. These scenes were staged in and near the French village built for this picture. These troops working under the supervision of an American officer, who had become thoroughly familiar with trench construction in France, built the elaborate trench system employed by the Allied forces in defending this village from the invading Germans. So successful was the duplication of the trenches actually used on the French battle front, that the complete work was pronounced perfect when inspected by an officer of the French Army.

In battle scenes of vivid realism, these trenches were occupied by large forces of soldiers and the fighting was the nearest possible approach to actual warfare on the fields of France. After the detailed scenes were staged, the scenes showing the destruction of the village were enacted with great realism. While "German" howitzers belched forth, the village was razed to the ground by gunfire, and the smoking ruins brought home an idea of the devastation of villages in war stricken France.

Sergt. Arthur Guy Empey in Vitagraph's master production, "Over the Top."

Police and Firemen Greatly Pleased By Jump In Salaries

The action of the Common Council in raising the pay of the city police and firemen, which was the principal item of business transacted at Monday night's meeting, has met with the grateful appreciation of every member in the two departments.

As told of in the Record on several occasions, both branches of the municipal service has been greatly hampered of late by frequent resignations because of insufficient pay and a point had been reached where something had to be done. The matter has been under consideration for several months and when the ordinance was presented Monday night it provided an approximate increase of $100 for the men of every class with the exception of those not having three years of service to their credit. The largest raise is given Chief S. Kelly, of the police department, whose pay is advanced from $2,000 to $2,250. The salary of Chief A. D. Jennings is advanced from $1,900 to $2,100. The other increases in the police department are as follows: Captain John Flynn, from $1,550 to $1,600; Lieutenant Higgins, from $1,400 to $1,500; Sergeants Saffron, O'Keefe and Flynn, from $1,300 to $1,400; Class A men, from $1,200 to $1,300; Class B, from $1,150 to $1,250; Class C, from $1,100 to $1,200; Class D, from $1,000 to $1,150; Class E, from $1,000 to $1,050, and Class F, from $950 to $1,000.

The details of the advancement were not worked out until after the Council had held an executive session, when it was decided that the increase should date from January 1 of the present year.

Other business transacted by the Council, Monday night, include the awarding of a contract to Julius J. Stahl, of North Plainfield, for the building of a storm sewer on West Front street, below Clinton avenue, at a cost of $6,419.50. Two other bids were submitted, one by the Newark Paving Company, for $6,802.50, and the other by Ralph Rilly, for $5,531.

Proposals for furnishing fire hose were submitted by the United Globe Rubber Company, $1.15 and $1.06 per foot; Fabric Hose Company, $1.15, $1.10 and $1.05 per foot; Eureka Hose Company, $1.25 and 95 cents per foot; Woodhouse Manufacturing Company, $1.10 per foot, less ten per cent.; Empire Rubber Company, $1.20 per foot. All hose to be guaranteed for three years. The price is based upon 1,000 feet order. The proposals were referred to the Fire and Buildings Committee.

The resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Council authorizing the sale of $38,000 joint sewer bonds was rescinded and another resolution authorizing the sale of these bonds accepted. This was necessary because of some technical error in the wording of the previous resolution, which was objected to by the bond attorney.

Bonds to the amount of $2,500 were authorized to pay for a new steam roller. Those bonds will bear interest at five per cent. They will be issued in denominations of $500 with the exception of one bond which will be for $200. They will be retired between 1920 and 1925.

The action of Corporation Counsel Reed in obtaining a writ of certiorari for a review on the order of the Commissioner of municipal accounts which would oblige this city to raise by taxation this year $23,968.80 to provide a sinking fund for bonds which were originally issued as serial bonds, was approved.

The Weldon Contracting Company was given the contract for resurfacing South avenue, at seventeen cents per square yard.

Councilman Hylan, of the Street Committee, reported back to the Council for filing the petition of residents of Hillcrest avenue, asking that the city accept that street, install sewers and make other improvements. Mr. Hylan stated that the city could not take over that thoroughfare and improve it, but that this must be done by the petitioners.

He also returned for filing the request of J. D. Lotzeanx and others requesting that Sheridan avenue be accepted as a public street. The drainage system on this street is not satisfactory, Mr. Hylan explained, and until it has been made so the Council cannot accept the thoroughfare.

J. ATWOOD GIDDINGS RECEIVES HIS COMMISSION.

J. Atwood Giddings, of 20 Leland avenue, North Plainfield, has been commissioned as lieutenant in the aviation section. He completed his examinations at Princeton and was then transferred to Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas, where he has been receiving his practical instructions in flying. Previous to entering the service, Mr. Giddings was employed as a civil engineer. On the eve of his departure for Kelly Field, his engagement to Miss Ethel Mehl, daughter of Captain and Mrs. George Mehl, of Madison avenue, was announced.

SOCIAL CLUB MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Mary's Social Club will be held next Tuesday evening, May 28. Business of importance will be discussed. All members are requested to be present.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed or typewritten preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same at its meeting to be held June 3, 1918.

JOHN J. CARROLL,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J.,
May 20, 1918.

AN ORDINANCE

to amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to further amend an ordinance entitled an ordinance to create the duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force, approved February 28th, 1882, as amended and supplemented by Chapter 3, 1913,' approved June 7, 1915," which ordinance was approved July 7, 1916.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 1 of the ordinance, the title whereof is recited in the title of this ordinance, be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 2 of the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to create and define the duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force," approved February 28, 1882, as amended and supplemented by Chapter 3, 1913, and is hereby further amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 2. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular policemen and special policemen, each of whom shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this City, as the Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary, and by resolution order to be appointed. The regular policemen shall rank as follows: Chief of Police, Captain, Lieutenant, Sergeants and Patrolmen. Special Policemen shall not be ranked.

The duties of the several members and officers of the said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinances of the City and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Department.

The Patrolmen shall be divided into six (6) classes, viz.:

Class A—Sixth year of service and over.
Class B—Fifth year of service.
Class C—Fourth year of service.
Class D—Third year of service.
Class E—Second year of service.
Class F—First year of service.

Provided that the Common Council upon recommendation of the Police Board may advance a Patrolmen from a lower to a high class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time specified above or not; and upon like recommendation may require a Patrolman in any class except Class A to serve for a longer period than above specified on account of unsatisfactory service during the preceding year.

The salaries of the members of the force who are regular policemen are hereby fixed at the following rates, from and after January 1st, 1918, that is to say:

Chief	$2,250 per annum
Captain	1,600 per annum
Lieutenant	1,500 per annum
Sergeants	1,400 per annum
Patrolmen:
Class A	1,300 per annum
Class B	1,250 per annum
Class C	1,200 per annum
Class D	1,150 per annum
Class E	1,050 per annum
Class F	1,000 per annum

Personal equipment such as revolvers, ammunition, badges, whistles, batons, etc., shall be supplied to each of such officers and policemen free of cost. Each of them, however, shall provide at his own expense all uniforms and other wearing apparel required by the Police Board from time to time required by the Board of Police in compliance with the rules of the Board; provided, that said uniforms and other wearing apparel for Patrolmen who depart from the City of Plainfield (Revision of 1914)" approved December 7, 1916, be and the same is hereby amended as to read as follows:

SECTION 4. The salaries of members of the force are hereby fixed at the following rates from and after January 1, 1918, that is to say:

Chief	$2,100 per annum
Assistant Chief	1,800 per annum
Captain	1,600 per annum
Class A	1,300 per annum
Class B	1,250 per annum
Class C	1,200 per annum
Class D	1,150 per annum
Class E	1,050 per annum
Class F	1,000 per annum

Each member of the force shall provide at his own expense, all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for his use as from time to time required in compliance with the rules of the department, except that said uniforms and other wearing apparel for members who have served their full time may be paid for by the City, which shall be reimbursed for the cost of such purchase by deducting from such members' pay ten per cent. of the purchase price each month until the full amount thereof has been paid back to the City; and all such uniforms and wearing apparel for which the City has advanced the purchase price shall be regarded as the property of the City until the City has been fully reimbursed therefor as above specified.

No special policeman shall be entitled to any pay except for service rendered by virtue of an order of the Board of Police or Mayor specifying such service, and for such service shall be paid only such amount as may be fixed by resolution of the Common Council, or of the Board of Police and approved by the Common Council.

The times from which the several dates of service in the police department of the city are to be computed for the purpose of which the continuous service of said regular policemen, respectively, commenced, and Lieutenant, Sergeants and Patrolmen shall be paid at said rates for the number of full days only of service actually performed by them respectively, and for such vacation periods as from time to time the Board of Police may determine; except that they severally may, at the discretion of the Board of Police, be paid for any time not exceeding two weeks during which they severally shall be incapacitated from the performance of duty by reason of sickness or other physical disability; but if absent for any reason for more than two weeks, they shall be paid only as and as authorized by the Common Council.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed or typewritten preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same at its meeting to be held June 3, 1918.

Anti-Loafing Law Interests Other States

Frequent inquiries received by Governor Edge respecting the provisions and operation of New Jersey's "anti-loafer law" indicate that the statute is viewed with interest throughout the country.

One of the recent requests on the subject came from Charles H. Hartshorn, of the Massachusetts Legislature, who announced his purpose of introducing such a measure, in his State. Enactment of such a law is also being advocated in Michigan, where the subject has been taken up by L. J. Carr, one of the editors of the Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record of Detroit.

Another Warning Of Coal Shortage

Further warning of another coal shortage in the East, even more serious than that of last winter, unless there is an early readjustment of traffic on eastern railroads, is made by the National Coal Association.

"The enormous demands of other war industries are crowding coal off the rails," said the announcement, "and the resultant continued shortage of cars at the mines has cut production to the danger point.

"This is the season of the year when the mines should be working at top speed to produce stocks for shortage against the needs of next fall and winter. The mines, however, are not working at a rate even approaching top speed.

"In the face of the heaviest demand for coal in the country's history, the mines have been so hindered by insufficient car supply that they have made little if any headway over last year's record—a record which fell 50,000,000 tons short of meeting the nation's demands.

"It would seem that the time has come for the War Industries Board or whoever is running the war to decide upon a readjustment of traffic over the eastern railroads so that coal may be handled in sufficient tonnage to take care of the industrial and domestic requirements of the eastern States."

G. A. R. Veterans Defy Inclement Weather To Honor Departed Comrades

In much the same way as they faced discouraging obstacles way back in the days of '61, Plainfield's G. A. R. men braved yesterday's miserable weather to carry out their traditional observance of Decoration Day.

Neither heavy rains nor drizzling mist deterred the gray-haired old soldiers from visiting the cemeteries in this vicinity to place flowers on the graves of departed comrades or to fire the salute in honor of those who have heard "taps" sounded for the last time. The old warriors who maintained the integrity of the nation when it was threatened more than half a century ago also walked through the muddy streets in proud procession as an inspiration to the young people who are hearing martial bugle calls today. Afterward in the afternoon they rallied at Reform Hall, where, in the presence of a capacity gathering of people, they renewed their pledges of loyalty to the Government and with their friends enjoyed a program of addresses, songs and recitations.

The parade yesterday morning was one of the best the members of Winfield Scott Post have conducted in a long time. Three bands of music, the boys' band of the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, of Staten Island, the Liberty Band and the local Italian Society Band, furnished inspiring music. In the line of marchers which followed these organizations were the Plainfield and North Plainfield Home Defense Leagues, Jr. O. U. A. M. military company, the Plainfield and North Plainfield Boy Scouts and the old veterans of the G. A. R. themselves. Of the last named, there are only forty-seven remaining in Winfield Scott Post, but nearly every one of them was on hand to join in the annual demonstration. All along the line of march, the procession was applauded by hundreds of enthusiastic citizens who were especially demonstrative when the fast thinning complement of Civil War heroes came in view. At the exercises in Reform Hall in the afternoon the principal speaker was Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, who gave a most inspiring address on patriotic principles. School children, under the supervision of Mrs. John Manley, sang songs and recited and in conclusion Rev. Walter J. Mitchell gave the benediction. The exercises were in charge of Captain William C. Smith, commander of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R.

Dr. Swaffield was so greatly pleased with the fervid manner in which the children rendered the patriotic airs and other songs that he invited Mrs. Manley to have her little group repeat them at the Park Avenue Baptist church next Sunday night. The invitation was accepted and the children's contributions will be a feature of the service. The veterans attended the Park Avenue Baptist church last Sunday night, when Dr. Swaffield preached a special sermon.

The boys' band of the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, Mount Loretto, Staten Island, of thirty-five pieces, under the leadership of Major Peirce, which led yesterday's procession, is one of the most famous boy bands in the country. It is the most sought after in all the great parades in New York city, and there has never been a parade of any magnitude, from a woman's suffrage to a Memorial Day parade to honor the country's heroes, that it has not had the lead. The band is handsomely uniformed and equipped and the music it plays is always of the best and inspiring.

The famous orphans' home from which these boys come located at Mount Loretto, Staten Island, near Pleasant Plains and directly on the bay, and besides being the most famous it is the greatest home in the country for the protection of homeless and destitute children.

Here the destitute little ones from the great city and surrounding towns, regardless of creed or color, are sent and cared for in the most beautiful and healthful country in the hills of Staten Island in the most up-to-date buildings where everything for child care is provided.

From infancy up the child is cared for, and after the kindergarten age is passed is schooled under the direction of the educational department of the city, and later on each child is taught a trade of business, the boys farming, printing, machinery, shoemaking and the skilled trades, and the girls housekeeping, millinery, dressmaking, stenography and typewriting, etc.

Also the blind children who have a separate building of their own, are taught means for self support, and the colored children are cared for at a separate institution at Rye, N. Y.

The institution at Mount Loretto consists of a number of dormitory buildings separate for the sexes, a number of trades buildings, a beautiful church, and an extensive farm on which is raised all the vegetables for the institution. Most all of the buildings were built with the mechanical aid of the boys themselves thus getting a practical apprenticeship in their trade.

After the boys graduate and enter the life of the world the mission provides a great home at Lafayette and Great Jones streets, where at nominal rates they can board.

The institution is under the direction of the Rev. Mallick J. Fitzpatrick, who has brought it up to its present high standard of efficiency.

It was founded by the late Father Drumgoole, who was himself brought up in the midst of the poor in New York City, and saw the necessity of such a work, while serving as a dry goods clerk in the old Grand street section. On the death of his mother he entered the priesthood, serving among the parishes in New York, and finally with the aid of a childless old couple on Staten Island, who donated the ground to him, he started his life's project, which now shelters the greatest number of homeless and destitute children.

More Plainfield Selectives Entering Service Tomorrow

Six more Plainfield young men will enter the service of selectives tomorrow, five of them going to Fort Slocum and the remaining one going to Camp Dix. No send-off demonstration is to occur as the farewell for the six was included in the reception and parade arranged for the fifty-eight who departed last Wednesday morning.

The five who go to Fort Slocum tomorrow are Francis J. Kohler, David Preger, William J. Mahoney, Clinton F. Reeder, and David D. Cway, all of Plainfield. The lone selectee going to Camp Dix is John T. Donnelly, of 640 West Fourth street, who has been employed as fireman on the New Jersey Central and has been taken for Government railroad work in France.

The farewell accorded the fifty-eight selectives on Wednesday was one of the best that has been conducted by the Citizens' Committee. The young men, together with those going tomorrow, were given a supper at the Y. M. C. A., Tuesday night. Members of the Daughters of Isabella served the repast. At the conclusion addresses were given by city officials and others and comfort kits and souvenirs were distributed. In the parade to the station, Wednesday morning, the Liberty Band and the local Italian Band furnished music while relatives walker in the procession by the side of the selectives. The crowd at the North avenue depot as the 9:38 train pulled out numbered in the thousands.

Chairman John J. Yarley announced today that the Citizens' Committee is still short of funds to carry on farewell demonstrations. Others are coming in the near future and they entail an expense which must be met. Plainfielders are asked to send in their contributions, any amount, no matter how small being acceptable. Mr. Yarley declares that he and the members of his committee are willing to give all the time necessary to arranging farewells but they must be backed up by financial assistance.

The committee wishes to extend its thanks to the Liberty Band, St. Mary's Fife and Drum Corps, the Home Guards and all others who have been donating their services and helping in the demonstrations that have been sending the boys away with smiling faces.

Wood Men In Service Honored By Flag Raising

On Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock the factory whistle blew meaning thereby for the men for a time to stop work at the plant of the Wood Newspaper Machinery Corporation on South Second street, when the officials of the company, the heads of departments and the two hundred employees and their friends assembled on the Grant avenue entrance to the works, for the purpose of raising "Old Glory" to the breeze. Recently the employees raised a fund for the purchase of a large American flag to wave over the plant, and to represent the loyalty of the men to their country. The Wood Newspaper Machinery Corporation furnished a fine sixty foot pole, and a service flag, and the ceremonies incident to the raising were conducted by the president of the corporation, Henry A. Wise Wood, who addressed the assembly in a very impressive, vigorous and patriotic statement concerning our relation to the great world war now in progress. He expressed his appreciation of the opportunity to thus meet his associates in business, and commended them for their patriotism and loyalty in unfurling the flag, that flag which has been our defence and protection in the past, and which it is now our high privilege to defend and protect in its hour of peril. Mr. Wood stated that from his large experience in addressing the people of our country he was confident all our people now felt that this war could not and would not be won by words, but must and would be won by the makers of machines; the machines themselves, and the men behind the machines, whom we must support to our utmost ability. Three rousing cheers were given Mr. Wood for his patriotic address.

At the close of Mr. Wood's remark the American Flag and the service flag with its eleven Stars were flung to the breeze, and the factory whistle blew eleven short blasts in honor of the men now in the service from the plant namely: James Kelly, Otto Moor, Jr., Frank Moor, William Clarkson, Carl Fuchs, Peter Benson, Raymond Mosher, Duncan Patterson, James Wilson, F. J. Yelle, E. A. Rehm.

Then followed a spirited adddress by Charles M. Raybert, of this city, on the Civil War and its history, and lauding the spirit of '61 as now manifested in 1918. He closed by reciting the following famous poem by Geo. M. Vickers entitled:

"The Proud Flag of Freedom."

"The proud flag of freedom, unsullied, behold
How cluster about it the glories of years,
As skyward and westward, 'mid purple and gold,
In the land of the unset, its home, it appears.
America's token of faith never broken
Sweet signal that flutters o'er mountain and sea;
That mutely repeats what our fathers have spoken,
That tells the oppressed they may come and be free.

"O proud flag of freedom, hoy swells with delight
The breast of the wand'rer who meets thee afar;
What home-visions come with the gladdening sight,
And how fond dwells his eye on each stripe and each star!
Thus be it forever, while oceans may sever,
Or fate hold in exile, a man from our shore!
Tho' fairer the clime, an American never Forgets his own colors, but loves them the more

Thou proud flag of freedom, so lovely in peace,
So awfully grand in the dread crash of war,
Be ever unfaded 'till nations shall cease,
While there's room in the blue for another bright star:
From danger defending, still onward, ascending;
The hope of mankind and the envy of none:
E Pluribus Unum, our motto transcending,
Till earth's constellations are blendedin one!"

At the close of the recitation the employes resumed their work with renewed feelings of loyalty to the flag and all that the flag represents.

NEW PETIT JURORS.

The following Plainfielders will serve as members of the Union County Petit Jury during the May term of court: Dilliam Coriell, Henry E. Allen, Arthur Organ, Carl Silbert, S. H. Patterson, James L. Pope, William L. Lockwood and Albert H. Enander.

GLEE CLUB CONCERT.

The Y. M.-C. A. Glee clubs of Plainfield, comprising a membership of 150 men and women, will give a concert at Camp Raritan, Monday night.

Machinists Seek Raise In Wages

Believing the trade to be underpaid for the skilled work it is performing, Plainfield's machinists have commenced a movement to have their wage scale advanced from a minimum of fifty-six cents an hour to a minimum of seventy-five cents. The first steps were taken at a meeting of Local No. 367, I. A. M., last Monday night when the matter was discussed in preliminary form. It will be gone into in detail at a second gathering the coming Monday night at which time District Agent Hugh Reilly, of Newark, will be present to arrange a course of proceedure. One local shop, the Wood Printing Machinery Company, has already granted the request and the present movement is to be directed particularly against the Pond, Scott and Sauer shops, all three of these are turning out munitions and the government rate for machinists is thirty-seven and a half cents an hour but only a few of the men are receiving this amount.

In support of their campaign for better wages, the machinists point out that the present cost of living is nearly 100 per cent more than what it was two years ago and that in addition their earning capacity has advanced only forty per cent. Under the circumstances they cannot maintain their families in accordance with the established methods of American standards. Furthermore it is shown that ordinary laborers are demanding and receiving fifty cents an hour, only six cents below the minimum for skilled mechanics who spend four years acquiring their trade and upon whose efforts the government depend for needed ordnance.

The impression prevails that the increase of nineteen cents an hour will be given by the Plainfield shops as there are about 3,000 men concerned and any delay in production at this time would interfere with army and navy plans. In the event of a refusal by the factory owners the International Association of Machinists will handle the situation.

Elks' Red Cross Dance Nets $300

The treasury of the Plainfield and North Plainfield chapter of the Red Cross will be about $300 richer as a result of the dance given by Plainfield Lodge of Elks in the High School auditorium, Wednesday night.

Fully 700 people were in attendance and in every way the affair was a complete success. In addition to the many Plainfielders attending there were also delegations from Westfield, Cranford, Scotch Plains and Somerville. Van Epa Brothers' banjo provided the musical program which did not terminate until 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

During the evening "flower prizes" of five dollars in gold and two dollars and a-half in gold, contributed by Exalted Ruler James W. Hart, were awarded. The first went to A. F. Eaton and the second to Fire Chief Andrew D. Jennings.

The Elks' committee which arranged and conducted the affair was composed of Frank R. Simmons, chairman; Herman Kling, Thomas A. Moore, Hillaire Blatz and George McVoy. They were assisted by a sub-committee of ten, headed by William C. Mulvey and a corps of women friends of the organization.

No Cause For Action In $10,000 Damage Suit

A jury in the Union County Court, Wednesday morning, brought in a verdict of no cause for action in the suit for $10,000 damages brought by George Sheing, Jr., of this city, against Ellis Potter, also of Plainfield.

The action was the result of an accident on Park avenue, near Evergreen avenue, on December 2, last. Sheing, who was riding a motorcycle, was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Potter. On the stand he contended that the collision was the fault of Potter and a number of witnesses gave testimony to this effect. The most important evidence was given by Wallace Zimmerman, near whose home on Park avenue, the accident took place. The case was heard by Judge George Siller and the jury was out only a short time.

Sheing was represented by Robert Newton Crane, while Frederick Pearse, of Elizabeth, appeared for Potter.

LIEUT. AGAR PROMOTED.

George Agar, of Stone street, the borough, has just been promoted to first lieutenant of Company H, 114th Infantry, at Anniston. His wife received word Wednesday of his advancement. Before going to Camp McClellan with Company K, Lieut. Agar was employed as carrier at the Plainfield postoffice.

Liberty Tag Day Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the date set for Liberty tag day, the occasion on which Plainfielders are to be asked for their annual contribution to Muhlenberg Hospital.

Five hundred young women will be on the streets if the city from early in the morning until late at night, exchanging a "Liberty Tag" for whatever coin or bill the receiver cares to give. Everyone will be asked to contribute and as the cause is one of the worthiest of home institu*tions it is believed the responses will* be very generous. A large portion of the money contributed tomorrow is to be used in preparing seventy-five beds for wounded soldiers or sailors who may return to Plainfield during the progress of the war. This will be in addition to Muhlenberg's regular care of the sick and unfortunate, the daily record frequently averaging about 100.

It is realized that the citizens of this community have been asked to give of their means quite frequently during the past year but Muhlenberg's annual tag day has been set for a long time. The expenses of the institution go on no matter what takes place in the outside world and just at present the Advanced cost of the supplies has become a grave demands upon the governing body, consequently the tags will be offered tomorrow in the full belief that the citizens will appreciate the need of hospital funds.

The arrangements for the tag day have been arranged and will be directly in charge of the Women's Auxiliary. All the young women who will ask for contributions are volunteers.

Public Service Given Ultimatum By Trolley Men

The Public Service Railway Company has until next Wednesday night to decide whether it will grant an increase in wages to the trolleymen of all divisions to forty-five cents an four, with sixty cents an hour for overtime, and also heed their demand to arrange women as conductors. In the event of a refusal the men, in the language used at a meeting held in Newark, Wednesday night, will "walk out," or "quit." The word "strike" was not used during the discussion. More than 1,000 trolleymen united in the action taken.

The trolleymen, who met Wednesday night in Bay View Wheelmen's Hall in South Sixth street, Newark, will meet again next Wednesday night in the same place to hear the company's answer. The reason for the extension of time is because the board of directors of the Public Service Corporation, which controls the railway company, will meet next Tuesday afternoon. The trolleymen are operating on a sliding scale at present from twenty-eight to thirty-four cents an hour.

Before taking this action the men had decided to quit their jobs today if the women conductors went on the cars. They changed this program after General Superintendent Newton W. Bolen, of the company, promised them two cents more an hour, beginning tomorrow, and maybe a further *increase if the Public Utilities Com*mission grants the company the relief it is asking for.

"Bill" Deady Enlists In Engineers Corps

William Raymond Deady, son of Mrs. John Deady, 329 Liberty street, left Plainfield on Wednesday morning, for Fort Slocum.

"Bill" for a long time had a longing to enlist in the Engineering Corps, but was unable to do so on account of his age. Wednesday was his eighteenth birthday and he set that date to go to camp.

Frank Harding, of John street, and James McCarthy, of West Fifth street, also enlisted in the Engineering Corps and left at the same time for Fort Slocum.

A large number of friends were at the station Wednesday morning to send the boys away with a smile.

They expect to be stationed at Fort Slocum for one month and then go to Spartanburg, S. C. They figure six months' training will thoroughly fit them for service "Over There."

Judge DeMeza Gives Warning To Trolley Men

Magistrate Declares Police Will Make Arrest In Future During Trial Of Crew In Charge Of Car Which Leaped Track On May 16

The practice of motormen in speeding their cars through this city at a rate exceeding the ordinance limit of fifteen miles and hour was severely censured by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, when George Wecsey and Samuel Heller, a crew of the Union line trolley which leaped the track on West Front street, near Oxford place, on May 16, were arraigned before him.

Witnesses declared that Wecsey, who was motorman, was rushing his car along at fully thirty-five miles an hour and that when it struck a bad joint in a real and plunged to the sidewalk curb, the impact was terrific. Wecsey admitted that he was proceeding above the fifteen mile limit but asserted that it was not as much as spectators declared. Heller was made a co-defendant in the action because he was in charge of the car and should not have permitted Wecsey to proceed as he did. He also acknowledged that the conveyance was proceeding at much more than fifteen miles an hour. When the crash occurred, an iron trolley pole was knocked from its base but served to prevent the car from plunging into a high terrace bordering West Front street property at that point. As it was seven of the thirty passengers were hurt, two of them quite seriously. Wecsey and Heller emerged with only slight scratches. They were represented in court by counsel from the Public Service legal office but no defense was made when the complaint was read.

In disposing of the case, Judge DeMeza said that the attention of the authorities had been called to the trolley speeding on West Front street and he asserted that the safety of citizens demanded a discontinuance. The accident on May 16, he said, had fortunately caused no fatalities but such good luck might not happen again. As the present case was the first on record where trolley crews had been arrested, the magistrate said he would suspend sentence on Wecsey and Heller, but in the future the police would keep a watch on the local trolley lines. The ordinance prohibits a rate of more than fifteen miles in front of houses that are less than 100 feet apart and the provision will be strictly enforced from now on.

Lieut. Hibbard Returns Home With War Cross

Bringing with him the French war cross pinned on his uniform after he had been cited for bravery on the battlefield, Lieutenant Lyman C. Hibbard, of this city, arrived in New York yesterday after a year and a half of service on the western front. He was ordered at once to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hibbard, of 144 East Seventh street, where he is to enjoy a brief rest before reporting at Camp Merritt, Tenafly, for further service. He is to be sent to an American camp for the purpose of giving communication instructions to newly commissioned officers, the Government having selected him for this purpose because of his especial fitness and practical experience.

It was late in 1916 that Lieutenant Hibbard decided to aid the cause of world democracy by enlisting in the ambulance service of the allied army. His country had not declared war on the German invader at that time but he felt that he was needed and gave up all personal affairs and comforts to do what he could for suffering humanity. From the very moment of his arrival on the devastated western front, he was put into the trick of the work and what he has already done through stands as a record for Plainfield gallantry. Time and again, the young ambulance driver, barely escaped with his life and on one occasion when he disregarded his own safety to rescue others, he was reported to the French War Office for his noble action. Shortly after, one of the high French officials conferred the coveted Croix de Guerre upon him, the French military symbol of bravery and gallantry.

Directly after America entered the conflict, Lieutenant Hibbard secured permission to take examinations abroad for an officer's commission and he successfully met the necessary requirements. After being made second lieutenant, he was sent up to the front with the first battalion of United States men who charged the enemy from the front line trenches and impressed upon the Huns that the most determined foe of war was beginning the drive that would send them back to Berlin and free the world from oppression for all time. Although in the thick of numerous fights, Lieutenant Hibbard returned to the rest camps without any serious wounds and comes back to Plainfield in splendid health.

The Government is in need of men with practical experience for the teaching of communication work and the young Plainfielder was among the number picked to come back home for that purpose. He will be assigned to a camp possibly during the coming week.

HOPE CHAPEL FESTIVAL

The Ladies Aid Society of Hope Chapel has fixed upon Friday night, June 14 as the date for its annual ice cream and strawberry festival. The affair will take place in the chapel grounds and include a program to be announced later.

LIEUT. TAYLOR IN LONDON.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Taylor, of North Plainfield, received a cable yesterday from their son, Lieutenant W. P. Taylor, of the aviation section of the Signal Corps, that he had arrived in London. His brother, Corporal Taylor, is in France.

Vice Chancellor Untangles Local Mortgage Knot

Vice Chancellor Foster at Newark Wednesday, straightened out a mortgage tangle that grew out of the failure on the part of the late Robert B. Brand, of Plainfield, to deliver to Lewis C. Van Nest, of this city, for satisfaction a $2,000 mortgage, upon the execution of Van Nest to Brand of a $4,000 mortgage on the same property. The vice chancellor held that the $4,000 mortgage was to have taken the place of the $2,000lien, and that Brand's failure to cancel the latter had been due to an illness which befell him soon after the execution of the substitutionary lien, which illness proved mortal.

The $2,000 mortgage was executed by Van Nest to Brand on January 30, 1909, and on June 22 of that same year he executed the $4,000 mortgage to Brand. William R. Codington, of Codington & Blatz, testified that Brand brought the later instrument to his office in Plainfield in the summer of 1909, and told him that it was to take the place of the earlier lien, but was not to cancel it. Brand told him further, Codington testified, that he was about to go to Florida, and on his arrival there he would send on the $2,000 mortgage, which he had in a trunk in his *winter home. Brand started for Flo*rida in the early fall and died there in October of that year, without having sent the mortgage to Plainfield.

A peculiar circumstance was that it was provided in the $4,000 mortgage that upon the death of the mortgagee (Brand) interest on the lien was to stop and remain in abeyance until the death of the mortgagor (Van Nest).

In the suit both The Christian Herald and the Christian Herald's Children's Home were named as co-defendants, Brand having left the residue of his estate, amounting to between $5,000 and $6,000, to the home. Brand's estate was valued at about $30,000. He lived for many years at Central avenue and West Third street in what is now known at the Carney property.

In the court action W. S. Axtleman represented the Christian Herald and the Christian Herald's Children's Home.

Miscellaneous Shower For Miss McCarthy

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Margaret McCarthy at the home of Myrtle Dunn, South avenue, a few evenings ago.

The affair was a complete surprise to Miss McCarthy. Singing and dancing were the features of the evening. Solos were rendered by Miss Mary Donnelly and Miss Nan Beattie accompanied by Miss Myrtle Dunn.

Among those present were the Misses Margaret McCarthy, Myrtle Dunn, Mary Donnelly, Anna Ellis, Nan Beattie, Madge Leacock, May Woods, Mae Mottley, Lena Krasmer, Marion Harrington, Anna Reynolds, Hazel Hogan and Irene Miller; Mrs. M. Harrold, Mrs. F. Van Arsdale, Mrs. Andrew McCarthy, Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. F. Scott and Mrs. James Beattie.

Miss McCarthy, who is another A. C. member to leave the "ranks" is to be married to Harry Gould, of West Third street, on Wednesday morning, June 12.

PLAINFIELD'S HONOR ROLL

AFTER MANY WEEKS OF PATIENT AND PERSEVERING EFFORT, WILLIAM M. WHERRY, JR., OF 927 CENTRAL AVENUE, HAS GOTTEN PLAINFIELD'S HONOR ROLL OF YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN IN THE NATION'S SERVICE TO A POINT WHERE HE CAN FIX A DEFINITE NUMBER FOR THE CITY'S PROPOSED SERVICE FLAG. THE AGGREGATE STANDS AT THE AMAZING TOTAL OF 1,050, CONSIDERABLY MORE THAN HAS BEEN ESTIMATED BY PERSONS SUPPOSED TO BE IN A POSITION TO KNOW THE EXTENT OF THIS COMMUNITY'S RESPONSE TO THE COUNTRY'S CALL.

THE RECORD IS TODAY PUBLISHING THE HONOR ROLL FOR THE LAST TIME, BELIEVING THAT IT HAS BEEN CORRECTED SO FAR AS POSSIBLE AT PRESENT. IT MUST BE BORNE IN MIND THAT THE LIST DOES NOT CONTAIN THE NAME OF ANY SOLDIER, SAILOR OR NURSE LIVING IN NORTH PLAINFIELD, DUNELLEN, SCOTCH PLAINS, FANWOOD, WATCHUNG, SOUTH PLAINFIELD OR ANY OF THE OTHER SUBURBAN DISTRICTS, NEITHER IS IT SUPPOSED TO INCLUDE YOUNG MEN OR WOMEN DOING Y. M. C. A. OR KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS SECRETARIAL WORK, OR IN RED CROSS OR RECONSTRUCTION UNITS OTHER THAN THOSE LISTED AS ARMY OR NAVY EMPLOYES. IF ANY SUCH ARE FOUND IN THE LIST IT IS BECAUSE THEY HAVE BEEN INSERTED THROUGH ERROR. THE REQUEST IS MADE OF ALL READERS OF THE RECORD TO SCAN THE LIST AND IF ANY NAMES ARE FOUND THAT DO NOT BELONG IN THE ROLL, PLEASE COMMUNICATE AT ONCE WITH MR. WHERRY. IT HAS BEEN A TREMENDOUS TASK TO COMPILE THE ROSTER BUT IF NO ONE HAS BEEN SLIGHTED MR. WHERRY WILL FEEL MORE THAN REPAID FOR ALL THE TROUBLE TO WHICH HE HAS GONE. OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. ADELARD ALLARD.

Mrs. Mary A. Allard, wife of Adelard Allard, of 218 Pond place, died Sunday morning in Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation for the removal of a goiter performed two weeks previous. Her condition was serious from the start and her death had been expected for several days before the end came.

Mrs. Allard was in her forty-sixth year and had lived in Plainfield practically all her life. She was twice married, her first husband being the late James McClinton, who was employed for many years at the Potter Press Works. Beside her second husband, Mr. Allard, the well-known roofing contractor, the deceased is survived by three sons, and six daughters. They are: James McClinton, of West Third street; Mrs. Margaret MaGuire, of Brooklyn; William McClinton, a member of the 271st Bombing Squadron, at present located at Elington Field, Tex.; Winifred McClinton, John McClinton, Sarah McClinton, Katrine McClinton, Myrtle Allard and Hazel Allard, all living at the parental home on Pond place.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church this morning, the late date being fixed upon in order to permit William McClinton to attend the service, he having left Texas, Monday morning, following the receipt of a telegram telling him of his mother's death. Rev. Father Hennessey officiated at the mass, which was largely attended. Many handsome floral tributes attested to the love and esteem in which Mrs. Allard was held by family and friends. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

MRS. KATE McCARTER.

The funeral of Mrs. Kate McCarter, whose death occurred Saturday afternoon at the home of her nephew, John A. Krisey, of Evona avenue, was held at the latter's residence, Tuesday afternoon. The service was largely attended by relatives and friends and was conducted by Rev. Ernest R. Brown, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church. Burial was in the cemetery at Scotch Plains.

Mrs. McCarter was a native of Warren township and had lived in Plainfield but a short time. She leaves no near relatives beside Mr. Krisey.

MRS. CHARLES R. VINCENT.

The funeral of Mrs. Edythe R. Vincent, wife of Charles R. Vincent, whose death occured at her home, at 221 East Seventh street, Sunday morning from a complication of troubles, was held at the late home Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Walter J. Swaffield, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, where the deceased had been a devoted worker, was in charge and many relatives and friend were present. Burial was in Hillside cemetery. Mrs. Vincent was born in Brooklyn, the daughter of William and Isabella Richardson. Through her mother she was able to trace her ancestry back to William Penn and Sir Christopher Wren, the famous builder of S. Paul's Cathedral, London, England.

The pallbearers were John H. Doane, Isaac R. Giles, Judge William N. Runyon, Harry Runyon, Louis R. Schofield, and George E. Hall, all officials of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Educated in the city of her birth, she became a member of the old Bedford Avenue Baptist church at the age of 14, and continued there as a most earnest and active member for many years. She never allowed her church obligations to take second place. Her church duties came first, as her devotion to her Master was supreme. She was married to Mr. Vincent in the year 1897, and lived for awhile in Fanwood, uniting with the Scotch Plains Baptist church, and by her tireless and loving service won the appreciation and esteem of all. She was for a long time a student of the Bible Training School, of New York, and won a high place there as a diligent student and faithful worker.

In 1916 she became a member of the Park Avenue BBaptist church of this city, and by her beautiful Christian spirit and devoted activities won all hearts to her support in the many departments of the church work into which she threw her whole heart and soul. The whole church city will be inspired by the memory of her faithfulness to her Master's cause.

She was a true and devoted wife, and a noble Christian mother, whose best legacy to the husband, three children and sister, who are left, is that of a shining Christian character. She leaves her husband Charles R. Vincent, her sons Charles Richard Vincent, Jr., Chester Massey Vincent and a daughter, Edythe Vincent, also an only sister, Mrs. J. A. Van Brakle. She did what she could for home, church and country and her reward is great.

THEIR HOME BRIGHTENED

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Garret A. Keating, of Lee place, has been brightened by the arrival on Wednesday morning of a baby daughter. Mrs. Keating was formerly Miss Margaret McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCarthy, of Lee place.

Co. Agent Appointed To Help Gardeners

Owing to the need for increased food production this year the United States Government is cooperating with the various State Agricultural Colleges throughout the country in an effort to stimulate planting and to control insects and diseases. Last year many people started gardens for the first time with the idea of raising their own vegetables as a patriotic duty. Many of these gardens failed due to the lack of knowledge in the selection of soil, the application of fertilizers and the proper distance and depth to plant the seeds.

This year the U. S. Department of Agriculture is planning Assistant County Agents in the various counties to assist in the garden work. His duties are to establish demonstration gardens in various parts of the cities and towns throughout the county and to assist in planning individual gardens whenever possible, and to give advice on the control of insects and diseases throughout the growing season.

The demonstration gardens are to be centrally located home gardens so situated that they can be seen and are easily accessible. The owner of the garden agrees to apply fertilizer and lime as suggested by the Assistant County Agent. He agrees to make a plan of his garden and submit it to the Assistant County Agent for his approval in the selection of varieties, arrangement of the vegetables in the garden and distance between rows. In short the owner of the demonstration garden agrees to do everything he can to make the garden a living example of how a garden should be planted.

In return for the assistance given by the Assistant County Agent the owner will allow him to give demonstrations wherever advisable. Thus by actually seeing how things are done other gardeners have a chance to receive valuable information on things that often mean failure if neglected. Several gardens have already been selected and more are being considered, the final selection to be made in the very near future.

George D. Musser has been appointed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and State Extension Department at New Brunswick to act as Assistant County Agent for Union county. Mr. Musser is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State College in the course in Agronomy and has had practical experience in all lines of agriculture. His principal work will be with individual home gardens, but he is ready at all times to give whatever assistance possible n school or community gardens and also in general farm problems.

Mr. Musser is located in the Court House at Elizabeth in the office of the County Superintendent of Schools and may be reached by 'phone—Elizabeth 2147. Mr. Musser is in the county to render service—use him.

Ringling Brothers' Circus Coming Soon

Word comes that Ringling Brothers' mammoth circus is to exhibit afternoon and night at Plainfield, Tuesday, June 18.

Always the leaders in introducing the newest and greatest features the famous showmen this season announce the most remarkable program of their career. There is a brand new spectacle of gigantic proportions entitled "In Days of Old." Produced on the biggest stage ever built, it tells the story of the golden age of Ivanhoe, Robin Hood and King Arthur. An entire trainload of scenery is carried. The cast numbers 1,250 actors and there is an entrancing ballet of 200 dancing girls. A thousand trunks sensations follow the spectacle on the main tent program. There are great troupes of seals, dogs and monkeys that walk on tight ropes and ride horseback; herds of elephants in all new tricks; international athletes in feats of amazing strength; slides for life from tent-top to the ground by men suspended by the hair, and one—the great Hillary—who "jumps the gap" with skates attached to his head. The world's greatest stars, such as May Wirth, who leaps from the ground to galloping steed with baskets tied to her feet, are presented in great number. There are twice as many clowns as before, a menagerie of 1,000 splendid animals and, to introduce the holiday, an all new street parade three miles long.

FIRE DESTROYS GARAGE

A small frame garage in the rear of an unoccupied house on Monroe avenue near Eighth street belonging to A. Nathanson, was destroyed by fire Wednesday night. Neighbors saw the flames shortly after 10 o'clock and telephoned Fire Headquarters but the garage was beyond saving before the apparatus arrived. The blaze was undoubtedly of incendiary origin and caused a loss of about $200.

PLAINFIELD N. J., FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1918.

CORPORATION COUNSEL REED'S WRIT OF CERTIORARI.

In entering the Supreme Court to contest the order of State Commissioner of Municipal Accounts Walter Darby that Plainfield place $23,068.60 in its sinking fund account to care for serial bonds maturing in later years, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed has taken a vital and most important step. Not only will it prevent a rise of six or seven points in the city's tax rate this year, but should he be successful in his undertaking, tax rates for the next few years will also be lessened and the burden of expense for improvements lifted from the shoulders of the present generation to those coming later who are to benefit in a more marked degree by what has been done now. If Plainfield's legal representative succeeds in establishing his point to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court the effect will be State-wide and of untold benefit to the communities which have so far submitted to similar orders.

The first intimation of what Mr. Reed was doing was made known to the public last week after the regular Council meeting but as the lay mind is not quick to grasp legal phraseology, the full import of the matter has not as yet "struck home." In simple language the proposition is this:

Prior to 1917 bonds which could be legally issued by New Jersey municipalities were of two kinds: One called "sinking fund" bonds, which would all fall due at one time and which must be met by a fund raised by taxation in each year from the date of issue to the date of maturity. The other, called "serial bonds," which were so issued as to fall due in installments annually, beginning several years after the date of issue. In the case of serial bonds the money to pay each installment is raised by taxes in the year immediately before the installment falls due. Thus suppose an issue of $100,000 of serial bonds for sewer purposes was made June 1, 1910, payable $5,000 on January 1, 1920, and $5,000 on each succeeding January first until 1940. No money would be raised except for interest until the year 1919, when $5,000 would be included in the tax levy to meet the bonds maturing in Jan., 1920. Serial bonds bring better prices than sinking fund bonds, because money invested in sinking funds may be lost during the long period it is accumulating so there will be no money to meet the bonds at maturity, while the money raised to pay the serial bond is promptly turned over to the bond holder.

In 1917 the Legislature passed a statue which defined serial bonds to be only those which began to mature during the first quarter of the period between the date of the bond and the date of the last maturity. In other words the $100,000 of bonds dated June 1, 1910, and payable in installments beginning January 1, 1920, and ending January 1, 1940, would not be serial according to that definition because payments did not begin within seven and a half years. And the statute provided that if the bond is not serial, a sinking fund must be raised to meet it. The Commissioner of Municipal Accounts ruled that this statute applies to bonds issued before it was adopted and ordered Plainfield to include in its 1918 tax levy $23,068.60 toward a sinking fund to meet bonds payable in installments in future years, which bonds were issued years ago and were clearly serial bonds at that time. This would boost Plainfield's tax rate this year seven or eight points to raise money which will not be needed for years to come.

From these facts it is possible to see why Plainfield's tax rate will take an unexpected jump if Mr. Darby's order is to be followed out. This city has a large number of bonds that were issued in the belief that the first payments would not be made for ten or twenty years. No provision was made for meeting any of the payments this year, as the financial budget was made up before the legislative act was passed, consequently when the State Commissioner instructed the Council to appropriate $23,068.60 for the sinking fund it found the finance committee unprepared for any such action. The budget for this year has been arranged and to add such a large amount will not only cause considerable manipulation in finances but also boost the taxes for a "slam" of six or seven points.

The pivotal point on which Mr. Reed is basing his argument is the contention that the legislative act did not apply to bonds that were issued previous to the enactment of the law. From now on, as the Corporation Counsel explained, the finance committee of the Council will know what to do in arranging to pay for city improvements but it must not be held accountable for sudden tax increases that it had no intimation was coming.

Mr. Darby, however, insists that the act applies to bonds that were issued previous to 1918 and for that reason asserts that Plainfield must appropriate $23,068.60 at once for future payments. Immediately after his order was received in Plainfield, Corporation Counsel Reed secured a writ of certiorari from Justice Bergen to review the proceedings and the legal argument will commence next Tuesday. As far as can be learned, Mr. Darby is the only one who maintains the stand that the act applies to bond issues previous to 1918 and the people of Plainfield are confident that Mr. Reed will convince the learned jurist of the Supreme Court that it would be an injustice to upset the financial calculations of every municipality in the State. It is not often that our Corporation Counsel is compelled to appeal to higher tribunals for corroboration of his views but when he does he is generally successful. We trust that the present case will be no exception to the rule.

THE AFTERMATH OF COLGATE'S WITHDRAWAL.

Colonel Austen Colgate's announcement of withdrawal from the United States senatorial contest was no surprise to Plainfielders who keep an eye on the political situation. In fact, it was expected long ago. To be explicit, the time when it was realized that the Colonel appreciated the fact that his chances were slim was when the State solons passed the act limiting the amount of money to be spent in campaign by a candidate. The "big boys" down at Trenton were looking way ahead because they knew the North Jersey man has much of this world's goods and would leave no stone unturned to advance his claims for the honored seat at Washington. Added to this was the strength naturally carried by Governor Edge as the highest executive in the State and the clever little scheme which tightened his grip on the nomination in appointing "Uncle" David Baird to hold the fort until he was ready for the fight. Colonel Colgate is a man of keen perception, a good fighter and a clever politician, but he knew the odds were against him and he drew out before entertaing a campaign that was to be expensive without producing results.

It is not believed, however, that the Colonel is to step out of politics. It was rumored at the G. O. P. gathering in Trenton last Saturday that he might again become a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination when the present incumbent moves on to the nation's Capitol. The unexpired term must be filled and Mr. Colgate's chances look better for the withdrawal that has made Edge's chances for the senatorship so much better.

The retirement of the Colonel has meant a great deal to Union county direct. In this bailiwick there has been a lack of harmony within the Republican ranks because of the coming Congressional fight. Former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman has announced himself as seeking the nomination that will lead to his succeeding the late John H. Capstick and at the present time the Plainfield G. O. P.'s are practically as one in backing him up. Down Elizabeth way, however, there was a feeling that Hamilton F. Kean should be the Republican candidate and the Colgate forces were urging him to enter the primaries. Mr. Kean had so far committed himself as to say that he was "willing to run if his friends so desired," which meant of course, that he would be on hand at the proper time. The withdrawal of Colonel Colgate has upset the calculations of the county seat gentry and there is a strong possibility now that Mr. Kean for obvious reasons will not take part in the congressional race.

Richard Boardman, of Plainfield, was a likely possibility as an independent Republican candidate for the nomination and there has also been talk of Judge William Newcorn getting in line. The appointment of Mr. Boardman to take up Y. M. C. A. secretarial work in France has caused him to put aside all political aspirations for the present and up to date Judge Newcorn has neither affirmed nor denied his position. This, as it can be seen, leaves the running pretty much to Mr. Ackerman alone and as he is the choice of the strong Edge forces, it is safe to predict at this time that he will be the next repesentative of the Fifth New Jersey District in the hall of Congress.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When hay was plentiful at nine dollars a ton?

When a Waterbury watch was the last word in chronometers?

When the local trolley lines gave something like respectable service.

When the young ladies wen to dances without taking along their powder puffs?

When a suit of "store clothes" gave the impression that you had more money than brains?

When a day's trip to New York was considered a wonderful journey and enough importance to talk about for months afterwards?

When "Dave" Campbell, more recently the dispenser of justice at Dunellen, used the birch rod on the kids at the Maple Grove School over whom he presided as teacher?

When the most popular boys in the school yard were the "leader" and "setter-up" in the head-and-foot games that have passed out with the change of juvenile games?

SOFT NOTHINGS FROM A BLONDE COONDUCTORETTE.

The last sad blow has come. The circuses this year are charging ten cents for the nickel bag of institutional peanuts.

We didn't double the quota but that's no reason why we should refrain from throwing our hat in the air and yelling "hip! hip!"

And the best part of it all is that nobody shows signs of having given until it hurt. Seems like as though Plainfield has gotten calloused and there never will be any hurting.

The war has produced many funny combinations but the most amazing of all was seen on North avenue the other day. It was a uniformed chauffeur running a Ford.

There's one consolation about yesterday's rotten weather. The gasolene saved from abandoned motor parties will send many a Yankee plane far over the enemy's lines.

Even after looking over the list of names of the fifty-eight selectives who went away Wednesday, there are some doubting Thomases who insist that Italy is not doing her share.

Hey there, you amateur gardeners—get busy with that hoe. These are the prime days for teasing the vegetables along by diligent use of elbow grease applied to the business end of a hoe.

Pity the poor Sunday-school superintendents. They must now sit up nights to study out a plan for bridging over the gap between Christmas festivals caused by the ban on excursions if they care to maintain their average of juvenile attendances.

Some people insist on taking all the joy out of life. Directly after the Public Service announced that demure conductorettes would be placed on Plainfield street cars, the division superintendent gave orders to strictly enforce the rule which prohibits men from standing on the back platforms.

Still, if "mother and the girls" are living in idleness and from one to half a dozen servants who might be working on the farms are doing their housework—well, it is just a waste of breath for them to sing, "The Star Spangled Banner." They are helping Germany.

Of course, we will overlook the misguided enthusiasm of the citizen who rapt the colored gentleman over the cocoanut with a rain-stick because he refused to doff his cap while the band at the North avenue station played "The Star Spangled Banner," but we can't help wondering if he displayed the same zeal in buying Liberty Bonds or contributing to the Red Cross?

Those Red Cross workers who are indignant because an automobilist drove over their Old Glory "hold-up" banner at Fifth and Richmond streets should remember this: The American flag was never meant to lay on the ground or be used as a means to extort money from a patient public, even though the cause be a worthy one.

City's Draft Board In Readiness For Next Week's Registration

At the office of the local draft board in the Babcock building today, everything is in readiness for the registration of young men becoming twenty-one years old since June 5 last.

Chief Clerk, Walter Freeman, acting in conjuction with Chairman Charles W. Runyon, has arranged every detail and the work of signing up the new draftees could commence at once if it were necessary. An extra force of clerks has been engaged to take charge of the registering and the proceedings should go through with a rush. The task of getting the applicants' histories entering them in the account books and issuing the necessary identification cards will be done without the loss of a moment, making it unnecessary for any of the young men to lose any great time from work. The office will be open continuously from seven o'clock in the morning until nine o'clock at night and is for the registration of all coming under the rule who live in either Plainfield, Fanwood, Scotch Plains or Mountainside.

The latest estimate of the number of registrants who will appear at the office Wednesday fixes it at 350. Many who would have had to appear have already entered the service, a fact which brings the figure quite low. After the married men, the physical deficient, those aiding in the support of parents or engaged in industrial pursuits have been elinated, it is the opinion that from 225 to 250 will be placed in Class 1-A.

With the signing by President Wilson of the bill and proclamation designating Wednesday, June 5, as the day on which all men who have reached the age of 21 since last June 5 shall register for military service, Provost Marshall General Crowder's office immediately began preparation for the enrollment of the men. Instead of using the election machinery as was done last year, Gen. Crowder will call upon the local boards. It is believed that their experience during the past year has peculiarly fitted them to handle the new registration economically and efficiently.

Gen. Crowder has estimated that probably three-quarters of a million men will be added to the American Army by the new registration. His estimate is based on the fact that almost 10,00,000 men registered last year. This number included all between the ages of 21 and 31, and statistics collected by Gen. Crowder's office show that a little more than 10 per cent. of these men were 21 years old. On that basis it is estimated by draft officials that the total registration will exceed 1,000,000, of which 750,000 will be available for military service. This makes proper allowances for physical defectives, exemptions because of dependents, and other bars to military service.

The law provides that every young man in the United States who has reached the age of 21 years since June 5, 1917, or will reach that age on or before June 5, 1918, must register. The only exceptions are in the cases of men who are actually in active military or naval service. All male persons, citizens, or aliens, born between June 6, 1886, and June 5, 1897, inclusive, except officers and enlisted men of the Regular Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, and the National Guard and Naval Militia while in Federal service, and officers in the Officers' Reserve Corps and enlisted men in the Enlisted Reserve Corps while in active service, must register. Some misunderstanding has been cause by the publication of reports that medical and divinity students need not register, and Gen. Crowder has issued the following statement:

"Divinity students and students of medicine must register. Under the terms of the law signed by President Wilson on Monday students who were preparing for the ministry in recognized theological or divinity schools and students who were preparing for the practice of medicine and surgery in recognized medical schools on May 20, 1918, are exempt from the draft. However, the law does not relieve such students from the duty of registering on Wednesday, June 5. Registration comes first, exemption afterwards. It is absolutely necessary that the students register."

The registration will be held in the office of the local board having jurisdiction of the area wherein the person to be registered permanently resides, or in such other place as by public notice is designated by the board, between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. on Wednesday, June 5, 1918.

It is necessary to go to the registration place in person. Any man who expects to be absent from home on Wednesday, June 5, 1918, should go at once to the office of the local board where he expects to be and have his registration card filled out and certified. He must then mail this card to the office of the local board having jurisdiction of the place wherein he permanently resides, and in view of the fact that this card must be received by his home local board on or before June 5, it is essential that anyone who expects to be away from home on that date arrange for his registration immediately.

Anyone who is sick on June 5 and unable to present himself in person at the office of the local board may send some competent friend, who may be deputized by the clerk to prepare his card.

Any person in doubt as to where he should register should consult the local board in the place where he permanently resides, or he may obtain the desired information from the office of the mayor if he lives in a city of 30,000 population or over, or in the office of the county clerk or parish clerk if he does not live in a city of 30,000.

It is not anticipated that many will be delinquent. It is hoped that none will be, for those who do fail to perform their duty Congress has provided a very heavy penalty. Failure to register on June 5 constitutes a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for one year, and may result, furthermore, in the loss of valuable rights and privileges and immediate induction into military service.

An Open Letter On A Timely Subject

Relative to the agitation for a ban on the Heart newspapers, as brought out at the last meeting of the Common Council, and the advisability of licensing newsdealers, the following explanatory letter has been received from William M. Wherry, Jr., of Central avenue:

Editor, The Record:

I have been much interested in the discussion of the exclusion of those newspapers which have been subtly hostile to the cause of the United States and civilization in the great war, although keeping within the bounds of criminal law. I am surprised that no one has suggested as a method of regulating these papers, the system of licensing newsdealers. I believe the municipality has a right unquestionably to pass an ordinance requiring those engaging in certain businesses or occupations which the public welfare requires to be regulated to secure a license before they engage in such businesses within the limits of the municipality. It has been held in a great many cases that newsdealers are a class subject to such licenses.

Thompson vs. State, 17 Texas Appeals, 253.

Norfolk vs. Norfolk Landmark Publishing Co., 95 Va. 564.

Preston vs. Finley, 72 Fed. 850.

The license could be withheld whenever in the judgment of the granting of it would be against public interest, for instance if the newsdealer was going to sell periodicals or newspapers which would be inimical to the public welfare either because they were obscene, seditious, or scandalous, or for any other good cause. In this connection it should be emphasized that the newspapers, the handling of which was sought to be excluded, need not be of such a character as would justify a criminal conviction; all that is required is a reasonable exercise of discretion on the part of the licensing offer. If a postoffice cases show how far the courts will go in this respect.

It seems perfectly feasible to me, without having given the subject a very exhaustive study, to regulate the matter in this way.

Yours truly,
WM. M. WHERRY, JR.

Harry Brokaw On A Visit From New England

Harry Brokaw, a former well known local resident, who has been in Providence, R. I., for the past fifteen years, was a visitor the forepart of the week at the home of his mother, Mrs. Jane Brokaw, of 35 Duer street, the borough. Although only here a few days, Mr. Brokaw took occasion to renew acquaintance with many of his old friends. While in Plainfield, he was local representative for the Sperry & Hutchinson Trading Stamp Company and went to Providence in the same line of work but for the past few years has been the Rhode Island representative for a big New Jersey concern.

Mr. Brokaw reports business "topnotch" in Providence and declares that he has become a regular New England resident because of the splendid treatment that has been accorded him by the natives. His office is at 8 Orange street, Providence, and he would be pleased to have any of the Plainfield folks drop in on him if they happen to be in that city.

Robert M. Paul, Jr., Becomes Manager Of Local Armour Plant

Robert M. Paul, Jr., who has been assistant manager of Armour & Company's branch at Trenton, has succeeded former Councilman Ralph L. Tolles, as manager of the Armour & Company house on East Third street, this city. He entered upon his new duties last week and is now busily engaged in reorganizing the working staffs of the various departments. The place of Harry Vail, assistant to Mr. Tolles, who also resigned recently, has not yet been filled but James McCarthy has been made shipping clerk and Harry Stewart, outside salesman. Mr. Paul has leased the property at 948 West Sixth street, and with his wife, will take possession as soon as a number of alterations and improvements are completed.

The new manager was extremely popular at Trenton and on the eve of his departure from that city, was given a surprise party at his home, 37 Wayne avenue, by the Armour employes. During the evening Mr. Paul was presented with twenty-five dollars in gold by the manager of the branch, William Burke, as a token from the employes.

While at Trenton, Mr. Paul was a member of the Fifth Presbyterian church and was also affiliated with the Jr. O. U. A. M., and United Commercial Travelers' Association. He was also a scout master in the local Boy Scout organization, a movement in which he has always been deeply interested. Mrs. Paul is a skilled musician and on one occasion a number of years ago took part in a concert at the First Methodist church at which Miss Anna Case, now a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was principal soloist.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Paul have already made numerous acquaintances in Plainfield and it is hoped they they will continue their social and musical activities here. Mr. Paul has an established reputation as a "systematizer" and under his management it is believed that the Armour plant will be even more successful than in previous years.

English Tells Of Coal Rules Now In Effect

Union County Fuel Administrator John K. English, has issued the following open letter for the benefit of dealers and consumers not fully conversant with recent rules covering the retail sale of coal:

1. "Dealers are required to receive all orders offered, agreeing to supply consumers in accordance with the rules, and contingently upon their being able to do so. Dealers must not cease taking orders, when they believe that the orders on hand aggregate more than their expected quota. Such practice would completely disarrange the plans of the Arministration, and furthermore, no dealer can know what his quota will be.

2. Florists may receive only one-half of their normal requirements of fuel, and such may be supplied in one-third allotments. This rule does not apply to proprietrs of greenhouses, whose business it is to grow vegetable plants to be transplanted in the Spring of 1919.

3. By recent order of State Administrator, broken coal now is included in the list of domestic sizes of anthracite coal.

4. Until further notice, Union County Fuel Administrator and members of the Advisory Committee, will meet at 207 Broad street, Elizabeth, each week on Thursday afternoon at four o'clock, at which time they may be consulted either by dealers, or by consumers, upon any subject of interest to them."

Miss Hodge Graduates From Combs' Conservatory

On Wednesday evening last in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, the Combs Conservatory of Music held its thirty-third annal commencement exercises. One of the principal participants in the elaborate musical program which marked the occasion was Miss Hazel Hodge, daughter of Mrs. M. T. Hodge, of Hillside avenue, this city. Accompanied by the Conservatory Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Gilbert Raynolds Combs, Miss Hodge played "Moderato" from Concerto Op. 70—Rubinstein—and her work on this occasion was of a high order. In addition to adequate technic she displayed marked interpretative ability and was enthusiastically applauded by the large audience which completely filled the Academy of Music. Miss Hodge achieved the further distinction of being awarded a diploma as evidence of having successfully completed the piano course. She has been studying under the personal instruction of Gilbert Raynolds Combs, the eminent pedagogue, founder and director of the institution. It will be recalled that last year she received a teacher's certificate certifying her completion of the teacher's course.

Plainfield Men Write From French Front; One Of Them Frank Kenney, Thrice Wounded

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Campbell, of 912 East Second street are in receipt of two war letters, each one from a different soldier in the service and each one of interest to Plainfielders. The writers are Frank Kenney, who left Plainfield in 1914 to join the British Army because of his being a reservist, and Arthur Campbell the twenty year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, a member of the 491st Aero Squadron doing duty in France.

The letter from Mr. Kenney is the first that has come to Plainfield in a long time. For nearly four years now he has been in the thick of the struggle on the Western front. Time and again he has gone over the top and although he escaped with his life he has been wounded thrice. While in Plainfield, Private Kenney boarded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and was employed by local contractors as a mason. He is still a member of the Plainfield Mason's Union and is on the Honor roll of the Plainfield association football club. His record in the war is undoubtedly one of the best of any Plainfielder yet entering the service and he has the wishes of hundreds of local people for a safe return.

This is Private Kenney's letter as it came to Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, the personalities being left intact because of their interest to those who know him here:

April 4, 1918

Dear Friends:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am still to the fore and hoping that you are all well at home. Well Mrs. Mrs. Campbell, I got a letter from each of your sons and right glad I was to hear from them. It is good of them thinking of me. I hope to have the luck to see them some day which I hope won't be long. Little did I think when leaving Plainfield that this terrible war would have lasted so long and it seems no nearer the end. I have seen many a new face in my regiment since I joined. I received a letter from Sandy Potter and he is getting on allright but was surprised to hear that he had left the old boarding house. Well, Mrs. Campbell, you might give my regards to all my friends, William Taylor and Dick Hennessey and Billy Anderson. The next time you write to your boys give them my best wishes. Well, I will now draw to a close for the want f samething to say. I wish sometimes that I could write a little better Give Mr. Campbell my regards and hope that it won't be long before we are standing having a glass of the Best at Wescott's.

With best wishes,
Private Frank Kenney,
No. 8275,
Co. C, Cameron Highlanders,
1st Division, B. E. F.
France

The letter form Arthur Campbell was dated in France, on May 3 and expresses a beautiful sentiment relative to his belief that parents and friends should feel proud of their boys entering the service instead of taking it as a hardship. The young man enlisted last summer and went abroad late last fall. Since arriving in France, he has been made a motorcycle dispatch carrier for his division and has been serving with distinction through the recent heavy fight. Before joining the army he was employed as machinist at Fund Tool Works. His parents are happy in the thought that he is serving his country and feel that they are honored in being able to give another son to the cause. The latter is Sergeant Alexander Campbell, of the 113th Infantry, stationed at Camp McClellan. He was a member of Company K, when war was declarde and resigned his position with the Public Service corporation to g south with the unit last summer.

This is the letter which Arthur Campbell wrote his parents and which may be of comfort to some mother sorrowing because her boy is doing his bit for Uncle Sam.

Somewhere in France
May 3, 1918

Dear Mother and Father:

Received your most welcome letter of April 3rd and was more than glad to hear from you all. Yes, I had heard from Cousin Rob, Jim Blakely has gone in the service and dope he will like it and I don't see why people take things so hard about their boys going into the service I should think it would make them feey very proud. I was glad to hear you were up to see Mother Miner and only wish I could have a cup of home made tea once more. Helen sure must be some house keeper by now for I know she was always a hard worker.

I was glad to hear you and Margaret enjoyed yourselves at the Emerson school and you want to tell Jamie to stop trying to steal my girl Hilda. I was glad to hear all the boys passed for the service and only wish I were in the tank service myself. That sure must of been some parade for the Liberty Loan drive and sure would have liked to have seen it. I hope you and Mother Miner enjoyed yourselves at the show and I think I wouldn't know how to act if I was ever to see a real show again for I haven't seen any motion picture since I left the good old U. S. A. I was very glad to hear you heard from Uncle Bob for I haven't heard from him in over a month. I haven't heard from Frank Kenney but once and expect a letter from him any day now. Give my regards to Harold and his wife, Grandma and all the rest of the folks. Yes there would be nice if I could get over to Scotland for a few days but I don't think I will ever be able. I hope Bobbie likes the navy by this time and I thought he was going to write me. I just received a letter from Mrs. Corbin and I am going to answer it as soon as I get time for I have little time any more to myself and get tired from driving my motorcycle. We have been having some real summer weather here now and hope it keeps up for it makes it much nicer for us. Well Mother and Father I will now draw to a close, trusting you are all in the best of health and happiness as I am the same and may God bless you and keep you all until we meet again,

Your loving son,
Arthur

Officials Hold Out Small Hopes For Excursions

Indications that the New Jersey Central would not conduct any excursions to coast inland resorts this year, were substantiated yesterday when the usual holiday specials to Asbury Park, Mauch Chunk and Lake Hopatcong failed to materialize.

It has been rumored ever since the Government took the railway lines over that there would be no more excursions because of the large number of troops being transferred and the lack of needed cars. Statements from railroad officials, however, gave little hope in the promise that if sufficient cars could be secured the customary holiday outings would be permitted. Plainfielders who enjoy taking a run down the coast, or to Mauch Chunk or Lake Hopatcong, were accordingly keenly disappointed yesterday when the special trains with their low rate of fare were not forthcoming.

In other years all of Plainfield's churches and Sunday schools had contracted for their Thursday excursions to Asbury Park by this time but this season the railroad has declined to enter into any negotiations. The only ray of sunshine in the cloud of disappointment hovering over the children who regard their summer trip to the seashore as the biggest event of the season, comes from District Passenger Agent, C. K. Armstrong, who said in an interview recently:

"At the present time we see no possibility of conducting excursions of any kind owing to the lack of cars. So many of our coaches sent south with troops do not return for weeks at a time and it is impossible to arrange for the Sunday school outings ahead of time. However, if we find later on that the Government's needs can be cared for, properly and we find a surplus of cars, we will make every effort o conduct the excursions that have been so popular for more than a score of years."

The New Jersey Central has always done the biggest excursin business in the New York section through its lines reaching all the coast and inland resorts in New Jersey. The outings to Atlantic City Mauch Chunk and Lake Hopatcong frequently required as many as fifty coaches in a day, while the week end excursions at times call for even a larger number than this. In past years Plainfield has sent out a Sunday school excursion every Thursday during July and August and a few on other days, notably that of Hope Chapel, which called fr from twenty to twenty-five cars. During the past three years the Asbury Park excursions of Washchung Council Wrights of Columbus required forty cars, these being divided into three sections.

None of the Sunday school committees or others interested in private excursions entertain any hope that the needs cars might be secured and in consequence no plans are being made for the annual outings.

Newark Board Ends Plainfield Cases

The Newark Exemption Appeal Board has concluded the Plainfield appeal cases by announcing the following classifications:

George Dower, II-B; Charles W. Nagel, II-D and IV-A; John A. Kilbride, III-B and III-E; Harry Keuffgeiser. III-K and IV-A; Rogers Stephens, IV-A; Danvers H. Wright, II-B and II-D; Peter Q. Last Chance For Coming Draftees To Enlist Here

Announcement comes from Corporal Ernest D. Peck, recruiting officer in charge of the station at the Plainfield Post Office, that tomorrow will be the last day on which young men of twenty-one years who must register with the draft board Wednesday, can enlist voluntarily. After that, all coming under this class must go to Fort Slocum, if they wish to enter the service prefer to their classification according to Exemption rules.

The restriction, however, does not apply to young men who have not yet reached twenty-one. Numerous branches of the army and navy are still open to them and they can obtain full particulars by consulting Corporal Peck. The latter states that there is a special call at the present time for recruits in the medical corps. This includes the ambulance division together with pharmacist, hospital attendants, chauffeurs and stretcher bearers of which there is an urgent need. Chances for promotion are excellent and those showing particular aptitude are advanced rapidly, each step bringing a substantial increase in pay.

The sub-station of the Plainfield recruiting office, located at Bernardsville, by Corporal Peck last week, has already proven its need. Private Harry Dorflinger, of this city, who is in chrge has had numerous applications from young men in the district. Of these two have passed the physical tests and were sent to Fort Slocum yesterday in company with the recruits from Plainfield. The Bernardsville station will be continued at least another week and perhaps longer.

Major J. E. Bloom, in charge of New Jersey's main recruiting office at Newark, spent last Sunday in Plainfield on an inspection trip. He surveyed the local field, denoting conditions in general from a military view point and expressing himself as being highly pleased with the splendid contributions of men that Plainfield has made. He warmly complimented Corporal Peck, whose record of more than fifty enlistments for the district stands among the highest of any in the state.

Major Bloom, in addition to being a typical military man, is a most affable gentlemen and the Plainfielders with whom he came in contact are enthusiastic over his personality. His visit not only did much to benefit the local recruiting but gave the older citizens a chance to see the splendid type of officer the Government has placed in charge of New Jersey's volunteer recruiting. It is hoped that he can return to Plainfield at some future time to appear before larger gatherings than those of last Sunday.

During the past week Corporal Peck has secured eighteen new recruits from this district. A number of them were sent to Fort Slocum Wednesday and yesterday and the remainder will leave today or tomorrow. Among the best known in the eighteen are Frank Harding, son of William Harding, of John street, who has been employed as an electrician; William Deady, son of the late "Jack" Deady, of Liberty street, until recently employed as driver by Charles L. Stanley, and John J. McCarthy, of West Fifth street, son of James McCarthy, former proprietor of a meat market on Richmond street and now employed at the local Armour branch.

The list of eighteen and the divisions of the army to which they have been assigned are as follows:

William P. Cashin, 328 Park avenue, Plainfield, Medical Corps, R. A.; David. C. Lincoln, 558 West Fifth street, Plainfield, Infantry, R. A.; Frank L. Neuman, 315 Prescott place, Plainfield, Q. M. C., N. A.; Ellsworth G. Pangborn, 1527 Willever street, Plainfield, Cavalry, R. A.; Leland E. Smith, 19 Craig place, North Plainfield, Medical Corps, R. A.; William R. Deady, 329 Liberty street, Plainfield, Engineers, R. A.; William J. Hines, 953 South Second street, Plainfield, Engineers, R. A.; Gene G. Chatel, 334 Jackson avenue, Plainfield, Engineers, R. A.; Frank E. Harding, 616 John street, Plainfield, Engineers, R. A.; James J. McCarty, 210 West Fifth street, Plainfield, Engineers, R. A.; Daniel D. Deany, 17 Pearl street, North Plainfield, Coast Artillery Corps; William H. Lang, R. F. D., No. 3, Plainfield, Cavalry, R. A.; Lawrence P. Nichols, 631 West Third street, Plainfield, Field Artillery, R. A.; Albert Van Winkle, 42 Steiner place, North Plainfield, Cavalry, R. A.; John F. Doemer, 476 West Front street, Plainfield, Coast Artillery Corps; Frank A. Gombosh, 9 Thompson street, Bernardsville, Engineers, R. A.; Herman F. Kunze, 103 West End avenue, Somerville, Medical Corps, R. A.; Daniel W. Gerhardt, 14 Grove street, Somerville, Medical Corps, R. A.

LENDHUM JENNINGS TO WED MISS MEYER.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Louise Meyer, daughter of Henry C. Meyer, of Scotch Plains, to Lendrum Jennings, son of Chief A. D. Jennings, of the Plainfield fire department.

Mr. Jennings' home for the past two years has been at Warren, Ohio, but he is visiting in Plainfield during the present week.

Mr. and Mrs. James McClinton, of West Third street, are the parents of a daughter, born to them a few days ago.

Mrs. H. C. Reynolds, her son Donald and grandchildren of Watchung avenue, the borough, will leave tomorrow for Point Pleasant where they will spend the summer. Mr. Reynolds has been at the shore for several months.

Miss Elizabeth Larkin, of West Third street, and Andrew J. Forgash, of Dunellen, were married in St. Mary's church, last Saturday night, Rev. Father B. M. Bogan performing the ceremony. The attendants were Miss Mary Larkin, sister of the bride and N. Murray Nichols, of Plainfield. Only a few relatives and intimate friends were present owing to the recent death of the bride's brother, Private John J. Larkin, of this city who was killed in action in France last month. The bridegroom left for Camp Dix Monday morning as a member of the Middlesex county draft contingent. e was formerly employed by the Union Pacific Tea Company in this city.

Owen Maguire, of New York, has been spending the past two weeks at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Edward T. McCue, of West Fourth street.

Charles Willard, known on the stage, as "The man who grows" and well known in Plainfield, is seriously ill in a hospital at Hartford, Conn. He was filling an engagement in that city when struck. News of his illness came to his father A. E. Willard, of West Front street, and the latter has gone to Hartford to see him.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mason, who were married last Saturday by Rev. Dr. Phillip B. Strong at the First Baptist parsonage, have returned from a hoenymoon trip to New England and are making their home with the bride's parents on Regent street. The bride was Miss Bertha Boylan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah M. Boylan and was graduated from the North Plainfield High school in 1916.

Mrs. Margaret Byrnes, of New York, returned home Monday after a visit with her brother, John Donnelly of West Fourth street.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson at 102 Central avenue, was the scene of a wedding Saturday night when Miss Amanda Kistner, formerly of Long Island, but more recently of Plainfield, was made the wife of their son, George H. Patterson. Mayor Harry Evans, of Westfield, a friend of the family performed the ceremony. The young couple will make their home with the bride-groom's parents. Mr. Patterson is employed by the Lenox Printing Company on West Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Conover, of Elmwood place are the parents of a daughter, born to them at Muhlenberg hospital Sunday night. On Saturday evening, a son was born to Mrs. Conover's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Tice, also of Elmwood place.

Irving R. Stebbins, of Grandview avenue, is home for the summer, after being graduated from the Missionary Training institute, at Nyack, N. Y. After his graduation he was appointed a missionary to French Indo-China and will proceed to the Orient late in August, sailing from Vancouver, B. C. Before entering the Missionary School, Mr. Stebbins was employed in the salesroom of the Plainfield Auto Tire Company.

Mrs. Edwin Kerwin and son, Jack, of Marshalltown, Io., reached Plainfield this week to spend the summer with Mrs. Kerwin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Hamilton, of Verdon street, the borough.

Mrs. R. A. Stafford, of Grove street, the borough, has been entertaining her daughter, Mrs. James Brady, of Providence, R. I., and also her daughter-in-law, Mrs. James Stafford, of Boston.

Mrs. Annie M. Clark and son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John McCullough, have removed from 722 West Seventh street, to a newly completed home on Darrow avenue, near Seventh street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Meyer, of Union street, the borough, are the parents of a son, born to them a few days ago.

Mrs. Harry Wierenga and daughters, Mable and Dorothy, of East Fifth street, will leave next week for Freeport, Me., where they will spend the summer with relatives.

R. F. Dickerson, of Westervelt avenue, recently resigned his position as assistant passenger trainmaster of the New Jersey Central to become assistant to the Department General Agent of the American Railway Association. He will be located at the Hoboken offices.

Mrs. Eliza J. Menger, who is in her ninety-sixth year, is seriously ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cornelia M. Zabriskie, of West End avenue.

E. E. Walter Poling, son of Mrs. Amanda Poling, of West Fifth street, writes from France tht he is enjoying good health and "keeping" busy as a member of the U. S. Marines.

Rev. Father Vincent Sciolla, former curate at St. Mary's church, who left here two years ago to become assistant rector of the parish at Elizabethtown, Ky., will arrive in Plainfield next week for a month's stay at St. Mary's rectory.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Begg, formerly of Patterson, but who are at present making their home with Mrs. Begg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, the borough, have leased a residence on Mountain View terrace, Dunellen, and will remove there the middle of next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Colemon, of West Third street, left yesterday for Elyria, Ohio, where Mr. Coleman secured an excellent position with a large manufacturing plant.

News of the Theatre

"At The Poker Club" On Plainfield Bill

"At the Poker Club," an original conception for the purpose of presenting comedy, songs and dancing in a new form, will be the headline attraction of a new vaudeville bill coming to the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon for the remainder of the week. The act has been produced by Eddie Dixon and Company and requires the services of five people, all of whom have individual numbers.

In addition to "At the Poker Club," five other vaudeville numbers and pictures will be on the program for today and tomorrow. Tonight's performances will include the professional "tryouts" ordinarily given Thursdays but omitted last night because of the length of the holiday bill.

The attraction at the theatre all next week will be a combination of feature photoplays and vaudeville. For the forepart of the week the special film attraction will be "Carmen of the Klondike" with Miss Clara Williams in the leading feminine role.

Thrilling Alaskan Story In Pictures

"Carmen of the Klondike," which will be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre for three days, commencing next Monday, is without a doubt the best screen drama dealing with life in the great silences of the Northwest which has ever been produced.

The story, which is thrilling and gripping, with suspense running throughout, concerns the adventures of a Middle West vaudeville favorite, a part portrayed by Miss Clara Williams, who deserts her theatrical career to go to the Klondike region of Alaska and seek her fiance, Cameron Stewart, a young attorney, who has gone before her to establish himself.

On the boat she meets "Silk" McDonald," who is famous for his infamy in affairs with women. McDonald dis attracted by her and asserts in a rage, when she ignores him, that she will obtain her for his own. Upon landing in Alaska, "McDonald," who is well-known because he is the proprietor of the gayest amusement hall in Skaway, hurries ahead of the girl, and when she arrives at the home of Stewart she receives the greatest shock of her life—due to the trickery of McDonld. From that moment on, throughout the story, even when she becomes the dancehall favorite of Alaska, known as "Carmen of the Klondike," to which depth she degrades herself in her reckless mockery at life, she believes that Stewart is a traitor to her and does everything in her power to defeat his aims and success.

The scenic effects of the production, both in the town of Skagway and in the snow-bound mountains that surround it, are truly marvelous. There is not a moment in the entire picture that is not tense with suspense and replete with thrilling action. At the climax, there occurs the most ferocious, raging, hand-to-hand battle between two men which has ever been reproduced on the screen.

"Carmen of the Klondike" was written by Monte M. Katterjohn and was produced under the direction of Reginald Barker.

ON DECORATION DAY.

Sweetly the church bells are tolling,
How beautiful sound their chimes;
They seem to tell an old story
That we've heard so many times.

They toll for the sad and weary,
The penitent and the weak;
They toll for the heavy laden,
That sweet comfort they may seek.

Their toll now has a new meaning,
Today it sounds everywhere,
(While our boys they are fighting)
It calls you to offer prayer.

To pray for their safe returning,
To pray for sweet liberty,
To offer prayer for our country,
The land of home and the free.

And when you leave the church portals
And on your way home at last,
The President's proclamation
Says this is a day of fast.

Don't think you are sacrificing,
That you're giving up your all,
For we at home must do our part
In answer to duty's call.

Let it go down in history
As each one travels his way,
Let it be a fond memory
On this Decration Day.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Among the twenty New Jersey young men listed in a class of 450 ensigns graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis Wednesday was George M. Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Murray, of 209 West Ninth street, this city. The young man has received a temporary commission in the U. S. Navy, pending permanent assignment later. A number of local relatives and friends witnessed the graduation exercises.

The leather belting on a machine at the Surburban Transit Company's shops in the old Spicer plant at Third street and Madison avenue, caught fire onday night through heavy friction. An alarm was turned in from the plant's private box, No. 411, but the firemen found practically nothing to do on their arrival. The burning of the belt caused a dense smoke which led the work men to believe that a bad blaze was in progress.

A still alarm at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, called the city fire department to the premises at 432 East Fourth street, where a bad chimney blaze had been discovered a short time previous. Chemicals were used to put out the flames and the work was done with such "promtness and despatch" that no damage resulted.

Beginning tomorrow night, Plainfield Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, will inaugurate a series of weekly "shirt waist" dances to continue through the summer. Excellent music has been engaged and numerous special features will be introduced from time to time. Arrangements for the dances were made at a meeting of the lodge Monday night at which five new members were initiated.

Under the direction of Max Maximoff, the physical instructor who's known as "Maximus," an athletic carnival will be held at the Plainfield Airdome, Friday night, June 7, for the benefit of the Belvidere Auxiliary to the Red Cross. The program will include a wrestling exhibition, similar to the series that has been so much enjoyed in Mr. Maximoff's gymnasium this season; sparring, if permit can be obtained; an address by a prominent speaker; singing by favorite artists, and an exhibition of posing and feats of strength by Mr. Maximoff. William Austin is chairman of the committee completing arrangements.

Several employes of the Boice-Runyon Company narrowly escaped injury and possible death Tuesday morning when a large section of the upper flooring in the Park avenue lumber sheds gave way. The supports had evidently been overloaded with cement which was being carried from freight cars on the trestle running through the building. A team of horses was also in the path of the falling wreckage but escaped by running away when the first crack of timbers startled them.

The Keystone Carnival Company will hold forth on the grounds at Somerset street and Codington avenue, North Plainfield, during the week beginning June 10. The attraction will be under the auspices of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., which has appointed the following committee to complete all arrangements: George M. Smith, William J. Hartpence, Walter Hoffman, C. J. Sheats, J. Howard Lievers, Ernest Conover and John J. Klinet. The KKeystone company is controlled by M. J. Krauser, whose shows have appeared in Plainfield on several occasions and who has a reputation for carrying only the best attractions.

Frederick Goddard, son of George H. Goddard of East Ninth street, who went to Camp McClellian last summer as a second lieutenant in Troop D, has been promoted to the rank of Captain. Soon after getting into camp he was made a first lieutenant and assigned as aide to Brigadier General Rafferty's staff. Later he took a special course in artillery work at Fort Sill, Oklahoma and has since been attached to the 111th Field Artillery.

One of the hardest working groups of Red Cross solicitors boosting the Plainfield Fund Saturday and Sunday was one composed of members of the City Fire Department who collected a total of $575. The amount was made up of odd nickels and dimes that might not have been given other wise, consequently constituted a clear gain. The fire laddies went all about the city Saturday afternoon in alternate squads, carrying small boxes for the dropping in of "loose change" and they met with very few refusals. On Sunday, the boys solicted from automobile drivers, hold-up cars at South avenue and Richmond street by holding a large American flag across the road. Only once did a driver refuse to stop and that one, a negro chaffeur with white people in the rear seats, ran over the flag. The name of the car's owner has been asked of Commissioner Dill.

Miss Margaret Lounsbery, of this city, won the first prize silver trophy in the annual athletic meet at the Hartridge school on Saturday, scoring the greatest number of points among the contestants from the academic department. Miss Margaret Mellor, also of this city, won the first prize among the contestants from the elementary department. Miss Sarah Shaw of Trenton was presented a silver cup as winner of the tennis tournament.

A patriotic entertainment will be given Saturday evening, June 8, at the Young Women's Christian Association under direction of Miss Irene Day. A silver offering will be taken at the door. The proceeds will be for the furnishing of the summer camp of the Y. W. C. A., in the Watchung mountain. Several of Miss Day's pupils will take part.

The Kolba Wrecking Company, of Newark, this week, began the work of tearing down the former McClintchen building at 118 West Front street, recently vacated by the A. E. Force Company and now the property of Tepper Brothers. It is believed that the structure will be demolished within three weeks after which the work of putting up the new Tepper building, a complete description of which was given in the Record some time ago, will be commenced. The names of the contractors to erect the new building have not yet been announced.

Only two changes of importance to Plainfielders are noted in the New Jersey Central's new time table which went into effect Sunday. The west bound 11:01 a. m. train now leaves at 10:30 a. m. and the 2:44 p. m. west bound express, formerly stopping at the North avenue station only on signal now makes a schedule stop every day except Sunday.

In attempting to move a loaded coal car directly over a "pocket" on the Pond Tool Works trestle Saturday workmen released the brakes too much and the big gondola started down the grade before it could be stopped. Gathering momentum as it went it crashed into a string of cars standing at the end of the yard. Two laborers who were in the runaway car, Pasquale Longevi and Antonio Sardeni, were unable to jump off and were badly hurt. The former had his front teeth knocked out beside getting several severe cuts on the head and Sardeni sustained a scalp wound. Both were attended at the shop hospital by Dr. P. B. Cregar.

A letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grobes, of 524 West Fourth street, informs them that their son Corporal William Grobes, a member of the Fifteenth New York colored infantry, is suffering from a bullet wound in the arm. The injury was received while he was doing patrol duty in "No Man's Land" on May 1. Corporal Grobes was employed as a driver by a North avenue taxi cab company before enlisting and arrived in France last Christmas day. He is in the same company with Jimmy, Stanley and Fred Hall, the three Plainfield brothers who were among the first so enlist in the Fifteenth.

"Wee Willie" Keeler Waxes Reminiscent Over Old Time Baseball Days

"Wee" Willie Keeler, Plainfield's baseball idol of twenty-five years or more ago, was met by William Slocum, sporting editor of the New York Sun, in Brooklyn a few days ago. Slocum induced "Wee" Willie, who was the star right fielder of the famous Crescents, of this city, to talk about old time baseball players from the time that he left Plainfield in 1892 until he retired many years later, one of the wealthiest diamond players of the day. These reminiscences Mr. Slocum printed in an article given below.

Willie Keeler was a "find" of the late "Tee Kay" Keller, who gave Plainfield the greatest aggregation of baseball talent it ever called a home team. Keeler was a cracker-jack even in those days back in 1891, '92, and '93 and his admirers extended far miles beyond the confines of the city. When he went to Binghamton, N. Y., to play he carried the best wishes of every one with him and his rapid rise to success as a National League player was a great source of satisfaction to his Plainfield constituents.

Eight years ago, George E. Firstbrook, now assistant editor of the Stamford, Connecticut, Advocate, arranged a testimonial dinner for Mr. Keeler which was given at the Iroquois Hotel. The late Samuel St. John McCutchen acted as toastmaster and sixty old time baseball players and fans were numbered among the guests. Mr. Keeler made a splendid address in which he said Plainfield had been the beginning of his baseball career and there was no place in the country which declined to visit more than this same little old burg.

Here is the story of the old time players as remembered by "Wee" Willie and written by Mr. Slocum:

"Many of the fans who witness big league ball games nowadays do not remember Willie Keeler, once the champion batsman of the National League, who played right field for two peanant winners, the Baltimore Orioles and the Brooklyns, both managed by Edward Hanlon. Veteran followers of baseball who saw Keeler in his prime will tell you that he was one of the greatest players that ever wore spiked shoes. Keeler is the owner of valuable real estate in Brooklyn and is busy most of the time collecting rents. But now and then he goes to Ebbets Field to see his old friend, Wilbert Robinson, or to the Polo Grouns to talk over old times with John J. McGraw.

"Keeler was a kid when I first saw him wearing the Giants' uniform in 1892. John M. Ward had purchased him from the Binghamton Club in the spring of that year to try him at third base. But as Keeler was a left handed thrower, Ward soon decided that he couldn't succeed, so the little fellow was sold to the Brooklyn Club. Still confining his efforts to third base, Keeler also was a failure in Brooklyn and before the season of 1894 opened he was traded to the Orioles with Big Dan Brouthers for Shindle and Treadway. Hanlon promptly assigned Keeler to right field and the Orioles proceeded to capture the pennant. Keeler played 127 games that year and batted .367. The Orioles repeated in 1895 and Keeler rolled up a batting average of .394. Playing right field for the Baltimores in 1897 and 1898, Wee Willie led the National League in batting with .432 and .379 respectively. His .432 record was excelled by one man, Hugh Duffy, of the Bostons, who batted .438 in 1894.

"As a hunter and base runner Keeler was in the front rank. It was a difficult task to pitch to him as he crowded the plate and was a patient waiter. He was a member of the Yankees when they were organized by Clark Griffith in 1903 and he finally retired five years later. I met Keeler at the Polo Grounds last week and of course we discussed the national game. Willie has kept himself posted since his retirement, and his opinions regarding some of the best known players of the past and present doubtless will interest baseball readers of The Evening Sun.

"'I have studied the modern game closely,' said Keeler in reply to numerous questions, 'and I will freely admit that the pitching has greatly improved since the days when I played with the champion Baltimores. Then we were lucky to have two good boxmen. In fact, the National League teams of that period never carried more than three or four. The Orioles won the pennant in 1894 with one first class pitcher, Sadie McMahon. We had Hawke, Gleason, Esper and Hemming, too, but McMahon was the team's mainstay. The Ololes were successful because they could hit, field, run the bases and do the unexpected. It seems strange, therefore, to see the major league teams of the present day carrying eight or ten pitchers, of whom four or five possess real class.

"'The spit ball is the only new delivery that I have note, the curves, speed and change of peace being about the same. The best pitcher I ever faced was Amos Rusie, of the Giants. Rusie had the fastest curve ball that ever was delivered. It wasn't so very wide, but it broke right in front of the hitteb and was perfectly controlled. Rusie's speed ball was about the same. He seldom gave more than one or two passes and frequently fanned all the way from six to twelve men. When a team made a dozen hits off Rusie he was in poor form. Jouett Meekin had as much speed as Rusie, but he didn't have the same curve ball. Other great pitchers against whom I batted were Cy Young and Ed Walsh. Chesbro was a wonder, but I guess the smartest pitcher of all was Christy Mathewson.

"'Ty Cobb, in my opinion, is the champion batsman of all time,' continued Keeler. 'In fact, he is the best ball player I've ever laid eyes on. He hasn't a weak point. He can hit all kinds of pitching and is the king of base stealers. Bill Lange, of the old Chicagos, was a player of the Cobb type and Harry Stovey might have given Ty a race for base running honors. Speaker is another wonderful player, perhaps superior to the best in my time. Billy Hamilton, of the Phillies and Bostons of twenty years ago, also was a fast man on the paths. Tom McCarthy, too, was a sterling outfielder, also Joe Kelley.

"'Who was the best shortstop? Why, Hans Wagner, of course. Hugh Jennings and Herman Long were magnificent shortstops, but they didn't last as long as Wagner. Hans covered more ground than his competitors and had a powerful throwing arm. Besides he never made a tactical blunder in the field, as far as I know.

"'Of the leading second basemen I can't go beyond Napoleon LaJoie and Eddie Collins, one of the most graceful infielders that ever played in fast company. He did everything well and was a natural born hitter. Collins is more stylish in his work. You might say that he handles a ball with more snap than LaJoie. Both of these men excelled in a knowledge of how to play for certain batsmen. Rated behind them were Fred Pfeffer, Bid McPhee, Bobby Lowe and other good second basemen of long ago.'

"'It's easy to pick the king of first basemen,' said the little fellow. 'His name is Hal Chase. Yes, I have considered Fred Tenney, Tom Tucker, Roger Connor, Dan Brouthers, Jack Doyle, Pat Tebeau and Jake Daubert, but I am compelled to put Chase at the top. Chase knows more about covering the bag than any man I ever saw in that position. I think Chase's best play was made in the 1910 series between the Yankees and the Giants. Matty laid down a perfect bunt in front of the home plate with a man on second. Chase made a running pick up and without steadying himself he threw the ball perfectly to Jimmy Austin at third. The runner who was trying to advance on Matty's sacrifice appeared to be dead out, but unfortunately Austin muffed the ball, probably because Chase had taken him by surprise. Chase played as well as ever last year and his batting was fine. He stands in a class by himself.'

"Yes, I watched Heinie Zimmerman, Grob, Baker, Gardner and other crack third basemen in action,' remarked Keeler, 'but they have nothing on Jimmy Collins, of the Boston Americans, who won the pennant in 1904. Collins was an artist. He played fast, slow grounders with rare skill and his throwing was marvellous. He was a big hitter, too. Bill Bradley, of the Clevelands, was not far behind Collins in skill. Billy Nash, of Frank Selee's Boston champions, was another star in that position. John McGraw also was in the front rank of third basemen, a fine fielder, a corking hitter and a remarkable run maker. McGraw knew baseball from A to Z in those days, just as he does now. His playing had much to do with the triumphs of the old Baltimore champions.'

"'There was only one catcher, Buck Ewing,' said the former star. 'He was just getting out of baseball when I started to break in. But from what I saw of him he was the best backstop and thrower to bases that ever played ball. Wilbert Robinson, who caught for the Orioles, was another splendid receiver, a great help to a pitcher and a smart field captain. I mustn't forget Duke Farrell, who caught Rusie and Meekin for the Giants under John Ward. Then, too, Marty Bergen, of the Bostons, was a wonderful catcher. Yes, there are many fine catchers in the game today, the best being Schalk, Walters, Killefer, O'Neill, Severeid and Alnsmith. I saw Bresnahan, Archer, Kling, Gowdy and others who also were excellent backstops. But there's never be another Ewing.'

"'Of course you'll expect me to say that the Orioles were the best ball team, in my opinion,' concluded Keeler, with a smile. 'But I'll have to cross you. The Giants, as they are now playing, are stronger than any major league team that I can remember. McGraw has built up a team of tremendous batting skill, fast in fielding and base running, with catchers and pitchers that are unexcelled when taken as a whole. I believe that the Giants not only will win another pennant but also will triumph in the next world's series. I am rooting hard for McGraw, who played ball on the same team with me nearly twenty-five years ago and always has been a pal!'

"Keeler's hair is gray, but his eyes are bright and he still smiles when he thinks of the money he earned on the diamond.

"'I would have played ball for nothing!' he remarked as we parted. 'It was fun, not hard work!'"

P. H. S. Thespians Will Again Present Senior Class Play

Acceding to many urgent requests, Plainfield High School's senior class will repeat in the school auditorium tonight its presentation of the annual class play, "Cyrano de Bergerac," produced last Saturday night before a capacity audience. Rostand's heroic French drama was given with such accuracy and artistic perfection by the young artists that the spectators were frequently aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm, showering plaudits on the respective thespians as each one appeared in turn.

It was believed that many who had missed attending the initial performance would appreciate another opportunity to witness it and for that reason requests for the second performance tonight were made. The senior class consented to give it at popular prices and has also kindly agreed to donate the proceeds to the Junior Red Cross.

Miss Eason, of the school faculty, acted as coach for members of the cast and Henry P. Hubbard acted as class faculty advisor. Both deserve much credit for the success of the production. The members of the cast each one of whom showed marked ability, and the parts they interpreted are as follows:

"Cyrano de Bergerac," Monroe O'Donnell; "Christian de Neuvielette (in love with Roxane)," Harold Loiseaux; "De Guiche" (a nobleman of influence), Russel Tomlinson; "Ragueneau" (the pastry cook), MacFarland Fullerton; "Le Gret" (Cyrano's friend), Howard Stelle; "Montfleury" (the actor), Timothy Loiseaux; "Ligniere" (the dissolute nobleman), G. Stanley Smith; "De Valvert" (the duelist), Everett Jewett; "Jodelet" (theatrical manager), Robert Heron; "Brissaille" (a nobleman), Arthur Laury; "Cuigy" (a nobleman), Romeyn Voorhees; "Captain Carbon" (in command of the cadets), Abraham Bussel; "Busybody, Harold Nielsen; "Musketeer" (in love with Lise), Sterling Boos; "Monk," Harold Condict; "Doorkeeper," John Endress; "Guardsman," Everett Boise; "First Musician," Graecen Peterson; "Second Marquis," Ernest Fiedler; "Third Marquis," Howard Bloomfield; "Fencers," Sterling Boos and Walter Marder; "A Young Man," George McGoldrick; "Tradesmen," John Bolsterle, Richards Vincent, Vincent Smith, "Pickpockets," Joseph Greenwood, Richard Fuller, George Murray; "Violinists," Ralph Sionim, Harvey Naylor, John Endress; "Lackeys," Abraham Bussel, Wolcott Calkins; "Poets," Timothy Loiseaux, Wolcott Calkins; Arthur Wirtz; "Pages," Paul Leonhauser, Bayard Van Remsaeller, Irwin Jones, Herbert Price, Paul Tuzo; "Cadets," Alexander Carver, Harold Nielson, Robert Heron, Vincent Smith, Sterling Boos, Leon Ladeck, Everett Jewett, Everett Boise, Greacen Peterson, Arthur Laury, Howard Bloomfield; Richards Vincent, Walter Marder; "Roxane," Nathaliet Goetter; "Lise" (wife of Ragueneau), Mary Simons; "The Duenna," Marjorie Mehl; "Mother Margaret," Dorothy Coburn; "Sister Martha," Elizabeth Lawson; "Sister Clare," Margaret Lawson; "The Orange Girl," Gladys Major; "A Flower Girl," Cora Bender; "An Actress," Margaret Rice; "Pastry Cooks," Hope Angleman, Jane Stout, Mabel Haring, Edith Peacock, Margaret Stout, Helen Lowry; "Bluestockings," Hope Angleman, Margaret Hanson, Edith Davis, Mary Simons; Bessie Case, Margaret Lounsbury; "Nuns," Carol Grannatt, Alvina Moeller, Beatrice Cotthell, Edith Davis, Josephine Smith, Katherine Hughes; "Spectators," Dorothy Thiers, Ruth Carver, Katherine Hughes, Mariette McAneny, Frances Hazlin, Katherine Bartels, Ruth Eder, Clementine Bremble, Naomi Fritts, Margaret Keenan, Elizabeth Hicks, Bernice Neier.

The executive staff for the play was composed of Timothy Loizeaux, business manager; Alexander Carver, assistant business manager; Allen Mogenson, stage manager; John King, assistant stage manager; Hope Angleman, property manager; Harold Condict, assistant property manager; Margaret Hansen, chairman of costumes committee, and Roy Lord, electrician.

Sentence Supended On Men Implicated In "Patriotic" Row

Arraigned in the city court yesterday morning on a charge of disorderly conduct and fighting, five men, two white and three colored, who started a near race riot at the North transition during the selective send-off, Wednesday morning were given a severe rebuke by Judge DeMeza but afterward released on suspended sentence. The defendants were Edward Hamilton and George Doran, white, and Harry Kline, Theodore Lane and Elijah A. Russel, colored.

The trouble started when Kline kept his hat on as a band began playing "The Star Spangled Banner". He had his own reasons for doing so but as he gave no explanation to several conscientious objectors, murmurings ran through the big crowd of men, women and children of all sizes, colors, creeds and nationalities. Someone yanked the offending "lid" from Kline's head at the same time shouting "Kill the nigger" and as one disinterested spectator remarked: "The hostilities were opened auspiciously". Kline quickly became the center of a warring crowd of blacks and whites whose only battle cry was "wherever you see a head hit it". The barrage of white-fisted field pieces was strengthened early in the engagement by the introduction of heavy artillery in the form of a machinist's hammer gripped by Doran. He was working on a car at Laing's Garage when the conscripts arrived at the North avenue station and in his hurry to see the departure, carried the tool with him. The hammer swung backward and forward among the belligerents, now and then dealing body blows on the enemy but fortunately missing the unarmored skulls.

Lane executed a flank movement, which gave him possession of Doran's weapon and he was in a fair way to produce a heavy casualty list when a detachment of Home Guards scattered the forces. An instant later Patrolman Muir grabbed Lane while Patrolman Jonas captured Hamilton Doran and Russell. Muir's prisoner clung desperately to the hammer and the officer was seeking to take it from him when Hamilton decided to use his umbrella as an extra persuader. The rain-stick came down on the colored man's dome with terrific force, inflicting a scalp wound a couple of inches long. It also placed Hamilton in the procession starting toward police headquarters. Kline in the meantime had disappeared and was not rounded up until later in the day. All five men were then released in $100 bail for appearance yesterday.

At the trial it developed that there was no question as to Kline's patriotism or respect for the national anthem. He has a brother in the services and has always been ready to "do his bit". No one knew who it was who picked on him first but it was proven that Kline's hat was knocked off before he had a chance to explain why he had kept it on. In suspending sentence Judge DeMeza advised him to be sure about his doffing in the future and also told Hamilton not to get over enthusiastic. Without waiting to be asked Doran declared he would leave his hammer in the shop if ever again he took a last look at the selectives.

Attractive Program For Boy Scouts, Big Field Day Tomorrow

Next Saturday, June 1, the Scout Troops of Plainfield will rally at the Horse Show Grounds at 3:30 P. M. to hold their annual Scout Field Day. At this meet the Troop winning the greatest number of points wins the "Champions in Scout Craft" pennant. Troop 14, of the First Baptist church, now holds the pennant and a lively contest is expected as the other troops have made up their minds that they want it.

Events will include knot tying, in which the Scouts are allowed three minutes to produce the best exhibitions of knots; signaling with flags, using the international code, and troop exhibitions. Another interesting event is the First Aid contest, in which the Scout with a few bandages, two staves and his coat gives a demonstration of First Aid bandaging and then carries his patient off the field on a stretcher.

One of the big events of the rally will be the fire lighting contest, with a wooden bow, drill and fire board. The scout makes a fire without using a match. The record time for making fire by this method is eleven seconds. The Plainfield Scouts do not expect to beat that but they expect to do it in less than half a minute. The silver cup given for this event has been held by Scout Rice, of Troop 5; Scout Marder, of Troop 11, and Scout Tallamy, of Troop 10. Scout Tallamy does not plan to enter the contest this year but he has issued a challenge to the winner next Saturday and will demonstrate that he still has a hand in the game.

There will be two contests which are particularly interesting and exciting to the spectators, the dressing race and the horse and rider contest. In the dressing race the scouts walk across the field, taking off as they go their hat, neckerchief, leggings and shoes; then they race back dressing as they go. In the horse and rider contest a smaller scout is mounted on the back of a horse who is a bigger scout. All teams go in the ring at once and the last team to remain on its feet wins.

In case of rain Saturday, the meet is postponed one week to June 8.

PLACED IN CHARGE OF PROBATION OFFICER.

James L. Johns, of 223 East Front street, and Edward Hennessy, of Oakland avenue, each seventeen years old, and Harold F. Emmons, of 250 Duer street, the borough, sixteen years old, the three youths who stole a Ford automobile from in front of the Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday night, were placed in charge of Probation Officer Irwin by Judge DeMeza yesterday, after a hearing in the city police court.

The machine had been driven to Plainfield by William Hobbs, of the Delafield dairy, South Plainfield, and was taken while he was at the performance at the Plainfield Theatre. The purloiners were caught in the machine as they were passing through Elizabeth.

Palens' Failure To Furnish Trim May Add $6,000 To City Hall Cost

As a result of the H. W. Palens' inability to complete their contract for the furnishing of City Hall trim and the subsequent awarding of the contract to the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, of this city, as carried out at the Common Council meeting Monday night, it is believed that the cost of this material will jump from about $13,700 to $20,000.

When the City Hall committee originally asked for bids for the furnishing of the trim the Palens company's figure, which was accepted, was $13,700. The J. D. Loizeaux company submitted a bid for nearly the same amount but afterward withdrew it. The bids of other companies seeking the contract were much higher than these two in their estimate, the cost as specified averaging around $20,000, while one bidder went as high as $28,000. This was before the present high prices prevailed. Since then all kinds of trim has greatly advanced and the market is even more unreliable than at the time the Palens company's bid was accepted, therefore, the belief gains ground that the "cost plus" proposition entered into with the J. D. Loizeaux company will make an addition of from $6,000 to $7,000 to the expense of completing the City Hall. The Plainfield concern is to receive ten per cent. over the net expense of providing the material.

In explanation of the City Hall committee's move, Mayor Calkins presented the following letter to the Common Council at the meeting Monday night:

To the Honorable The Common Council:

The City Hall Building Committee reports that since the last meeting of the Common Council, H. W. Palens Sons, to whom was awarded the contract for the interior trim for the new Municipal Building, have declared and admitted that by reason of the commandeering by the National Government of materials and cars; the limiting of coal supply and the partial taking over of their plant for government purposes, they are and will be unable to perform their contract with the city; that they cannot deliver trim as agreed and even if the city could grant extension of time agreed upon, they could not guarantee delivery within any reasonably definite period.

In these circumstances your committee has had conferences with various parties and as result thereof now recommends that the Common Council authorize and direct, that contract for the required interior trim be placed with the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, of this city, an original bidder for the same who retired when it was believed that the bidders of H. W. Palens were likely to insure more prompt delivery, etc., than any other bidder could accomplish.

The J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company now feel confident that they can furnish the running trim for the building within a few weeks and the balance within a reasonable time thereafter, and your committee is satisfied as result of careful investigation that said company, which now offers to furnish the required trim on a net cost plus 10 per cent. profit basis, which is the best offer your committee has been able to obtain, is better equipped than any one else to perform the work satisfactorily and that said offer is the lowest and best obtainable.

In view of the fact that it is difficult, if not impossible for mills at this time to estimate figures which would enable them to submit bids or estimate in the usual way which could be accepted by the city, and that such estimates even if obtainable would necessarily under present conditions, be made with a considerable margin of safety to the contractor, your committee recommends that the said offer of the said J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company be now accepted, leaving to the city such remedy as it may be entitled to against H. W. Palens Sons for failure to perform this contract.

June 3, 1918.

LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor and Chairman City Hall Building Committee.

Busy Corporal Gets Eighteen More Recruits

Corporal Ernest Peck, recruiting officer in charge of the station at the Plainfield postoffice, is a busy man these days. In addition to receiving all applicants for enlistments and explaining details of army regulations and requirements to anxious inquirers, he is always "on the job" making arrangements for patriotic gatherings or securing the newest recruits to Fort Slocum.

During the past week, he has accepted eighteen young men from Plainfield and nearby towns, making nearly seventy-five in all that he has gotten since he opened the office on March 20. Not satisfied even with this great number, he has planned a recruiting drive through Dunellen, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan, White House and High Bridge for tomorrow, proceeding by automobile. Beside all this to keep his hand in he is working up a big patriotic speeching in this city for Major Bloom, of Newark, who is chairman of the New Jersey Committee of '76, the organization which is stimulating interest in patriotic principles all over the country.

This big meeting will be held in the Plainfield Theatre, which has been donated by Manager M. L. Shannon, for the occasion on Sunday afternoon, June 16. Senator William N. Runyon will be chairman and beside Mr. Runyon, the speakers will include Rev. Dr. Walter J. Swaffield, of this city, Major Bloom and others. The Liberty Band will furnish music and the Home Defense Leagues of Plainfield and North Plainfield will attend in a body.

Today Corporal Peck announces that there is a splendid chance for men over forty-one years to serve their country outside of the regular army channels. They are wanted for detached duty in the Coast Guards, their duties consisting principally of guard work about factories making munitions. Regarding this form of enlistment, Corporal Peck has issued the following explanation:

"Duly qualified applicants between 32 and 41 can be now accepted; for men beyond 41 special permission may be obtained. There is no limit to the age for re-enlistment other than physical fitness. All applicants accepted, men will be sent to Fort Slocum for enlistment, and will then be sent to such places as may be designated by the commanding general of the department.

"Enlistment is for the period of existing emergency only. Married men are acceptable. Enlistment papers are to be marked 'U. S Guards, N. A.'

"Rare opportunity for men over 41 of former service, in the Spanish-American, Philippine, Boxer Campaign or of prior service in the Army, Navy or Maine Corps; and men with experience in well organized fire and police departments with consent of their chief, or if no longer in such departments. Civilians without previous training as above cannot be accepted without special authority.

"Pay and allowances are the same as prescribed for infantry. There is no assurances that enlistments will continue throughout the war. This force is designated for immediate use and not for training; and will be used, so far as practicable, in the United States. This force will not be used on the battle-fields of Europe.

"Physical examination is the same as that required for entrance in the other branches of the Army. Minor physical defects may be waived upon special application in each case.

"Any man honorably discharged as a non-commissioned officer can be accepted if otherwise qualified. For ex-privates and especially good men over 41, special application should be made.

"The wife will receive monthly $15 additional, beside $15 from the husband's pay; and also $10 for the first child, $7.50 for the second, and $5 for the third child and each additional child."

The eighteen young men accepted by Corporal Peck for service in the National Army and sent to Fort Slocum during the past week are as follows:

Lester L. Bisbing, 718 Richmond street, Plainfield, Eng., R. A.; Arthur H. Hyde, Spanwood, Eng., R. A.; John F. Wirth, 203 West Front street, Plainfield, Eng., R. A.; Russell Scribner, 29 De Kalb avenue, Plainfield, Eng., R. A.; Ray E. Coley, 317 Somerset street, North Plainfield, Medical Corps, R. A.; John H. Force, High Bridge, Medical Corps, R. A.; Almon P. Doty, 48 Somerset street, North Plainfield; Medical Corps, R. A.; Wesley M. Hughes, Dunellen, Ord. Corps, N. A.; Kenneth F. Dealman, Dunellen, Ord. Corps, N. A.; Frank L. Bowlby, Dunellen, Ord. Corps, N. A.; Fred J. Erber, 437 West Fourth street, Plainfield, Q. M. C., N. A.; Henry F. Jacobsen, 29 Washington avenue, North Plainfield, Q. M. C., N. A.; Elmer E. Schenck, 752 East Second street, Plainfield, Q. M. C., N. A.; Michael Sachar, 506 West Fifth street, Plainfield, Field Art., R. A.; Simon A. Kline, 545 West Third street, Plainfield, Field Art, R. A.; Edward J. Dacey, 724 Wallace place, Plainfield, Coast Art. Corps, R. A.; Arno C. Belvieu, 1204 West Third street, Plainfield, Eng., R. A.

COURT WATCHING INVITED.

Court Watchung, No. 293, Daughters of Isabella, of this city, have received an invitation to attend an initiation at Somerville to be given by Court Avenue, Mavie No. 301, at the latter place. The event is to take place on Sunday and it is expected that a large delegation will go from here. The regular business meeting of the local lodge will be held on Monday evening and it is urged that all members attend.

Death Calls Dr. Buchanan

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, for twenty years one of the leading physicians in the community, died at his home at 42 Duer street, the borough, at 3:10 this morning. He had been in a critical condition for the past two weeks and last Sunday night blood transfusion was resorted to in a last hope of restoring him to health. A large quantity of the life fluid was taken from Bert Wilson, of this city, by Dr. Edward Lindeman, of New York, but the effort proved futile. The patient rallied for about twenty-four hours, after which he again began a gradual sinking.

The illness of Dr. Buchanan originated in an organic trouble which developed abscesses on the brain. He underwent three operations at Muhlenberg Hospital last February and seemingly recovered fully. He was able to resume his practice most of the time after, but his condition again became acute and he was compelled to take to his bed. From then on he had been in a more or less critical state most of the time, although up to this week he was conscious and able to converse freely.

Dr. Buchanan was the son of Hannah and the late Rev. Doctor Joseph C. Buchanan. He was born at Scotch Plains in 1871, his father at that time being pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. Seven years later the family moved to Penllyn, Pa., where Dr. Buchanan lived for twenty years. In 1889 he was graduated from Pettie Institute, four years later from Princeton University and in 1896 from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. For two years he acted as a member of the St. Jefferson Hospital medical staff, at the end of which time he removed to North Plainfield.

Dr. Buchanan rapidly acquired a large practice in this community and his services as family physician will be lost to hundreds of Plainfielders. He was a member of the Muhlenberg Hospital staff, attending physician for the Children's Home, borough physician for North Plainfield, a leading members of the Plainfield Clinical Society and a member of the American Medical Society.

Dr. Buchanan, in addition to his large practice, was known as one of the most active fraternal men in this vicinity. He was especially interested in the Golden Eagles and besides being a member of Greenbush Castle in Plainfield had gone through the State offices to the highest chair of grand chief. He also belonged to Anchor Lodge of Masons, Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., Plainfield Lodge of Odd Fellows, Clan MacKenzie, O. S. C., Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., Columbia Lodge of Workmen, Royal Council, Sr. O. U. A. M., and the Borough Firemen's Relief Association. His religious affiliations was with the First Baptist church.

Dr. Buchanan, Dr. Buchanan was considered one of the most versatile artists in the city or borough. His special instrument was the bass viol but he also was master of the piano, trombone, organ and 'cello. He belonged to several local orchestras and always was willing to donate his services for any worthy cause.

Beside his wife, who was Miss Lidie C. Collom, of Pemberton, and whom he married on February 1, 1883, Dr. Buchanan is survived by his mother, who resided with him, and one daughter, Miss Mary Buchanan.

The funeral will be held in the First Baptist church, this city, next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip R. Strong. A further service will be held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Buchanan's mother, Mrs. Anna Collom, of Pemberton, and burial will be in the cemetery at Pemberton.

Big Junior Carnival Opens Next Monday

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., has engaged the Keystole Exposition Shows to furnish all attractions at the carnival to open next Monday night. There will be the usual merry-go-round, ferris wheel, whip and swings.

In the show line there will be the ten in one or palace of wonders, Spidora, Carlo's dog, pony and goose circus, Illusion Show, Miller's platform attraction, Over the Top, Athletic Show and others too numerous to mention. Young Gotch, who comes with the Athletic Show, will issue a challenge to Plainfield's wrestlers every evening on the grounds.

Each and every evening there will take place two free acts. One will be a slide for life down an incline upon a bicycle, which will take place at 8 o'clock every evening. Then at 10:45, Prof. Emilie Navado will be seen to make a high dive from an aerial ladder, 75 feet high. Forty concessions will grace either side of the midway.

The show will be held in North Plainfield, corner Codington avenue and Somerset street. The general committee acting for Franklin Council is composed of G. M. Smith, William J. Hartpence, J. J. Kilmer, C. J. Sheets, W. Hoffman, C. E. Conover and J. H. Leivers.

Registration Shows Net Of 137 Whites

From the 186 young men in the Plainfield district who registered with the local draft board, Wednesday, it was reported today that 137 were whites who will undergo the examination leading to final acceptance for general military duty. Twenty of the remainder are aliens and the other twenty-nine are colored youths.

Included in the 137 whites are a number of married men, several who have parents or other dependents and a few who it is known are physically deficient. The eliminations will take place in due course of time, but it is believed that a net 100 white men will be retained for Class 1-A.

Of the original Class 1-A men tabulated after the examinations of the past winter, there are now but thirty-five remaining who are whites. In addition there are sixty-four colored men who have been on call for several months.

Belated registrations by mail and the appearance of foreigners who remained away Wednesday may yet bring Wednesday's registration up to 200, but even at this figure the number is below the estimate. The belief existed that from 250 to 300 youths who had reached twenty-one years of age since June 5, 1917, would be enrolled. The main reason for the decrease is charged to enlistments of boys between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one.

Plainfield Seminary Annual Graduation

The annual commencement exercises at the Plainfield Seminary were held Tuesday morning, at which Miss Marie Van Rensselaer Sill and Miss Florence Pitz Randolph Huntsman, both of this city, were graduated. Miss Arnold, principal of the Seminary, was in charge of the exercises and friends of the graduates and undergraduate classes, as well as members of the Seminary alumnae, were present.

The order of exercises was as follows:

Dr. D. P. Fleming, of the Union Theological Seminary, made the customary address to the graduates, his subject being :"The Measures of Reconciling." It was filled with timely suggestions and was delivered in a scholarly manner was great appreciated by parents and pupils alike.

The order of exercises in addition to Dr. Fleming's address was as follows:

Processional hymn, "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the school; prayer; chorus, "The Angel," Rubenstein; chorus, the "Swan Song," Saint-Saens; presentation of diplomas by Miss Arnold; response, awarding of prizes; chorus, "A May Morning," Denza, and recessional, "Patriotic Hymn," Panny Snow Knowlton.

Following the exercises the Seminary Alumnae Association held a business session, at which a number of important matters were discussed.

Former Plainfielder Returns After Visit

Lendrum Jennings, son of Fire Chief A. D. Jennings, left Tuesday for his home in Warren, Ohio, after a ten days' visit in Plainfield, the second that he has enjoyed since he went away from this city twelve years ago.

Mr. Jennings, after leaving here, was for a time located in California but later returned to the Middle West and for the past six years has been foreman of the pattern department of the Winfield Electric Welding Company, of Warren, a concern which manufactures machine for welding metal parts by a patented electrical process. The Spicer company at South Plainfield has several of these machines in its factory equipment.

The former Plainfielder, beside being very successful in his work at Warren, has been prominent in social life of the city. He is a life member of Warren Lodge, No. 285, B. P. O. E.; the Masonic lodge in that district and several other organizations. Warren is located midway between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, being but fifty-six miles from the former, it is within the steel producing belt and is enjoying great prosperity through the high wages being paid by the rolling mills. In some instances experienced steel workers receive as high as forty dollars a day, while ten dollars a day for beginners, hardly more than boys, is quite ordinary.

Mr. Jennings will return to Plainfield in the fall, at which time his marriage to Miss Louise Meyer, daughter of Henry C. Meyer, of Scotch Plains, will take place.

City's Trolley Service Somewhat Improved Today

One Lone Car On Each Of Local Lines Helps To Overcome Sudden Traction Paralysis Of Yesterday—Company And Men Both Remain Obdurate And Full Relief Not Yet In Sight

A partial restoration of Plainfield's trolley service, paralyzed by the big Public Service strike of yesterday, was made this morning, when one car was placed on each of the local lines, Fourth street, Somerset, Netherwood and Arlington. On the Union line, one lone car, manned by a regular crew, made trips every forty-five minutes between Plainfield and Dunellen.

It was stated by Superintendent George Luhr, of the Plainfield district, to a Record reporter this morning that the Public Service officials are firm in their determination not to grant the wage increase of from *thirty-four cents an hour to forty-*five cents for straight time and from forty cents to sixty cents for overtime. President McCarter and the other chief executors also declare that the trolley men committed a grievous wrong toward the public in not making any announcement of their intention to strike, thus causing a great inconvenience to workmen employed in various plants all through North Jersey. Mr. McCarter yesterday made an offer of forty cents an hour for straight time but this was refused.

The motormen and conductors will hold a meeting in Bayview Hall, Newark, this afternoon, at which time it is believed the Public Service will again advance a proposition. At the present time no intimation has been given as to what it might be. Whatever is done will include every division operated by the traction company extending all the way from Paterson to Trenton, this being the limit of the big strike which concerns about six thousand employes and fifteen hundred cars.

The first car out of the Dewey Park barn this morning was motored by Superintendent Luhr. This was followed by a second car in charge of Inspector Hugh Higgins, also acting as motorman. In close succession three other cars came along, each one manned by regular crews who had decided to go back to their places and aid in relieving the situation that was so bad throughout Plain*field yesterday. It is probable that* the one car on each line will continue in operation but as yet there is no hope of a betterment of conditions on the Union line either East or West.

In Jersey City and Newark, yesterday, the Government placed soldiers on a limited number of cars in order to get workers to the big ship plants on Newark Bay. Only men holding shipyard cards were allowed on. This led to a rumor that the United States Government would take over the Public Service lines but no confirmation of this has been forthcoming.

The striking car men held street parades in Newark and Jersey City yesterday, but at no time was there any hint of disorder. The men are pretty well united in their determination to see the strike through to a finish. Their leaders assert that they will not return to work unless the advanced wage is given and that if it does not come within a few days they will accept the scores of jobs that are being offered them by munition plants.

Open Discussion Of City House Problem

The Business Men's Association today issued invitation letters to the leading men of the city, soliciting their presence at a meeting in the association rooms in the Babcock building next Tuesday night, for the purpose of discussing ways and means of building workmen's houses on the co-operative plan.

A committee from the association has been at work on the project for several weeks and it is believed that a solution of the house problem can be reached.

PHILIP PHILLIPS JOINS HIS BROTHER IN FRANCE.

Corporal Philip Phillips, of Madison avenue, this city, is among the most recent Plainfield boys stepping foot on French soil as a member of the big American force that is to administer a sound drubbing to the Kaiser's minions. A message to this effect came to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy F. Phillips, Wednesday morning. He left Camp Dix about three weeks ago in the unit which included his own regiment, the 311th Infantry, and several other units.

Corporal Phillips, who is known to his acquaintances as "Peter," is the second member of his family to join the expeditionary force. His brother, Corporal Kenneth Phillips, has been abroad since early last winter as a member of the 502nd Engineers and has been doing active duty on the front for several months. Another brother, Corporal "Jack" Phillips, is impatiently waiting the call that will take his division of heavy artillery out of Camp McClellan for the "big doings" overseas.

WILLIAM MARIENSCHECK ON CASUALTY LIST.

William Marienscheck, twenty-three years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antone Marienscheck, of 141 West Front street, this city, was reported in General Pershing's casualty list yesterday as being severely wounded.

Private Marienscheck has been a member of the regular infantry for the past four years and was one of the first Americans to go abroad last summer. His father is employed as a machinist at one of the local shops.

TAG DAY SUCCESSFUL.

Despite many previous contributions for various causes the people of Plainfield responded liberally to the Muhlenberg Hospital Liberty tag day last Saturday and donated about $4,300. This is by far the largest amount derived from any such undertaking and the Women's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg has extended its sincere thanks to the community.

GOING TO ANNISTON.

Mrs. Corrs Ryno and daughter, Mrs. W. H. Dunlap, of Codington avenue, the borough, left this morning for Anniston, Ala. Mrs. Dunlap's husband, Sergeant W. H. Dunlap, of Company B, 115th Infantry, is stationed at Camp McClellan. Mrs. Ryno and Mrs. Dunlap expect to be away about three weeks.

Plainfielders To Make Their Home In Detroit

John Bowman, for many years a foreman in the foundry department at the Pond Tool Works, has been made a foreman of one of the departments of the Michigan Stamping Company, one of the largest concerns of the kind in the Middle West. The plant is located in Detroit and Mr. Bowman is now at work in his new position.

Mrs. Bowman was West with her husband for a time since he left Plainfield two months ago, but has been in the city during the past week. Her household effects at their former apartment in the Manning building on West Front street were disposed of at auction by William Schorb on Wednesday and Mrs. Bowman will leave for Detroit within the next few days. She and her husband will make their home in that city in the future.

Mr. Bowman is numbered among the best known men who have ever resided in Plainfield. He was employed at the Pond shop for nearly twenty-five years and resigned last spring at the same time that Superintendent McCardell withdrew from the concern. Mr. Bowman is a member of Plainfield Lodge of Elks, Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and other local organizations. In his new position he carries the best wishes of all his friends. The departure of Mr. and Mrs. Bowman is deeply regretted but accepted in the spirit that they may return at some future date.

HIS WORDS CAME TRUE.

Sergeant Joseph Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kennedy, of West Fourth street and Monroe avenue, is one of the Plainfielders arriving in France during the past week. He was originally a member of the 311th Infantry at Camp Dix, but at the time of going abroad was a member of the depot brigade. The message of his safe arrival came on Wednesday, exactly twelve months after he had registered on June 5, 1917, and remarked on returning home: "Well, we have just got my name on the book and maybe this time a year from now I will be in France."

A NEW FIREMAN.

John McInerney, formerly of White Plains, N. Y., has been appointed a probationer in the city fire department. He began his duties at headquarters Monday.

Chief Jennings "Away From Smoke Of His Own Chimney" For First Time In His Life

Chief Andrew D. Jennings, of the city fire department, is in Chicago this week, attending the annual convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs. The session will end today and the Plainfielder will be home the forepart of next week.

The trip is the first the Chief has made as a member of the International Association and will be memorable in another way, as it is the first time that he has ever had a vacation since being in the local department, and also that it marks his first journey of any consequence. Heretofore the longest distance he has ever gone in his whole life is Atlantic City. He enjoyed no outing to the shore or resort for a week-end, otherwise this only changes his enjoyment from fire duty were occasional trips to New York. Chief Jennings was born in a house which stood next to the present fire headquarters on East Second street and he has been in Plainfield practically ever since; and he started on the journey to Chicago last Sunday the genial head of the city's fire fighting force remarked:

"This will be the first time in my life that I have ever gotten away from the smoke of my own chimney."

Chief Jennings was one of many of New Jersey's fire heads in the party which started for the convention at Chicago. One of the others was Chief Paul Moore, of Newark, while Paterson, Jersey City, Trenton, New Brunswick and other nearby places are all represented in the delegation.

Prosecutor Asks For Seven Passenger Car

The program of road work about the county for the year beginning July 1 was approved at a meeting of the Board of Freeholders held at the court house in Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon. This end of the county comes in for but one stretch of three-quarters of a mile on Montgomery avenue in Springfield. The report will be sent to the State Highway Commission by Jacob L. Bauer, county engineer, for approval before State aid is given.

Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, of Plainfield, sent a communication to the Board asking that instead of appropriating $1,500 a year for auto hire for his office, the county purchase a seven-passenger machine, which would save its cost within a few years. On account of the war the amount of investigating done by the County Detective has increased two-fold and the cost of hiring autos has increased to a considerable extent.

The road committee submitted a report recommending the repainting of the *Gerard avenue bridge, Plain*field, and bids for the work will be received by County Engineer Bauer within the next few weeks.

G. ARCHIBALD BAILEY TAKES NEW POSITION.

G. Archibald Bailey, of Westervelt avenue, the borough, who was a member of the local postoffice clerical staff for a long time but more recently in the mailing department of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, has resigned the latter position to accept a better one with the Nestle's Food Company at the New York headquarters.

Mr. Bailey made a reputation for himself as a director of mails for the Guaranty Trust Company and the Nestle concern "drafted" him to organize a department of this kind for its big offices on William street. He will make all his own arrangements for bettering the service and will have full charge when the work is gotten under way. The change goes into effect next week and Mr. Bailey has the best wishes of all his many local friends for continued success. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bailey, of Summit avenue, the borough.

O-BITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. GERTRUDE TIER.

The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude Tier, widow of John H. Tier, whose death occurred in Brooklyn, Saturday, was held in Trinity Reformed church, Tuesday afternoon. The deceased had been a member of this congregation for many years and the gathering in attendance numbered many women with whom she had been associated in church activities during her long residence in Plainfield. Rev. John Y. Brosk, pastor of Trinity, was in charge. Burial was made in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery.

Mrs. Tier was a native of Brooklyn, having been born in that city in 1835. When only a child, she came to Plainfield to make her home and after her marriage to Mr. Tier removed to the Tier homestead at the foot of Bank place. Tier's lake was named after Mr. Tier, as the premises bordered on the waterfront between Elm place and Watchung avenue. Here for a long time, Mr. Tier harvested the ice crop and beside retailing the commodity in the city and borough also conducted an extensive ice cream business. A Board of Health ban placed on the use by householders of ice taken from Green brook compelled Mr. Tier to abandon that end of his business but the ice cream distribution continued until just before his death a few years ago. Since then, the property has passed into other hands as did also the building at 134 Park avenue, which Mr. Tier erected as a downtown salesroom for his ice cream and confectionery.

William Tier, Mrs. Tier's only surviving son, recently went to Brooklyn to live, having been appointed to an executive position in that city for the Borden Milk Company. With his departure from Plainfield, the mother went with him to make her home and it was at his residence that death occurred. She had been failing for several months before the end.

Mrs. Tier had been a very active woman during the greater part of her life, Trinity church being the especial field of her endeavor. In her younger days she was identified with many other interests that tended to the advancement of Plainfield and her retirement because of age left a gap that was hard to fill. She was a woman of broad Christian character, pronounced in her views, but always standing ready to lend her support to any cause for public good.

Beside her son, William N. Tier, Mrs. Tier leaves one sister, Mrs. Washington L. Tier, of Rahway; seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Another son, John Tier, Jr., died a few years ago at his home on Bank place.

MISS CORNELIA ROSS.

Miss Cornelia Ross, aged sixty-one years, died Wednesday at Muhlenberg Hospital, following a long illness. She was the daughter of the late James and Mary Ross and had resided in Plainfield practically all her life.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 this afternoon in the chapel of Cole & High and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring. Interment will be in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery.

MRS. CHARLES W. NOYES, JR.

The funeral of Mrs. Genevieve Aimee Noyes, wife of Charles W. Noyes, Jr., whose death occurred at her home on Rockview terrace, Saturday afternoon, was held at the family residence, Tuesday. Rev. H. St. George Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, was in charge of the service.

Burial was made in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, Wednesday.

MRS. WILLIAM H. DUNKINSON.

Mrs. Mary Raphael Dunkinson, wife of William H. Dunkinson, died Monday morning at her home at 808 Park avenue, following a long illness from a complication of troubles.

Mrs. Dunkinson was a native of Baltimore but had been a resident of this city for the past ten years. Beside her husband, she is survived by two sons, Thomas H. Sullivan, of 808 Park avenue, and another son, living in New York; also several daughters, one of whom is Miss Mary Sullivan, of Park avenue.

The body was sent to Baltimore, Thursday morning, and the funeral was held in that city. Burial was in Bonnie Brae cemetery, Baltimore.

MISS VIRGINIA THORPE.

Miss Virginia F. Thorpe, a well-known resident of South Plains, died at her home on Park avenue, that place, Sunday mornin. She was sixty-six years old. The funeral was held Wednesday morning, in charge of Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, of this city, and burial was in the Scotch Plains cemetery.

MRS. ELIZA J. MENGER.

At the ripe age of ninety-six years, death came on Sunday afternoon to Mrs. Eliza J. Menger, widow of Lewis R. Menger, probably the oldest woman resident in Plainfield. For the past twenty-two years, Mrs. Menger had been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Cornelia Zabriskie, of 11 West 2nd avenue, and the demise occurred at that address. Up to about a year ago, she had been enjoying unusual health and energy for one of her years, but about six months since a slight paralytic stroke caused her to became an invalid. Since then she had been ill most of the time and for the past few weeks the end had been momentarily expected.

The funeral was held at Mrs. Zabriskie's home Wednesday morning, and was in charge of Rev. Dr. D. W. Skellenger, pastor of Hope chapel, in the absence of a regular pastor at the Crescent Avenue church, of which Mrs. Menger was a member. Interment was in the family plot in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Menger was born in New York on July 12, 1832. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McCandless, the former being an employe of the New York Evening Post for many years. To was one of the victims of the cholera epidemic which swept New York in 1835 and which caused the exodus from the lower part of the city to the hastily built up section called "Greenwich Village," a name by which it is known to this day.

After her marriage, Mrs. Menger continued to reside in New York and Brooklyn until 1836, when, with her daughter, Mrs. Zabriskie, she removed to this city. Although she was then of an age that keeps most people from any activities, Mrs. Menger continued the busy life that had always been hers. She became a member of the Crescent Avenue church by letter and beside taking part in all of the congregational social affairs, was a regular attendant at all services until about two years ago. At home she always found something to do for herself or for someone else and one of her chief diversions was to receive visitors. She dearly loved young people, to whom she never tired of telling about the early days of New York and the pastimes that interested juveniles when she was a school-girl. Even after she had passed the fourscore and ten mark Mrs. Menger retained all her faculties, her sweet disposition and interest in outside affairs. It was a distinct pleasure to converse with her as she was an habitual newspaper reader and if she could discuss the European war, at the time of its beginning, Woman Suffrage, politiss, Plainfield's municipal doings or any other happenings chronicled in the daily prints.

Beside her daughter, Mrs. Zabriskie, Mrs. Menger leaves one other daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, of Sound Beach, Conn., and a son, Lewis Menger, of Brooklyn. There are also five grandchildren and one great granddaughter. The last named is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Zabriskie, of Willow avenue.

MRS. ERNEST A. MILLARD.

Mrs. Mable Millard, wife of Ernest A. Millard, and a life-long resident of Plainfield, died Sunday night at her home, 66 Westervelt avenue. She had been ill only two weeks with a complication of troubles.

The funeral was held at the late home yesterday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. J. Y. Brosk, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. The attendance of relatives and friends was very large and the floral display indicated the love and esteem in which she had been held, the set pieces being unusally numerous. Burial was in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Mrs. Millard was born in Plainfield in 1876. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. James Force, the former being a member of the well known Force family, which included his two brothers, Albert L. and William L. Force, founders of the Plainfield Daily Press. Mrs. Millard always made her home locally and her acquaintanceship was very wide. Her husband was employed for twenty years in the clerical department at the Plainfield postoffice, resigning only the past winter to take a position with the State Trust Campany. Both husband and wife have been active in the work at Trinity Reformed church, Mrs. Millard being especially prominent in the women's organizations.

Beside her husband, the deceased is survived by one son, Colin Millard, and two daughters, Frances and Mary Louise Millard. She also leaves one brother, John Force, of Westfield.

CATHERINE LOUISE WHITE.

Catherine Louise White, the three and a half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. White, of East Second street, died Saturday night, after an illness of ten days. The funeral was held at the parents' home Tuesday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church. Burial was in Hillside cemetery. The sympathy of the community has been extended Mr. and Mrs. White in their bereavement. They have one other child, Harold Edward White, Jr.

CHARLES H. RANDOLPH.

The funeral of Charles H. Randolph, a life long resident of Plainfield and widely known as a veteran of the Civil War, who died at his home, 129 West Second street, Sunday noon, was held at the late home Tuesday. The service was private and was in charge of Rev. J. L. Skaggs, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Randolph was the son of the late Phineas Randolph, one of Plainfield's pioneer millers and was born in this city seventy-seven years ago. After completing his education in the local schools, he took up milling under the supervision of his father, whose mill at that time was located down in the meadow on West Front street, back of the premises now occupied by Herman Weber. During the period in question there were half a dozen such mills on the banks of Green brook in the Plainfield district. Randolph's was one of the busiest and best known and the others included French's on Somerset street, and Cadmus' on West End avenue.

After his father died Charles Randolph continued the mill for some time and selling the property later conducted the mill on the Charles W. Sandt & Company, of the Babcock building, manufacturers of floor polishes.

Soon after the Civil War broke out, Mr. Randolph was among the Plainfield boys who answered President Lincoln's call for volunteers. After being attached to various units, he was eventually assigned to Company H, Thirtieth New Jersey Infantry, and remained with it during his term of enlistment. He served with distinction through numerous heavy engagements but emerged from each battle with little or no injury. He was a past commander of Major Anderson Post, No. 109, the local G. A. R. organization which combined with Winfield Scott Post about twenty years ago. He was also a member of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., in which he served as recorder for many years. His religious affiliation was with the Seventh-Day Baptist congregation.

Beside his wife, who was Miss Henrietta Randall, of Plainfield, Mr. Randolph is survived by one son, former Councilman Frank D. Randolph, of West Second street, employed for many years as mechanical engineer at the Potter Press Works; one sister, Mrs. Isabella Pope, of North avenue, and one brother, William Randolph, of South Plainfield. The last named was also a miller and conducted the big mill at South Plainfield which burned down ten years ago. Another brother, Dace Randolph, who had been living in New York, died during the past winter.

Claybrook Being Urged To Enter Senatorial Race

Within the last few weeks a vigorous movement has come into being in Union county demanding that Comptroller Claybrook, of Plainfield, be considered as a senatorial possibility by the Democrats. Those who follow political developments closely have seen it coming, as the Plainfield man has in his business life become more and more one if the big men of the State and Nation.

The agitation has been indorsed by Comptroller Collins, treasurer of the State Democratic Committee, and a veteran in political prognostication. The general is known throughout the State, as one of the original Wilson men, and as a far-seeing student of events who has heralded the entrance into the political arena of several men not considered by the average politicians, but who have afterward loomed large in New Jersey affairs.

"Mr. Claybrook is president of the New York Produce Exchange, and as such is in close touch with Herbert Hoover and other government officials controlling the great grain supply," General Collins said yesterday. "It is because of this work in a national way, no less than for his popularity with his fellow townsmen in New Jersey, that he would make the strongest Democratic candidate in sight for the United States senatorship. Recent conferences between Mr. Claybrook and Mr. Hoover's representatives have thrown into relief what some of us knew all along, that in Plainfield we had a man big enough for any political office his fellow citizens could confer upon him.

"The New York Produce Exchange has been called into greatest open market for foodstuffs in existence, and the public is dropping its indifference toward the organization, and coming to study more and more its aims and its methods. In such a study the personality of Claybrook must be taken into consideration. And the more one studies his achievements, the strongest the conviction that he is senatorial timber of the sturdiest and most indestructible sort. He is a big man, with a big conception of his responsibilities, and that is the kind of a man we want.

"The hesitancy of men like Mr. Claybrook, who could win, to seek the senatorial nomination and try for the togs has made it the duty of Democratic leaders to scan long enough to fill the bill before sectional politics obscure the issues, and lessen our chances of victory. It is in the hope of accomplishing something for the party, State and nation that some of us have been trying to get Mr. Claybrook before the public.

"His chances of winning are as good as those of any man I know," continued General Collins, "and better than those of pretty nearly everybody who has been mentioned. In the first place, his neighbors in Plainfield like him. There is no office in their gift they would deny him. The testimony of a man's neighbors is the most convincing, and Plainfield thinks a lot of Richard A. Claybrook.

"But his qualifications as an executive, to which I have referred before, are the qualifications which would entitle him to the support of every man of whatever party who wishes a real big man in Washington, not a politician. Men of Claybrook's caliber are not as well known as those who have haunted the political byways all their lives. Mr. Claybrook has frequently found time to play politics.

"One of the arguments which some might urge against his available would prevent his greatest element of strength," said the committeeman. "That is, the fact that he is a commuter. His work is mainly in New York, and some would say that this would be used against him in the campaign, with effect. But I do not think so. On the contrary, I believe that it would attract to his standard the thousands of commuters who live in this State, and constitute the independent vote. The Democratic candidate is a minority candidate, that is evident, and without this independent vote we cannot hope to elect our man. A campaign appealing to the independent vote is more likely to be successful than one waged strictly according to party lines, whereby we stand to lose. Mr. Claybrook being a man of large affairs, I have reason to believe, and in fact know, he would be eminently acceptable to Washington. He is a loyal Democrat, a staunch Wilson man, and there are no weak spots in his armor."

General Collins has no assurance that the Plainfield man would consider a nomination, but pressure will be brought to bear if the response of the voters to the launching of the boom is as great as is expected. The Union county men feel that Mr. Claybrook would sweep this and Morris counties, and with this in mind, are out to make a fight to have the merits of their candidate recognized. —Elizabeth Evening Times.

Clever May Wirth Coming Here With Ringling Brothers

Every quarter of the globe has contributed its quota to this season's program of Ringling Brothers' circus. From the mammoth spectacle of knighthood and chivalry, "In Days of Old," which opens the program, to the final hippodrome races, there is little that is not absolutely new and novel.

There is May Wirth, Australia's royal rider, and everywhere hailed as the greatest woman equestrian who ever lived. Miss Wirth is assisted by the famous Wirth family. There is Lily Leitzel, the world's greatest aerial gymnast. From Iceland comes Johannes and his stalwart company of wrestlers in exhibitions of "glima," the Norseman's method of self-defense. Among the scores of daring riding acts none contains more thrills than that introduced by Ian MacPherson and his band of Scots. The entire clan pitches camp in the great main tent and gives exhibitions of the most startling nature. Hillary Long, who skates on his head in mid-air, appears in the same number with the Melnottes and the Ortons, slack-wire marvels, who perform—not near the ground, but at the very tent top.

Aside from men and women artists there will be All" Loyal's wonderful dogs, including "Toque," a canine who leaps like a man, catches knives in his mouth while riding a galloping horse and said to be the most wonderful dog in the world. There will be troupes of marvelously trained seals, dogs and cats, rabbits and doves in a remarkable exhibition of dumb brute intelligence, bears and monkeys that skate and play upon musical instruments, and whole bands of knowing Shetland ponies especially trained for the benefit of the youngsters. These are but a few of the wonders that will be exhibited when Ringling Brothers come to Plainfield, Tuesday, June 18.

Senate To Proceed Against Profiteers

Senator Borah's speech in the Senate last week urging that the new revenue bill be directed against "profiteers" has called to the attention of many members of the Senate the words of the President in his speech on Monday when he said "the profiteer is there, the evidence is indisputable."

Urged on by Senator Borah's action, members of the Senate today began a general movement which bodes ill for those who are gaining profits from the war at the expense of the government and the people. It is very distinctly understood, however, that there must be a clear definition of the term "profiteer," and no attempt is to be made to tax heavily those who are making legitimate profits from work because of their efficient management. The movement is directed only against those who have charged high prices, simply because the war has increased a demand and abnormal demands.

Three resolutions are before the Senate today which will give the members of that body a working basis for their drive against those who are making unwarranted gains. These resolutions, offered by Senator Borah, call upon the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War and the Federal Trade Commission to lay before the Senate all of the information which they may have dealing with "profiteerin." In President Wilson's speech he declared that the Treasury Department has "indisputable evidence" of profiteering. Other governmental agencies are also known to have records which will show that some corporations and persons are and have been making large profits by charging unfair prices." It is this information which will be used by the members of the Senate in organizing their attempts to curb the "profiteer."

Taxation of the heaviest sort will be the penalty for the "profiteer."

Edge Endorses Grocers' Food Co-operation Plan

Indorsement of the movement of grocers throughout the State to co-operate with the federal food administratin is given in a letter by Governor Edge to Marinus Ritter, of Paterson, who is president of the Retail Grocers' Association of New Jersey.

The Governor's letter, in part said:

"I, perhaps, need not state that I am keenly interested in the success of your meeting, nor that it has my warmest indorsement. Offers of voluntary co-operation are proving to be sources of great power and of material assistance to the food administration. The latter's representatives in New Jersey have recently appealed to citizens for united action through their own trades, and the experience is developing untried forces for the accomplishments of results heretofore impossible.

"No doubt this will be but one of a series of such meetings, and, in fact, you are undoubtedly aware that some time ago the bakers of the State held a somewhat similar meeting in Newark with very satisfactory results. The military forces of the nation necessarily co-operate, inasmuch as co-operation is of the essence of training and discipline. The economic forces at home can adequately support the military forces in the fields afar only through this same spirit of co-operation and coordination.

"In seeking the co-operation, voluntarily, of the various food industries and trades with the officially constituted authorities, the food administration, in my judgment, has opened the door that leads to complete success.

"It is my earnest wish that grocers throughout the State will heartily support and co-operate with you in this patriotic movement and arrange for a strongly representative gathering."

Citizenship Paper For 100,000 Alien Soldiers

About 100,000 American soldiers of foreign birth who had not taken out naturalization papers will have been made citizens of the United States before leaving the training camps in this country for overseas service, the naturalization division of the Department of Labor announced this week. Aliens with the American Expeditionary Forces in France are also to be naturalized, negotiations toward that end being in progress.

The naturalization process in this country is being conducted by 100 examiners assisted by approximately 1,000 men from the ranks. Only aliens recommended by their officers are being granted citizenship, says the announcement. Those who are not recommended for citizenship will be assigned to service in the United States.

News of the Theatre

William Farnum At The Plainfield

With William Farnum, the city's most popular screen artist, in the thrilling William Fox seven-reel picture production, "True Blue," as the principal attraction, the Plainfield Theatre is again providing its patrons with a show worth double the admission fee asked.

"True Blue" is a red blood picture intended for red-blooded people and the action through the different episodes holds the spectators' interest without a suggestion of lessening at any time. Ordinarily this film would be sufficient for a full evening's program, but in addition Manager Shannon provides several excellent vaudeville specialities. These include Bodoa and Mac, comedy singing, talking and dancing; Robb & Company, in a scenic novelty, and The Davis Brothers, musical comedy acrobats. When these artists were seen yesterday for the first each one was enthusiastically received.

For the first three days next week, Manager Shannon will offer another combination program of pictures and vaudeville. The film feature will be a seven-reel production entitled the "Blindness of Divorce," in which a modern theme is told in a new way.

William Farnum Fights For Freedom

William Farnum is always fighting on the films. If he was like that when he was a boy it's a good bet that every day at recess and after school the word went 'round, "Bill Farnum is fighting again"—and the mollycoddles ran home to tell Mamma, while the real kids stood around and studied his action. So it is in the picture theatres today.

When word is passed around that William Farnum is appearing in a new Fox film the "fight fans," both male and female, flock to the lucky house confident of witnessing a good scrap.

No battle-scarred veteran of the ring has had half as many "rough-and-tumble," — "knock-down-and-drag-out" contests with virile villains as Farnum. But "Bill" Farnum always battles for a good cause,—and usually wins. Sometimes he is "badly disfigured, but still in the ring," as the told sporting reporters used to write,—and a fight is always triumphant in the end.

In his latest Fox picture with the attractive title, "True Blue" show at the Plainfield Theatre, yesterday for the first times, Farnum fights for freedom,—from the restrictions of caste, the rule of privileged classes and for independence, just as our ancestors did.

What makes it more difficult is the fact that the hero is rightful heir to an English Earldom and has to fight his own ambitions and aspirations to better himself, especially at the hands of his cherished traditions. He is the real hero who "overcometh himself," and in this thrilling picture "True Blue," Bill Farnum whips the best man on the scene—himself.

"True Blue" at the Plainfield is a dashing, smashing photodrama of the Great West, with William Farnum at his most as the ranchman.

The picture will be repeated at the theatre today and tomorrow in connection with a strong vaudeville bill.

Lucky Escape For Four Men When Machines Meet In Head-on Crash

A North Plainfield Ford, a Dunellen three and a half ton Selden truck, two men from Plainfield and two others from North Plainfield figured in a bad smash at Roselle Park early Tuesday morning, which the police of that place say is a record for nearness to fatalities but ending only with slight injuries to the occupants of the machines.

The Ford belonged to Joseph A. Church, the grocer, whose place of business is at 183 Somerset street, the borough. The driver was Frank Ferraro, of the same address, who was accompanied by James Martin, of Maple avenue, North Plainfield. The Selden truck belonged to the Levgar Construction Company, of Dunellen, and was in charge of Frank N. Colvin, of 201 Clinton avenue, this city. Riding with him was William Peterson, of 307 Hunter avenue, Plainfield. Farraro and Martin were hurled from their seats, the latter landing on the lawn of a yard thirty feet away. Despite his catapulting, Martin escaped with only bad bruises and contusions, while Farraro was equally as lucky. Both, however, were picked up in a dazed condition and had to be treated by Dr. William S. Smith, of Roselle Park, before they could be sent home. Colvin and Peterson fell to the ground after the collision and received only a bad shaking up.

Colvin and Peterson had gone to Long Island, Monday, to deliver a load of material for the Levgar Company and on the way back picked up a consignment of wheelbarrows for the Dunellen factory. They were passing west on Westfield avenue, near Camden street, Roselle Park, at 12:20 Tuesday morning, when the North Plainfield automobile hove in sight. The street in this point is being repaired and both machines were using the same side of the road. Before either driver could come to a stop the crash took place.

Although the Ford was empty, being bound for Newark to secure a load of vegetables, the "inflicted" heavy damage to the big truck. The Ford was knocked from its chassis and left in a generally disorganized condition. On the other hand, the Ford sacrificed itself as the Roselle Park police said afterward in a report that it was "nothing but junk." Two salvage crews appeared during Tuesday and took away what was left of the two vehicles. Frank Marsh, of New Market, autcmobile expert for the Levgar Company, managed to patch the Selden together so that it could be towed home but it will require a lot of repair work before it can again be placed in condition. How all four men escaped being killed is a mystery to Captain Ratchford and Patrolmen Krousse and Behring, of the Roselle Park police, who came on only a short distance away when the crash occurred. They declare that each of the four must have had a rabbit's foot with him as nothing else could explain how they emerged from the crash with their lives and not even a broken limb as a reminder.

Newspaper Clipping Gives Flour Prices From 1796 to 1866

Looking over a collection of clippings kept by her husband, the late Andrew G. Slevin, Mrs. Mary D. Slevin, of Franklin place, came across an article the other day which disproves the statement heard frequently now that the price of flour at present is only about the same as what it was during the Civil War.

The clipping was contained in the Cincinnati Times of December 28, 1866, and included a table showing the price of flower for the first three months of every year from 1796 to 1866. Despite the fact that the years intervening included three wars, the highest price paid for a barrel of flour according to the quoted figures, was in 1817, when the charge was $13.50. The price of a barrel of flour today is fourteen dollars, making the figure the highest on record. In contrast to the top-notch price of 1817, the article shows that in 1843 flour was selling in the United States for the surprisingly low figure of $2.-25 per barrel, a quotation that makes Plainfielders of today grow green with envy. The highest price during the Civil War was in 1865, when it was $9.75.

This is the Cincinnati Times' figures for January of each year from 1796 to 1866:

1796, $12.00; 1797, $10.00; 1798, $8.00; 1799, $9.50; 1800, $11.50; 1801, $11.50; 1802, $7.00; 1803, $6.50; 1804, $7.50; 1805 (short crops), $11.00; 1806, $7.50; 1807, $7.50; 1808, embargo, $6.00; 1809, embargo, $5.50; 1810, $5.75; 1811, $11.00; 1812 (War), $10.50; 1813 (War), $11.00; 1814 (War), $9.25; 1815 (War), $8.00; 1816, $9.00; 1817, $13.50; 1818, $10.00; 1819, $9.00; 1820, $6.00; 1821, $4.00; 1822, $6.25; 1834, $7.00; 1824, $6.00; 1825, $4.87; 1826, $4.75; 1827, $5.75; 1828, $5.00; 1829, $8.-50; 1830, $4.62; 1831, $6.12; 1832, $4.50; 1833, $5.75; 1834, $5.25; 1835, $4.87; 1836, $6.50; 1837, $11.05; 1838, $6.25; 1839, $6.25; 1840, $3.40; 1841, $3.62; 1842, $5.75; 1842, $2.75; 1844, $3.95; 1845, $3.70; 1846, $4.31; 1847, $3.-55; 1848, $4.90; 1849, $3.50; 1850, $4.62; 1851, $3.68; 1852, $3.14; 1853, $3.85; 1854, $5.60; 1855, $7.-85; 1856, $7.60; 1857, $5.15; 1858, $3.80; 1859, $4.80; 1860, $5.30; 1861, $4.50; 1862, $4.00; 1863, $5.-10; 1864, $5.75; 1865, $9.75; 1866, $7.25.

BIDS RECEIVED FOR BONNIE BURN EQUIPMENT.

Bids for the furnishing of a filter, air compressor and scales at the Bonnie Burn sanatorium, as authorized by the last meeting of the Board of Freeholders, have been received by County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer. The contracts will be awarded within a few days.

Three bids were submitted for the filter, as follows: Buhring Filter Co., $1,080; N. Y. Continental Filter Co., $1,300. For the compressor bids were as follows: Worthington Co., $1,140; Ingersoll-Rand Co., $1,-060; H. S. Down Co., $1,042, and W. S. Law, second hand, from $776 to $1,000. The following bids were placed for the scales: Meyer Co., $90; Seandard Scale Co., $95, and the Richardson Co., $105.

Big Fight In Congress Soon Over New Methods For Securing Taxes

A program of consumption taxes heretofore undreamed of by the American people will be proposed during the consideration of the new war tax bill as the one hope of limiting the burden on individual and corporate profits and incomes.

The clash between the two forms of taxation, one which extracts penny toll daily and several times a day from rich and poor alike and the other which takes the money in large lumps from excess wealth, was apparent in the debate on the existing tax law last summer.

Numerous consumption taxes were proposed then, but only a few of them were included in the bill as passed. The House committee voted consumption taxes on coffee, tea, cocoa, sugar and some other like table necessities. The Senate committee struck out these taxes. Most conspicuous of the necessity consumption taxes retained in the bill as passed was the increase in postage rates, which amounted to a tax of one cent on every letter or postal card and a proportionate increase in parcel post rates. In addition, taxes were imposed on freight and passenger receipts of the railroads, which were in all cases passed on to the consumers.

Other consumption taxes were voted, but the commodities affected were more of the nature of luxuries. Intoxicating liquor, tobacco, soft drinks, amusement admissions, pians, golf balls, tennis rackets and automobiles were among the commodities levied on.

There is general sentiment in favor of adding other luxury taxes, if new luxuries can be found to tax, but it is conceded that the amount of revenue which can be derived from this source is strictly limited. Consumption taxes can be made a source of large revenue, but only when they are applied to commodities which are necessities and which the people are compelled to continue to purchase.

Just now the conservative leaders, without regard to party affiliation, are frantically casting about for forms of consumption taxes that will more nearly rival income and profits taxes as income producers. This is particularly true of the Senators from Northeastern States, which pay the major portion of the income and profits tax revenue.

Senator Calder, of New York, has come forward with a proposal which promises large revenue. He is preparing a tax of one-half of one per cent. on all sales. This would mean that for every $2 paid out for groceries, clothing or any other commodity whatsoever one cent tax would be paid by the consumer. On the purchase of a ton of coal at $10 the consumer would add five cents tax; on a $25 suit of clothes the tax would be thirteen cents.

The tax would be applied in the form of stamps. Every individual would be compelled to carry around with him a package of stamps. If he bought a ten cent cigar he would have to have canceled a one-twentieth of one cent stamps, etc.

Senator Calder has estimated that this tax would produce $750,000,000 annually.

Another consumption tax which is favored by the conservatives is Representative Fordney's suggestion of a graduated bank check tax. The old bank check tax, imposed during the Spanish-American War, was two cents on every check regardless of the amount for which it was written and it proved a comparatively small revenue producer. Mr. Fordney would have a tax of two cents on all checks of $100 or less, with tax graduated upward at a rate of two cents a hundred, that is four cents on a check for $200, six cents on $300, twenty cents on $1,000, $2 on $10,-000 and so on.

A tax levied in this way would produce in the neighborhood of $45,-000,000, and $100,000,000 could be raised by including taxes on tea, coffee and cocoa.

A license tax on automobiles in use was seriously considered in the last Congress, and it is certain to have more chance of carrying in view of the present added need for revenue.

Not any one of these taxes will be adopted without the hottest sort of a battle. Chairman Claude Kitchin, of the House committee on ways and means, is opposed to consumption taxes so long as there is revenue to be derived from taxation of excess incomes and profits, and most of the Democratic leaders in Congress are of the same mind. It was noticeable that President Wilson, in his address to Congress, specified that the additional revenue should be raised largely from "war profits, incomes and luxuries." He made no mention of consumption taxes.

On the other hand there are Democratic Senators, such as Saulsbury, of Delaware, and Gerry, of Rhode Island, who represent the great income and war profit centers of the East who can be counted on to favor a more general spreading of the tax burden.

The Republican party is similarly split. In the Senate, members from New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the other wealthy States of the Northeastern section of the country, will oppose adding the whole burden on wealth. Contrasted with their attitude is that of Senators Hiram Johnson, of California; Linroot and La Follette, of Wisconsin, and in somewhat less degree of Townsend, of Michigan, who bitterly oppose consumption taxes and favor large taxations of incomes and profits.

It was this issue as between consumption taxes and wealth taxes which most members of Congress objected to having settled just before election. It is a political axiom that votes are never gained by imposition of taxes. The man who is forced to pay believes he has been discriminated against; the man who might have been taxed believes he has only received the consideration for him. At a time when almost every individual man or woman voter must be hit more or less by the new tax levy there is little benefit and much possible dissatisfaction of the populace to be reaped on Election Day.

It may be as President Wilson said that "the people of this country are willing to bear any burden and undergo any sacrifice." The Congressmen agree that this is true in the long run, but they don't exactly relish the idea of having the "burdens" prominently displayed in the forefront of their campaign exhibit of legislative accomplishment.

Democratic members as a group fear the effect of the tax law more than do the Republicans. The latter will take refuge, always available to the minority, by telling all of the disgruntled ones that they must ask the Democrats to answer for all of the taxes imposed. "We were with you but we didn't have the votes," they will say to each group of kickers, while they will not fail to call attention to any votes they may have cast in the quarters where these votes find favor.

Camp Endeavor Opens In July

Work preliminary to the opening of Camp Endeavor for its ninth season is now under way, and on Monday, July 8, the fresh-air guests will be received at the attractive home up in the Watchung Mountains, back of Scotch Plains. Every two weeks thereafter until August 19 a new curing help. A cook, two young women to assist the matron, and a young man to lead the boys in their sport activities are needed to complete the personnel.

For the fourth season the camp will be in the direct care of Miss Janice Stoddard, of Elizabeth, as matron. She has been remarkably successful in the work with the children, and the board of trustees would find it hard to fill her place. An idea of the extent of the work involved for the matron and her assistants may be gained from the statement that 284 guests were entertained at camp last year.

This large guest list also means considerable work for the trustees. At the head of the board is Fred C. Lounsbury, of Plainfield, who has recently given several addresses in Elizabeth concerning the camp life. Identified with it from its opening day, Mr. Lounsbury has always continued his interest and given unsparingly of time and strength and ability to the development of the work. He has had the pleasure of seeing it grow from a very simple camp with tent accommodations, to a substantial fresh air encampment with good, serviceable buildings. The effort has been to secure gradually and at the least possible outlay of money the necessary equipment. In the following out of this plan, the trustees have given personal service that cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents.

To Wilson Hoffman, of Springfield, has fallen, from the beginning, the task of chairmanship of the house committee. All of the buildings on the grounds have been erected under his supervision, much of it being the work of his own hands.

J. Duer Randolph, of Elizabeth, is chairman of the guest committee, and in securing the names of boys and girls who need the benefits of the camp he has had the co-operation and active aid of the Visiting Nurse Association. Miss Edna A. Dilts, of Plainfield, assists in locating the Plainfield beneficiaries. The commissary department is in the care of Archie R. Tainter, of Elizabeth, who also gives valuable aid in securing contributions for the work.

County Road Work Stopped By War Order

All road work in the county where it is necessary to use either asphalt or oil has temporarily come to a standstill as a result of the federal order that has just gone into effect making it necessary for the State Highway Department and the United States fuel administration to approve undertakings in which those materials are utilized. In order that the delay may be as small as possible, County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer has made the necessary application to both authorities.

It is hardly likely that any of the work now under way will be permanently stopped by the authorities because of the use of asphalt or oil, for the reason that it would mean a financial loss of considerable proportions. Mr. Bauer thinks that there is nothing that will not pass because of the policy of the county to refrain from unnecessary work during the war. Hereafter such improvements will have to be approved before they are started. The entire program for the year has now been laid before the Highway Department and fuel administrator.

Contracts for new and repair work in various parts of the county approximating $75,000 were awarded by the road committee of the Board of Freeholders at a conference with County Engineer Bauer, Tuesday. The largest award is for a stretch of three-quarters of a mile on Mountain avenue in Mountainside. The C. H. Wilnang company was the successful bidder, with $65,039.24. The road will have a concrete base and bituminous concrete surface.

Another contract was awarded to James Doler, he being the lowest bidder, for the widening of Springfield avenue, Mountainside, at a point near Fink's hill or the purpose of eliminating a sharp turn. The cost will be $1,147.30. Concrete will be used in the work.

Two cross drains are to be constructed; one is at Tower street, Union, and the other at Morris avenue, Union. T. F. Callahan will do the work on the first for $479 and for $794 on the second.

The Weldon Construction Company made a bid of $3,603.80 to repair a portion of Morris avenue, Summit, near Denman place.

P. N. Hamner secured the contract for painting the Bridge street bridge in Elizabeth and replacing the flooring. The cost will be $499. Villa Brothers were awarded the contract for the reflooring of the Mountain avenue bridge at New Providence. The cost will be $125.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Adams, of Coddington avenue, the borough, are the parents of a daughter, born to them last week. The little girl has been named Ella May.

AN ORDINANCE

to amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to further amend an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to regulate the duties of the board of Police and a Police Force,' approved February 12th, 1895, as heretofore approved December 4th, 1899, approved June 7th, 1910," which ordinance was approved July 7, 1913."

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 1 of the ordinance, the title whereof is recited in the title of this ordinance, be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 2 of the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to organize and define the duties of the Police and a Police Force," approved February 12, 1895, as heretofore approved, be and is hereby further amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 2. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular policemen and special policemen as the Council shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this City. The Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary, and by resolution order the federal number of policemen shall rank as follows: Chief of Police, Captains, Lieutenants, Sergeants and Patrolmen. Special Policemen shall not be ranked.

The duties of several members and officers of the said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinances of the City and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed by said Common Council or resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Force.

The Patrolmen shall be divided into six (6) classes, as follows:

Class A—Sixth year of service and over.
Class B—Fifth year of service.
Class C—Fourth year of service.
Class D—Third year of service.
Class E—Second year of service.
Class F—First year of service.

The Police Commissioner Council upon recommendation of the Police Board may advance a Patrolman to a higher class for any especially good work or meritorious service, whether he has served his full time specified above or not; and upon like recommendation may reduce a Patrolman to a lower class or to serve for a longer period than above specified on account of misconduct or inefficiency in the preceding year.

The salaries of the members of the force who are regular policemen are hereby fixed at the following rates from and after January 1st, 1918, that is to say:

Chief	$2,250 per annum
Captain	1,600 per annum
Lieutenant	1,500 per annum
Sergeants	1,400 per annum
Patrolmen:
Class A	1,300 per annum
Class B	1,250 per annum
Class C	1,200 per annum
Class D	1,150 per annum
Class E	1,100 per annum
Class F	1,000 per annum

Personal equipment such as revolvers, ammunition, handcuffs, shield, badge, etc., shall be supplied to each of such officers and policemen free of cost. Said Council, however, shall provide at his own expense all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for him from time to time required by the Board of Police in accordance with the rules of the department; except that said uniforms and other wearing apparel for Patrolmen who have not reached Class A may be paid for by the City which shall be reimbursed for the cost of the same upon purchase by deducting from such patrolman's pay ten per cent. of the purchase price each month until the full amount thereof has been paid back to the City and all such uniforms and wearing apparel for which the City has advanced the purchase price shall be regarded as the property of the City until the City has been fully reimbursed therefor as aforesaid.

Special Policemen shall receive no salary.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 3, 1918.

Approved by the Mayor, June 6, 1918.

AN ORDINANCE

to amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance amending an ordinance entitled 'An Ordinance to establish, regulate and control the Fire Department of the City of Plainfield (Revision of 1914), approved December 7th, 1914," approved August 7, 1916."

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 2 of the ordinance of 1916, the title whereof is recited in the title of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 2. That section 4 of the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to establish, regulate and control the Fire Department of the City of Plainfield (Revision of 1914)" approved December 7, 1914, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 4. The salaries of members of the Force are hereby fixed at the following rates from and after January 1, 1918, that is to say:

Chief	$2,100 per annum
Assistant Chief	1,800 per annum
Captains	1,600 per annum
Class A	1,350 per annum
Class B	1,250 per annum
Class C	1,200 per annum
Class D	1,150 per annum
Class E	1,050 per annum
Class F	1,000 per annum

Each member of the force shall provide at his own expense, all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for his use as from time to time required in compliance with the rules of the department; except that said uniforms and other wearing apparel for members who have not reached Class C, may be paid for by the City, which shall be reimbursed for the cost of any such purchase by deducting from such members' pay ten per cent. of the purchase price each month until the full amount thereof has been paid back to the City and all such uniforms and wearing apparel for which the City has advanced the purchase price, shall be regarded as the property of the City until the City has been fully reimbursed therefor as aforesaid.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 3, 1918.

Approved by the Mayor, June 6, 1918.

THE NEW TRAFFIC REGULATIONS.

The new traffic rules put in effect by Mayor Calkins and the Police Board this week may seem a little stringent at first but as soon as the motoring public gets accustomed to the innovation they will undoubtedly work without dissatisfaction. The need of them was pointed out by the Record many months ago and while their import was realized by the officials a satisfactory adjustment could not be reached until the present time.

In deciding upon the new regulations, however, the officials did not go far enough. Front street has been greatly in need of better police supervision of traffic, especially on Saturday nights, but Park avenue should not have been overlooked in arranging the details. At present there is no restriction on the practice of parking cars on either side of the thoroughfare, a practice that some day may result disastrously because of the narrowness of the street between Front and Second streets. Cars should be parked only on one side. In support of this statement, those who might question its suggestion are requested to see for themselves any night in the week. While they look, they might figure out what would happen in the event of an alarm bringing the fire apparatus through that way. If a smash-up did not occur, it would be only because the age of miracles has not yet passed.

The new regulations call for no parking of cars within thirty feet of a corner. This is only an enforcement of the State law and as the thirty feet marked off by the police appears, it seems altogether too short a space. To carry out the object desired, fifty feet would be far more effective. Thirty feet is rather tight quarters for an automobile to get out of a jamb such as occur at Front street and Park avenue not infrequently.

The State law also takes care of the practice of careless motorists who allow their cars to obstruct the way to fire hydrants. In the past it has been noticed that this prohibitary measure is violated more than anything else and strict enforcement is one thing that is needed in Plainfield. This particular violation is one that is all right just so long as the fire apparatus does not come in that direction, but once it does and the firemen find it impossible to connect up a line of hose without great delay is when a murmur will go up that will result in drastic action.

Plainfield has a big percentage of automobile owning population and rigid traffic laws have become an absolute necessity. Those put in effect this week are the result of the motorists doings themselves and if any object to what has been promulgated, they have no one but themselves to blame. Co-operation is what the officials are seeking and the quicker the automobile owners adapt themselves to the restrictions, the quicker a most perplexing problem will be handled properly. If it is found that what is now under way is not to the best interest of all concerned, changes will be made but at the present time indications are that instead of lessening the regulations they should be lengthened.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE CAR STRIKE.

Yesterday's sudden strike of the Public Service platform men was not a surprise to persons familiar with conditions in trolley operation. It has been more or less expected ever since the cost of living began climbing upward and the wage scale of motormen and conductors stayed within a few cents of what they had been receiving when the purchasing value of a dollar was twice as much as what it is now.

The trolley employes have been receiving thirty-four cents an hour for straight time and forty cents an hour for overtime provided the car operator had been in the service anywhere from three or four to twenty-five years. If he was a new man his hourly recompense for the arduous work of motoring or taking care of passengers was only twenty-five cents. The men have repeatedly asked for a wage that would enable themselves and family to live better, but all to no purpose. Last week they informed President McCarter that he would have until Wednesday of this week to make up his mind what he would do and when no satisfactory adjustment was made the strike was declared. It can be seen by the unanimity with which the employes of every division acted that they fully realized that the step must be taken if they were to live instead of exist.

From all sides come the remark that if the eleven-cent increase in regular time is granted it will mean that the Public Utilities Commission will grant an increase in fares. This may be true enough but at the same time there is no especial reason why such should be the case. It has been shown by Marshall Van Winkle, chief of counsel for the protesting municipalities in the Public Service application for a forty per cent. jump in fares that the petitioners have numerous other ways in which they can reduce expenses. The existence of watered stock has been one big drain on the corporation's receipts and the payment of immense salaries to high officials is another. A little attention to these two alone would reduce the debit side of the Public Service ledger and the hard working motormen and conductors could be given an increase in wages without making the burdent rest upon the public direct.

The increase asked by the employes is not at all out of proportion when compared with the remuneration of other workmen and once it is granted the traction concern will have no difficulty in securing the much needed working force or in giving the public the service it has a right to expect for a five-cent fare.

SURPRISING FIGURES IN FUEL REGULATION COST.

Dr. Harry A. Garfield has submitted revised estimates to Congress for the maintenance of the Fuel Administration during the coming fiscal year. Originally the Administrator asked for $2,500,000, which was contained in the general Treasury estimates. During the week he supplemented the first recommendation by asking for a total of $4,575,000. His itemized account as now before the Appropraitions Committee of the House calls for the following sums:

Salaries, $2,393,000; temporary, $381,000; travel expenses, $750,000; services other than personal, $565,000; supplies and equipment, $368,000; purchase, operation and maintenance of motor car for administration official, $10,000; law books, periodicals, etc., $5,000; rent, $104,000.

These figures are interesting inasmuch as the impression prevailed in Plainfield and other places that the work of the Fuel Administration was being carried along with little or no expense beyond that accruing at Washington, the bureau headquarters. It has even been stated by many supposed to be in a position to know that no salaries were paid county and local administrators but these assertions are offset by the figures mentioned. It was also supposed that, like in Plainfield, no rental was paid for local offices and this fallacy has been exploded by the official statement. Somewhere, somebody is getting rent money as the figure of $104,000 indicates.

The statement also shows that the handling of the fuel situation, while it has been necessary, entails a big expense, far bigger than what was warranted by the little relief that came last winter. Perhaps in the season to come, affairs may be so regulated that the people will derive some benefit from the expenditure of another $4,575,000.

WHERE THE BLAME BELONGS.

Just at a time when Plainfield's trolleys are standing motionless in the Dewey Park barns, it may seem out of place to talk about the speeding of these conveyances through the city's streets. Nevertheless, through the statements of Judge William G. De Meza in the police court, last Friday, they are quite apropo, especially as the present strike will undoubtedly be ended soon and traffic restored.

Judge De Meza asserted that running cars through Plainfield at more than fifteen miles an hour would result in the arrest of the offending motormen or conductors. He should have stated that the executives of the Public Service Corporation should be haled to court, as these, and not the trolley crews, are the real offenders. The employes are simply carrying out orders and when they send their car along at a rate of speed jeopardizing the life and limb of innocent persons, they are doing it because somebody else wants them to and they will lose their positions if they don't. The trolley inspector is always ready to take a man off a "run" who cannot reach the terminal on time and even if he does not make a complaint "higher up," his sarcastic remarks are sufficient to humiliate the motormen who would not break the law if he were not driven to it.

The speeding menace has long been tolerated by patient Plainfield but the words of Judge De Meza indicate that an attempt will be made to put an end to the practice. Arresting car crews, however, is only one step toward obtaining the object desired. Let him notify the police to go direct to the Public Service headquarters at Newark, apprehend the officials who urge others to break the law and Plainfield streets will very shortly be made safe for those who pay for their up-keep and have a right to use them without risking injury or death.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When the locomotives had "boot-leg" stacks?

When the ice cream and strawberry festivals were the principal events of our young lives?

When two-cent pieces, now talked of being restored, greatly facilitated the making of change?

When a big molasses bolivar, five inches across, could be had at the baker's for a penny?

When there was quite a difference between the dresses worn by the women and the little girls?

When you left the milk pitcher on the porch and the milk man placed therein a quart of rich lacteal fluid in exchange for a red ticket valued at eight cents in the winter and six cents in the summer?

When there were no telephones, taxi-cabs, electric lights, moving pictures, running water or parquet floor and yet the people lived just as well and comfortably and perhaps twice as happy?

ODD GOBS PICKED UP IN THE JITNEY BUS RUSH.

Did you wait for a car yesterday morning?

While you were muttering under your breath the busy jitney driver was rolling down the street with a beatific smile on his face and murmuring ever and anon: "Blow, thou good and timely ill-wind; you were a long time in coming my way but you're here at last."

Of course you did, and you swore a little bit and you said things about the Public Service Corporation not fit for print. If you didn't you are a bloated bondholder owning a buzz buggy or else you are a most infernal fibber.

The Frederick Ley Company, which is building the big $275,000 addition to the Saurer plant, is rushing the work along and hopes to complete it within a total of ninety days. Would that they could be induced to become interested in the City Hall.

For the benefit of inquiring readers, we hasten to explain that the picture of Chief Manitowac printed in the Courier the other night, was reproduced from a photograph taken just after a mustard shell had exploded in front of him, hence the low visibility.

One of these days, not yet but some time in the near future, a head writer with a spasm of originality is going to think of some other phrase beside "Over the Top" to coax readers into reading a campaign story.

Isn't it funny that with all the cry for ships and docking facilities no one has thought of opening up the Samptown Navy Yard. All it needs is a little overhauling, a few brains and a cost plus contract. We hereby offer the suggestion for what it is worth.

We bought a Ford the other day and a lot of our sap-headed friends indulge in a lot of snickering every time we trundle the outfit up to the curb. All we have to say is, let 'em laugh. Third class riding is better than first class waking any day in the week.

Excitement over the off shore appearance of the Teuton submersibles has given way to comment on the possibilities of the Public Service car men getting the money and conditions they are asking for. The opinion prevails that they will get it and the dear public, which always pays the bills, is willing for once to stand its share.

There is not an atom of truth in the report that when the Kaiser is caught he is to be punished by placing him in a brewery for forty years with a muzzle on. No, sir, there is a far worse fate in store for him. The old boy is to be brought to America, thence right here to Plainfield and be compelled to walk up and down the sidewalk on the north side of West Front street, between the Baptist church corner and the Columbus Club property. Some people who pass over this stretch every day might think is is far too harsh but it is only just what the tyrant richly deserves.

Citizens' Committee In Need Of Money

The Citizens' Committee appointed by Mayor Calkins is to arrange a suitable civic send-off for each group of Plainfield boys, as they leave home for the army, is in real need of money. The Mayor has said of the work this Committee is doing, "there is no more worthy activity in our city today than to send our boys off to the war in such a way that they will never forget it so long as they live."

The Committee decided on a simple program for these farewell send-offs which would be inexpensive but impress the boys with the right spirit. They are given kits and comforts by the Red Cross, and a dinner the night before they leave, at which short talks are made by the Mayor or some city official, and one or two representative citizens. When they entrain the next morning they are escorted to the station by the Home Guards and a band, and the merchants display flags from their shops along the line of march.

The Citizens' Committee has the responsibility of seeing the thing through but must rely on voluntary contributions. It is a continuing expense as new groups from time to time are drafted. The cost does not exceed two dollars per man, but the Committee should have a substantial fund to draw from, instead of being obliged to go out and ask for a hundred dollars every week or so. It believes that our people will contribute generously to a fund which goes to make our boys happy in their hearts when they leave homes and loved ones, to fight for their country.

The committee will publish an honor roll of contributors, giving names but not amounts subscribed. Contributions should be sent to William R. Townsend, treasurer, 149 North avenue. Those who have contributed to the fund to date are:

Marion S. Ackerman, Rev. Dr. Anderson, Miss Emma Armstrong, E. R. Ackerman, J. F. Baldwin, H. E. Butler, Mrs. Fred. Ruth and Frederica Bakker, Florence M. Bowman, E. T. Barrows, A. D. Beers, J. Schiff, Joint Memorial Day Collection, Crescent Avenue and Congregational churches.

To show how the boys appreciate little farewell demonstrations that are given them, Mayor Calkins has made public the following letter written by Francis Kohler, one of the fifty-eight selectives who went away with pleased countenances on May 29:

Fanwood, May 30, 1918.

Mayor Leighton Calkins,
Plainfield, N. J.

Dear Sir:

I was very much impressed by the welcome extended to me on my arrival from Canada by the Plainfield branch of the Y. M. C. A., and as a member of this organization in Montreal, and as one of the young men who are going away Saturday, I wish to express my heartfelt thanks and admiration for the manner in which the Citizens' Committee, the Y. M. C. A. and the Daughters of Isabella entertained the boys Tuesday evening, prior to their departure for camp.

I understand the aim of the above named was to cheer and send the boys away with a smile, in which case I must say the attempt was crowned with success.

I take this opportunity of assuring you that I will go away Saturday in a cheerful mood and determined to do my very best, thanks to the inspiring words you poured forth at the banquet and thanks also to the kindness of the above organizations.

May God bless you, one and all, and lead us to a speedy victory.

Yours respectfully,
FRANCIS J. KOHLER.

No Plainfield Quota In Latest Call For 40,000 Colored Men

Forty thousand more men, all negroes, were summoned for general military service this week to entrain between June 20 and June 25 from the following States:

Alabama, 1,000 to Camp Sherman; Arkansas, 3,000 to Camp Pike; District of Columbia, 500 to Meade; Florida, 2,500 to Dix; Georgia, 2,000 to Gordon; Kentucky, 2,000 to Taylor; Lousiana, 5,000 to Funston; Maryland, 2,500 to Meade; Mississippi, 3,000 to Grant; Missouri, 500 to Funston; New Jersey, 500 to Dix; North Carolina, 1,000 to Taylor; Ohio, 500 to Sherman; Oklahoma, 500 to Funston; Pennsylvania, 500 to Sherman; South Carolina, 3,000 to Jackson; Tennessee, 2,000 to Dodge; Texas, 5,000 to Travis; Virginia, 3,000 to Lee, and West Virginia, 1,000 to Sherman.

The men called this week—all negroes—bring the otal men summoned to the colors in June to more than 300,000.

The draft division of the adjutant general's office has also announced the quotas which the different county and city local boards throughout New Jersey will be asked to supply to make up the 500 colored men who are to be called to the colors from this State for the five-day period beginning June 19. None are called from the second Union, which includes Plainfield, consequently there will be no colored men taken from this district. The county quotas follow:

Atlantic, Board No. 1, thirty men; Camden, No. 1, twenty-five; Cape May, ten men; Cumberland, No. 1, twenty-five; Gloucester, No. 1, thirty-five, No. 2, two; Hudson, No. 1, ten; Mercer, No. 1, thirty-five; Monmouth, No. 1, ten; Ocean, No. 1, two; Salem, No. 1, forty-six; Union, No. 3, ten.

Atlantic City, No. 1, forty, No. 2, forty; Camden, No. 2, twenty-five, No. 3, ten; Elizabeth, No. 2, ten; Jersey City, No. 1, twenty, No. 5, ten; Newark, No. 2, twenty, No. 7, ten, No. 9, ten, No. 10, ten; Trenton, No. 1, thirty-five, No. 3, twenty.

Spontaneous Combustion Caused McCarthy Fire

An investigation by Acting Chief William Townley proves conclusively that the fire which destroyed Daniel McCarthy's barn at 517 West Sixth street, Tuesday afternoon, was due to spontaneous combustion. A quantity of "green" hay had been placed in the second story loft and not having proper ventilation the dry grass became overheated. A burst of flame followed and the building was ablaze all about the upper part when neighbors noticed the fire.

John Hines, of the postoffice carrier staff, made an attempt to rescue two horses and three colts stabled in the barn but was unsuccessful. All five of the animals perished. The entire loss, including horses and contents of the structure is placed at $1,500. Mr. McCarthy carried no insurance.

HENRY M. CLEAVER WEDS MRS. OFFUTT.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage of Mrs. Pauline Offutt, of New York and Macon, Ga., to Henry M. Cleaver, of East Seventh street, this city, local works manager at the Pond Tool Works plant of the Niles-Bement-Pond Company. The ceremony was performed in All Souls' Episcopal church, New York, Wednesday, by the rector.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleaver will after a wedding trip, will make their home in this city.

Irving H. Brown Writes On Edge-Colgate Affair

The following letter, written by Irving H. Brown, of Central avenue, this city, was published in Tuesday night's edition of the Newark Evening News:

To the Editor of the News:

Sir,—I am, or rather was, a supporter of Colonel Colgate, but when he withdrew from the candidacy, for which he has publicly stated the reason, I was obliged to accept the situation and choose between the remaining candidates. It could not take long for a man of ordinary intelligence to decide between Governor Edge or George L. Record as to which would best represent the Republican party and its principles in the United States Senate.

I note, however, with somewhat of surprise that certain well-known supporters of the late candidate seem unable to grasp the facts and are endeavoring to discredit Colonel Colgate's withdrawal in the interest of harmony in the Republican ranks by insisting that another candidate should enter the race. Whether these gentlemen are men interested in their own political preferences or other personal reason I do not know, but they certainly are not accepting their leader's views and sacrifice for harmony.

The same cause which induced Colonel Colgate to take his present action would have a double force to any new opposing candidate who would not enter the field. Shall Governor Edge see fit to withdraw it would then be time enough to agree on some other candidate, but in the mean time what is to be gained by trying to undo all the good to the party, dictated by the withdrawal of their chief, if they continue the fight themselves? Nothing, and the sooner they accept the present political situation the better for them and the party. Personal feeling and private animosities should be buried and leave attacks on Governor Edge to the opposing party.

Edison Makes An Appeal To Jerseymen

Thomas A. Edison, the electrical wizard, has written the following open letter to the people of New Jersey in the hope of stimulating interest in the War Savings campaign:

All of us at home wish the Government could draft us in some personal way to make us feel that we were performing a definite war duty. This opportunity is given us by the War Savings Campaign.

The War Savings Stamp is not only for the less well-to-do in the community, but for everybody, including yourself and myself, because it is a token of our willingness to go without what is not essential to health and efficiency so that our country may have what is essential to its defense. We must not only loan our money to the United States, but the manpower and materials released by our economies as well, to provide for the soldiers and sailors, the arms, ammunition, equipment and food necessary for the winning of the war.

War is not fought with money, but with men and materials and the responsibility resting upon both or us to set a good example to the less fortunate in the nation, by saving, investing, going without giving up, will if properly carried out, be of infinitely more value than the actual money devoted to the purchase of stamps. A man's generosity is measured not by what he gives away, but by what he keeps for himself. His going without, is not measured by what he saves, but by what he continues to spend. The wealthy man may give generously and yet keep more for himself than he really needs. The father must set an example to the child, the employer to the employe, the teacher to the pupil. ALL MUST SAVE ALL UNTIL IT HURTS.

I am asking you to become a member of a $1,000,00 War Savings Club in New Jersey as a duty you owe your community, as an example to your countrymen, as a service to the boys in France.

Membership carries two obligations:

One—To save all you can and to reduce your spending to the minimum.

Two—To pledge yourself to purchase during 1918—$1,000.00 worth of War Savings Stamps face value.

As an evidence of your willingness to join such a club, may I not ask you to sign the enclosed pledge and return it to me?

Yours very truly,

THOMAS A. EDISON.

P. S.—Remember that in addition to joining this club yourself, you may take out additional memberships for each one of your family.

John E. Connolly Writes "Mother" Letter from France

Private John E. Connolly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Connolly, of 527 West Sixth street, is one of the Plainfield boys who has been in France since January but though thousands of miles away did not forget that May 12 is observed in the United States as Mother's Day. On that date he wrote a very beautiful missive to his maternal parent, a letter filled with love and affection for the one who means so much to him. It also contained other sentiments that are typical of the whole-souled American boy who is ready to bend every effort in the upholding of his country's principles, but while doing his duty does not forget the ones back home who are deeply concerned about his welfare.

Mrs. Connolly has kindly consented to allow the Record to reprint Private Connolly's letter in full as follows:

Mother's Day,
May 12, 1918.
Somewhere In France.

Dear Mother:

Although this day finds the whole civilized world gripped in a bloody struggle for or against democracy and the right or wrong of deserating home ties and kin, which finds us many thousands of miles apart, I know that our hearts beat with the same unison of thought and love as if we were enjoying the happy companionship of home firesides.

Today I find my pen is to weak to express in words the feelings of love and gratitude for the love and care which you have bestowed upon me and for the upbuilding of a strong mind to resist the temptations which are ever present in the path of a soldier boy in a foreign land far removed from the ever watchful eye of a mother's love and a father's devotion to the Christian duty of bringing up his children in the love and fear of God.

I wish you this day all the happiness and joy that a mother can have in these distressful times and pray that you may enjoy many more and that on next May 12 we will be again united and that the veil of sorrow will be lifted from all mothers' hearts, whether the mothers of friends or foes, and that God will bless you and yours.

I am, as ever,

Your loving son.

JOHN.

Another letter written by Private Connolly arrived the same day as the one composed on May 12. It contains considerable information about himself and little personalities that make the missive from abroad welcome to the recipients. This is the letter:

Co. A., Hdq. Batt.,
Gen. Hdq., A. E. F.

Dear Mother:

I am sending you enclosed a few pictures we had taken last Sunday, and I hope that after you look them over you will see that I am still very much alive. I have not as yet received any mail from home, but I suppose that I, like the man in the book, will get one if I wait long enough.

You will notice by the change of address on my different letters that I have been doing quite some moving since arriving in this country, but any mail that you send me always put the latest address on it, as it will reach me a good deal sooner than if you get the wrong address.

The weather is getting fine over here, now as spring has set in for good—the trees are all decked out in the summer suits of green leaves. When I see some Frenchman digging up his back yard for his summer garden it makes me wonder who is digging our back yard garden and who is going to have the earliest tomatoes this year. After guessing for a couple of seconds, I have come to the conclusion that Pa will dig, plant and hoe it, and Ma will take the honors among the neighbors.

By the time this letter reaches you, Peter will have about finished his third year of High School. Tell him that I hope he passes with high marks and that there will be no jobs open for him in the summer time so that he can have a good long rest during his last High School vacation period.

If the girls have not yet picked out where they are going to spend their vacation tell them not to come to France this year as the people are a little disturbed about the war they had wished on them and that the young Frenchmen are spending their vacations somewhere else this season. Tell father that I send him the best of regards and hope that he is feeling as good as his son. Tell Miss Fardy that her drinking cup comes pretty handy over here, but that it very seldom is used for holding water, as the only thing that water is good for is to build bridges over, not even good enough in some places to wish in.

Give my love to Aunt and Uncle Kyle, Aunt Mary and all the rest.

With love to all, I will close, hoping to hear from you soon. I am, as ever,

Your son,
JOHN E. CONNOLLY.

Traffic Rules Are Not Opposed By Auto Owners

Acting on the suggestion of Mayor Calkins, in his annual message to the Common Council at the beginning of the year, the city police department has instituted a series of three new rules tending to regulate vehicular traffic in the business district. They went into effect on Tuesday and so far have met with general satisfaction on the part of the automobile owner, although the Mayor, in promulgating his ideas, entertained the belief "that they might please some but cause dissatisfaction with others."

The remarkable increase in the use of *automobiles and the narrow*ness of Plainfield's streets are primarily responsible for the change that has been ordered. Mayor Calkins made a personal study of the situation and offered the suggestions for a betterment in the belief that they would be acceptable to the police board. The latter has since held several consultations with His Honor and Chief of Police Kiely with the result that the three new rules, which went into effect this week, were decided upon.

The regulations will be promulgated by movable traffic posts standing on the curb. This will facilitate experiment, such as determining how much space should be kept clear at street corners. Care has been exercised in having the signs clearly and attractively lettered.

One regulation will prohibit vehicles standing too close to the more important street intersections. This merely follows the State law, but the signs will facilitate its enforcement, and they will later on be located at other intersections as the necessity becomes apparent.

A second regulation will prohibit vehicles standing at the curb in a twenty-foot space on Front street, midway between Madison avenue and Somerset street, and midway between Park and Watchung avenues. These are long blcks and pedestrians often have difficulty in getting from one side of the street to the other. The objects is to provide an opening, but the regulation is in the nature of an experiment.

The third and perhaps the most important rule will prohibit parking longer than twenty minutes on Front street, and on Park avenue, between Front and Second streets. There have been no restrictions, to inconvenience to those who use cars, but a hardship to the general public. The Mayor felt that the merchants have a special interest in this problem, and sought their views at a conference with representatives of the Business Men's Association and Board of Trade last summer. The business men were a unit in approving the proposed regulations. A vehicle may be parked for twenty minutes, which will allow reasonable time for shopping in near-by stores, after which it must move to another location. The general effect will be that the Front street curb will be more open than it now is. Those who wish to leave their cars by the hour will be obliged to use other streets. Probably portions of certain side streets will later on be reserved for the purpose.

The Mayor emphasized the fact that these new rules are merely on trial. Speaking on the subject he said: "If the regulations are found to be unfair they will be modified. We wish to avoid needless restraint; in fact we have hesitated to impose any restrictions until satisfied of the necessity. Probably all will agree that our streets were not laid out to accommodate modern traffic, or they would have been made much wider and we should have had public squares and numerous open spaces, especially in the business section. The problem is to adjust ourselves to the conditions. Our street widening plans are held up by the war. Obviously some sort of regulation is imperative from the viewpoint of safety, and public convenience as well. Signs everybody does it. Pedestrians are not permitted to stand or loiter on the sidewalks and thus block and obstruct the way for others who walk. We must seek to serve the general convenience as best we can, and reduce the resultant inconvenience to a minimum. The Board of Police has given the subject careful study, and asks the consideration of the public, hping that all who ara affected by the restrictions will be patient while we are experimenting to remedy the situation."

Cole Heirs Asks for Estate's Accounting

George W. Cole, for many years engaged in the undertaking business in this city, told on the stand before Vice Chancellor Lane at Newark, Monday, that his brother, Elias Cole, although he left a number of properties in Plainfield and Dunellen when he died in the Cole homstead in 1888, died virtually a pauper. It got into the record from the witness' own mouth that he himself made $200,000 in the undertaking business, and still has $100,000 with which to keep the wolf from the door.

George Cole was in court in the role of defendant in a suit brought by George E. Morgan, of Union, a grandson of Mrs. Mary E. Feller, of Westwood, Bergen county, a granddaughter, and Mrs. Mary Brower, of Klainfield, a sister of Elias Cole, to compel an accounting for rents and profits from certain lands of the Elias Cole estate. The bill of complaint charged, too, that it be decreed by the court that certain lands to which George Cole now holds title are held in trust by him for the estates.

The defendant, who was represented by Francis J. Blatz, of Collington & Blatz, of Plainfield, made such a good witness for himself, in that he was able to explain every transaction, with exhibits in the form of deeds, agreements, canceled checks, etc., to back up his testimony, that when William P. Headley, solicitor for the complainants, who made him his own and only witness, got through with his direct examination Mr. Blatz didn't deem it necessary to put in any defense and accordingly announced, "We rest."

Mr. Headley urged that as to about seven acres out of an eleven-acre tract adjoining the sixty acre Cole farm proper on East Front street, the defendant should be made to account to the complainant heirs, since Cole acquired the tract for about $3,000, and it could be shown to be worth fully $10,000. It was contended by Blatz that it had cost Cole about all it is now worth to carry the property, the conveyance complained of having taken place in 1903.

It was estified by Cole that at the time of his brother's death the sixty-acre farm was encumbered by a $17,000 mortgage, and that most of the other holdings were similarly burdened, to say nothing of tax arrearages, unpaid assessments, etc. It developed, too, that Mulford Cole, father of Elias and George W. Cole and life tenant of the farm property under Elias' will, never got a dollar out of the estate. Mulford Cole died in 1916.

To satisfy the complainants, Vice Chancellor Lane finally consented to have Charles A. Reed take testimony as special master relative to the value of the seven acres on Leland avenue at the time it was conveyed to Cole, and to make like inquiry as to a property on West Second street which come to Cole from the estate through an intermediary.

An accounting was filed by Cole *as executor in the Union County Or*phans Court in 1912 and passed by Judge Whittemore.

Training Abroad For Newest Selectives

Thousands of men called in the last two draft increments will soon be on their way to France. So rapid has the movement of American troops across the Atlantic become that soldiers who had no hope of active service within six or eight months will perhaps be on the firing line this summer.

After two or three months' elementary training these new selected men will be given their finishing touches within sound of the enemy's guns and even under fire, if the need for men is acute.

All reports from the cantonments. Army officers said today, tell of an acceleration in the training work under good weather conditions.

Meantime the impression grows at Washington that British politics had a hand in the mysterious Ottawa statement anent using American troops only as a full individual army. The explanation is that the statement was due to "an error" only served to accentuate the mystery around it. The fact that the British ambassador was in the dark about the war committee of the British Cabinet led to the suggestion at Washington that perhaps some followers of General Maurice, or at least opponents of Lloyd George, had had a hand in the matter.

The incident also revealed at Washington that the brigading plan has not pleased American officers, including General Pershing. Robbing them, as it does, of certain leadership, it has been accepted only as an emergency measure and the War Department's plan is to cull the brigade men as soon as possible to be reformed and reequipped into divisional units.

Besides revealing this spirit the statement has tended to uncover a growing lack of entire team work between Pershing and the War Department. Responsible authorities suggest that sooner or later a show down will come, probably in the form of a test of strength between General Pershing and General March, the acting chief of staff.

New 'Phone Rates Will Cost Company $800,000 Per Annum

Subject to such further modification as practical operation may indicate to be necessary, the Public Utilities Commission has approved the revised schedule of rates by which the New York Telephone Company will reduce its revenues by approximately $800,000 a year.

The downward revision, ordered by the board to lessen the net earnings of the company, is applicable only to toll tariffs, and affects principally charges between points in Northern New Jersey, including Plainfield and New York city.

By the adoption of a standard system, based on air-line mileage between rate centers, the company proposes, in addition to reducing its revenues, to eliminate irregularities in toll charges now existing in territory served by it. Outlining of the practical effect of the new schedule the Public Utilities Commission said:

"Rates will thus be reduced between many of the points in Northern New Jersey and particularly between points in Northern New Jersey and New York city. The latter traffic constitutes a very much greater percentage of the total traffic than the former.

"There will, however, be some instances where the present rates between points in Northern New Jersey or between New York city and only witness, got through with his direct examination Mr. Blatz didn't deem it necessary to put in any defense and accordingly announced, "We rest."

Mr. Headley urged that as to about seven acres out of an eleven-acre tract adjoining the sixty acre Cole farm proper on East Front street, the defendant should be made to account to the complainant heirs, since Cole acquired the tract for about $3,000, and it could be shown to be worth fully $10,000. are not satisfactory, the schedule will afford considerable reduction as soon as it is put into effect and, while this reduction does not appear to us to fully satisfy the order of the board, the reduction to be gained immediately is desirable. Were the proposed schedules rejected by the board, a considerable lapse of time would necessarily ensue, during which it might be necessary to hold extended hearings, conferences and investigations.

"This would further delay the introduction of the new rates and in the mean time the subscribers would continue to pay the existing rates and the company would continue to receive an excess revenue. We, therefore, conclude that it is advisable to permit the company to put the proposed toll rates into effect as soon as possible, not later than July 1, 1918."

To Draft Labor For War Needs

Non-essential industries must sacrifice millions of workers under a labor recruiting plan being worked out by the Labor Policies Board, to speed war production.

War industries, including agriculture, will need approximately 4,500,000 workers in the next six or eight months, tentative figure show. No labor, skiller or unskilled, is to be had in the open market.

Means of withdrawing these workers from non-essential industries with as little disturbance as possible to the country's economic life has been put up to a committee which will report to the board today.

A sub-committee met yesterday to consider a zone plan by which labor quotas would be apportioned among the non-essential industries of all States.

Under the plan outlined so far by the policies board, the Government will establish a corner on the country's labor market through a centralized recruiting and distributing agency. Private and public employers engaged in war product will apply to this agency whenever men are needed. A priority committee of the Board may be created to pass on such demands and decide which shall be supplied first.

The Board has power to whip into line any industry which may not recognize the necessity of sacrifice and co-operation and which may attempt to go into the open market and bid for labor against the Government. To prevent this the Board would shut off the supply of raw materials and coal.

The Board also is studying now to standardize wages, equal pay for the same work in all plants.

CONTRACTORS MAY SOON FACE TRIAL

The decision of the Supreme Court in sustaining the action of the January Grand Jury in indicting officials of the Monahan Stone Company and Plasterers' and Masons' Union means that the defendants will come to trial during the present term of the county courts, it possible, according to information given out by Prosecutor Hetfield today.

They were indicted for alleged conspiracy to defraud the city of Plainfield out of $13,000 in connection with the erection of a city hall. The matter was carried to the higher court by counsel for the men when two writs of certiorari were obtained for the reviewing of the indictment. Those against whom the bills were returned include: John P. Monahan, president of the Monahan Stone Company of Newark, president; F. J. McCann, secretary of the Monahan Stone Company, and Gottlieb Herman, John A. Monahan, Charles Kane, George P. Thornton, William Bown and William Dobson. They were arraigned before former Judge Connolly in the Court of Special Sessions several months ago, pleaded not guilty and are at liberty under bail.

The P. F. Keaney Company, of New York, had the general contract for erecting the city hall and arranged with the Monahan concern to supply the stone. The Keaney company went into receivership nearly a year ago, and when the city undertake a complete the structure the officials of the Newark company sought payment for the material it had furnished. When the city refused to pay, it is alleged that labor officials declared the job a non-union one and called off the workers, but agreed to "make it right" if the money due the Monahan concern was paid.

STRUCK BY AUTO; HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Otis Haff, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Haff, of Monroe avenue, was knocked down by an auto on that street, last night, and although dragged for nearly one hundred feet escaped serious injury. He was removed to his home where Dr. Hedges found that his injuries were mostly cuts and bruises. Today he was reported as resting comfortably. The machine belonged to James C. Hansen, the East Front street painting contractor.

A companion who was with the Haff boy was also knocked down, but sustained only a few bruises.

COUNTY DEFENSE LEAGUES IN BIG MEET SUNDAY.

All the Home Defense Leagues of Union County will hold a mobilization meet on the Ackerman property at Glenside Park, Sunday.

It is estimated that about one thousand men will take part in the proceedings, the feature of which will be a big sham battle.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Otto de Fries, of Woodland avenue, left yesterday for Lake Hopatcong to spend ten days. Mr. de Fries is employed as constructing engineer at the Spicer plant in South Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman R. Joost and family, of Belvidere avenue, left yesterday for Quogue, L. I., to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Adams, of West Front street, have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Adams, to George W. Meder, of East Orange. The ceremony will take place at the Adams home on Saturday, June 15, at 7:30 in the evening.

Among the Plainfield boys whose arrival in France during the past week has been announced are Corporal Frank Donnelly, of West Fourth street; Private Thomas Herron, of West Fifth street, and Sergeant Howard Armstrong, of Washington avenue. All were stationed at Camp Dix before going abroad.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mrs. Lillie F. Drake, formerly of this city, to Barry H. Jones, secretary and treasurer of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The ceremony took place at Bethlehem, Pa., last Thursday, and was performed by Rev. M. E. Kemper. The bride is the widow of Benjamin I. Drake, who died in Plainfield five years ago.

George L. Simon, of South avenue, was at his home over the past week-end on a furlough from Browne University, Providence, R. I. He is one of six Plainfielders sent to this institution for a special army course in technical work. Mr. Simon has been placed in the carpentering department and according to his report is making excellent progress in his preparation for skilled military service.

M. James McCarthy, of Lee place, who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital for the past four weeks, following an operation for appendicitis, has so far recovered that he may be discharged from the institution tomorrow.

John A. McIntyre, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McIntyre, of 140 North avenue, will enter the Presbyterian Hospital, N. Y., for the purpose of undergoing another operation. He has undergone two others previously during his illness, which began nearly four years ago.

Samuel Mann, of West Fourth street, returned this week after completing a four-year course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge. He has applied for enlistment in the aviation corps and is awaiting acceptance.

Bryant R. Cain, of Grandview avenue, the borough, has been seriously ill for some time. Mr. Cain was a contracting carpenter for many years, at one time being a partner of the late William Brokaw, under the firm name of Brokaw & Cain.

Mrs. William Owens, of Easton, Pa., has been spending the past two weeks at the homes of her sisters, Mrs. John Browne, of West Fourth street, and Mrs. Frank Hill, of John street.

Frank A. Weeks and family have removed from 825 West Seventh street to the property at 305 West Seventh street, which he purchased a short time ago. The residence at the latter address was originally erected by Doctor N. W. Probasco and is a distinct type of colonial architecture.

Mrs. Annie Roddy, of the Stillman building, who recently returned to her home after a stay at Muhlenberg Hospital, continues to be seriously ill.

Invitations have been issued for the approaching marriage of Miss Marie Finch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Finch, of 1106 Park avenue, to William Browne Parsons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Parsons, of New York. The ceremony will take place in Grace Episcopal church, Saturday afternoon, June 22, and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride-elect's parents. Mr. Parsons is an attorney at law with offices in New York.

Mrs. Robert Gow, formerly of this city, but now of Winthrope Beach, Mass., returned home Tuesday, after a week's visit with friends in the city and borough. Mrs. Gow made the trip to Plainfield by automobile but returned by train.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Dutcher, who were married at noon Monday, have returned from a short wedding trip through Boston and are temporarily making their home at Truell Court. Mrs. Dutcher was formerly Miss Augustus Stumpfell and the ceremony took place at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Harry W. Marshall, of East Sixth street.

Use Of Motors Aids Shipment Of U. S. Troops

Motorization of the American army and particularly of the field artillery has proved one of the greatest factors in speeding up the shipment of troops and supplies to Europe. Assistant Secretary of War Benedict Crowell has informed members of the House and Senate military committees.

Heretofore many ships were employed in transporting the thousands of horses needed with each army division and the forage for these horses. It was not so much the first transportation of the animals as the necessity of bringing hay and grain from this side to feed them that used up the shipping space. Now the field guns are hauled largely by gasoleen tractors and trucks.

The same situation holds in less degree with respect to the Allied armies. Early in the war France, Great Britain and Italy bought hundreds of thousands of American horses for use not only with field artillery, but for hauling army wagons and for cavalry.

It has been estimated that the life of a horse in the war zone is twenty-four days and the losses of animals in the first year of the war is estimated to have run into the millions.

American motor trucks early began to displace the horses for general haulage and recently the Allied armies also, it is stated, have come to use tractors in handling heavy and light artillery. The motorization of the Allied artillery has released many horses from their service so that General Pershing has been able to obtain such horses as he needed in France. A comparatively small fleet of tank steamers is keeping the motors in France supplied with oil and gasolene.

Mr. Crowell gave interesting particulars concerning the movement of transports carrying troops and supplies. One transport, he said, recently carried several thousand troops across the Atlantic, unloaded them at a French port and returned to the United States in a total period of twenty days. The present average for troop ships is thirty days for the round trip. More than 200,000 troops have been landed in France and England from the United States during the last month.

In addition to soldiers the transports are carrying a great quantity of freight. The Assistant Secretary stated that of the total movement of freight overseas, the transports are now taking twelve per cent., regular freight carriers, seventy per cent.; naval vessels, five per cent., and passenger liners the remainder.

Health reports presented by the army officials showed that the National Guard divisions have the lowest percentage of sickness, the regular army stands second and the National Army camps, which are constantly drawing new quotas, have the lowest health average.

Charts showing production of war materials show a marked decrease in practically all lines during the last week. Three types of three-inch field guns—French, British and American, all shooting the same ammunition—are now being built in this country. One hundred and fifty of these guns, some French 75's and others of British and French design, but all built in this country, have been delivered at American cantonments during the week. This fact is particularly interesting because it indicates that, for the first time, the Allied armies in the field are so well supplied with cannon as to permit the use of the most valuable types for training purposes in this country.

Camp Dix Thronged By Visitors Sunday

Thousands of visitors thronged Camp Dix Sunday, the first Sabbath for the last four weeks, that the gates of the barrack city were open to friends and relatives of the soldiers. The number of passes issued was limited, and the majority of the 15,000 men in camp entertained visitors during the day. Many Plainfielders were noticed in camp during the day.

Yankee soldiers singing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" while marching through the gates of Berlin, would be the ideal termination for affairs "over there," in the opinion of Stanley W. Hawkins, former Y. M. C. A. song leader at Dix, who has been selected to lead the singing among the boys in France, following a call from General Pershing, and who will sail shortly for his new post. A monster farewell demonstration was held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium for Mr. Hawkins. The former camp song leader once more led the hundreds of men who crowded the auditorium in the popular wartime songs. The parting message in song was "Keep the Home Fires Burning." George M. Gibson, of Moorestown, Knights of Columbus secretary, is the first official of that organization to be summoned from Dix for overseas duty.

In honor of his return from directing a three weeks' War Chest campaign at Rochester, N. Y., which raised nearly $5,000,000, secretaries of the heads of other organizations in camp gave a reception Sunday night to General Camp Secretary Joseph T. Alling. Among the guests was Herbert P. Lansdale, chief of the Eastern Department of the War Work Council, who praised Secretary Alling's administration in Camp Dix.

Frank J. Dolan, formerly city clerk of Jersey City, who went to the cantonment with the last group of selectives from that city, is settling into the routine of things in the 153d Depot Brigade with enthusiasm. Dolan is content with army life, and is not regretting having left a good job and fat salary as city clerk, for service, even though it does include an occasional hitch at "kitchen police" duty. Dolan was active in Legislature in 1915 and 1916. Among other city officials who are in the last bunch of "rookies" is Judge Aaron Finger, of the Wilmington (Del.) Municipal Court. Though he could have secured deferred classification on the ground that he was a city official, Judge Finger waived that opportunity and donned the khaki.

The ban on Wrightstown has not been taken off yet. Work on the newer that will carry off all waste, a thing which General Scott demands to be done before allowing his men to go there, is being hastened.

Edge's Approval For Loyalty Day

The co-operation by the people of New Jersey for the proper observance of Loyalty Day on July 4, which is being fostered by foreign-born residents of the United States, and which has had the approval of President Wilson, is urged today in a statement issued by Governor Edge. The Executive refers to a petition that is now being circulated by the people who were not born in this country and in which it is announced that the celebration of the event will take place, while it is mentioned that the object of the observance is for the demonstrating of the regard of these persons for the United States and the cause for which it is striving in the war.

The statement follows in part:

"It is respectfully urged that the people in New Jersey co-operate warmly and heartily with foreign-born citizens in the motive and spirit of this celebration. The voluntary character of the proposition is only one indication of its genuine sincerity, and it cannot be the complete success which it promises unless American citizens extend the welcoming hand and take other means of indicating that the expression of loyalty on the part of foreign-born citizens is appreciated. We all recognize that one of the most inspiring demonstrations of the world-wide conflict is the fealty and allegiance to America and the American flag of foreign-born citizens. The few exceptions have merely served to prove the rule. As a class, foreign-born citizens appreciate that America's opportunity was their choice. They have profited by its benefits; they are recipients of the dividends of American Democracy.

"It is to be expected, therefore, that in gratitude and in appreciation of the land of opportunity, they will publicly express their loyalty to America and to American institutions.

"The American-born citizens of our State extends both hands in welcome, all thoughts in counsel and every good wish in co-operation and assistance."

June 12 Set As Date For Argument In Trolley Fare Case

Counsel in the seven-cent trolley fare case this week began the preparation of their argument on the evidence submitted and it will be heard by the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners at Newark on Wednesday, June 12. President Thomas N. McCarter will appear for the Public Service Railway Company and both Marshall Van Winkle and George L. Record will be heard for the municipalities opposing the proposed increase.

After a brief conference with Commissioner Slocum, Commissioner March set the date for the argument and stated that each side would be given one hour and a half, with two hours as the limit. Mr. Van Winkle will discuss the jurisdictional questions in his argument and Mr. Record will take up the other elements of the case.

The fare case has been before the Utilities Board for more than two months, the numerous delays consuming considerable time. Hundreds of pages of testimony have been taken and the exhibits, including reports of utility commissions, charts and tabulations of figures, would fill a small truck.

The petition for the fare raise was filed with the Utilities Board by the railway company on March 5, and March 14 was fixed as the date for the first hearing. On March 11 the executive committee of the New Jersey League of Municipalities and lawyers representing a great number of municipalities met at Newark and, after deciding to fight the application, employed Mr. Van Winkle as chief counsel. Mr. Record was retained a few days later as Mr. Van Winkle's associate.

When the opening hearing was called in Trenton on March 14, Mr. Van Winkle, aided by Corporation Counsel John Milton, of Jersey City, gained a delay to March 26, when President McCarter took the stand as the railway company's first witness. He was followed on subsequent days at hearings at Newark and in Trenton by other officials of the company and a number of experts. There was then an adjournment while Mr. Van Winkle and Mr. Record prepared for the cross-examination of the company's witnesses.

The presentation of the opposition's case began last Wednesday morning with hearings on Thursday and Friday, and it was continued Monday. The board did not sit at Newark, Tuesday, but it reopened the hearing Wednesday morning and the testimony of Dr. Wilcox was not concluded until a few minutes before 4 o'clock.

The company attempted to show by the testimony of its witnesses and the exhibits submitted that there has been a tremendous increase in operating expenses; that taxes are increasing; that a boost in the wages of its platform men and some of the other employes is necessary; that additional rises in cost are expected during the present year, and that, to meet this situation as well as the government's war time demands upon it, more revenue must be obtained.

In reply to these claims the opposing municipalities insisted that the company should not have the right to abrogate franchise contracts made with municipalities fixing rates of fare and transfer privileges; that the company was over-capitalized and that it could pay a fair return upon its actual investment without recourse to increased fares; that it was not economically operated; that it had overestimated the increased cost of operation it expected to face in 1918 and that savings could be effected that would obviate the necessity for increased fares.

Managers Appointed For P. R. R. And B. and O.

Appointment of federal managers of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads was made known this week, after the announcement of the resignation from the New York Central's presidency of A. H. Smith, Eastern regional director under the railroad administration. Elisha Lee will take charge of the peration of the Pennsylvania lines for the government, with A. W. Thompson assuming control of the B. & O. Each has been a vice president of the road he will manage.

Samuel Rea, of the Pennsylvania and Daniel Willard, of the B. & O., will continue as presidents of their respective roads in charge of corporate affairs. As Mr. Smith's successor, the New York Central has chosen W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr. With the presidency of the Central there also goes the presidency of 125 subsidiary transportation and terminal corporations.

In Mr. Lee's jurisdiction will be the directly operated lines east of Pittsburgh, Erie and Buffalo, including the main lines and branches of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the West Jersey & Seashore and the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk railroads. He will also have charge of he Pennsylvania terminals in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

Mr. Thompson will control the main lines and branches of the Baltimore & Ohio east of Parkersburg, W. Va., and Pittsburgh, including the terminals in those cities and at the seaboard.

The appointment of the federal managers for the other railroad lines in the Allegheny region will be announced later.

Phonographs Gladden Boys In The Trenches

Over in the trenches and behind the lines phonographs are busily playing to entertain the soldiers, as there is nothing like a familiar song from home to cheer a man up. Obviously, it is impossible to lug around big musical instruments when ammunition, food, and supplies demand every cubic foot of space available. It is because of this that the portable phonographs are utilized so generally.

The Sonora Phonograph Sales company of New York recently reported that more than 25,000 of the Sonora Portable type phonographs had been sold through their London representative and were now in service with the ritish troops. This particular Portable Sonora is proving immensely popular not only with the soldier and sailor boys but with motorists, vacationists, owners of country homes, college boys and girls and all who enjoy good music but can't transport a heavy machine.

The little Kortable Sonora in its polished cowhide case looks like a small suitcase and though it plays beautifully all makes of disc records, all sizes, it weighs 15 pounds complete.

In the great war hospitals physicians find the phonograph invaluable.

No Definite Furloughs For Soldiers On Farms

There has just been published at Camp Dix the War Department order that discharges or indefinite furloughs are not to be granted farmers in the National Army. They will receive only limited leaves of absence and must be prepared at any time to return to their organizations. The order affects many who in the recent call asked exemption on the ground that their labor is essential to the growing and harvesting of crops.

Citing the order, Major General Scott, camp commander, observed that "this meant that while favorable action may be taken upon worthy claims of men needed in farming operations this year, the liability of farmers to serve in the ranks continues."

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Among the Plainfield boys who have enlisted in various branches of the service during the past week are: Walter Siorah, of McDowell street, and Harold Adams, of West Fourth street, who have been sent to Fort Slocum as members of the ordnance department; Edward C. Dacey, Jr., of Wallace place, in the coast artillery; Fred Erber, of West Fourth street in the naval reserves, and Peter Colucci, of Richmond street, in the engineers' corps. Mr. Colucci made an attempt to enlist on four previous occasions but was refused because of his weight. He was placed in the limited service class by the local draft board and through its efforts on Wednesday was accepted as automobile driver and mechanical expert for the division of the engineers stationed in the lumbering camps in the State of Washington.

Continental Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution of Plainfield, has elected these officers: Regent, Mrs. V. D. Honeyman; first vice regent, Mrs. George O. Stevens; second vice regent, Mrs. Charles P. Leggett; recording secretary, Mrs. H. M. Maxson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. Bird; treasurer, Mrs. A. J. Hamley; registrar, Mrs. Frederick A. Waldon; historian, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen.

Dr. Charles G. Davis, of Park avenue, who is an enlisted man in the dental reserve corps, received word this week to proceed as soon as possible to Camp Dix for active duty. He is now concluding his private practice and other affairs and will leave for the cantonment in the near future.

State School Commissioner Kendall has appointed H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, as county superintendent of schools in Somerset for a term of three years. Miss Laura Cydenham, of the borough, who is acting principal of the Somerset street school, has been appointed a helping teacher for the full term.

A jury in the Union County Circuit Court, the past week, awarded a verdict of $324.75 to Kasper Sachar, of this city, in his suit against E. B. Ryder, of Sycamore avenue, North Plainfield. The defendant contracted with Sachar to place a patented roof on a new building which the latter erected at 315 Madison avenue. During a heavy rainstorm last summer, the roof leaked so badly great damage was caused to the building and the tenants on two floors. The plaintiff asked for reimbursement to the amount of $650 and the proceedings were heard by Judge George S. Silzer and a jury. Sachar was represented by William Newcorn, while Ryder's interests were handled by Robert Newton Crane.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, has planned to gave a dance at the Columbus Club on Thursday night, June 20, the proceeds to be for the benefit of the war fund. De Lisle's Jazz Orchestra will furnish music and the war fund committee, which is headed by H. P. Greenwood and Henry Brynlarski, has promised a number of surprise features in the entertainment arrangements.

Carroll Taylor, of Fairview avenue, the borough, has been promoted from lieutenant to the rank of captain in a division of the U. S. coast artillery, now stationed in France. Information to this effect came in a letter from the young man to his mother, Mrs. William O. Taylor. Another son of the latter, William Taylor, is in France as a lieutenant in the aviation corps.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, Division No. 1, A. O. H., will give a strawberry and ice cream festival at the Columbus Club on Friday night, June 14. DeLisle's Jazz Orchestra will furnish music for dancing, which will be a feature during most of the evening.

Louis Krog, thirteen years old, of East Sixth street, was riding his bicycle at Park avenue and Seventh street at 8:45 Tuesday night, when he was run down by an automobile owned by George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, and driven by Ketor Spokest. The boy was thrown to the pavement but escaped the wheels of the machine. He was picked up by Spokest and taken to the office of Dr. Endicott, where it was found that he had sustained a flesh wound on the hip. Later he was taken to his home. The boy's bicycle was badly damaged.

The parish hall of St. Joseph's church will be the scene of a progressive euchre next Tuesday night, to which a general invitation is extended to all interested. The affair will be under the auspices of the Woman's League, all arrangements having been made at a meeting of the organization Monday night.

Charles Marshall, of 337 Morris avenue, Elizabeth, was arraigned in the city police court, this morning, charged by Patrolman Loerch with running his automobile minus a muffler. The defendant explained that he had had one of the necessary devices on his machine when he left home but a "back fire" blew it out at Fanwood. Judge DeMeza accordingly suspended sentence.

Members of Crescent Company, No. 1, Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, will make its annual pilgrimage to Portchester, N. Y., next Sunday for the purpose of holding memorial services over the grave of Harvey L. Patterson, a member of the organization at the time he was killed in the Westfield wreck on January 27, 1902. The observance has been an annual one with Crescent Company ever since, the honors being paid a week in advance of the regular Pythian memorial day which occurs this year on Sunday, June 16. On the latter occasion, the company will decorate the graves of departed members in the Plainfield and Scotch Plains cemeteries, being joined with the exercises by a detachment from uniformed companies from Portchester and Brooklyn. The trip to Portchester the coming Sunday will be made by automobile in charge of a committee composed of J. E. Flannery, Fred Douglass and S. J. Robinson. On Sunday night, June 23, the members of Crescent Company will attend divine service in Grace M. E. church, the borough, at which time they will hear a special sermon preached by Rev. C. S. Gillespie.

Seader's Request May Mean Passage Of New Ordinance

There is a strong possibility that some time in the near future the City Common Council may pass an ordinance making it possible to transfer license fees paid by hackmen for an ordinary cab license to their new fee when substituting taxi-cabs for horse drawn vehicles.

Agitation in this direction began at the regular monthly meeting of the Common Council, Monday night. Peter Seader, one of the oldest cabbies in the line at the North avenue station, has given up his sadeial but serviceable animals in favor of an up-to-date taxi-cab. As he had previously paid five dollars at the beginning of the year for the renewal of his old license, he wrote a letter to the Council asking that this amount be credited to him on the new permit for the motor vehicle which costs ten dollars.

As there is no city ordinance permitting any such transferral, the city fathers were compelled to deny Mr. Seader's application but the sentiment in the Council chamber was such Mr. Seader asked for something that should be given him. Chairman Ackerman, of the public affairs committee, was outspoken in his belief that an ordinance giving the councilmen the right to grant such an application and he intimated that in the very near future he would have Corporation Counsel Reed prepare the necessary measure for introduction. Mr. Ackerman added that when a cab man sought to keep abreast of the times it was the duty of the Common Council to encourage him so far as possible.

The remainder of the business transacted at Monday night's meeting was practically all of a routine nature.

R. M. Grant & Company, of New York, were the successful bidders for the joint sewer bonds. The bond issue was for $38,000, but the Grant Company offered to take $36,000 at $38,080.80, which was the highest proposal for the lowest number of bonds, and accordingly the issue was sold to them. Other proposals were as follows: Hornblower & Weeks, $37,000 bonds, at $38,245.79; J. S. Ripple & Co., $37,000 bonds, at $38,377; Harris, Forbes & Co., $37,000 bonds at $38,265.77; A. B. Leach, $36,000 bonds at $38,011; Ladwig & Crane, $37,000 bonds at $38,577.70; Wernecke Hodge & Co., $37,000 bonds at $38,307.21; B. J. Van Ingen, $36,000 bonds at $38,050.

The request of the International Motor Company for permission to install a 10,000 gallon gasoline tank on their premises in West Front street was granted.

The proposal of the United & Globe Rubber Company to supply 1,000 feet of fire hose at $1.15 per foot was accepted.

A contract between the city and Julius J. Stahl for the construction of a storm sewer in West Front street was filed, having been approved by the Corporation Counsel.

The Board of Education certified to the Council that the amount to be raised by taxation for school purposes, exclusive of county and State school tax for this year, is $164,727.

Permission was granted to W. H. Goldberg to remove a house from 403 South End avenue to 1417 South End avenue.

The Council adopted a resolution increasing the pay of Special Policeman Thomas O'Gorman to $1,000 per year.

James McDonough and V. H. Crook were advanced from Class B to Class A in the fire department on recommendation of the Mayor, and Crook was appointed a regular member of the department. Fireman John Guinee was advanced from Class C to Class B.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported forty-five sewer permits granted last month and Building Inspector Doane reported ten building permits.

The overseer of the poor reported expenditures of $1,465.72.

The City National Bank purchased $2,800 steam roller bonds. The Council confirmed the sale. These bonds bear interest at five per cent.

The Public Service Corporation was ordered to place two thirty-two candle power lamps on the city side of the Norwood avenue bridge.

Country's Attention Now Turning Toward Women In "Drone" Class

Notice having been served on the male idler and flunky that he must either do essential work or fight, the case of the woman idler has now inevitably come up for consideration. No laws have yet been written about her, but woman's clubs and other organizations are actively at work showing women what they can do and how to do it; while the idle society woman is become a subject for resentful satire.

The work which the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense has done in registering women for war work is well known. It has just answered the oft-repeated statement that there is no opportunity for women to work by publishing a list of sixty-seven kinds of Government and philanthropic war work in which women are needed.

It is easy to prove the waste of woman power is much greater than the waste of man power. There are three general classes of women in this country, as economists have pointed out. In the first place, there is the great body of women who are their own cooks, housekeepers, chambermaids and nurses. They are among the hardest workers in the Nation. If she brings up healthy children, feeds her husband well and does not waste food, the housewife is doing about as much for her country as one woman can. Women of this type are strongly advised by their Government not to go outside of their homes in search of work unless the size of the family income makes it necessary. The welfare of the rising generation, the conservation of food, and the integrity of the social structure under the strain of war depend largely upon these housekeepers who really keep house.

The next most important class of women consists of those who work outside of their homes. It includes a growing body of professional women, all of the innumerable clerks, stenographers, saleslrls, waitresses, and that new type of woman who takes her place beside men in factories, shops and railroads—the woman in overalls.

Most of the women not included in these two classes represent more or less waste. They are the women who hire servants to do their housework and look after their children while they themselves engage in the strange but time-honored occupation of representing their husbands in society. In varying degrees they waste their own time, absorb the services of from one to fifteen servants, and also waste much money in amusing themselves.

According to the economists, the only real function of these women is to waste. They are classed by the finest of modern scientists as survivals of barbarism. For in barbaric times a man's importance was estimated by the number of idle persons in his retinue, and his wife was always the chief of these. In order to make it clear to all and sundry that she did not have to work, his wife was usually in some way deformed or handicapped. Hence the chief lady of the Turkish harem was usually too fat to move, the Chinese woman had her feet crushed so that she could not walk, while foorings and other barbaric ornaments accomplished somewhat the same purpose in other tribes and countries. The modern Ameriman woman, teetering around on three-inch heels, impeded by corsets, tight skirts and other inventions of fashion, is the lineal descendant of these primitive charmers.

At least, so say the economists. This theory of our leisure class is trenchantly expressed by Thorstein Veblen, the great ecomonist, who is said to be highly regarded as a thinker by the President of the United States. Whether or not he is logical, it certainly takes a man of high courage to tell our society leaders that they are relics of barbarism.

But the war-time situation has given new point and meaning to this view. These women, who not only do nothing useful, but spend enough on their clothes to keep an army in the field, and use enough limousines to bring a million wounded men to safety, are the wrost wasters; for they waste not only their own time but the time of many others.

They are not, however, to be blamed. They are doing what society has always demanded of them, and what it still demands. It has heretofore been considered "bad form" in most communities for any woman to work, whose husband was able to support her. Often it is his refusal which has deprived her of the satisfaction and pleasure which all good workers get from their work. Many of these women are not so much selfish as victims of selfishness. A Southern woman expressed by action the vague feeling of many of them when she got a divorce from her husband, who refused to let her work, and opened a large boarding house. As a society woman she was bored and unhappy; as a boarding-house keeper she is efficient and thoroughly satisfied with life. Work, after all, is a privilege.

And the war is offering American women a chance, an excuse, you might say, to work. More and more of them every day are taking advantage of it. When the Government issued a call for stenographers, many a small town bud blithely tossed up her social career and went to Washington for a job. There are many women in the capital who are now working for the first time. It is plain that they are much better satisfied, and that the addition to their income is a welcome one.

To many other women the war has come as a welcome opportunity to be useful for the first time in their lives. To the younger ones, the change is not difficult. Others, who have devoted many years to the conventional "social career" do not so easily adjust themselves to the new order. They make comforts and pack boxes for soldiers and are told that these things are not wanted. They give elaborate entertainments to raise money for various war time philanthropies, and are ridiculed for spending more than the entertainments bring in. These are the "women slackers." The are slammed and satirized. But most of them are doing the best they can.

Meantime, the opportunities for women to work are increasing, and most of them are not neglected. The "work or fight" order of the Administration will scare many male waiters, elevator operators, and occupants of other light jobs into factories and fields, and women will take their places. The Bureau of Education is calling upon women who have been school teachers to return to the school room, and this will afford many a married woman an excuse for going back to work in the name of patriotism. The baby-saying campaign of the Children's Bureau will afford useful work to many women. Through the Counsel of National Defense, professional and clerical training is being offered to and urged upon young girls in all parts of the country.

During this war women are going to establish themselves firmly in many fields of usefulness that have been closed to them before, and once they have tasted work and independence, they will not lightly renounce them.

McAdoo Out For Slacker Money

Secretary McAdoo this week, laid out a drag net for $500,000,000 slacker dollars.

Scores of agents of the Internal Revenue department are searching the Nation for tax dodgers and persons whose income tax returns were incorrectly computed. Startling disclosures have come with the filing of more than $5,300,000 tax reports, and evidence of flagrant disregard of tax laws and lack of patriotism is at hand. In thousands of returns, also, there is apparent ignorance of exemptions and methods of computing incomes and profits.

Preliminary reports of revenue agents show:

That at least 720,000 persons failed to make returns who should and these will net $90,000,000, in additional taxes.

That investigations into three groups of trades—coal, oil and wool industries—show need of applying in many cases the penalties prescribed by law.

That the total number of slacker dollars out as computed from those already uncovered will reach half a billion.

The greatest problem facing the revenue experts is obtaining exact figures on incomes of large corporations from their subsidiaries. In several cases it has been discovered that great corporations show tax returns only half as great as they should and many show a fifty per cent hold out. In addition fully fifty per cent, of the returns were incorrectly reported and in these cases the revenue agents have been ordered to determine which were the intentional violations so that the Government may prosecute.

"Evader and delinquent must dig up," Daniel C. Roper, commissioner of internal revenue, declared today. And the spotlight of publicity will be thrown upon the malicious and intentional dodger. Penalties will be affixed on the guilty and alibis and excuses will avail none, Roper declared.

Will Sift Claims Of Conscientious Objectors

Orders providing for the further sifting of the claims of conscientious objectors to military duty under the selective service act have been issued by Secretary Baker. About 600 such men are now confined in the army prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., having been sentenced for refusal to accept even non-combatant work with the army. A special board will conduct the work.

In issuing the order the War Department made it plain that under no circumstances will the men be discharged from the service. A solution that has been suggested is that in cases where conscientious objections are found to be honest the man will be furloughed with the stipulation that he go to work on a farm for subsistence and a wage not greater than army pay.

The members of the board, which will personaly interrogate the segregated men, are Major Richard C. Stoddard, of the Judge Advocate General's office, chairman of the board; Julian W. Mack, of Chicago, a federal judge, and Dean H. P. Stone, of the Columbia University Law School, New York. The members of this board will visit the camps where the conscientious objectors are now segregated.

Farmers, Beware Of Men Impersonating Revenue Officers

The attention of all newspapers and others is called to the fact that there are persons throughout the State who are selling what is known as "A Farmer's Account Book," which is to be used by farmers and others in keeping their income tax figures.

The persons who are selling this book are using the name of a "War Income Tax Agent" in the attempt to force the sale of same.

The activities of these impersonators, coming as they do at a time when special appeals are being made to the farmers of the county to pay their income tax, are particularly obnoxious, and it is the intention of every officer of the Internal Revenue Bureau to assist, if possible, in bringing before the proper authorities the facts in connection with such practice.

It is requested th tait any person or corporation knows of the whereabouts of the above mentioned agents, that they immediately get in touch with any of the Revenue Officers located in either Paterson, Jersey City, Elizabeth, New Brunswick or Newark, and advise the deputies so that the persons can be apprehended.

Any person using the name of an Internal Revenue Officer in attempting to sell books or anything else, thereby impersonating a Revenue Officer with wrongful intent, is liable to a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment for three years, or both. Arrest of the above persons will be followed by vigorous prosecution and all subsequent cases should be reported to the Internal Revenue Bureau at once.

Any information on the above will be appreciated by addressing Charles V. Duffy, Collector of Internal Revenue, Newark.

Elaborate Program Arranged by Plainfield Elks For Gitt Of Old Glory To City Tonight

Commencing at 2 o'clock this afternoon, with "open house" at the Watchung avenue home, Plainfield Lodge of Elks will conduct flag day exercises on an elaborate scale in connection with the presentation to the city of one of the largest American flags yet seen in this community.

It is a custom of the order of Elks to observe flag day with appropriate ceremonies but as the Plainfield organization had planned to present the municipality with an Old Glory banner both affairs were combined into one. The Watchung avenue club house is to be thrown open to the public this afternoon for the purpose of holding a reception presided over by members of the lodge and their wives. A musical program is to be provided and all interested are given a cordial invitation to attend.

The presentation of the flag and the flag day exercises, according to the Elk ritual will take place at the new City Hall tonight. The members will assemble at the club house at 6:45, marching from there to the municipal building in order to reach the latter at 7 o'clock, at which time the program is to begin. The Liberty Band will furnish music for the procession and during the exercises.

Exalted Ruler James W. Hart, of Plainfield Lodge, will be in charge of the program and will present the flag to Mayor Leighton Calkins. Brief addresses will be made by both men, but the real speech of the evening is to be given by Judge James W. McCarthy, of Jersey City. His subject will be "Our Flag." The senior class of the Plainfield High School will be present in a body to lead the singing of national anthems.

The program in full will be as follows:

Orchestra, Coronation March, Kreschmer; choral, "Merry June;" salutatory, Master Augustine Oakes; Dance of the Roses, Misses Marion Currie, Mary Rodgers; Mary Gannon, Bernice Weaver, Germaine Boehm, Catharine O'Neil, Catharine Lipton, Catharine Egan, Jennie Bonisi; awarding of certificates, Master Augustine Oakes, Brooklyn, N. FATHER McDONALD IN FRANCE.

Friends in Plainfield today received news of the safe arrival in France of Rev. Father Joseph S. McDonald, who was curate at St. Mary's church, this city, for several years. At the time of his enlistment in the regular army he was stationed at Jersey City. After being commissioned as a lieutenant, Father McDonald was assigned to the 308th Field Artillery at Camp Dix.

IN AND OUT.

Victor H. Crook, of South avenue, who was appointed a member of the fire department a short time ago, tendered his resignation this week. He left to accept a position as automobile driver for a local family.

P. S Wants More Than 7-Cent Fare

That the revenue return to the Public Service Railway Company, even with a seven-cent trolley fare and a charge for transfers, would not be sufficient to meet its monetary needs is the belief of President Thomas N. McCarter. He thinks the company should have the seven-cent fare with the transfer privilege entirely suspended.

Mr. McCarter made his views known in presenting the final argument of the company for the fare increase before the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners in Newark yesterday afternoon. At the same time he went on record against any further raise in pay for the trolleymen, who received the concession of a new rate when they returned to duty following the strike last week and left the settlement of their differences with the company to the mediation of the National War Labor Board.

The Public Service head said the ground for his assertion that even more than the seven-cent fare would be necessary to keep the company going was the sentiment in Congress to increase federal taxes, the increased freight rates, which mean a higher cost on coal, the possibility that the National War Labor Board will grant the platform request for more money, and the increased cost of supplies.

"My own view, judging by the developments that have taken place since this proceeding was started and what is going on in the railroad situation and through the country generally," said Mr. McCarter, "is that the relief to be granted by this commission ought to be greater than the prayer of this petition. I think there ought to be a seven-cent fare with the suspension of the right of transfer. And with the danger of increased wages coming from an order of the labor board, with the danger of those increased taxes, and with the certainty of these increased coal rates, and the probable further increase of costs for supplies, I don't believe anything else will do the job."

H. A. Gould Weds Miss McCarthy

Miss Margaret Eulalie McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCarthy, of 427 Orchard place, and Henry Ambrose Gould, of 916 West Third street, were united in marriage at St. Mary's church at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Rev. Father Walter Hennessey, assistant rector of the church, performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by a gathering of relatives and friends. Miss Myrtle Dunn and John Duffy, both of this city, acted as attendants. As the bridal party proceeded up the aisle of the church to the altar, Miss Mary Donnelly sang the Lohengrin Wedding March. Miss Mary Smith accompanying on the organ.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. It was attended by relatives and a few intimate friends of Plainfield, Bayonne, New York and other places. At noon Mr. and Mrs. Gould took their departure for Boston, where they will remain until Monday night. On returning they will make their home temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy.

Mr. Gould was formerly a resident of Chicago but has been living in Plainfield for the past five years. He is employed as machinist at the Pond Tool Works. His bride has been a Plainfield resident for many years and has a very wide circle of friends. During the past year she has been employed as stenographer at the Standard Aero plant on Park avenue.

Among those who attended the wedding breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy were Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCabe and Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, of Bayonne; Mrs. James McCarthy, of Brooklyn; Mrs. P. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. James Scott, Mrs. J. H. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Hamilton, Myrtle Dunn, Mary Donnelly, Marion Harrington, John Dffy and Mr. O'Loughlin, all of Plainfield.

MRS. WARNOCK VERY ILL.

Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, who has been an invalid for the past five years, following a stroke of paralysis, is seriously ill at her home. Last week she suffered a second stroke not as severe as the first, but complications have developed which have made her condition critical at times. She is under the care of Dr. A. H. Dundon.

BIG CLASS INITIATION.

A class of fifty candidates will be given the First and Second Degrees by Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, at the Front street headquarters next Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. Delegations from councils in nearby cities, including Elizabeth, Newark and New York, will be in attendance.

Next Sunday's Patriotic Rally The Biggest Yet

All previous patriotic meetings held in this city promise to fade into insignificance when compared with the big rally being planned for next Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the New Jersey Committee of '76 and the Citizens' Committee.

The affair is to be held in the Plainfield Theatre, commencing at 3 o'clock, and is for the primary purpose of stimulating interest in war work and incidentally to secure recruits for national service. Joseph Watson, of Watchung avenue, whose newspaper articles are read by Plainfielders over the signature of "J. Watson," is chairman of the committee arrangements and will also act as chairman at the meeting.

A splendid array of speakers has been secured but each is to be limited to ten minutes. Among those who will talk on patriotic subjects are Congressman Edward Runyon, Rev. Dr. Walter J. Swahlen, a former councilman Richard A. Claybrook and Mr. Watson, all of Plainfield; also George A. Shultz, chairman of the Paterson Committee of '76; former Judge James C. Connolly, chairman of the Elizabeth Committee of '76 and Major J. E. Bloom, of Newark, chairman of the State Executive Committee of '76. Outside of the Plainfielders mentioned, the speakers will tell of the work of the Committee of '76 and the patriotic education for the rehabilitation of disabled soldiers, sailors and marines.

This is not all of the program as other features have been provided for beside speaking. The Liberty Band will furnish a musical program, while Miss Raybert, who is one of the city's most popular soloists, will sing several patriotic songs and the U. S. Army bugle calls will be sounded by Sergeant John Borders and Corporal Carl W. Broples. As these calls are sounded they will be explained by Sergeant Donald White, of the Newark, recruiting station.

Assisting Joseph Watson in the preparation of the program are E. R. Humphreys, who is acting as secretary and Corporal Ernest B. Peck, the latter in charge of the Plainfield recruiting office. They have extended special invitations to the Home Defense Leagues of Plainfield and North Plainfield and hope to have a big turnout of members, but at the present time it is certainly not that the Plainfield League will attend in a body. The North Plainfielders, however, have signified their intention of turning out in full force and it is possible that a street parade may be held previous to the gathering at the theatre.

The efforts of the committee are being directed to secure a capacity audience and each member will be fully repaid for all the work he has gone through if the rally proves a success. Help the city be united and demonstrate by your attendance that you want to do whatever you can to back up the boys who are bearing the big burden of the war.

Draft Ages May Be Raised from 18 to 45

That the War Department will ask modification of the draft law—so as to include all men between the ages of 18 and 45 or 49 years—was the forecast of well-informed Congressional leaders yesterday.

The new legislation, which would place the draft on the same basis as that of England and facilitate the operation of the Inter-Allied draft treaties, is expected to be launched in the December "short session."

Meanwhile a campaign of education is to be conducted to inform the country of the need of the raising of the draft ages. These reasons include the probable depletion of Class 1 this year and the necessity for going into deferred classifications unless draft limits are broadened.

"Provost Marshal General Crowder has no desire to go into deferred classes," said Representative Kahn, of the House military committee, yesterday.

Members of the Senate foreign relations committee yesterday ratified ratification of the draft treaty with England and Canada would impose a moral obligation on America to raise the draft age.

Under an agreement among all the Allies to understood the military service ages for all the allied nations are to be made uniform. It is upon this condition that the Allied nations have agreed with the United States upon the drafting of their nationals in this country for military service.

Membership of the Senate yesterday hinted that the Underwood resolution limiting Senate debate is a stalking horse for the draft bill so that opposition to it can be curtailed and no filibuster started.

Speedy ratification of the draft treaty with Great Britain and Canada is expected. Ratification is the first step in sending nearly 700,000 men to the American or Allied armies from the population of this country, officials said.

Female Enemy Aliens In City Must Register

Mayor Calkins Gives Notice That Women From The Age Of Fourteen Years Not Citizens Of United States Must Be Recorded According To Goverment Instructions

Female German aliens living in this city are required to register at Police Headquarters, according to the following proclamation issued by Mayor Calkins this morning:

The President of the United States, by authority conferred upon him by Act of Congress approved April 16, 1918, has ordered the registration of female German aliens, for the protection of the country and in the interest also of such aliens to the extent that they purpose to be law abiding. They should not regard registration as a reproach, or themselves as under suspicion. By prompt compliance with the Alien Enemy regulations they will show respect for the law. Failure to comply will make them liable to imprisonment for the duration of the war, and other penalties.

Wherefor public notice is hereby given that all natives, citizens, denizens, or subjects of the German Empire or of the German Imperial Government, being females of the age of 14 years and upwards, now within the United States and not naturalized as American citizens, whose habitual place of abode is within the City of Plainfield, are required to register at Police Headquarters, corner Fourth and Sycamore streets. The registration will be in charge of Chief of Police P. S. Kiely.

The days of registration are from Monday, June 17th, to Wednesday, June 26th, inclusive, except Sunday, June 23rd. The hours of each of said days are from 6 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Employers are directed to post copies of this notice in their places of business and otherwise to facilitate the registration of German alien females in their employ.

Registrants will avoid inconvenience by presenting themselves for instructions as to photographs on June 17th.

LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor.

Plainfield, N. J., June 14, 1918.

Mayor's Orders For Local Observance Of The Fourth Of July

In an open letter addressed to Chief of Police Kiely, Mayor Leighton Calkins has set forth for the benefit of citizens the regulations to cover the celebrating of July 4th.

In common with the chief executives of other cities, the Mayor is desirous of not only a "safe and sane" Independence Day but one in keeping with the present tendency to eliminate all undue and unnecessary displays. The Mayor's letter is as follows:

June 15, 1918.

P. S. Kiely, Chief of Police,
Plainfield, New Jersey.

Dear Sir:

While I hope that the feeling will prevail in Plainfield that a noisy Fourth this year would be peculiarly unfitting for people occupied with serious thoughts and undertakings, and that community sentiment may be relied upon to accomplish its own purpose, nevertheless this discharge of fireworks of a certain restricted type is lawful; and I have therefore prepared the following short abstract which will make clear the provisions of the ordinance regulating and prohibiting both the sale and discharge of firearms and fireworks. You will please furnish copies to all members of the police force in order that they may familiarize themselves with the regulations, and strictly enforce them. I am sending copies to the local papers for the information of the public.

Yours truly,
LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor.

Abstract from Ordinance Regulating and Prohibiting the Sale and Discharge of Firearms and Fireworks on Fourth of July.

1. No fireworks of any kind may be discharged on any street or in any public place. Fireworks may be discharged only on private property.

2. The only fireworks which may be discharged on private property are (a) Roman candles not over 15 balls, (a) mines not over 15 inches in length, (c) triangles not over 12 inches, (d) colored fires, (e) firecrackers not over twon and one-half inches in length and not over one-half inch in diameter, (f) torpedoes not over three-quarters of an inch in diameter, and (g) paper cap toy pistols exploding small paper caps only. Fireworks may not be discharged except between the hours of 6 a. m. and 12 o'clock midnight.

3. It is forbidden anywhere within the city limits, including private property, to fire or discharge any cannon, gun, revolver, toy pistol or firearm of any description, even with blank charges, but this does not prohibit the use of small paper cap toy pistols exploding small paper caps only.

4. It is forbidden within the city limits, including private property, to set in motion any toy or other ballloon containing burning material of any kind.

5. It is forbidden to sell or expose for sale within the city limits, any cannon, toy pistol or fireworks of any description, except the Roman candles, mines, triangles, colored fires, fire crackers, torpedoes and paper cap pistols, mentioned in paragraph 2 above, which the law permits to be used and discharged on private property only.

6. Persons violating the ordinance are subject to fine according to the nature of the violation not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offense.

Meningitis Fatal To Walter Zimmer

Following an illness of about two weeks with meningitis, Walter E. Zimmer, a widely known young Plainfield resident, died yesterday afternoon in Muhlenberg Hospital. His condition became critical several days ago and it was decided to remove him to the institution in the hope that it might help to stay the disease but without effect.

Mr. Zimmer was born in this city twenty-two years ago and had always made his home either in the city or borough. He was the son of Sophie and the late Charles Zimmer, the latter having been one of Plainfield's pioneer cigar manufacturers and a well known business man for a long time. The young man learned the trade of machinist at the Pond Tool Works, but recently had been employed as fireman on the New Jersey Central. His home was at 142 West Front street. He had a very taking way about him and whenever he made friends it was always to keep them.

Particularly sad circumstances are connected with Mr. Zimmer's death in that he was married only on September 5 last. His bride was Miss Mary Miller, of this city, who survives him. It is a co-incidence that the demise occurred on the tenth anniversary of the burial of his father.

Beside his wife, Mr. Zimmer is survived by his mother, two sisters and four brothers. They are Mrs. Jeaneter Rose, Mrs. Mary Roth, Clarence Zimmer, George Zimmer, of this city; Fred Zimmer, of Newark, and Phillip Zimemr, of Newburgh, N. Y.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church next Monday morning at 9 o'clock, when a solemn requiem mass will be said.

Miss Eva Doeringer Bride Of Warren Clymer

In the presence of fifty relatives and friends, Miss Eva Barbara Doeringer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Doeringer, of Vine street, the borough, was united in marriage Wednesday night to Warren Clymer, of Craig place, North Plainfield, formerly of Philadelphia.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. J. Meder, of the First Methodist church, and the attendants were Miss Marion Kelly, of New Market, niece of the bride, acting as bridesmaid, and J. J. Neylon, of this city, was best man. An orchestra played the Lohengrin wedding march, the bridal party assembled in the parlor, which was a mass of floral decorations.

Following a honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Clymer will make their home with the former's parents for a short time, but later will occupy a home of their own. Mr. Clymer holds a responsible position with the Van Dyke, Church Company, machine selling agents in New York. His bride was for many years chief operator at the Plainfield Telephone exchange and has a very wide acquaintance in the city and borough.

"258" Turner, First Plainfielder Drawn In Draft, Leaving For Camp Dix Next Thursday

David T. Turner, who has been known as "258" since the big nationtid draft drawing of last July because that was the first number drawn and he held it in Plainfield, has been called as one of the two colored men for the local quota to go to Camp Dix next week. The other man is Herman Hopson, of 535 South Second street.

At the time of the national drawing last summer, Turner lived on East Third street and worked as porter at the Queen City Hotel. The entire country was on a tip-toe of excitement over the drafting of men and when it became known that Turner was the first man called jokers made a big circular placard on which they painted "258" and pinned it on the colored man's chest. Everywhere he went during the remainder of the day he was greeted with cheers salutations and not a few invitations to join whites and blacks in a social drink. By nightfall he was confident that he could whip the whole German army with one hand tied behind his back and it was a lucky thing for the Huns that they did not cross his path. Since that night Turner has been known as "258." He is at present employed as a chauffeur by a family living on Woodland avenue, but will quit his job tomorrow in preparation for his departure. He asserts that he is going to have another party likes the one he had on the afternoon and night of the draft before going away.

The two colored men will leave Plainfield on the 8:34 train next Thursday morning and will go to Camp Dix.

False Rumor Of Soldier's Demise

One of those persistent rumors which are quite common, in connection with supposed information from overseas, asserted yesterday that William Marienscheck, the Plainfield infantry man severely wounded in France on May 22, had succumbed to his injuries.

Where the rumor started no one knows, but it is purely groundless so far as the family of the young man is concerned. A call at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Antone Marienscheck, of 141 West Front street, brought the information that no further official word had come from the Government beyond the fact that Private Marienscheck had been placed on the casualty list after a charge at the enemy. The formal Government message stated that any further information would be sent as soon as it was received from General Pershing. Mr. and Mrs. Marienscheck were at a loss to account for the origin of the rumor stating that their son had passed away. It probably originated in the same manner as all the conflicting stories regarding army and military matters.

Private Marienscheck was one of the first Plainfield lads to get directly on the firing line, having gone abroad last October as a member of the regular infantry in the Rainbow division. Previous to the official telegram from Washington telling of his being wounded the last word his parents received from him was on June 2, when a letter he had written on Mother's Day was delivered at the Front street address. In this letter, he stated that he was glad to be back with his company again after a stay in the hospital. While using his pen knife, he said, he had inflicted a deep cut on one finger which required six stitches to close. The work was hastily done by the surgeon and afterward the stitches had to be replaced by others. The circumstance kept him in the hospital for some time and resulted in his having a stiffened finger but outside of that, he wrote, he was enjoying good health and in the best of condition. It is evident that he was sent back to the firing line soon after as the official telegram was sent from Washington on June 5. It was from Adjutant-General McCain and read as follows:

"Deeply regret to inform you that it is officially reported that Private William E. Marienscheck, infantry, was severely wounded in action May 22. Will send any further information received."

Private Marienscheck was born in Dunellen on February 6, 1898. When he was sixteen years old, his parents removed to this city, residing first at Third and New streets, and more recently at the apartment at 141 West Front street in the Love building.

After leaving school, the young man was employed at Pond's but at the age of nineteen the desire for military duty became so great that he enlisted in the regular army at the Jersey City recruiting station. After months of training at Fort Slocum, he was assigned to duty in Panama, remaining there until February, 1917, at which time his three-year period of enlistment expired. He immediately re-enlisted for another full term and was enjoying a furlough in this city when war was declared. Returning to his division at Panama, he was given re-assignment in the infantry and sent to a camp at Springfield, Ohio. From this point, he was transferred to the Rainbow division mobilization camp on Long Island, shortly thereafter embarking for France.

Beside his parents, Private Marienscheck has three sisters, all of whom reside at the parental home, aged Madeline Marienscheck, aged twenty-four years; Miss Christen Marienscheck, aged twenty, and Margaret, seven.

Among the Plainfield boys who have been reported as arriving in France during the past week are Private Edward J. Coffey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Coffey, of South Second street, and Private G. Russell Hess, son of Mrs. Ira Van Arsdale, of Essex street, and Private Edwin Windham, brother of Mrs. Jesse A. Dayton, of Lyman place.

"Jack" Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Rogers, of Watchung avenue, is home on a brief furlough for the first time in four months. He is attached to the naval hospital corps and has been doing trans-Atlantic duty on transports.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Winifred Post Titus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ellwood Titus, of 909 Madison avenue, this city, to Rutgers Breevoort Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. De Witt Jones, of Elizabeth. Mr. Jones was formerly a member of the Essex Troop, but is now on special duty in New York.

John T. Donnelly, of 460 West Fourth street, who was inducted into the national army for special railroad work in France, left for overseas duty during the past week. Previous to entering the army he was employed as fireman on a New Jersey Central "pusher" running between Dunellen and Graceland Hill.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry N. Maxson, of West Seventh street, left this week for Long Lake, N. Y., to remain for the summer. Their departure at this time is due to the fact that Dr. Maxson's health has been somewhat impaired and he has been granted a long leave of absence by the Board of Education.

James McCarthy, Jr., of East Fifth street, who recently enlisted at the local army recruiting office in the postoffice, and was sent to Fort Slocum, has been transferred to Camp Humphrey, Va., as a member of Company M, 3rd Engineers, Tr., Regiment.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin and family, of Martine avenue, have gone to Utica, N. Y., to spend some time at the home of Mrs. Martin's mother.

Jacob Voehl and daughter, Mrs. Eliza J. Carney, of 39 Grove street, the borough, who left last week for California, have arrived safely at Van Nuys, that State. They will remain at the latter place for several months as the guests of Mrs. Carney's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Austin. On the way to the coast the Plainfielders stopped at Los Angeles for a short time.

Private William McClinton, who was called to Plainfield by the death of his mother, Mrs. A. Attwell, of Pond place, left Wednesday to rejoin his division of the aviation signal corps at Kelly Field, Texas.

Among the Plainfielders who have returned from Anniston, Ala., because of the movement of troops from that section, are Mrs. Charles A. Peterson, wife of Captain Peterson; Mrs. James Conkling, wife of Lieutenant Conkling, and Mrs. Chas. Baumann, wife of Sergeant Charles Baumann. All have been in the South since last fall.

Dave Rogers, treasurer of the Plainfield Theatre, will enjoy his annual vacation during the month of July. With Mrs. Rogers, he will spend the time at Lake Hopatcong enjoying his favorite diversion of fishing. Michael L. Shannon, manager of the Plainfield Theatre, will also spend a short time at the Lake the latter part of July.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Genevieve Smalley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Smalley, of Codington avenue, North Plainfield, to Frederick Lang, also of the borough. The ceremony was performed last Saturday night at the First Baptist parsonage by Rev. Dr. P. B. Strong. Miss Ann L. Giddes and Charles M. Lewis acted as attendents. The young couple will make their home in this city as the bridegroom is employed as machinist in one of the local shops.

M. and Mrs. Albert Wilson, of 946 Prospect avenue, are the parents of a daughter, born to them a few days ago. Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. V. W. Nash.

Miss Alice A. Nelson, of Westfield, and Private John M. Uhler, Jr., of Denmark road, this city, were married in the Episcopal church at Anniston, Ala., Friday night. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. Carlton Barnwell, and was witnessed by a small gathering of friends. Private Uhler is a member of Battery F, 112th Field Artillery, and previous to entering the service was engaged in the insurance business in New York. His bride was graduated from Muhlenberg Hospital training school in the class of 1915.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Clifton, at 922 Kenyon avenue, will be the scene of a wedding next Monday evening, when Mrs. Anna Barrick, of Philadelphia, will be made the wife of Edson C. Martin, of Albert street, this city. The ceremony will be witnessed by a small gathering of relatives and friends and will be followed by a reception. Later the couple will start on a motor trip to the Thousand Islands, where Mr. Martin has a cottage and where they will spend the summer. Mr. Martin was a member of the former local firm of Woodhull & Martin, and since giving up business in Plainfield, has taken care of interests in Elizabeth and New York.

Eugene S. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Martin, of Park avenue, and Leo Wilson, son of former Councilman and Mrs. William W. Wilson, of West Third street, left Wednesday for Parris Island, S. C., to which place they were assigned after enlistment in the United States Marine Corps. Mr. Wilson is a brother to Walter Wilson, who is now in France as a member of the naval aero corps.

Miss Electa Vivian Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Dunn, of Somerville, formerly of this city, and Fred T. Dickinson, Jr., of East Second street, were married at Anniston, Ala., Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Dickerson, who is a member of the field artillery division stationed at Camp McClellan, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Dickerson, of East Second street, the father being private secretary to W. G. Besler, president of the New Jersey Central. Mr. and Mrs. Dickerson and Mr. and Mrs. Dunn, parents of the young couple, were among those witnessing the ceremony. Private Dicksonson expects to go abroad in the near future.

Mrs. M. B. Tarnan and daughter, of Kensington avenue, left this week for New London, Conn., where they will spend the summer at their cottage.

Private Albert Martin, of 1126 West Third street, returned to his company at Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., Tuesday, after a seven days' furlough at home. He was given a farewell party by a number of friends on the eve of his departure.

Draft Classes To Be Revised

A general revision of classifications under the selective service act was started this week by Provost Marshal-General Crowder, when he telegraphed to the governors of all states ordering investigations to determine the reason for the small number of registrants in Class 1 in some localities.

The lists of some boards show an average far below the national average of 28.7 per cent. registrants in Class 1. Some boards have fallen even as low as 10 per cent.

Thousands of men now in Class 4 should be put in Class 1 and 2, the provost-marshal said.

The instructions also ordered investigation to determine if any men have been erroneously put in the upper classes when they should have been placed in those lower down.

General Crowder announced also that the class of 1918 registrants will not be allowed to enlist in the navy or marine corps, and that no voluntary inductions will be granted until order and serial numbers have been assigned. After assignment registrants may enlist if they obtain certificates from their local boards stating they are not within the board's current quota.

It is expected that the rearrangement ordered will bring into class one more than 500,000 men.

Cases where registrants were married after passage of the draft act will be carefully considered and, if evidence warrants classification in class one, boards will proceed to reclassify them. Married men whose wives have sustaining incomes probably will be reclassified.

"This office has reached the conclusion," said the provost marshal general, "that corrective procedure can be made most effective by revision by the local boards with the hearty and active assistance of government appeals agents and members of legal advisory boards.

"You will therefore . . . issue instructions that they shall immediately proceed to a careful examination of all the questionnaires and records in the classes of cases hereinafter indicated, and make such recommendations to the local boards as they may deem necessary.

"Local boards, government appeal agents, and members of legal advisory boards should direct special attention to the following classes of cases:

"Class 2B and B, Class 3A, B, and C, and Class 4A—Thousands of registrants are now in Class 4 who should be in Class 3 or Class 1. Government appeal agents . . . should be instructed to appeal every case where the reclassification is not convincingly correct.

"The activities of local boards, appeal agents, and members of legal advisory boards are not limited to the classes of cases above indicated, but the same corrective measures should be applied to all other cases of deferred classification when the same appears necessary.

"Local boards should set aside a special week in June, to be called class one week, to conduct examinations of doubtful cases. Classifications should be scientifically adjusted now so as to avoid the necessity or proceeding to the deferred classes. The remedy is yours to apply.

"It is important also that corrective procedure should be applied where necessary in case of boards showing unusually high percentages of Class 1. Where there are no apparent explanations for such high percentages you should make inquiry of the proper boards with a view to ascertaining whether the boards have correctly applied the regulations.

"Also instruct all local boards to re-examine under the new standards of physical examination now being issued all doubtful cases which may have fallen into Group B, Group C or Group D, . . . with the particular purpose of finding men physically fit for general military service, who may have been placed in one of the above mentioned groups and of removing to Group C as qualified for special and limited military service such men as may heretofore have been totally rejected or placed in the deferred remediable group."

No Change Here Because Of Big Express Merger

Additional information concerning the consolidation of the leading express companies into one company which will be known as the American Railroad Express Company has been received by Frank Wilmerding, manager of the American Express Company's office in this city.

While it is not known just what changes such a consolidation will make in this city, it is believed there will be no material change because of only one company being in Plainfield.

The new consolidation will be headed by George C. Taylor, former president of the American Express Company. In a recent statement he said:

"The new move will bring into one organization over 100,000 men now trained in express service. It will be the policy of the company to maintain a broad gauge attitude toward its employes, many of whom have spent their lives in the service and thousands of whom have made great personal sacrifices in carrying the immense burden of the last three and a half years.

"In the past the express companies have been vital factors in the conservation of merchandise and foodstuffs. They have eliminated distance and the time element between the manufacturer and his market. The new move is designed to improve the distribution of commerce and agriculture and the business of the country may look upon it with confidence that their interests will be carefully and intelligently served.

"The non-transportation activities of the separate companies, such as money orders, travelers' checks, travel department, foreign exchange and banking, and their respective foreign organizations which are of the international magnitude, will not come under the consolidation, but will be conducted by the individual companies as in the past, the offices of the new company acting as agents for the old companies in the handling of the above mentioned features."

Garfield Warns Against Another Coal Shortage

Coal dealers and fuel administration officials received today with mixed feelings the statement made yesterday by United States Fuel Administrator Garfield that conservation must account for 60,000,000 tons of coal this year if the country was not to be faced with another serious fuel shortage next winter. Average conditions throughout the State are such, it is claimed that not more than one-half of the so-called "first one-third deliveries" of coal have been made on orders already in hand by retail dealers. There are localities, however, where the entire one-third has been delivered by some dealers and work has been started on the second one-third deliveries. Reasons assigned range from car and motive power shortage, through transportation congestion, down to lack of necessary production at the mines.

Some of the retail coal dealers in Plainfield say that no more than one-half of their first one-third coal orders has so far been delivered, due primarily to the fact that coal is not running free enough to permit them to increase their deliveries. Many dealers have bettered this average, some of them now being able to start on their second one-third of deliveries. Men in touch with conditions throughout the State gave as their opinion today that one-half of the first one-third would represent the average distribution to date in New Jersey.

Neither State Fuel Administrator Jenkinson nor his secretary, E. Merigan Barradaleh would make any official statement today as to New Jersey distribution. It was pointed out that as revised allotment figures had been furnished recently by the anthracite committee of the fuel administration, together with the fact that dealers' reports are slow in coming in, it would be approximately the first or middle of August before definite distribution figures could be announced as applying to the entire State. The only thing known for a fact is that large numbers of dealers are complaining that they cannot get enough coal to anywhere near fill the orders on hand.

A striking instance of the problem confronting Plainfield coal dealers is reported from the office of the Boice-Runyon Company. This concern is receiving only about 500 tons of coal per month and yet it has orders for 9,000 tons of the first one-third allotment. At this rate, it will be time for the second one-third long before the customers have had their first orders delivered and the situation later will become more complicated than it is now. This same condition applies to practically every dealer in the city in proportionate amounts.

Declares Dealers Must Accept All Coal Orders

In order to know all angles relating to coal needs of the State for the present coal year, State Fuel Administrator Jenkinson has advised all county administrators that retail dealers must accept orders, even though the supply is not equal to filling the demands. It has been brought to his attention, he says, that retail coal dealers in a number of instances are refusing to accept orders from domestic consumers. In this connection Mr. Jenkinson said:

"This probably arises from the fact that the coal dealer feels that he cannot reasonably expect to fill to 100 per cent. any more orders than he now has on his books. This condition may be well founded at the present time, but we are charged with the equitable distribution of coal and this means that everyone is entitled to a fair share of the coal and we cannot perform this duty if we permit the agencies of delivery to determine whether they will or will not accept orders. Orders must be accepted from all and upon this information I can alone base whatever directions we will make as to increases of supply. If the supply is not sufficient to meet 100 per cent. deliveries, the amount that we lack will be evenly split to all consumers and we cannot permit of a situation arising which would enable a certain class of domestic consumers to be preferred and receive 100 per cent. and others to receive little or nothing, principally because they cannot get any one to accept their orders.

Severe Economy To Be Enforced

American people and business must prepare for a severe lesson in economy—diversion of nearly forty per cent. of their earnings to war needs and conversion of non-essential industries to war work.

Today the total earnings of the Nation's workers, manufacturers, retailers and other trades and business amount to $60,000,000. The war this year, Secretary McAdoo estimates, will cost $24,000,000.

Fuel Administration officials announce that a fifty per cent. curtailment in non-war industry is essential to save fuel. This will be made as gradual as possible. Fifty to sixty million tons of coal must be saved this year by enforced curtailment it was declared.

A tentative list of war industries has been prepared for guidance of the War Government in cutting industry. Changes are necessary from time to time. Representatives of industries are being called to Washington at a rapid rate and informed of the cuts they must make. Officials are striving to make the burden as light as possible by distributing it over a long period.

Coal production is dropping off, the decline for last week being 1,000,000 tons below that of the previous week. It is more than 1,000,000 tons below the weekly production necessary if the 600,000,000-ton production is obtained.

The retailers of the country will be urged to deal in non-essentials. Perfodicals would do well to get more out of subscriptions and less out of advertising, officials believe. A number of great retail stories already are contemplating announcement of their policy to deal solely in goods "approved by the War Government" until peace comes.

As an example, it is pointed out that women should refuse to buy georgette crepe waists, which have no value except to excite the admiration of one observing the delicacy. Its costs would buy two ordinary shirt waists, which combined would wear four times as long and release that much money for the war.

Taxes will get 30 per cent. of the Big Fellows' earnings. This will enforce economy in luxuries. The man whose earnings are below $5,000 a year cannot be called upon to turn half his earnings to war needs, but his average would be approximately 20 per cent.

Lehigh Trains May Yet Use The "Penny" Tube

Director General McAdoo is awaiting a report from Regional Director A. H. Smith at New York concerning the advisability of having the Lackawanna and Lehigh Valley Railroad passenger express trains use the Pennsylvania tubes between New Jersey and New York. Last April, when the use of the tubes by the Baltimore and Ohio was authorized by Mr. McAdoo, the question of whether the Lackawanna and Lehigh also should use them received some consideration.

At that time it was deemed best to wait a sufficient time to learn how the arrangement worked with the additional traffic placed upon the tubes by the Baltimore and Ohio. Then it was stated that trains were going through the tubes at the rate of one every minute. Some time ago the director general inquired if the traffic on the tubes had lessened, and if so to such an extent as to permit the Lackawanna and Lehigh to use them. The report in answer to this inquiry will decide whether the Lackawanna and Lehigh will be authorized to use the tubes.

No More Whistling As Troop Trains Pass By

Complying with the desire of military authorities that all possible secrecy shall attend the movement of troop trains, railroads operating through this section of New Jersey have issued orders to train crews, engineers and other employes that no locomotive or railroad shop whistles shall be blown hereafter when such trains are observed to be passing, except for the giving of proper and necessary signals.

Railroads which are observing this rule are the Pennsylvania, Lackawanna, Central of New Jersey, Erie and Lehigh Valley. Military authorities believe that undue prominence is given to the passage of troop trains by contrariatory whistle signals, so far as the railroads are concerned the embargo is now effective. There remain, however, hundreds of factories to which the suggestion applies with equal force, it is contended, and it is felt that if factory owners would voluntarily issue orders for their own plants practically all of their undesirable publicity would be done away with.

Hot Food For Soldiers Now An Assured Fact

Hot food for the American soldiers in the trenches, even though the Germans do block the lines of communication with shell fire for several days at a time, is expected to result through a new "cooker" just adopted by the army.

The nature of the device has not been made public, but the quartermaster's department has experimented with it for months and is satisfied it is capable of keeping food warm and palatable for a greater length of time than heretofore has been the case.

An order already has been placed for several thousand of these cookers and another still larger order is contemplated. It is expected a number will be available for shipment overseas in the near future.

Experts estimate a soldier's fighting capacity is improved 30 per cent. by warm food.

Senate Committee To Visit Local Plant

The sub-committee of the Senate military affairs committee, designated to investigate the aircraft situation, will inspect several New Jersey plants next week, beginning Tuesday. The itinerary, as now made out, calls for visits to the Standard plants at Elizabeth and Plainfield, the Wright-Martin Company, New Brunswick; the Aero-Marine Company at Keyport, and the Witteman-Lewis Aeroplant Company at Newark. The committee also will inspect the Princeton Aviation School and the flying fields at Mineola.

During their stay in the State the committee will be entertained by Senator Frelinghuysen at his estate at Raritan. The committee is composed of Thomas Reed and Hoke Smith, Democrats, and Frelinghuysen and New, Republicans.

British Draft Bill Is Signed In London

The treaty under which Great Britain may draft Americans in Great Britain and the United States may draft British subjects here, was signed in London on June 3, the State Department announced today. Before the treaty becomes operative it must be ratified by Congress and by British parliament.

THE TAX INVESTIGATION AND PERSONAL ASSESSMENTS.

After many long years of bitter recriminations and battle between city and county taxing officials, it looks as if the decade-old discussion as to equality of valuations for tax purposes as between city and suburban property was about to be settled. At least the issues have been brought into the open in a clear, business-like manner, and all that remains now is for the people at large to demand that the present investigation into rural tax valuations shall not languish, slow down and finally die of inertia, but that the matter shall be pursued until definite findings are had.

The county taxing board will meet within a few days and canvass the probable cost of the rigid investigation into county tax valuation which has been demanded by Elizabeth taxpayers and officials who feel Elizabeth in the past has borne more than its just share of taxation. The expense of such investigation need not be exorbitant—but whatever its cost within reason the county freeholders should willingly appropriate the needed money. In fact if they do not, it is highly probable that the matter will be taken out of the county jurisdiction and laid before the State taxing board, so definitely are a number of city taxpayers of the opinion that county values have not been up to the standard on which the city of Elizabeth has been taxed.

It should, however, not require such a threat to convince the freeholders and all county taxing officials that a fair and square open and legitimate investigation of tax values in their districts is the wisest move at the present time. If the charges of undervaluation, which have been freely made for many years, are untrue, the way to show this and end the discussion once and for all is to have such an investigation and give publicity to its findings. If, as charged, the valuations have been disproportionately low in the suburban sections of the county, there is no better time than right now to rectify this unfairness and let experts determine a system of valuation which shall apply to all like property in county as well as city.

Let's not delay the investigation. Let's have it started just as soon as possible. And when we're through let's feel we've done the job fairly and well.

While the investigation matter is being discussed it might not also be amiss to once more take up the eternal problem of personal property assessment. Not only in Plainfield but everywhere in the county this source of revenue has always been a thorne in the side of the tax-payers. The argument is advanced continually that the working man, the value of whose household furnishings can be easily told by a mere glance, is assessed to even more than what his odds and ends of furniture would cost new, while his rich neighbor, revelling in the possession of costly rugs, paintings and bric-a-brac worth many thousands, escapes with only a nominal assessment. The rich man makes no attempt at giving a full valuation and as the assessor knows more about pianos, partial payment dining room suites and couches than he does about works of art, the poor man is bound to get the worst end of the deal.

There always will be an argument over this personal question but one proposition has been advanced which may help to equalize matters. This is the engaging of an expert to take care of the more complex furnishings of the exclusive home. Then and only then will something like real values be arrived at. Elizabeth and other places in the county have advocated such a move and Plainfield is heartily in accord with the idea. The cost of hiring an expert will be off-set many times by the true valuations he will present and the poor man who has been bearing too much of the personal tax will at last be given a square deal.

It is not to be implied that the wealthy citizen deliberately misrepresents values. In many instances some possession that has cost him a lot of money can be designated only as a hobby and hobbies, the courts have ruled, cannot be assessed at full valuation. They are worth only what they would command if put up at a forced sale and what is worth a whole lot to one individual is valueless to another. Because of this the rich man is often accused of shirking his responsibilities but as a matter of fact he is not and the expert will set him aright with the public at the same time he places the personal assessment where it belongs.

There has been very little building in Plainfield during the past season, outside of factory work, which is in a class by itself, consequently, the increased cost of meeting the municipal expenses must be met in another way and what better source can there be than a fair and equable personal assessment.

MR. TUTTLE'S LINE OF THOUGHT.

We note in a speech by ex-Congressman Tuttle delivered at Morristown that he is following out the line of thought of Dr. W. L. Saunders and Speaker Clark, when he says:

"It is absurd on its face to back up President Wilson with a Republican—the people know who are friendly to the President and who are not."

For ourselves we think this is entirely a wrong idea; we prefer the views on the type of candidates for Congress which have been promulgated by two non-partisan societies.

The National Security League gives this as the requirements:

"The conduct of the war and the future of America are dependent, not only upon the election of a war congress that will enact necessary laws, but upon the presence in the National Legislature of men of vision, ability and broad experience, who are the best qualified of our citizenship to solve correctly the great internal and international questions which will come before the next Congress."

Or this from the League for National Unity:

"The voters in their respective districts will doubtless see to it that in addition to being loyal, the candidates are also capable of representing their views on other great issues with which the next Congress will doubtless be called upon to deal. These issues, let us hope, will include the great social and industrial problems following the demobilization of our army after the war as well as the maintenance of the economic standards of our people during the war."

We do not believe that there is a man in either party in the district who more thoroughly meets in all these respects the standard which has thus been set up than our fellow-citizen, Ernest R. Ackerman, since his support of the American war and his loyalty is beyond all question.

A CONUNDRUM FOR OUR READERS.

We are not opposed to Woman Suffrage when it comes by the will of the people in State or Nation but we confess to getting a good deal of amusement out of some of the arguments advanced by the advocates. For example, Mrs. Feickert says regarding Senator Baird's opposition to the Federal amendment, "Since the late Senator Hughes was a suffragist and strongly in favor of the amendment, suffragists think that Senator Baird should feel in honor bound to vote as his predecessor, who was elected and not appointed, would have done."

Senator Hughes was not elected on a suffrage platform for New Jersey's only vote on the question was anti-suffrage, therefore there is no question of honor involved. To assert that when the senatorial cloak of Elijah falls on Elisha that it makes an echo of the heir is rather far fetched. We elect or appoint men to office, not dummies or rubber stamps. If the late Senator Hughes had been so misguided as to have been an "anti," would Mrs. Feickert not have used all the powerful arguments at her command to induce Senator Baird to reverse that position and would she think him dishonorable if he changed?

We pass this conundrum on to our readers.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS

When phonograph records were megaphoned through a big brass horn hitched to a cumbersome supporter?

When juvenile admirers presented their ladyloves with candy mottoes?

When people used to talk about Jules Verne's foolish ideas?

When "Nick" Kelley was the busiest cop on the Plainfield police force?

When the whole town turned out to see a troop train go by and the soldier boys gave away all their hard-tack for souvenirs?

When the passenger coaches were lighted by long rows of kerosene lamps and had a stove at either end to temper winter's chilly blasts?

When Charles MacGeschy poured "hot shot" into Plainfield's officials circles through the editorial columns of the Dunellen Rock, and which he continued to edit from his cell after being lodged in the Middlesex county jail for pertinent remarks?

INK-STINGS SUGGESTED BY A ROCKING-CHAIR BRAVE.

The Public Service platform men who left all North Jersey without trolleys last week have engaged Attorney Carless(of Newark, to represent them in the arbitration proceedings. Wonder if his name got him the job?

Two things are suggested by this giving up of the seashore excursions. How are some of us to get our annual bath and what are the foot-gear merchants to do with their accumulation of shoe boxes?

Not so quick, not so quick. It hasn't hurt you yet so we have arranged for another tag day. This time it will be to meet the expense of fixing the sidewalk on the north side of Front street from Grove street to the Columbus Club property.

From the Elizabeth Journal we learn that that city has a Democratic candidate for the nomination for Congress in the Fifth district in the person of Richard E. Clement, superintendent of schools at the county seat. The gentleman is evidently hoping that history may repeat itself and that as a president of a New Jersey college became first a governor, then the president of the United States, that he can become a congressman from Superintendent of schools. The question is, is a Clement a Wilson? Probably his candidacy may not be pleasing to the politicians of his own party but as the election is not likely to be won by a Democrat in this strongly Republican diistrict, they may let him have the empty honor without a contest.

To provide for the alleged widow who might turn up after his death, a Plainfield man willed her $5—declaring in the instrument that he's a bachelor at the time of his death but he has an eye open for possible widow-claimants. Which might be dubbed super-foresight.

It is said some of the swivel chair-soldiers of Washington do not regard their working surroundings as suitable for their military rank, and they are right about it. The surroundings that would fit most of them would be found in the trenches over in France.

Speaking of retribution, what would you call the mysterious something which threw John Goodwin off a ladder with such force that he had to be placed under the tender care of the white-capped angels of mercy at Muhlenberg Hospital within twenty-four hours after he had been charged in the borough police court with saying that "All Red Cross nurses should be killed because they have no business in going over to the other side?"

Have to hand the laurel to the Italians just now. Daring feats their navy is performing on the Austrian dreadnaughts. And they seem to manage to bring home the bacon. Now, if England would use some of her navy to as practical a purpose on the German dreadnaughts, we'd begin to feel that things were moving in a naval way as well as on land.

Maybe there'll be a whole day this week without a drop of rain, and with it the June atmosphere on which in years past Jersey worked up a reputation.

Somebody got an awful scolding in the Courier-News office the other day. Weeks and weeks after the paper published letters from Albert Bryniarski in which he described his experiences at the French front one of the reporters this week slipped across the startling item that the North Plainfield man had arrived in France. Deal kindly with the culprit, Millie, for these be the days when everybody and everything is at a high tension.

Now comes that "colossal combination of mastadonic marvels, linking the gorgeousness of the Orient with the genius of the Occident and representing an exhaustive enterprise of energy and extravagance." In other words, the Circus.

Should your cherish an ardent desire to visit the show for the xpressed purpose of getting an eye full of bespangled femininity on horse back, don't offer the sleazy old excuse about "not caring for it yourself, but taking it in just because it is a treat for the children." Speak right out, tell the whole world that you are going to plank down your money because you understand the side show has the greatest of all modern freaks, an American citizen who has no kick about the way the Government is running the war.

Home From Convention, Fire Chief Jennings Enthuses Over His First Western Junket

Declaring that he had enjoyed every minute of the time that he was away and enthusiastic over the treatment accorded him at various points of the trip, Fire Chief Andrew D. Jennings returned to duty Sunday night, after a week's absence from headquarters, the first this length since assuming an official position in the service.

The Chief's westward journey was principally for the purpose of attending the annual convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs at Chicago. It was held in the Sherman House, which was headquarters for the 400 fire department heads from all parts of the United States and Canada, who attended the three days' sessions. Much important business was transacted and numerous new phases of fire fighting were discussed. Chief Jennings profited by the talks and demonstration of apparatus as only experts were given places on the speakers' list. Later on he will submit a full report of his observations to the fire board. Official Chicago did not "warm up" to the convention as has been done in previous years, but the lack of attention was probably due to a diversion of interest because of the war. The visiting chiefs did not lack for entertainment, however, as there were plenty of citizens to do the honors for the firemen from every part of the country and they were escorted to numerous points of interest. One of these was Armour & Company's big packing plant where Chief Jennings and others saw the preparation of meats from the slaughtering of cattle and hogs to the finished product for shipment to all parts of the world. The scientific manner in which every part of an animal is used was a source of wonderment to the uninitiated. As Chief Jennings expressed it in reference to the hogs: "They utilize everything but the squeal."

On the way back East, the Plainfield executive was a member of a party of fifteen chiefs who stopped off at Detroit. In that city they were the special guests of the Sewell Wheel Company, which manufactures wheels for fire apparatus. The heads of the concern took the chiefs for a thirty-five mile automobile tour through the Michigan city and afterward entertained them at the Michigan Athletic Club, which has a building four times as large as the Plainfield Elks Club and completely equipped. The next stop was at Buffalo and from there the party journeyed out to Niagara Falls. It was Chief Jennings' first view of the great cataract and he was delighted beyond mere expression of words.

"It was really my first trip out of New Jersey," the Chief remarked yesterday, "and really I never knew there was so much land or water in the world."

Plainfield Man's Will Make Many Queer Provisions

Satisfied as to the legality of the document, Surrogate Charles N. Codding this week admitted to probate the last will and testament of Egbert C. Everett, of this city, who committed suicide last March. The instrument is written in ink on plain note paper and is one of the strangest of the many that have come to the attention of the surrogate office in years.

"My clothing, boots and all personal property I will to my cousin, Devilla Livermore, of Independance, N. Y.," it starts off directly below the testator's full name. "All money, stocks, bonds, mortgages and building and loan shares are to be divided evenly between my two cousins, Devillo and Lewis Livermore," the instrument continues, "with the exception of a house and about an acre of ground at Andover, N. J., which I give to the Seventh-Day Baptist church on condition that I be allotted a plot in the cemetery that is kept in condition afterward."

After directing that $1,000 be set aside for his funeral, the testator provides that the Masonic lodges of Plainfield and Andover shall have $300 apiece in case certain requirements are fulfilled. Each lodge was to have the legacy if 100 members attended his funeral, and the Plainfield order was asked to escort the remains to the railroad station on the way to Andover.

The will is concluded thus:

"In this, my last will and testament, I solemnly declare that I am unmarried and have never been married, but observed cases where claims have been made against estates by alleged marriages, therefore I direct that if any woman shall satisfactorily prove that she is my widow she is to have the sum of $5 and no more."

Mr. Everett lived at Andover most of his life, but came to Plainfield several years ago, his life address being 1130 West Second street. At various times he was employed at the Potter Press Works and the Pond shop at machinist. Last March he became ill and was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment. He became very despondent after entering the institution and one night during the temporary absence of a nurse leaped head foremost from the window of his room on the second floor to the ground below. The fatal leap had barely been taken when the nurse returned. A search was instituted which revealed Everett's lifeless body.

The peculiar will which Surrogate Codding allowed to stand was witnessed by the testator's physician, Dr. C. Howard Pratt, and Stephen M. Staats.

Monthly Report Of Charity Organization

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of trustees of the Charity Organization Society held Tuesday evening at the rooms of the Society in the Babcock building the reports for the month ending May 31st were presented.

The chairmen of the different committees reported a busy month and in comparing the figures with April there were found to be only three fewer cases under care in May than the previous month, 149 as against 152. Of these there were 52 needing material relief, and for them $519 was spent. In spite of the fact that there is more than enough work for everyone, if they could be made to do it, 21 of these families were in the class, "Head of the family non-supporting."

The report of the treasurer was not encouraging. Every housekeeper knows that the dollar of today is worth very much less in the terms of groceries and food than a few years ago or even last year. An illustration was at hand in the comparison of the figures of May, 1917, when it cost $425 to take care of 35 families, as against $519 the corresponding month this year for 37 families.

In the campaign for the Second War Fund of the Red Cross, which has just been brought to such a gratifying and successful close, we have all had the keenest interest and eager desire to participate. Red Cross needs abroad must be supplied, but not by withdrawing support from the needs of charity at home. The resources of our home charities must not be diminished. It is more essential now than ever before to maintain them to their full efficiency. We know that this means larger giving both of service and money, and Plainfield has always shown that she is ready to make whatever sacrifices necessary to take care of her own. The Board of Trustees are therefore confident that the citizens of Plainfield will not allow the Charity Organization Society and the people who are entrusted to its care, to suffer. They are also confident that they will make it possible by their gifts to carry on the work successfully.

The next three months are written down in the books as "lean" from the point of view of "receipts." There are many who read this who are now planning for a summer vacation. Will you not go away with a greater feeling of satisfaction and rest if you leave behind with the treasurer of the Society a donation which will help contribute to the health, happiness and comfort of those less fortunate? It's an experiment worth trying!

Mrs. William Fairbanks, of West Fourth street, has recovered after a severe illness of several weeks.

Citizens' Committee Still In Need Of Funds For Farewells

Last week Mayor Calkins made an appeal for contributions to the fund which, under the direction of the Citizens' Committee, of which J. J. Varley is the efficient chairman, meets the cost of the farewell entertainment given to each group of drafted men going out from Plainfield to fight for liberty. These "send-offs" consist of a simple dinner, with short talks to the boys by the Mayor and well known citizens, and a parade to the depot, escorted by the Home Defense League and the Liberty Band, when the boys entrain the next morning.

"It costs less than two dollars to send each boy off to the war with a feeling in his heart that Plainfield cares. Think what these boys are doing! They are saying goodbye to their loved ones and not one of them but knows that he may be among those who may not return. The Citizens' Committee is doing a noble work, nothing better is being done in Plainfield today, and it should be in abundant funds to finance these farewells without asking for help each time a group of boys is sent off. Mayor Calkins asks everybody to give something. Don't forget that a dollar or less will help. Send the money to William R. Townsend, treasurer, Citizens' Committee, 149 North avenue."

Theda Bara Appears In Play She Wrote

Theda Bara, the eminent William Fox screen star and portrayer of vampire roles, has entered the field of the photo playwright. Her maiden effort, "The Soul of Buddha," a thrilling story of the Java Isles, is being presented at the Plainfield Theatre today and tomorrow, in connection with a combination of photo-plays and vaudeville. This newest William Fox Theda Bara super-production was directed by J. Gordon Edwards, who has surrounded the star with a competent mast and some marvellous scenic sets.

The story as written and portrayed by Miss Bara tells of the adventures of a pretty half caste Javanese whose mother consecrates her to the God Buddha, as a sacred dancing girl. The High Priest secretly loves the girl who has vowed to devote her life to the worship of her God. Tiring of her existence in the Temple she elopes fith an English Army officer, who marries her and takes her to Paris. The High Priest furiously follows her and tells of his presence by the Buddhist death sign marked on the woman's door.

The heroine, tiring of her life, becomes a dancer and is hailed as the sensation of the day. On the opening performance of her Sacred Dance, the High Priest, after marking the "Sign of Death" on her dressing room door, comes to life as a Buddhist idol and kills the dancer who disregards her oath.

Beside the "Soul of Buddha," which was seen yesterday for the first times and created a marked impression on the large audiences, the theatre program offers these vaudeville numbers: Emmett and Letty, in a comedy skit; Lee and Keeler, comediennes, and Alma Sara and Company, in a novelty skit. A new Pathe Weekly will also be shown this afternoon and tonight.

New Process For Appointing Election Boards

Under the terms of the Election Reform law, passed at the last session of the Legislature, the entirely new process in the selection of election officers in New Jersey will be tried out in this State this year. The first step practically in this new system provides that on or before the 1st of next July the different Supreme Court justices who preside over the different county Circuit Courts throughout the State must appoint and certify to the Governor the names of four persons to comprise the new county boards of elections. These appointments are to be made by the Supreme Court justices, together with the judge or judges of the Court of Common Pleas.

The terms of these appointees will begin on September 1 next, and on the same day the terms of the members of the present county boards of election will expire. Governor Edge has already received appointments from a few of the counties, and will probably announce them within a few days. It is understood that they are practically all reappointments. Included in the list is said to be the selections of Justice Swayze and county judges of Hudson for the new board in that county. It is understood that the new board will not be made up of reappointees, however.

Before July 20, under this new election law, the Executive may reject the names of any appointees certified to him by the judges. On or before August first he is required to commission the persons whose names have been certified to him as members of the new county boards of election. If the judges failed to certify satisfactory appointees on or before August 1 the Governor is authorized to make selections himself. In every instance where a board is appointed not more than two members shall be of the same political party.

The first Tuesday in August, which falls on the sixth this year, or within the first ten days of August, these new county board members are to meet in their respective courthouses and organize. It will be the duty of these boards to make up lists of members of the district boards of election throughout the State who handle the election machinery. The election act provides that in the making up of these lists boards of the county boards may have the privilege of appointing school teachers, men or women, where such procedure is deemed advisable.

The election law also carries a provision which compels the draft-ing of citizens of known integrity where the need for honest elections is very great and the difficulty in obtaining proper type election officers is equally great.

Both United States Senator and twelve congressmen are to be elected in New Jersey this fall, and the Election Act provides that on or before August 26 petitions nominating candidates for Congress in districts comprising more than one county shall be filed with the Secretary of State. Nominating petitions for candidates for United States Senator must be filed on or before the same date with the Secretary of State.

THE FIRST RED, WHITE AND BLUE.

'Twas on the fourteenth day of June,
Seventeen seventy-seven,
That the first Star-Spangled Banner
Matched its stars with those of heaven.
It was then ordained by congress
And recognized right then and there,
And then as a loving token
To protect it, has been our share.
It has been in many battles
Floating high through the bitter fray—
And never has it touched the ground
For we have watched it day by day.
Now Betsy Ros might well feel proud
For her idea of long ago.
It was in her humble cottage
She used to sit and sew and sew
Just to make this starry Banner,
To place aright its thirteen bars
And then make its field of blue
So as to place its shining stars,
And then from her attic window
It floated every day and night,
An emblem of sweet liberty.
It went to prove that we were right,
But many years have now gone by.
We are putx to another test,
To protect our starry banner
And the land we love the best.
We seek no land or glory,
But we fight for democracy,
That each and every foreign land
May be independent and free.
Three cheers for our starry emblem,
And three cheers for our U. S. A.
Three more for our fighting Sammies
For success in their bitter fray.

VISITING AT NEWPORT NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Campbell and daughter, Miss Helen, of East Second street, are among the Plainfielders who went to Newport News, Va., this week to see their son, Alexander Campbell, previous to his departing for overseas. The young man went to Camp McClellan as a member of Company K, and was afterwards assigned to an infantry regiment. His division was moved from Camp McClellan about a week ago.

Netherwood Residents' Association Will Hold Another Home Garden Competition

So great was the success attained by the Netherwood Residents' Association in its Home Garden competition, last year, that preparations have been made on a larger scale for a similar contest this season.

The primary reason for stimulating interest in "back yard farms" was to aid in the national food conservation plan and the response on the part of the young people of the Netherwood section last year was gratifying to the extreme. Scores of juveniles took part in the competition, raising garden truck on patches of ground that otherwise would be non-productive and not only did they provide fresh vegetables for the family table but also kept the interest of the gardeners centered on helpful work.

In September of last year, an exhibition of vegetables raised by children was given in the parish house of the Church of the Holy Rest. Many handsome ribbon prizes and cups were awarded to the growers whose products were judged to be the best. Flowers were also exhibited and the exhibition as a whole was a great success. It was attended by scores of adults from all parts of the city and borough who were very agreeably surprised at what had been accomplished by the contestants under the guidance of the Netherwood Association.

At the annual meeting of the N. R. A. a short time ago, it was decided to again carry out the Home Garden idea and the response on the part of the young people in the Netherwood district has been most encouraging. The prize list has been increased and as on the first occasion, awards will be made in an exhibition to be held on September 7. In a circular letter issued yesterday, by the Home Garden Committee of the Residents' Association, the details of the contest are given as follows:

"Following up our initial movement of last year in the matter of Home Gardens, the committee having this matter in hand urges your hearty cooperation, and now lays before you herewith a prospectus of the conditions and prizes offered for the Summer Home Gardens Competition, for the season of 1918. Also for the exhibition of vegetables, fruits and flowers to be held on September 7th.

Attention is called to the several liberal classifications, which carry with them as awards of merit not only cash prizes and special cups, but handsome blue ribbons for first prize, and red ribbons for second prize, all finished in gilt imprint. Also, to the fact that all junior residents of Netherwood, irrespective of whether on Association or not are invited and in fact urged, to make entries, both in the Gardens competition itself, as well as in the exhibition of products in September in the Parish House hall, all without restrictions, or fees, of any kind. Our aim is a patriotic one, and to assist in the general movement throughout our glorious and broad country to increase the food supply, which work is endorsed and urged by the Administration at Washington.

Do not forget that each effort, even though small in this direction, counts and helps the great drive for increased production of food-stuffs at this critical time.

Though you produce but 1 potato, or 1 beet, or 1 carrot, or 1 ear of corn, just so much will you have done your part in the great cause.

DIG, PLANT, HELP WIN THE WAR!

Competitions (Juniors) — The Home Gardens competition is for juniors, i. e., for boys and girls 17 years of age and under, residing in the Netherwood section, and it is divided into two classes, as follows:

Class A—For those who have planted and worked their own gardens strictly alone, and without help, and Class B—For those who have had assistance in this work.

Spading, harrowing and preparing the ground for planting may be done by a helper in either class.

The plot planted need not necessarily be on one's home premises.

Any young person 17 years of age or under in the Netherwood section, may enter and compete.

No entry fee required.

Entry to be made on enclosed card, with Mr. W. A. De Long, secretary, which must be received by him on or before August 1st.

Prizes.

Class A (Unassisted)—For most productive, best ordered, and neatest home garden, in proportion to space cultivated. First prize $3.00 and Association's blue ribbon. Second prize $2.00 and Association's red ribbon.

Class B (Assisted)—For most productive, best ordered, and neatest home garden. First prize $2.00 and Association's blue ribbon. Second prize $1.00 and Association's red ribbon.

At a time selected by the committee of judges (about the middle of August), all gardens entered in this competition will be visited and data taken as to their condition, etc., and decision as to awards will be handed in to the Home Gardens committee who will announce same at the annual exhibition of products from the home gardens to be held at the Parish House Hall, on Saturday, September 7, 1918.

Exhibition of Produce (Juniors).

There will be an exhibition at the Parish House Hall, Netherwood, on Saturday, September 7th, 1918, from 12 a. m. to 6 p. m., of the vegetables grown in the Home Gardens, and cash prizes and ribbons will be offered for same as follows, viz:

No. 1. Class A—Age 17 and under, unassisted, first prize, $1.00; second prize, 50 cents.

No. 2. Class B—Age 17 and under, assisted, first prize, 75 cents; second prize, 25 cents.

For the best each, 7 potatoes, or 7 onions, 7 beets, 7 carrots, 2 heads of cabbage, 3 egg plant, 6 tomatoes, 4 ears of corn or 6 turnips.

(Any other vegetables may be put on exhibition. For these the awards will be the Association's blue and red ribbons.

Add to the above cash and ribbon prizes there will be offered the following:

Special Prizes.

(1) For the first prize winner in Class A—A prize cup presented by George C. Scott, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(2) For the first prize winner in Class B—A prize cup presented by Lewis J. Geary, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(3) For the largest and best collection of assorted vegetables raised and exhibited by one exhibitor in Class A—A prize cup presented by A. C. Wilmerding, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(4) For the largest and best collection of assorted vegetables as above in Class B—A prize cup presented by Charles J. Landon, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(5) For the best home garden (as per conditions), conducted by the youngest competitor—A prize cup presented by William A. De Long, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(6) For the largest collection of vegetables entered at the show by the youngest competitor— prize cup presented by F. L. Medbery, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(7) For the largest and best collection of fruits entered by any resident of Netherwood—A prize cup presented by W. L. Lockwood, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(8) For the largest and best collection of flowers entered by any resident of Netherwood—A prize cup presented by H. Butler, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(9) For the neatest and best ordered home garden (regardless of productiveness)—An assortment of 6 prize dahlia bulbs presented by H. E. Beebe, and the Association's blue ribbon.

(10) For the best exhibit of vegetables made at the show September 7th by a young girl, 17 or under—A No. 75 Shell, (Mecq, Burnier & Company), celebrated Toilet Water, presented by Mrs. Wiedemeyer, and the Association's blue ribbon.

Additional Prizes (Seniors and Juniors.)

For best exhibits of the following, raised and grown by any resident of the Netherwood section on their premises, the Association's handsome blue and red ribbons will be offered, viz:

For the best and second best single exhibit of any one kind of flower, fruit or vegetable or any assortment and collection of various kinds of vegetables, awards will be made for each variety, when up to the standard.

For the best and second best sheaf of wheat, oats or rye or field corn on the stalk or for the most unusual or freak growth of fruit or vegetable—A blue ribbon for first prize and a red ribbon for second (raised by exhibitor, but no restriction as to locality).

All entries for the exhibition at the Parish Hall are to be made the morning of the exhibition at the hall, and such exhibits must be at the Hall and ready to be placed on exhibition by 10 a. m. of the date of the exhibition, or they may be refused by the committee, as there is much work to be done in sorting and numbering before the doors are opened to the public.

The exhibition will be open to the public (from 12 m. to 6 p. m.) and there will be no charge whatsoever for admission. The public is invited to attend and will be welcome. No entries will be received until 9 a. m., or if received, prizes, if won, will be forfeited, and exhibitor prohibited from making entries at future shows.

Special request is made by the Association that all senior residents of Netherwood take part by making an exhibit of some kind, whether of vegetables, or fruits, or flowers. This will help dress up the hall, and assist the Association in this interesting and worthy movement. Blue and red ribbons will be awarded. Any other vegetables not listed here may be put on exhibition, and ribbons will be awarded for same, if in the opinion of the judges exhibits are deemed up to the standard and deserving. Entries to be made with William A. De Long, secretary, 1133 Greenbarn road, Netherwood, who will also answer all requests for further information.

THE COMMITTEE

GETS A COMMISSION.

Inclosed in the thirteen New Jersey men who were given commissions in Washington yesterday was Paul M. Jones, of 139 Leland avenue, this city. He received the rank of first lieutenant in the non-flying division of the aviation corps.

MRS. WILLIAM GROBES.

Mrs. Henrietta Grobes, wife of William Grobes, of 907 Plainfield avenue, died in Muhlenberg Hospital this morning. She was sixty-three years old and leaves several sons.

DIED.

ZIMMER—In this city, June 14, 1918, Walter E., son of Sophie and the late Charles Zimmer, aged 22 years.

Funeral services will be held in St. Mary's church Monday morning, June 17, at 9 o'clock. Interment in the family plot in Hillside cemetery.

Dugout Life Described By Dr. Crist

Although many Plainfielders who have been at the front for some time have described life in the trenches, it remains for Dr. Chalmers L. Crist, of Park avenue, to give a graphic picture of how it feels to be the tenant of a dugout with only a hastily constructed roof to shield the occupants from shot and shell screaming overhead.

In a letter to Thomas M. Muir, of the Record staff, Dr. Crist asserts that being in a dugout at the first line is like standing under a Sixth avenue elevated road with the rattle and roar of trains keeping up continuously instead of at intervals or words to that effect. In picturesque language the Doctor, who has now been at the front eleven months as a member of the dental division of the Medical Corps, also gives some information about the "cooties," those pestiferous denizens of the trenches who make themselves acquainted with every soldier going up front. Incidentally the Doctor also tells how welcome the Record is to him and how much he appreciates its news of the folks back home. This is a portion of the letter, which bears the date of May 2:

"Incidentally, I want to tell you how welcome the Record is, for naturally I often wonder if Park avenue as far as Fifth street is paved or if the City Hall is completed, or if the council decided on the merits of the different motors for the fire department. You see there are so many things of interest which I can find in the Record that I naturally look forward to it. I noticed in the last one I received that you mention me as being in base hospital work. I was at base a hospital for a little over a week upon my arrival here, but requested field work. I have been with the same regiment ever since—where they have been so have I. I like it because you feel as though you are more in it, and I cannot help but feel that it is worthy recognition of our profession, we are used while in the trenches the same as medical officers. I wish I could describe my present dugout, but then, we have lots of rules and regulations; nuf sed. There is a continual tremble of the earth from the heavy guns —to describe them or their noise—well, the best description I can think of is laying beneath the 59th avenue elevated road when a train goes by, like a——. Well, there you are, but you get used to it, Tom, and our men are there, believe me. You have heard of the affectionate little creatures we have an abundance of, the English call them cooties and the French kotos. If I was to tell you what we call them, it wouldn't pass the censor, but they are beauts, so impartial with their affections and no respector of persons or rank.

"Remember me to all. I am well and standing the gaff fine. Will you thank Herman Kling and his family and friends for cigarettes which I received for the men. They were very, very grateful for them. There are so many things I would like to write you, Tom, but then you know the rules of the game.

"Fraternally,
"C. L. C."

Speculation As To Judge Haight's Visit

Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, who has been conferring with some of the Democratic leaders in New Jersey on the problem of a candidate for the United States Senatorship, has refused to discuss a visit that was made to him by Federal Judge Thomas G. Haight at the White House, Friday.

The best information obtainable at Washington is that none of the party chieftains has succeeded in efforts to induce Judge Haight to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in the September primaries. He declined to talk about the subject in any way.

Judge Haight admitted that he was in Washington last Thursday night and Friday, but denied that his trip there was in any way political. He said that he went to Washington to see United States Attorney General Gregory on court matters. That was all the judge would say.

AN APPROACHING WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Briganti, of 336 McDowell street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Briganti, to Joseph DeLisle, of this city. The wedding will take place in St. Mary's church on Sunday afternoon, June 30, at 4 o'clock.

A SHIRT WAIST DANCE.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will conduct a shirt waist dance in Columbus Auditorium on Thursday night, June 20, for the benefit of the K. of C. War Fund. DeLisle's orchestra will furnish music and a committee is arranging several special features.

Trolleymen At Work Perfecting Union Organization

The dispute between the Public Service Railway Company and trolleymen will not be settled for a month and possibly longer, according to indications. In the meantime the latter are continuing the perfecting of their brotherhood.

Tuesday, Henry Carles, attorney for the trolleymen, filed with Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, general counsel of the Public Service, a copy of the demands he submitted the previous day to the War Labor Board. It will be a month at least and possibly more, before the company files its reply. One of the requests is that all men discharged for legitimate union activities before or during the strike be reinstated.

A short mass meeting of the trolleymen was held Tuesday night at the Bay View Wheelmen's hall in Newark for the purpose of choosing the officers of the brotherhood. William Wegner, of Newark, was selected as president; A. Sehn, vice president; Harry Peters, treasurer; Benjamin Forster, of Paterson, financial secretary; Joseph Wheelman, of Newark, recording secretary, and Arthur Appleton, of East Rutherford, organizer. The executive committee will consist of three men from each division represented in the brotherhood. It was decided definitely to limit membership in the organization to trolleymen. Several platform men from Plainfield were in attendance at the meeting as delegates from this district.

Going Away? Well Lug Your Own Trunk

The public must learn to handle its own trunks this summer. A rule forbidding employes to carry a trunk down a flight of stairs was issued this week by the American Express Company. The company explained that because of the war the help on the wagons has been depleted and that a driver cannot carry the trunk down stairs alone.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Shattle, of West Sixth street, are home from a trip to Boston.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. CHARLES L. FAGAN.

Mrs. Mary Helen Fagan, wife of Charles L. Fagan, died yesterday morning at her home at 947 South avenue, following a four months' illness. She was stricken in February shortly after her marriage, and although she underwent several operations in New York for trouble in the head, she failed to secure any relief. She had been in a critical condition most of the time since the trouble became apparent.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when a requiem mass will be offered by Rev. Father Hennessey for the repose of Mrs. Fagan's soul. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Fagan was a native of Flemington, where she was born thirty-three years ago. After her marriage she removed to Plainfield and had been making her home here since that time. Beside her husband, her only near surviving relatives are one sister, Mrs. Charles T. Fisher, of East Second street, and two brothers, Thomas Dunn, of New York, and Daniel Dunn, of Flemington.

WILLIAM S. TERRY.

William S. Terry, a well known West End resident and active in the work at Hope chapel for many years, died Monday noon at his home at 448 West Fourth street. He had been ill for nearly six months with a pulmonary trouble but had been able to be about the house until about a week before the end at which time he was compelled to take to his bed.

The funeral was held at the late residence Wednesday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. D. W. Skelenger, pastor of Hope chapel. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Terry was born in this city forty-five years ago and had always lived here with the exception of a short time at Bound Brook. He was a carpenter by trade but at the time his illness began was engaged as janitor at the Plainfield Public Library. He united with Hope chapel in 1904 and beside being a faithful attendant at church and Sunday-school services, did much for the advancement of the Bible class organized by Senator William N. Runyon and the Young Men's Association, afterward merged with other organizations.

Mr. Terry's only near surviving relatives are his wife, who was Miss Katherine Buckley, of Scotch Plains; one sister, Mrs. Lottie Guest, of this city; and two brothers, George, of Syracuse, and Carman, of Terrill road, Plainfield.

MRS. SARAH HOLE McLEAN.

Mrs. Sarah Hole McLean, widow of Henry McLean, died Monday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Mackey, of East Sixth street. The funeral was held at the residence Wednesday afternoon and was conducted by Rev. B. H. McCoy, pastor of the First Methodist church. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery.

Mrs. McLean was born in Baltimore in 1833 and lived in that city the greater part of her life. She came to Plainfield about thirty-five years ago, for a long time making her home at Liberty street and Orchard place. In recent years, she had been residing with Mrs. Mackey. Beside her daughter, she is survived by one son, James McLean, of Westfield. Another son, Harry McLean, employed for many years at the Scott Press Works, died a short time ago.

MRS. JOHN DEVINE.

Mrs. Mary E. Devine, wife of John Devine, of Arlington avenue, died Sunday morning in Muhlenberg Hospital. She had been ill only a short time, having been admitted to the institution only last Friday. Mrs. Devine was thirty-seven years old and had lived in Plainfield most of her life. Beside her husband, she is survived by six children.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church, Wednesday morning, in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends. Rev. Father Hennessy offered the requiem mass. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Horse Remains Despite Inventions To Take His Place

Substitutions for the horse have so far failed to diminish his number on farms, where he is mostly bred. Since he was first separately counted in the census of 1850, his number has grown from 4,336,719 on farms in that year to 10,357,488 in 1880, to 18,276,920 in 1900, and to 19,833,112 in 1910, and the recent estimate of the United States Department of Agriculture for 1918 makes the number 21,563,000.

The railroad did not verify the common prophecy of the horse's gloomy future nearly a century ago, and many years have elapsed before the heyday of the bicycle arrived with its expected menace to the horse. That machine of pleasure and toil diverted attention from the first real antagonist of the horse, the electric street railway, and this was a formidable one. Street car service could not have been developed by horses to the extent that it has been carried by electricity; yet there was an enormous displacement of horses when they no longer pulled street cars.

It is roughly estimated that 2,000,000 horses would be required to move the street cars now in city service, and that farmers would need to keep a stock of perhaps 3,000,000 horses to produce this supply. Yet, horses kept on increasing.

Apparently the most effective foe of the horse has appeared in the last ten years in the motor vehicle, although its importance in this respect is popularly exaggerated. According to statistics collected by the United States Department of Agriculture, the total registrations of motor cars were 48,000 in 1906, about 500,000 in 1910, over 1,000,000 in 1912, over 2,400,000 in 1915, and 3,512,096 in 1916.

Automobiles do not mostly displace horses, but many are used by men in occupations dependent on other horses or automobiles for personal movement, such as real estate agents, builders and some merchants and manufacturers, and there is also the large public automobile passenger service in cities and, again, the large number of automobiles owned by farmers in place of driving horses. The bulk of the automobile owners, off farms, however, would not be owning horses as the alternative.

With motor trucks and commercial vehicles the case is different. Here is clearly a complete substitution of fuel power for horse-power. It is the opinion that every motor truck on the average displaces three horses. The State records often merge the registration of motor trucks and commercial vehicles with that of automobile, but, to the extent that the separation is made, it is known that 118,682 of the former were registered in 1916. Probably the displacement of horses by motor trucks and commercial vehicles represents a stock on farms of a few million horses, and to these must be added the stock eliminated by the automobile.

Last of all, the farm tractor has appeared, with substantial possibilities but as yet with no perceptible displacement of horses in the country at large.

Unusual and large demands for horses for war purposes have been made since the autumn of 1914. During the ten years preceding, from 19,000 to 40,000 horses were exported annually, while the imports were from 5,000 to 33,000, so that the net exports were no appreciable draft on domestic production. In the first year of the war 289,340 horses were exported, in the second 357,553, and in the third 278,674 horses, and within less than a year the needs of the army of this country have been called for a large number of horses.

Notwithstanding the various forces that have been working against increase of horses on their breeding places, or rather, in common expectation, to reduce their numbers at a strong rate, the fact is that horses on farms increased at the average yearly rate of 183,000 since 1900 and more than that since 1910, or 316,000 per year. Per capita of the population, farm horses tended to increase from 0.19 of 1 horses in 1850 to 0.24 in 1890 and 1900, after which the decline has been to 0.20½ in 1916, or still above 1850. At the same time, however, by means of machinery the farm horse has constantly gained as a producer.

Strange though it may seem, the average price of a horse at the farm, all ages and conditions included, is less than it was four years ago, and even eight years ago.

Backing By Navy Hindenburg Idea

Hindenburg is making a new effort to have the Teuton navies back his land work, according to advice at Washington this week.

He is urging that, regardless of the cost, they attempt to cripple the British seapower. Only by this means, according to the argument he is reported to be making anew, can the Entente be actually crushed.

For with England's navy mistress of the sea land victories are futile and England and the Entente are not crushed, it is pointed out. This is similar to the argument he used during the other drives.

The Navy Department at Washington was advised then of the struggle in Hindenburg was having with Von Capelle. And at that time responsible officials at Washington believed Hindenburg would prevail. They pointed out he did not care about loss of ships, particularly if there was a ghost of a chance of the sea offensive being successful and thus crowning his gory efforts on the land.

That he may prevail eventually was the view of some at Washington today.

The statement of Rear Admiral Cleaves in New York, Sunday night, that Britain had actually been advised a few days ago that the German ships were coming out drew much discussion at Washington early today. That American ships would get a place of honor in warding such a blow as he claimed was believed certain.

New Registrants Now Total 189; Method Of Giving Serial Numbers Not Yet Announced By Goverment

Three more names received by mail during the past week have brought the total number of new registrants in the Plainfield draft district to 189. Chief Clerk Walter H. Freeman has tabulated the list as follows: Native born, 153; naturalized citizens, 4; declarants (those who have secured their first papers), 9; aliens, 23; total, 189.

A further tabulation shows that 158 of the registrants are white and 31 colored. The aliens and declarants have been classified as follows: Austrian aliens, 2; Italian aliens, 11; Italian declarants, 4; Netherlands aliens, 1; English aliens, 1; Irish declarants, 1; Scotch aliens, 1; British West Indies aliens, 2; British West Indies declarants, 1; Turkish declarants, 1; Russian aliens, 3; Russian declarants, 2; South American aliens, 2.

What method will be applied to designate the serial, or order numbers, of the registrants has not yet been made known by the Government. It may be done by drawing, similar to the big draft of last year, and again it may be by designation.

A complete list of the new registrants in alphabetical order is as follows:

OUR PHYSICIAN.

Gone from our midst so early,
Called 'ere his work was done,
But Our Father's Will is best
And they journey one by one.

Out from the pain and sorrow,
Out from this world of sin,
Into the City, Holy
There, his crown to win.

Gone—with hands full of treasures
To lay at the Master's feet.
There, to be with the Saviour.
There, the loved ones to greet.

Gone—to await the coming
Of all, who loved his best.
There, to welcome them home-ward,
When we near the City of Rest.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

John Goodwin, the North Plainfield veteran who fell from a ladder last Saturday and received such a bad shaking up that he had to be taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, was discharged from the institution Wednesday. The accident followed the proceedings in the borough police court Friday night when Goodwin was arraigned before Recorder Hand on a charge of using seditious language, complaint being made by Chief Marshall Weiss after several citizens had reported conversations with the accused man. The veteran, who served in Company H, 11th New Jersey Infantry in the Civil War, was held in $500 bail for the Somerset County Grand Jury. Included among a number of unpatriotic remarks he is alleged to have made are these: "Wilson got us into all this trouble and it will take eighty years for us to recover from it," and "All Red Cross nurses going over will be killed and should be killed because they have no business leaving this country." Goodwin entered a denial of all the alleged remarks with the exception that he had made disparaging references to the English because of the manner in which great Britain had harassed the North during the Civil war. The accused man is seventy-one years old and has been prominent as a speaker at religious meetings.

Among the members of a new petit jury, drawn by Judge Carlton H. Pierce, this week, for the remainder of the present term of the Union County Court includes Fred J. Dixon, Carroll O. Holmes, Joseph Edgar, Jr., and Andrew N. Nelson. Samuel McCauley was drawn from Scotch Plains.

Chief of Police P. S. Kiely has been in Kansas City during the past week attending the annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs, which concludes today. The Plainfielder was listed among the chiefs selected to read the papers on police matters. He will return home next Monday night. While Chief Kiely is away Captain John Flynn is serving as acting chief.

The Supreme Court has refused to grant a rule to show cause why a verdict for $700 given by a jury in Union county to August Kmosko against the Lehigh Valley Railroad for damages to his automobile at Goodman's Crossing on the night of January 24, 1917, should not be set aside. The Railroad Company was represented by McCartner and English. Robert Newton Crane appeared for Kmosko. The Supreme Court held that in arriving at its verdict the Union County Grand Jury acted in accordance with the weight of evidence and that the verdict was not excessive.

Under the auspices of the S. and S. Welfare Club a patriotic dance will be held in Doyle and McCormack's studio on West Front street, tomorrow night. It is expected that a large number of soldiers from Camp Raritan will be in attendance in addition to Plainfield soldier and sailor boys at home on furloughs. All army or navy men in uniform will not be assessed. DeLisle's jazz orchestra will furnish music. The committee of arrangements is composed of Mrs. Rae Arnold, Miss Gertrude Blimm, Miss Mary Wilson and Miss Helen Regan.

Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., has arranged an elaborate program to be given at the Council rooms tonight in observance of flag day. It will include addresses by prominent speakers from Plainfield and other places and musical selections by an orchestra. Friends of the Council are given a cordial invitation to attend.

For the first time in nearly thirty years the New Jersey Central commuter trains are minus the comfortable club cars which served the business men of this city, Bound Brook and Somerville. They were taken off this week and stored in the Dunellen yards, where they will remain until the close of the war. The move was made because of the policy of conservation adopted by Director General McAdoo, when the Government took over the management of the railroads. Two cars were carried on one Plainfield train and one on another. The members of each car club paid an extra amount in addition to the regular fare for the privilege of riding in the exclusive conveyance. The club car idea was originated by the late L. E. Howard, of this city, and for many years the cars were known as the "Howard Clubs."

Reginald McAll, nephew of Dr. McAll, founder of the famous McAll Mission in France, gave an illustrated lecture in the Crescent Avenue church, Wednesday night, which detailed the work of the McAll Mission. The lecture was presented under the title of "Paris and the French in 1918," and included many of Dr. McAll's personal experiences. A large audience was in attendance.

Clifford A. Braider, organist of the First Methodist church, who will go to France this month under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will be given a farewell at the church Sunday night, at which Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, of this city, who recently returned from France, will be one of the speakers.

Pupils of the North Plainfield High School held flag day exercises in the Somerset street school building this morning. Previous to assembling in the chapel a short street parade was held in which all school pupils joined. The program of exercises included addresses by Rev. Dr. R. R. McCoy, of the First Methodist church, and Mayor William L. Smalley, in addition to recitations by the High School members.

Mrs. H. F. Schwalbach, of Scotch Plains, received a letter the past week from her son, Henry Schwalbach, nineteen years old, who was injured in France on March 17, while serving as a member of Company B, 16th Infantry. In a charge he was shot through the back and through his right wrist. He was removed to a base hospital, where he was under treatment at the time of writing but had hopes of an early return to his company.

William Rilling, of North Plainfield, was one of a large number of auto owners arraigned before Commissioner Dill in Newark, Wednesday, for not having proper lights on their machines. The borough man was fined $3.

The city fire department was called out Monday afternoon for a slight fire in a barn at 307 East Second street, belonging to Mateo Mauro, the wholesale fruit dealer. The blaze was in a quantity of bedding stored in the place and was put out by neighbors before the firemen arrived.

The Playground Commission has announced that it will be hardly possible to keep Parker Field open during the summer because of the expense but that the four playgrounds at the Irving, St. Mary's, Franklin and Bryant Schools will be open this summer as usual. Each one will be in charge of a young woman trained in playground work.

Although hampered by wet weather at the opening the Keystone Exposition shows, which are exhibiting at Codington avenue and Somerset street, under the auspices of Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., are now in full swing and drawing big crowds at all performances. The company is one of the best that has ever been seen in this vicinity, carrying only high class attractions and permitting nothing of a distasteful nature to remain on the premises. The shows will remain until tomorrow night, and as an added attraction at the finish there will be several big free attractions, including "The Slide For Life," given between the hours of 7 and 11.

Carlton L. Dunham, Arthur Dayton and Reginald G. Sykes, of this city, have been selected to take the course in military training at the Plattsburg camp this summer. Dunham is a student at Brown University and Dayton is a student of Rutgers College. Upon the completion of the course at Plattsburg, the young men will return to college to await further orders.

State automobile inspectors visited Plainfield, Saturday afternoon, and rounded up seventeen motorists for various offenses, most of them failing to have registration cards. One of the men apprehended was Albert Reese, of Maplewood, a lawyer, who had no driver's license. All the culprits were arraigned before Judge DeMeza, Wednesday morning, and escaped with light fines with the exception of Reese, who was mulcted twenty-five dollars for his infraction of the law principally because he was a lawyer and should have known better. The other cases were disposed of as follows: Joseph Albin, no registration card, fined two dollars; Harold Meakin, speeding, fined three dollars; James Geary, no registration card, two dollars; Walter Lawrence, no registration, two dollars; David Sharpe, no registration card, two dollars; Joseph Howland, no driver's license, two dollars; B. C. Macker, no registration card, two dollars; S. M. Clarke, no registration card, two dollars; James Cassidy, no registration card, two dollars; H. J. Runyon, no registration card, two dollars; Edward Cooper, no registration card, two dollars; James Giles, no driver's license, five dollars; Joseph Van Mater, no registration card, two dollars; Michael Horack, driving motorcycle without driver's license, two dollars; Lacelia Stites, of Paterson, no driver's license, two dollars; William Savor, also of Plainfield, gave a bond of five dollars when taken in custody for having no registration card and failed to appear in court when his name was called. The bond was accordingly forfeited.

Lieut. William G. Herrman, M. R. C., has been ordered to Camp Crane, Allentown, Pa., where several mobile operating units are being mobilized for early service in France. This is the first organization of the kind in our army, an entirely new plan of surgical service on lines originating with Surgeon General Gorgas. Dr. Herrman is with unit No. 1 and will have charge of all X-ray diagnosis. For the past eight months he has been instructor of Roentgenology at the U. S. S. Military School conducting clinics and lecturing at Bellevue, German and Flower Hospitals in New York. Lieut. Herrman is the son of Henry W. Herrman, of West Seventh street.

Edwin Wild, of the Union County Country Club, established a new amateur record for the Plainfield Country Club course Sunday, when he made the eighteen holes in 76. The previous best mark, made by Gardiner White last season, was 71. Wild and Frank O. Reinhart, of this city, who won the intercollegiate title representing Princeton at Garden City in 1903 for his playing partner, had Frank O. Reinhart, of this city.

RESOLUTION.

WHEREAS, Death has removed from among us our friend and fellow associate, J. Hervey Buchanan;

Be It Resolved, That in his death the Plainfield Clinical Society has sustained the loss of a loyal friend, a genial companion and an able and conscientious co-worker; and,

Be it Resolved, That we express our profound sorrow, and tender to his bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in their loss of a kind and affectionate husband, father and son; and,

Be it Further Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Society and that a copy thereof be sent to the sorrowing family and a copy to be published in the Plainfield papers.

JOHN H. CARMEN,
FRANK C. ARD,
FREDERIC J. HUGHES.

RESOLUTION.

At a meeting of the Medical Board of Muhlenberg Hospital held June 7, 1918, the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, Death has taken from us our friend and fellow practitioner, J. Hervey Buchanan;

Therefore, be it Resolved, That the Medical Board of Muhlenberg Hospital expresses its sorrow at his loss and its deep appreciation of his services for the hospital and community, and most of all for his kindly fellowship for over twenty years;

Be it also Resolved, That we express to the family of the deceased our deepest sympathy for the loss of a kind and loving son, husband and father.

Lastly, it is Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Board, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and copies furnished to the Plainfield papers for publication.

DR. A. F. VAN HORN,
DR. D. C. ADAMS,
DR. M. H. ANTHONY,
Committee.

Plainfield, N. J., June 7, 1918.

At a special meeting of the Plainfield Medical Association held June 7, 1918, the following action was taken:

WHEREAS, Death has removed from our midst our fellow member, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, we, the members of the Plainfield Medical Association, take this opportunity of expressing our warm appreciation of his virtues, of his professional ability and of our sense of loss in his death.

We also take this opportunity of extending to his bereaved family our heartiest sympathy in their sorrow. It was ordered that a copy of this action be recorded in the minutes of the above Association, that it be published in the newspapers of Plainfield, and that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased.

For the Plainfield Medical Association.

Nation-Wide "Dry" Law Now Probable

Nation-wide prohibition for the duration of the war approached rapidly yesterday.

With a straight prohibition measure before the Senate, advocates of the cause were confident today that they can carry the Senate when the amendment to the Agricultural Emergency Appropriation bill comes up for a vote.

Prohibition members of the Senate believe that the Jones amendment which prohibits whiskey sales and use and the making of beers and light wines thirty days after the passage of the act, has set aside the opposition to the Randall prohibition which President Wilson and Food Administrator Hoover have voiced. The executive opposition to the Randall amendment was based on the fact that it would stop the manufacture of liquors, but would leave a considerable amount of whiskey in bond to be consumed and this would place the nation on a whiskey drinking basis.

Heavy "Casualties" Listed In Sham Battle Of Home Defenders' Manouvres In Big County Meet

Nearly half the Home Guard of Union county was in the "casualty list" or "killed or wounded" following the "double engagement" of the advance and reserve guards of the Blues with the attacking forces of the Whites in the sham battle at Glenside Park Sunday afternoon. The action, which came as a climax to a day of excellent maneuvering and drilling by most of the county companies, completely fulfilled its purpose by giving practically every member and unit a real taste of the scrap, and the organizers and umpires of the meet were unanimous in their praise of the way in which the men and officers carried through their respective operation in the war game.

The battle was realistic in the extreme. The sealthy marches, sudden halts on the steep dusty roads leading up the mountainside, reports rushed in from the advance parties deploying on either side of the road in the woods and underbrush and the hurried consultations of the division commanders, maked the advance of the Blues. It was known from which general direction the Whites would attack, but there was the possibility that they might attack in force at one or more points along a three or four-mile road.

The greatest caution was observed, only the muffled tread of the men and the subdued signals of the commanders being audible. Gradually the reserve battalion neared the crest of the mountain where the was known to be a dangerous clearing at the intersection of two roads. Scouts brought in the information that all was quiet and the advance proceeded and turned the corner into Summit Lane, the road leading along the top of the hill.

The force had advanced hardly a thousand paces when suddenly a heavy fire was opened upon them from what appeared to be a large force of the Whites concealed on the further side of the clearing on the left hand side of the road not 200 yards distant. At once the commands of the officers rang out and the men dropped under the scant cover at the side of the road. Immediately the orders were issued to drive the Whites out of their ambush and the lieutenants passed the word along to their men. Several companies were to rush the center directly across the opening, while one party skirted the edge of the field and another went down the road at double quick time to carry out a flanking action on the left.

The whole thing happened in less than a minute and the Blues were up and over the embankment at the side of the road preparing for the center rush. Instantly a second withering fire broke out from the Whites and the forces exposed fell to prone positions in the tall grass and returned the volleys. Short rushes were made along the whole line, the companies forming a continuous irregularly advancing chain. As the distances between the opposing forces were diminished the fire increased, the rushes became longer, and with wild yells the final charge was made across a large patch of plowed and slippery ground, and the Whites were dislodged and driven into the woods. Here the engagement took on an even more sanguinary aspect, companies rushing and firing at close quarters. And just at this moment the Blues, who had been closing in from either side opened up and raked the Whites from one end to the other. Slowly the Whites were driven farther into the woods and the umpires called a halt. When the smoke finally cleared away the living and the "dead" and "wounded" all got together for a joint raid on the quartermaster's truck for water.

The engagement of the advance Blues with the Whites a mile or more further along the road occurred at the same time, both armies handling their men in the best possible style. In this action, however, not all of the Blues participated, as it was necessary for a proper handling of the situation that they should reach the intersection of Summit Lane and Mountainside road to intercept the main force of the Whites, which was theoretically approaching from the west. The same tense situations were experienced in this encounter also and the attack of the Whites came with the same surprise as in the former engagement. After a brief rest both parties returned to the starting point, where the officers' headquarters had been established on the Ackerman property near the Westfield Golf Club.

The company and battalion drills in the morning were the source of the greatest satisfaction to the commanders, as the program was carried out by companies from all parts of the county which had never been together before, practically without a hitch. The men responded to their orders with a uniformity and promptness that showed the faithful training that men and officers alike had gone through during the past winter.

Seen from the hills of the golf course of the Westfield Golf Club, the drill was most entertaining. The shifting formations, the marches from one end to the other of the meadow, which made an ideal parade ground, standards flying at the heads of the various columns, made a most appealing picture. Beneath a large tree in the center of the parade grounds the Elizabeth Home Guard Band kept the marchers enlivened all the time with their playing. Later, after an hour's work the battalion broke up and the camp fires were lighted at the company mess quarters, which were scattered in many parts of the field in the shady spots.

The weather could not have been more ideal, a clear sky and a cool breeze lasting all day.

The following officials were in charge: Chairman, Commissioner E. A. Knapp; adjutant, Captain Fred. E. Pierce; quartermaster, Lieutenant E. K. Tucker; chief umpire, Major C. S. Donavin; assistant umpires, Lieutenants H. S. Kimball, Alfred Halsey and Sergeant Major Irwin. First Battalion—Captain John S. Strouse, commanding, Lieutenant H. W. Gardiner, adjutant. Second Battalion—Captain H. B. Wright, commanding, Lieutenant G. E. Grundy, adjutant. Third Battalion—Captain Calhoun Cragin, commanding, Lieutenant Hammitt, adjutant. Lieutenant Reiner, M. D., Home Guard surgeon, and sergeant bugler, Hedden.

First Battalion—Fanwood Company, fifty-six men, Captain Strouse; Company A, Elizabeth, fifty-eight men, Captain Fallon; Company B, Elizabeth, sixty-seven men, Captain Leonard.

Second Battalion—Westfield Company, forty-eight men, Captain Wright; Roselle Park Company, twenty-five men, Captain Wahl; Hillside Company, forty-two men, Captain De Ronde; Company C, Elizabeth, sixty-one men, Captain Milligan.

Third Battalion—Summit Company, forty-one men, Captain Cragin; Plainfield Company, ninety-four men, Captain Baker; Scotch Plains Company, forty men, Captain Linsey.

Before the regimental review in the afternoon the Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace Epispocal church, this city, chaplain of the Plainfield company, delivered a brief address. He spoke of the battlefields of Picardy and throughout Europe in this great struggle and emphasized the duty that remains for those at home. He said that the State and the county should be proud of the Union county Home Guard organization, adding that he "should imagine that from the showing they made they should certainly be able to take care of any duties and responsibilities which might devolve upon them in case of attack by the Germans." The chaplain then led the men in prayer, the regiment later joining in the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Ringling's Circus Coming Next Week

From the time the companies of big and little telephants, dressed as Red Cross nurses and surgeons, enter the ring until the wonderful riding dog Toque performs his equestian feats there is scarcely a moment when Ringling Brothers' circus program is not enlivened with one or more remarkable animal acts.

The Fillis horses, including the marvel equine "Ballarini," are the most wonderful performers ever brought to American. There are three groups of seals and sea lions who play at basketball, ride horses, give concerts on fourteen different musical instruments and perform feats of juggling which surpass human attainments. There are five herds of trained elephants, including the famous nursery troupe of pickanniny pachyderms. These ponderous fellows dance the latest steps, give an imitation of minstrel and jazz bands, operate and talk over telephones, play at cards and billiards and walk rope. There are a dozen bands of beautiful trained horses and knowing ponies. These are seen in a progression of dances extending from the quadrille to the modern waltz and "grape vine." Other troupes, reared upon their hind legs, march to the rat-a-tat-tat of drums like soldiers, jump through great barrels or, standing in them, are whisked out of the rings. Still others of snow-white coats, pose as silent as marble statues in representations of great paintings.

Added to these are trick mules, pigs, goats, cats, geese and dogs that pose in living pictures or ride horseback. There is a troupe of every wild and domestic animal known to the trainer's art, and each has its clown.

Ringling Brothers are to exhibit here Tuesday, June 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Altman, of West Third street, have gone to Detroit, Mich., to spend several weeks with relatives.

City Council Soon To Lose L. R. Fort As A Member

Popular Second Warder's Acceptance Of Commission In Chief Of Staff's Office Will Take Him Out Of The City

Leslie R. Fort, councilman at large from the Second ward, has been commissioned in the United States Army and will report in Washington, Monday, to Major Gen. Dahl, Several men were considered at the time Mr. Suffern was selected and Mr. Fort's successor will undoubtedly be chosen from one of these.

Mr. Fort first came to Plainfield seven years ago, when the Daily Press Publishing Company purchased the Daily Press from the late A. L. Force. He was made managing editor of the publication and served in this capacity until October, 1916, at which time the paper was sold to other interests. Shortly afterward Mr. Fort was made general sales manager for the Automatic Typewriter Company of New York, but a return of the old newspaper instinct induced him to give up this position to become associated with Ivy L. Lee, one of the largest publicity bureaus in America, it handles all the newspaper work for the Standard Oil Company, the Rockefeller interests, the American Red Cross and other important American institutions.

The loss of Mr. Fort will be great. He felt in Plainfield, aside from his energies as a councilman. He has been connected with many local organizations and has been a devoted worker in practically everyone of them. He has been particularly interested in the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, the Business Men's Association, the Home Defense League, the War Workers Relief Committee and the Red Cross program. Soon after coming to this city, he took possession of a fine new home on Cedarbrook road and this he will maintain for the present, although it is possible that Mrs. Fort and the children will move to Washington later on.

The army has had its calling for Mr. Fort even before the present emergency and he has followed the State militia closely for a number of years, serving as newspaper correspondent for a number of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey dailies during several encampments at Sea Girt.

This makes the third instance in which the Common Council has lost a Second ward representative during the last year. Councilman Charles Loizeaux was drafted last fall and is now a captain in the ordnance department, and Councilman John Dahl resigned to take charge of the city hall work after being elected to fill the unexpired term of Councilman Loizeaux.

It is quite probable that Mr. Fort will tender his resignation as a member of the Council at an early date as his Government duties will keep him in Washington for the present, practically all the time. He may be able to get home for brief periods but at no time will these be definite enough to allow him to carry on his councilmanic work. The resignation will be followed by the same procedure as was adopted when Philip Suffern was appointed to the City Fathers' vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Dahl. Several men were considered and Mr. Fort's successor will undoubtedly be chosen from one of these.

Declaring Plaintiff To Be Enemy Alien Asks Judge To Throw Case Out Of Court

Charging that the plaintiff was an alien enemy, and at present under indictment for violation of the neutrality laws previous to the declaration of war, former Judge Butler, of Jersey City, startled the habitues of the Plainfield District Court, Wednesday, by asking Judge Crane to dismiss the suit brought by George Phillip Neider, of Fanwood, against William H. Daycock, Jr., and Estelle B. Daycock, for sixty dollars rent money owing Neider's daughter, Miss Georgette Neider.

In his declaration, Judge Butler asserted that Neider, who was acting as agent for his daughter, was not entitled to any rights and privileges because of being a citizen of a country with which America was at war. The plaintiff denied this, however, replying heatedly that he had been naturalized in Jersey City in 1893. He could not remember the name of the official who had received his oath of allegiance but asserted that he could produce his papers, and Judge Crane accordingly denied Judge Butler's petition for dismissal pending the introduction of the confirming documents.

Miss Neider is the owner of a house at Fanwood which was rented by the Daycocks for a specified term, but after remaining for a short time, moved to Westfield, where they now reside. Mr. Neider, acting as agent, brought suit to recover a month's rent placed at sixty dollars. When the matter was called in the District Court, Wednesday afternoon, it was then that the Jersey City lawyer made the statement that Neider should be given no rights in court.

When Judge Crane permitted the case to go on, Neider was placed on the stand and the session was more or less devoted to a heated cross-examination between the defendant's attorney and the plaintiff. It was brought out by Judge Butler that two years ago, America at that time being a neutral nation, Neider had been arrested on a charge of smuggling rubber into Germany. Secret Service men, he declared, had examined cases of coffee consigned to Germany by Leon P. Malmette, a New York exporter who lives in Fanwood, and found that crude rubber was hidden in the various cases. It was claimed that Neider had secretly placed the rubber in the shipment without Malmette's knowledge and Neider was arrested on a charge of neutrality violation. He is at present under indictment, Judge Butler stated, and is shortly to be brought to trial.

Miss Neider, an attractive blonde, whose features were set off by a big picture hat, was on the stand for some time but was unable to throw much light on the point in dispute. She had turned her property over to her father, she said, and one particular clause in the lease with the Daycocks was inserted without her knowledge. Neider was represented by Attorney Martin B. Stutsman, of this city.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Judge Crane stated that he would reserve decision, but in the meantime wanted the lawyers on both sides to submit briefs and instructed Neider to produce the naturalization papers that would entitle him to citizenship rights.

DAVID POND TO WED MISS RUTH TITUS.

Announcement has been made of the approaching wedding of Miss Ruth Titus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Titus, of Madison avenue, to David Pond, formerly of this city, but now of Pomphrett, Conn. The ceremony will take place in Grace church, this city, on Saturday afternoon, June 29.

Mr. Pond is the son of the late David Pond, founder of the Pond Machine Tool Works. He was graduated from the Plainfield High School and later from Princeton College. He is now engaged in munition work at Pomphrett.

First Class Private John J. Curran, of Arlington avenue, who is attached to Troop B, 312th Cavalry, stationed at Fort Myer, Virginia, was in town over the past week-end on forty-eight hours' leave of absence. His reports splendid treatment at Fort Myer, which is located just outside of Washington, and declares that the cavalry is one of the best divisions of the service.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS TO ATTEND CHURCH SERVICE.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Unity Lodge, No. 102, and Crescent Company, Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, will hold a memorial service at Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield, next Sunday night, at which a special sermon will be preached by Rev. C. Gillespie. The members of the three organizations, together with delegations from Lodge of the Castle at Somerville and Porichester Lodge, of Portchester, N. Y., will assemble at Unity Lodge rooms, 213 West Front street, at 7 o'clock, and proceed to the church in a body.

A patriotic meeting of all the lodges in district No. 20, which includes Plainfield, will be held at Bound Brook on Tuesday night, July 2.

TWO MORE RECRUITS.

Corporal E. D. Peck, in charge of the local recruiting office, announces two recruits secured this week. They are Daniel W. Gebhardt, Somerville, in the medical corps, of the regular army, and Michael M. Cass, 449 West Third street, in the field artillery.

Report Asserts L. Kornfield Buys Commercial Mills

It was reported today that L. Kornfield, proprietor of Kornfield's bakery, had purchased from Otis Corbett the Commercial Mills, located at South Second street and Muhlenberg place.

None of the parties mentioned in the deal would confirm the report today, but it was stated that the change would take place July 1, and that Mr. Kornfield would operate the mill in connection with his extensive bakery business.

The Commercial Mills is one of the oldest concerns of the kind in the city. They were founded nearly fifty years ago by the late A. L. Cadmus and conducted by him until their sale a few years ago to Mr. Corbett.

Mr. Kornfield purchased the bakery business established by Jacob Voshi, and has rapidly been building up the trade. The ship is located in Prieden's alley but a few months ago Mr. Kornfield acquired the Martin Grage propery on Park avenue and may eventually remove his big plant to those premises.

Send-Offs Arranded For Selectives From City And Borough

The fourteen selective men designated to go to Camp Dix from the Plainfield district next Monday will be given a reception in the Masonic banquet rooms in the Babcock building tomorrow night. Supper will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the P. O. S. of A. and speeches will be made by city officials and others. When the men leave headquarters Monday morning for the 9:38 train, the customary parade will be held headed by a band.

These are the fourteen men named in the contingent:

Walter I. Firstbrook, George G. Dow, Charles H. Clark, Dominick Damara, Alex Smith, Meyer Latman, Leslie N. Leland, Lester H. Dix, Camillo Quattrochi, Vincent Boclaro, Frank W. Wadsworth, Harold Hargen, Frank Jaeger, Stephen Tony.

The borough selectives will be given a farewell demonstration Debele's Hall, arranged by Mayor Smalley and the North Plainfield Home Defense League. The borough young men who are to go to Camp Dix are Roy Wood, Edward R. Scarlett, Arthur C. Dimlick, George T. Spencer, Norman McClellan, Edward Jacker, Edward C. Martus, Richard Schrader, Leon R. Sharp, Harry F. Martin, Heman A. Meyer, Henry E. Small and Frank Grauss.

Here's A Chance To Make Money And Be A Movie "Star"

All the local Mary Pickfords and Theda Baras, as well as the amateur Bill Harts and Francis X. Bushmans of Plainfield, will have their chance to qualify for a professional career as movie stars at the Plainfield Theatre all of next week. "Making Movie Stars" is the title of the attraction that Manager Shannon has booked for this occasion and the show comes direct from the New York houses which welcomed the experiment with open arms and much acclaim. When the curtain ascends on "Making Movie Stars" at the Plainfield Theatre next week, a real movie studio, complete in every detail, will be revealed. Only those from Plainfield who aspire to a movie career, or, we might say, amateur movie stars, will appear before the camera. A real photoplay will be taken in full view of the audience and subsequently revealed on the screen. A famous motion picture director will coach the local talent at every performance and an entirely new scene of an actual serial photoplay is taken every day. The main episode in which the four players is done on Saturday night and in the course of another week, after the subject is completed, the play, which is called "Molly and Her Suitors" is shown. Incidentally, when "Making Movie Stars" is done for the local amateurs next week, the cameraman will also "take" the audience. In this way, everybody will have a chance to get in on the picture. It is not really necessary to have real serious ambition to take up a movie career, to win a part in "Making Movie Stars." oYu can enter just for the fun of the thing and take part as one of the "crowd." On the other hand, if your features make a good movie face and you possess some degree of talent it will reveal itself before the camera, and you never can tell, before next week rolls by, you may win a place for yourself as a real professional movie actor or actress with any one of a half dozen big motion picture concerns which have their eye on this project. Quite a number of talented amateurs, who are now professionals, look back on A. J. Duffy's "Making Movie Stars" as the means of their start.

Senator Ackerman Tells Of Progress In Stamp Campaign

Ernest R. Ackerman, municipal chairman of the Thrift Stamp campaign, was asked by a representative of the Record concerning the progress of the drive. He said:

"Old Glory stands today for the experience, for the matured purpose of a great democracy resolved to neither lower its flag, nor its ideals at the challenge of autocratic arrogance and war lust. Sacrifice—practical service by personal care, thoughtfulness and saving in small ways—everybody can help in his home sector the same as the boys 'Over There' are willing to give to the utmost to protect Old Glory in his military sector. We must raise the Stars and Stripes these days as they were raised when the nation was young and the flag was new—with the grip of every American hand and heart at the halyards. The summons is a call to service of some kind. In numerous cases it involves nothing more than self denial, in the case of Thrift Stamps there is no sacrifice. It is a fine investment backed by the finest Government in the world. We must gain a complete and final physical triumph and our armies under the Stars and Stripes must have energetic support at home on the part of the people in every walk in life, and this support, this effort must be as self sacrificing and as determined as that of any soldier or sailor at the front. Any child who saves twenty-five pennies for a Thrift Stamp is faithfully doing its part to sustain the soldier boys at the front, and every man and woman in our community should follow that example to the utmost in the way of saving, in the way of sacrifice, and buy at least three Thrift Stamps a week for the balance of the year. The boys of girls, the men and women of Plainfield have an unusual opportunity to exhibit their useful patriotic service in behalf of their country at the present time and until the end of the year in working for the sale of Thrift Stamps."

Mr. Ackerman continued: "It may not be realized by all those who read these lines that the submarine had its initial start in Union county and that Plainfield people, both for the working out of the patent situation and for supplying the compressed air had much to do with making the first submarine boat a success. While it is on account of the submarine in the hands of a foreign power that this country is being subjected to the losses of tonnage and supplies, at the same time it is a curious coincidence that another Union county man, a resident of Westfield proposed a means whereby a large sum of money could be raised to provide the Government with funds whereby, if utilized therefore, the submarine could be defeated. Therefore it seems to me that an unusual pleasure should be exhibited in all those who are so fortunate as to have some time at their disposal, to vigorously prosecute the selling of War Savings Stamps and War Saving Certificates so that the Government may be able to receive by the end of the year, the proper proportion that Plainfield should give toward the two billions of dollars which the Government, from this method of contribution, expects to obtain. Our quota for Plainfield is on a basis of about $20 per inhabitant for the year. This at first sight, when we consider all the demands made upon us in the shape of Liberty Loans, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Y. M. H. A., and other organizations, is a rather large sum, but if we analyze it we find that if we had contributed the sum of a nickel a day from the beginning of January to the end of next December we would, every one, have contributed almost the exact amount necessary. Now we were rather late in starting but still, even with that handicap, the difficulty can be overcome."

How about the coming drive from June 21st to June 28th, questioned the correspondent? Mr. Ackerman replied: "We are going to canvass Plainfield thoroughly and I am sure every person of subscription on this proposition will equal if not excel all of Plainfield's previous records. Every boy and girl in the city can help. We must all get together and the simplest way it seems to me is for each boy and girl to speak to say two persons during the week asking those to whom they speak to in turn get three or five friends, in the form of a chain letter, but not in a written form, performing the work of this drive verbally rather than by writing. It is a good thing, everybody should talk about the Thrift Stamp is well named. What can be better than thrift? If from this war we inculcate the personal habit of saving certainly that will be a great gain to the community. The idea of placing in the young mind the thought of saving something for the future, something for a rainy day or old age, what higher effort could there be than that taken together with the fact that every dollar saved is helping the boys 'Over There.' It will certainly cheer them and throw consternation in the camp of our enemies if they know that everyone is striving to make victory absolutely sure."

Mr. Ackerman concluded. "The American man, woman or child—who really loves the flag is the American who is making sacrifices for it, who by saving or service is giving some portion of his or her strength towards holding it aloft and secure in the face of the, most terrible and imminent danger that has ever menaced it. Let us be up and doing for we are going to achieve a glorious victory for humanity and justice beyond the shadow of a doubt."

Annual Festival At Watchung Ave. Church

Plans have been completed by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church for the annual ice cream festival and band concert. It will take place on the lawn surrounding the church should the weather be clear on Thursday, July 11, afternoon and evening. In the event of its being rainy or stormy the affair will take place indoors.

A musical program will be rendered by the Liberty Band and other features are being provided. In past years this festival and concert have been highly successful but the coming one should draw a record attendance as the proceeds are to be divided between the Red Cross and the church fund.

ELKS' SHIRT WAIST DANCE.

Plainfield Lodge of Elks will give a shirt waist dance in the Watchung avenue club house on Thursday night, June 27. Harry Wetton's orchestra will furnish the music. Last night the Elks' gave a reception and dance to the women friends who assisted in making the recent Red Cross benefit dance a great success.

White-Winged Dove Now Flutters Over City Hall

Symbolic Bird Returns With Union Men To Complete Structure After Trades Council Removes Long Standing Blacklist--Big Force Soon To Be At Work Rushing Building To Completion

Peace once more reigns at the City Hall. After standing as a blacklisted building and being held up in construction for nearly nine months, the Plainfield Trades Council has declared the building fair and union men were put to work on it yesterday. The force of non-union men has been ousted and the various contractors will have their whole gangs back on the job in a very few days. This means that the hall will soon be a reality and that after it is occupied no labor organization stigma will rest upon it.

The clearing of the building from the black-list has been underway for several weeks, negotiations having been conducted by representatives of the opposing factions. These were Mayor Leighton Calkins and the City Hall committee on one side and the Trades Council on the other. The original trouble began in October last when a walking delegate for the International Plasterers' Union declared a strike following the allegation on the part of the Monahan Stone Company of Newark that it should be paid $13,000 for stone which it furnished the P. F. Kenny Company, the defaulting general contractors. At that time the Plainfield Trades Council took no part in the proceedings, stating that the plasterers were not affiliated with its organization, and they would remain neutral.

It was contended by the city officials, however, that the Trades Council was interfering with the union men they placed at work on the structure as a result Mayor Calkins excluded William Lunger, business agent for the Trades Council, from entering the hall. This led to the general strike which has since practically tied up the work from January 25.

With the announcement that peace had been declared yesterday, it became known that the Trades Council had accepted Mayor Calkins' explanation of why he had excluded Business Agent Lunger and just what was meant in the statements contained in two letters which he sent the Trades Council at the time the argument was on. The Trades Council sent back an answer to Mayor Calkins on June 17, which accepted his statement and asserted that the building had been made a fair job.

The two letters passing between the Trades Council and Mayor Calkins give a full idea as to the original misunderstanding in January and the subsequent explanations. The letter of the Trades Council which reviewed the proceedings is as follows:

June 17, 1918.

To the Honorable Leighton Calkins,
Mayor of the City of Plainfield.

Dear Sir:

The Plainfield Building Trades Council under date of January 25, 1918, issued an open letter relative to the labor conditions at the City Hall building in which the Council declared

"the City Hall building unfair to organized labor until such times as Business Agent W. H. Langer either by letter to our Council or through the public press will be granted permission to enter the City Hall building to attend to the duties of his office," he having theretofore been excluded by your order, your said order and the action taken thereunder being the direct cause of the building being declared unfair.

Thereafter, on February 1, 1918, you sent our Council a letter in which you said,

"I thing I can safely say in advance for the Building Committee and for the Common Council, that if your organization can give us satisfactory guarantees that we shall encounter no interference in the future at the instance of any agent of yours, in our employment of union labor, we shall be willing again to open our doors to your representatives as we always have done until recently, that you may satisfy yourselves at all times that we are living up to our promises to employ no non-union labor."

This letter we felt did not meet with the conditions stated in our letter of January 25, as it had a very big string attached to it.

On February 13, 1918, you wrote another letter to our Council in which you said,

"Accordingly I beg to advise that the exclusion of your business is hereby revoked without waiting to receive further assurances from you."

Our Council has always understood that you intended the two letters to be taken together and that the string attached to the first ran through the second. We are now informed that you consider that our Council has not kept the word of our letter of January 25, as you have revoked the exclusion of our business agent. If you meant that your letter of February 13 was to be taken as unconditionally revoking the exclusion of our business agent we are very glad to accept such interpretation, and on that basis to declare the City Hall building fair to organized labor.

We regret that we did not interpret your letter as we now understand you intended, and trust that our relations in the future may be pleasant.

Respectfully yours,
Plainfield Building Trades Council.
H. H. COREY, President.
J. CORDOVA, Secretary.

To this letter Mayor Calkins replied as follows:

June 18, 1918.

Plainfield Building Trades Council,
H. H. Corey, President; J. Cordova, Secretary,
Plainfield, N. J.

Dear Sirs:

I was pleased to receive your letter of the 17th inst. in reply to which, I would say that your business agent was excluded from the new municipal building for the reasons given in my letter to you of February 1, 1918, in which as you correctly state I said that we would grant him access to the building again if your organization would give satisfactory guarantees that we would encounter no interference in the future from any agent of yours.

Not hearing from you in reply to that letter I wrote you again on February 13, revoking the order excluding your business agent without waiting to receive the assurances I had asked you to give. I wished to show in a practical way our desire for co-operation in the future and was satisfied that I would not need to require guarantees from you in order to have it, and that if the order were revoked there would be no further trouble.

You are therefore correct in understanding that my letter of February 13th was an unconditional revocation of the order excluding your business agent from the premises.

While the building is now rapidly nearing completion, it will be gratifyx to us to have you facilitate the employment of home talent on the balance of the work before we have always hoped to associate with this municipal project the active interest of our own people.

Permit me to reciprocate the courteous paragraph with which you conclude your letter and to remain.

Yours faithfully,
LEIGHTON CALKINS.

Herman Kling Enters Army Service Next Week

Herman Kling, of Sandford avenue, who enlisted in the engineering corps last winter, but who was afterward rejected because of a slight physical defect, was this week accepted for service and will leave next Monday for Camp Pike, Little Rock, Arkansas. He will be made a member of a new engineering unit now in process of formation and destined for early transportation overseas.

At the time of his first application, Mr. Kling met all the qualifications but later the slight physical trouble became apparent. He was accordingly placed on the waiting list in order to permit him to undergo an operation. This he did at a New York hospital and a second examination last week showed that he had overcome the trouble.

Mr. Kling is especially adapted for the engineers corps as he has had ten years' experience in engineering work. He has been in the office of City Engineer Gavett for nearly ten years and for a long time has been in charge of new street work. He is a member of Plainfield Lodge of Elks and has been very active in this organization especially as a member of the dance committee. He was one of the promoters of the Elks' Red Cross dance at the High School auditorium on Decoration Day eve, which netted $440 for the local Red Cross chapter.

Rev. F. J. Hubach, of West Seventh street, this city, has been in Columbus, Ohio, during the past week, attending the annual conference of the district superintendents of the Methodist church.

Parsons-Finch Wedding Takes Place Tomorrow

Grace Episcopal church in this city will be the scene of a brilliant wedding, tomorrow afternoon, which will unite one of Plainfield's most socially prominent families to one of New York's.

The bride is to be Miss Marie Louise Finch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Finch, of Park avenue, Plainfield, while the bridegroom elect is William Bowne Parsons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Parsons, widely known in the exclusive circles of the metropolis. The ceremony is to be performed by Rev. E. Vinex Stevenson, rector of Grace church, and Miss Charlotte T. Finch, sister of the bride-elect, will act as bridesmaid. She will be her only attendant. Mr. Parsons' brother, Robert E. Parsons, Jr., of New York, will be best man and the ushers selected by the bridegroom-elect are Judge Edward Ridgway Finch, brother of the bride-elect, Alexander M. Crane, David B. Helm, Charles M. Van Kleeck, Charles A. Kalish and John Ross Delafield. An appropriate musical progress will be rendered by the church organist and members of the choir.

The ceremony is to be followed by a reception at "Greystone," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Finch. Later the young couple will leave for a wedding trip, the destination of which has not been made known. At its conclusion they will make their home in New York and at Flushing, L. I.

Mr. Parsons is a practicing attorney in New York city and has a wide acquaintance in the metropolis, on Long Island and in New Jersey. His bride-to-be is one of Plainfield's most charming young women and has been active in social affairs for a number of years.

One Hundred And Three Graduates Of Plainfield High School Addressed By President Of Amherst College

Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, president of Amherst College, made the principal address at the annual commencement exercises of the Plainfield High School in the High School auditorium last night, when 103 members of the 1918 class were graduated with fitting ceremonies.

Dr. Meiklejohn is a most finished speaker and with the important topics of the day at his disposal his remarks were listened to with rapt attention both on the part of the graduating class and the capacity audience of parents and friends.

Miss Constance Durrant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Durrant, of West Fifth street, was accorded the honor of delivering the salutatory address, and Howard B. Stelle of Kenyon avenue, was valedictorian. A New York orchestra furnished music and Archibald Cox, president of the Board of Education, was in charge of the ceremonies.

The program in full was as follows:

March, "Stars and Stripes Forever," Sousa; invocation, Rev. Walter J. Swaffield, D. D.; salutatory address and essay, Constance Allen Durrant; address, Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, Ph.D., Ll.D.; selection, "Oh Lady, Lady," Kern; presentation of rewards, Dr. B. Van D. Hedges; cornet solo, "Deep River," Burleigh; valedictory essay and address, Howard Bertram Stelle; presentation of diplomas, by the president of the Board of Education, Archibald Cox; march, "Our Commodore" Eisler.

The award of prizes was as follows:

First prize, Edyard Tomson; second prize, Ruth Hammond; honorable mention, Eva Chamberlain and Constance Durrant.

The salutatory address, as given by Miss Constance Durrant, in part was as follows:

"This commencement night marks the close of our High School life. To us at this time, our associations have been familiar to us. Now, we must go out into surroundings that are, as yet, unknown. Before we go, it is our pleasure to acknowledge the debt of gratitude that we owe. So, this evening, we wish to assure the people of Plainfield and the Board of Education, who carry out their wishes so well, that we feel deep appreciation for their sane attitude in not cutting down any of our school work in these war days, and even increasing our opportunities for service. Other countries that have sacrificed the interests of their schools on account of war conditions, are now realizing their mistake.

"To our principal, Mr. Best, whose thought and interest have molded our High School career, we pledge our loyal friendship. Our only regret is that our Dr. Maxson is absent tonight because of ill health. To him, who has given so much of himself for us, we send our love and our earnest hope for his speedy recovery. Others of our school circle are absent tonight, and to them—our senior boys and all Plainfield High School boys 'over there' or about to go over seas, we send our cordial greetings."

Howard B. Stelle, valedictorian, spoke in substance as follows:

"Classmates: As we have played our part in this gigantic struggle of nations during the past year, so must we continue to do in the future and with far greater measure of devotion and sacrifice. We are looking forward to the time when, in fulfillment of our President's ideals, the whole world shall be a decent place in which to live, with democracy shall hold full sway and autocracy be banished, when war forever shall be done away. Not only must we set our faces against the advance of the Prussian army and the Prussian spirit, but we must say to all ideals which are unworthy of America, 'Thou shalt not pass.' May each one of us 'fight the good fight' and do his part in bringing about this New World."

The members of the graduating class, divided into their respective courses are as follows:

Classical—Hope Beresford Angleman, Beatrice Cottrell, Margaret Hanson, Kathryn Eleanor Hughes, Ruth Elizabeth Irby, Helen Eugenia Luery, Gladys Ellen Major, Margaret Elizabeth Metz, Edith Estelle Peacock, Margaret Berlin Rice, J. Harold Loizeaux, Romeyn Voorhees.

Senior Class Of N. P. H. S. Bids Farewell To Alma Mater Tonight

North Plainfield's schools closed for the term today and according to the annual custom the commencement exercises for the High School senior class will take place tonight. The program will be given in the Plainfield High School auditorium during which twenty-seven pupils who have completed their scholastic studies will receive diplomas. Graduation exercises for the eighth grade pupils are to be held at the Harrison Avenue School at 3 o'clock this afternoon. These will include an address by Supervising Principal D. Fred Aungst, who will also award the athletic monograms and present the cup offered by the W. C. T. U. for the best temperance essay, to Miss Evelyn Bacon.

Tonight's program for the High School graduates will be featured by an address given by Colonel F. S. Evans, staff officer of the British Army who saw service abroad as a member of the Canadian Expeditionary forces. He will speak on patriotic lines and will also detail some of his experiences while under fire. The honor pupils for the class of 1918 are Miss Florence Cornwell, who has been made valedictorian; Jack Cannon, salutatorian, and Stanley Burner, third honor pupil and winner of the Yale cup. Miss Cornwell will deliver an essay tonight entitled "America Is Helping Win the War," while Jack Vannon will have for his subject in delivering the salutatory address, "Our Navy." Stanley Burner will speak on "North Plainfield's Part in the War."

Previous to the opening of the program, the members of the graduating class will participate in a beautiful march. After assuming their places on the platform the program will be taken under way in charge of Supervising Principal Aungst. Dr. J. H. Cooley, president of the North Plainfield Board of Education, will present the diplomas and musical selections by the Plainfield High School orchestra and Glee Club, in charge of S. Frederick Smith. The invocation and benediction is to be given by Rev. Berryman H. McCoy, pastor of the First Methodist church, this city. At the conclusion of the program and following Colonel Evans' address, the entire class will salute the flag and pledge allegiance to it.

The closing exercises for the High School department took place in the Somerset School auditorium at 9:30 this morning. One of the features was an address by H. C. Krebs, county superintendent of schools for Somerset. Principal D. Fred Aungst also spoke during which he said that "North Plainfield's High School's prospects for next year to do excellent work never were better." Songs were sung by the assemblage and the following prize awards were made:

Yale cup, for general excellence in school work, Stanley Burner; medal for the highest scholarship in mathematics, Jack Cannon.

These are the members of the 1918 graduating class:

Margaret Barry, Gertrude Bornman, Mary Buchanan, Stanley Burner, Jack Cannon, Clara Carey, Florence Cornwell, Selena Cornwell, Leslie Daley, Seymore Day, Adele Demarest, Clifford Feiring, LeRoy Force, Merton Geniisman, Kenneth Gildden, Ralph Gray, Agnes Jackson, Nelson Kenworthy, Dorothy Krewson, Elsie Kurzhals, Harold Livingston, Lura Martin, Emily Pilger, Mabel Saffron, John Salvator, Elizabeth Schumacher, Douglas Stewart.

Exercises for the eighth grade graduation take place in the Harrison Avenue School this afternoon at 3 o'clock during which the following program is to be given:

Orchestra, "The Rally," T. S. Palu; chorus, The Star Spangled Banner, by the gathering; flag salute and pledge of allegiance; invocation; school chorus, (a) "Flower of Liberty," Neidlinger, (b) "March of Progress," Meyerbeer; recitation, "Rheims Is Dead," L. Medal For First Yankee To Die On German Soil

The first American to die on German soil was awarded the Croix de Guerre by the French government, according to yesterday's communique from General Pershing.

"Private W. J. Dayton, who belonged to the American troops operating in the Vosges," says the communique, "was killed by machine gun fire on the day after his unit entered the lines. He received the Croix de Guerre as the first American to die on German soil. As the division to which he belonged has now been identified (his information, which was transmitted confidentially on May 27, may now be published."

Program Arranged For Annual Graduation At St. Mary's School

Fifty-nine pupils of St. Mary's School who have completed the commercial and grammar courses will be graduated at the annual commencement exercises to be held in St. Mary's church next Sunday night.

Rev. Father B. M. Bogan will be in charge of the program which is to commence at 8 o'clock and to which the parents and friends of the young people have been invited. In addition to making an appropriate address, Father Bogan will also award the prizes to the honor pupils of the graduating classes. These will include gold medals for general excellence in commercial work, stenography and typewriting and gold medals for excellence in English, arithmetic and Irish history. The names of the winning pupils will not be made known until the time of presentation.

The order of exercises in full is as follows: Processional, Rodgers' hymn, "Jubilate," by the choir; hymn, "Welcome Sweet Grace," by the choir; bass solo, "Gate of Life," Albert F. La Rock; hymn, "Veni Creator," by the choir; sermon and awards by Rev. Father B. M. Bogan; soprano solo, "Ave Vernum," by Miss Mary Donnelly; solemn benediction of the Blessed Sacrament; baritone solo, "O Salutoris," H. Koenig; hymn, "Tantum Ergo," by the choir; hymn "Holy God," by the congregation; recessional, Mendelssohn. The musical portion of the program has been arranged and will be in charge of Miss Mary Smith organist of the church.

Miss Mary Winzenried, of the eighth grade, has been made salutatorian for the class, and Miss Catherine McCue, of the commercial class valedictorian. Both will have important places on the class day program which is to be given in the school hall tonight. Parents and friends have been invited to this gathering also and the probabilities are that the will be a very large attendance. For this occasion the following program has been arranged by the Sisters of Charity with the assistance of Father Bogan:

Processional; opening chorus, "A Night In May;" salutatory, "Carry On," Mary E. Winzenried; class prophecy, Loretta M. McCauley; chorus, "The Brook and the Mountain;" solo, "God Be With Our Boys Tonight," Joseph Guinee; class will, Norman A. Lynch; musical selection, Miss Mary Smith; Red Cross drill; musical selection, Miss Mary Smith; chorus, "The Chase;" farewell to the grammar grades, Milton A. Murphy; chorus, "My Own United States;" valedictory, Catharine V. McCue; address, the Reverend Father Bogan; recessional.

Councilman Graves Weds At Jamesburg

Councilman and Mrs. Charles F. Graves, whose wedding took place in the manse of the Jamesburg Presbyterian church, Saturday afternoon, have returned from their wedding trip and have gone to housekeeping at their new home on West Fifth street, this city.

Announcement of the ceremony was made to friends of the couple by Mrs. Cornelia Jennings of Jamesburg, mother of the bride, the latter being Mrs. Sarah W. Peterson, of Jamesburg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William Edgar, and Mrs. Mary V. Pullen, of Jamesburg, and Charles E. Smith, of Bayonne, were the attendants. Beside the wedding party only a few relatives witnessed the ceremony.

Mrs. Graves has lived practically all her life in Jamesburg and has a wide acquaintance in Middlesex county. Her father was the late Arthur Jennings, who served as tax collector in Monroe township, Middlesex county, for many years. Frank Jennings, former mayor of Jamesburg, is her uncle, and John Jennings, assistant chief of the Jamesburg fire department is her brother. Mr. Graves has lived in Plainfield nearly all his life and is now in his third term as a member of the Common Council. He is chairman of the Fire Board and conducts the leading roofing contracting business in the city.

LEAVING FOR PARIS ISLAND

Leo Wilson, son of former Councilman and Mrs. W. W. Wilson, of West Third street, has been accepted as a volunteer in the marine corps and will leave next Monday for Paris Island, S. C., to begin his training.

Touring car for private parties can be procured for transportation to Camp Dix by telephoning 3030 or 1170-J. Rates reasonables.—Adv. tf

SIFTING THE CITY HALL TROUBLE TO THE BOTTOM.

After many months of expensive delay, not a few hard words and even court action, welcome indeed is the news which comes from official and trades circles that the City Hall has been declared a fair job by local organized labor. Every person in the city, whether tax payer or not, expresses gratitude that the opposing forces have reached an agreement that will mean the early completion of the splendid building which has stood as an eye-sore since last October.

It is not to be denied that the boycott has greatly increased the cost of this structure, originally figured at $100,000 and afterward extended to $150,000. It is not to be denied that mistakes have been made on both sides, by the union as well as by the administrative officials. Who was to blame at the beginning is still a matter of dispute but now that an agreement has been reached the only thing for everyone to do is to get down to business and rush the hall to a point where it can be finished and occupied, thus saving Plainfield any further expenditure that was not contemplated.

The one thing remaining now to be settled before the whole unfortunate affair is terminated is the question of whether or not the members of the Monahan Stone Company, who demanded payment of $13,000 owing them from the P. F. Kenny Company, and the national labor leaders who called the original strike of plasterers after the Monahan Company's claim had been refused, are guilty of conspiracy as charged. These men, six in all, have been indicted by the Union County Grand Jury and the indictment has been carried on appeal to the Supreme Court by means of a writ of certiorari. If the decision of this latter tribunal should bear out the verdict of county jurors, the officials of Plainfield should in no wise hesitate at proceeding with the action. That it will entail a bitterly contested legal battle, is a matter of common knowledge, but there should be no side-stepping in order to prove the original assertion that the Monahan officials and the labor representatives conspired to compel Plainfield to pay $13,000 which it did not owe. It was this $13,000 demand that upset the plans of the City Hall committee for completing the building and resulted in the tie-up that has kept the structure in a more or less forlorn state for nearly nine months. The whole affair has gone the rounds of the State and has excited comment not favorable to Plainfield's good name as a community supporting right and justice, consequently the prosecution of the conspiracy case means more than the mere punishment of certain offenders.

On the other hand, if it is found that neither the members of the Monahan company or the labor officials are guilty as charged, they will not want for proper amends. The local Trades Council has done its share in trying to get the matters straightened out and undoubtedly will lend every assistance to hurry along the uncompleted work and straighten out the tangle now demanding the attention of the criminal court. If the citizens and taxpayers have been put to double expense for some one else's blunders they are entitled to know and witness the punishment of any one responsible for the whole deplorable affair.

THE LOSS OF COUNCILMAN FORT.

It is with extreme regret that the citizens of Plainfield received the news that Councilman Leslie R. Fort will have to cease his local activities in order to accept the lieutenant's commission which came to him this week. His new duties in the office of the chief of staff at Washington will take him away from this city and in consequence the community will be deprived of one of the most active men ever coming into its midst. While his resignation to the Common Council has not been tendered as yet, it will only be a matter of time and a vacancy will exist in this important body just at a time when officials of his type are most needed. The only compensation the people have is the knowledge that what is their loss here is the gain of the Government at large.

Mr. Fort first came to Plainfield as a resident only about seven years ago but in that time he has been a most indefatigable promoter of public activities. As managing editor of the Daily Press he was in possession of a medium reaching direct to the people and numerous enterprises that have been of untold benefit to the community were suggested and brought to a successful issue through the columns of his newspaper. At no time did any worthy enterprise ask for funds but what he willingly presented the claims for beneficience to the city at large by means of editorial suggestion and then followed it up with his own personal work. Plainfield suffered a distinct loss when he left the newspaper field but fortunately he was able to continue as a local resident and despite pressing business interests in New York he kept up the community activities that were sorely in need of his support. This has been particularly true of Anti-Tuberculosis campaigns, Red Cross work, the Community Christmas Committee and the Citizens' Committee for the relief of soldiers and sailors dependents. In each one of these he has been a worker, not a chair warmer or member in name only and his withdrawal will leave a gap hard to fill.

Last year the citizens recognized Mr. Fort's civic possibilities and elected him to the Common Council as a representative at large. From the first night that he attended a meeting, as a member of the municipal body, he showed that he was possessed of independent thought and action and if it could have been his good fortune to continue in the deliberations of the Council, his ability and foresight would have insured the taxpayers a representative whose interests were absolutely theirs Six months is too short a time for him to show of what he is really capable and if he had been able to maintain his membership until practical experience entitled him to the chairmanship of an important committee he would have left an official record marked by originations for civic progression at a minimum of cost.

It is the sincere wish of all of Mr. Fort's fellow townsmen that success be his as a member of Uncle Sam's army force, but that after he has acquitted himself at home and abroad as his conscience dictates he be spared to return to Plainfield and once more take up the splendid work that has made him so important a factor in this community.

THE CRITICISM OF SENATOR FRELINGHUYSEN.

Evidently the Democratic Trenton Evening Times does not support the opinion of former Congressman William E. Tuttle, who recently sharply criticized Senator Frelinghuysen at a partisan gathering of Democrats of Morris county. In an editorial entitled "Hard to Please," it says:

"At a get-together meeting of Morris county Democrats, Thursday evening, former Congressman Tuttle, in urging the election of a Democrat to the United States Senate, said that Senator Frelinghuysen has been a leader in hostility to the President and Cabinet officers until, fortunately, he had been silenced. There are Republicans who criticize the senior Senator for having been altogether too friendly with the President from the time when the latter was Governor of New Jersey. It's difficult to please everybody."

Senator Frelinghuysen has not hesitated to speak sharply about the shortcomings of the Administration. Yet there has not been any of the time a more faithful and intelligent supporter of the President in the essential things that have been undertaken to win the war. There is no more loyal and influential Senator, and none who is taking the painstaking interest in war-winning work than the senior Senator from New Jersey.

The record of Senator Frelinghuysen for support of the Administration is much more satisfactory, even the Democrats will admit, than that of the man he succeeded. Whatever opposition he has shown to the Administration has not been incited by partisan considerations.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When Buckalew's hoop yard was located in the rear of the buildings at Front and Somerset streets?

When a classified ad in any newspaper would bring at least a score of applicants for a ten-dollar a week job?

When the only regular line of communication between Plainfield and Scotch Plains was maintained by Tom Newman's ancient carry-all?

When the robins, larks, sparrows, tanagers and other local feathered denizens were threatened with complete extinction by the popular fad the boys had of collecting bird's eggs?

When the High School graduating classes always numbered about ten girls to every boy?

When South Second street was known as 'Short Second street'?

When the most popular names for the girls were "Mercy", "Patience", and "Comfort" and for the boys, "Experience", "Recompense", "Squier", "Ezekiel", "Zebediah" and "Jonas"?

When the arrival of a new piece of fire apparatus like the service truck which came this week would have been sufficient excuse for a big crowd of men and boys to superintend the unloading at the freight yards, a firemen's parade, a masquerade ball, a banquet and a trip to New Brunswick or Perth Amboy for exhibition purposes?

It is said the Washington summer vacationists will not "go away" this summer in large numbers. The Plainfield summer vacationists will as usual go away in large numbers but the bulk of the crowd will go to resorts and humid spots within forty or fifty miles of the old town.

We saw the circus last Tuesday. It was a fine outfit and the show was right up to snuff although the wet-blanketers insisted that because of no parade being given the performance would not be up to former years. They were mistaken as usual. We liked everything on the bill, but we were particularly struck with the acrobats. There were lots of them and they were very clever. Some were in pink tights, some in white satin and others in grotesque outfits imported from Hoboken. They astonished us by the way they whirled through the air from one trapeze to the other. We marveled at the cart-wheels they turned around the rings and we were amazed by their gyrations on the stadium, but none of them, not even the European wonder, who gets a cool thousand a week was able to duplicate the double back-action flip-flop which brought the Palens Sons Company out from under the City Hall trim-contract.

North Plainfield Man Gives Editor Of Courier-News A "Slap On The Wrist"

A right smart "slap on the wrist" is given the editor of the Courier-News in a letter received by the Record from William Scarlett, of 35 Fairview avenue, the borough.

The rebuke from the North Plainfield man was elicited by the newspaper man's refusal to acknowledge an answer which the former made to an article in the Courier-News on June 11, this article being an editorial comment on a letter written by "E. R.," asking the question, "Why Should a Negro Fight?" Among other things the editor said that the colored men were fighting for the white men because the whites had released them from slavery and this special point in a long dissertation was the one which prompted Mr. Scarlett to give the real explanation of why the colored men were fighting. The editor, however, consigned the scholarly communication to the obscurity of the waste basket, thus depriving readers of the paper of the proper answer to "E. R."

The severe rebuke which Mr. Scarlett applies to the offending editor is contained in the following letter which the Record cheerfully prints in order to correct any wrong impression which may have been gained by the Courier-News' article:

Editor, the Record:

In the issue of June 11th of the Plainfield Courier-News there appeared under the caption, Peoples' Forum, a somewhat lengthy reply to the question asked by "E. R." as to "Why Should a Negro Fight?" Because of the spirit and temper of the reply, it appeared to the writer as well as to some of his friends that the comment of the Courier-News should not be permitted to pass unchallenged and unrebuked, and accordingly a criticism of the attitude of the Courier-News was written and delivered at the editorial rooms early Monday morning, to which no attention has been paid. If the editor considers his stand indefensible and our criticism unanswerable he should be manly enough to retract. Before giving the criticism to the editor of a prominent New York paper, who is desirous of featuring the matter it seems to us only fair to offer it to you. The substance of our criticism is as follows:

It may be doubted whether the answer of the editor will convince especially in view of the extravagance of the claims that he makes. While it may be conceded that individual negroes have "made greater progress here than anywhere else," so have individuals of many other races, including Japanese, Chinese, Jews, Anglo-Saxons, Irish and the Latin and Slavic races. And why? Just because America has been the land of opportunity—wide open opportunity. But the memory of the East St. Louis disgrace is too vivid, the long list of lynchings and the systematic disfranchisement of negro voters in a very large section of our Country, are matters of too general knowledge,—to justify the claim that "the negro is treated better here than anywhere else in the world."

Of course all persons have an undoubted right to choose their intimates, but we have no right to ostracise another person because of race, creed, occupation, lineage, poverty or lack of education. To forbid to any person because of his race or color the service that a public conveyance or caravansary, or place of amusement or recreation exists to furnish is an offense against the spirit of American democracy, an affront to a large number of our fellow citizens and may be even a crime under some circumstances and a particularly heinous one, because of its far-reaching possible consequences.

That our Nation incidentally freed the American negro from the bonds of chattel slavery as one of the results of a war waged for the preservation of the Union is small reason why the negro should fight for the U. S. A. We're not the shackles which we struck from the bodies of our black brothers of our own forging? Then why expect gratitude from those to whom we have reluctantly conceded some measure of personal freedom? Is it so meritorious that we should voluntarily cease to rob the laborer of the legitimate fruits of his unrequited toil?

There is, however, good reason why the America negro SHOULD, DOES and WILL fight to the death for his country, which is just as much his country as it is yours and mine. And that is because, so recently emerged from a condition of chattel slavery, he finds the liberties of the world today menaced by the Hohenzollern military bureaucracy. He sees his native country threatened by the imminence of a system of industrial slavery, that the German people, in the mad phantasy of a dream of world domination have already ruthlessly imposed upon the inhabitants of the territory occupied by their armies and attended by the most horrible and atrocious outrages against humanity, compared to which the barbarities of chattel slavery as practised in this and other countries a hundred and more years ago (and even as recently as 1860) pale into comparative insignificance.

Under such circumstances has come at last for the American negro to deal an effective stroke for Liberty and he realizes now the truth of the proverb, "Who would be free, himself must strike the blow."

Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM SCARLETT.

New Policy Pleases Plainfield Patrons

Manager Shannon's lately introduced policy of three changes of bill at the Plainfield Theatre each week has met with popular approval and in consequence big houses have been the rule at every performance. The drawing powers of the program have been intensified by the attractiveness of the offerings, which include a big feature film and high class specialty acts.

For today as the screen headliner, Manager Shannon offers the powerful drama, "The Bondman." The popular William Farnum heads the interpreting cast and he has the support of a splendid company of well known players. The story of "The Bondman" is quite familiar to local playgoers but whether or not as it is shown on the screen it never fails to keep up absolute interest through every foot of film. The picture will be shown today for the first and will be kept for all performances from this afternoon until tomorrow night.

The vaudeville numbers beginning today include Brandon and Taylor, the youngest of peodlers; Floyd and Lorimer, comedy and songs, and Joe Morris and Wynn Shaw, comedians.

Former Councilman Richard A. Claybrook is detained at his home on Grant avenue by illness. His ailment is the aftermath of an operation which he underwent two years ago. Mr. Claybrook is president of the New York Stock Exchange.

OFFICIAL TEST TODAY FOR NEW FIRE TRUCK.

The city's fire department service truck, which arrived a few days ago from the Mack shops at Allentown, Pa., will be given an official test by the Fire Board this afternoon. It will be run about the city to determine its speed, motor workings and climbing ability.

The new truck cost $4,950, and is guaranteed to develop a minimum of twenty-six horse power. It has one fifty-foot extension ladder and a complete equipment of other ladders and fire fighting supplies.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

FREDERICK L. KLINER.

Frederick L. Kliner, a well known resident of the West End, died suddenly Wednesday noon at his home, 1034 West Third street. He had been ill from a pulmonary complaint the greater part of the last year, but recently recovered sufficiently to return to work at the Pond Tool plant. He seemed to be in good health Wednesday morning and left the shop at noon at the accustomed time for his mid-day meal. He had barely reached the house when he complained of feeling unwell and suddenly passed away before medical help could be obtained.

The funeral will be held in the Monroe Avenue church tomorrow afternoon and Rev. J. W. Flynn will officiate. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Kliner was twenty-six years old and had lived in this city all his life. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kliner, of West Second street, and was a member of the Monroe Avenue church, where he was quite active in the various men's departments. He was also an active member of Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. Beside his parents he leaves his widow, who was Miss Elizabeth Marsh, daughter of the late Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, and two sons, Fred and George. He is also survived by six sisters and one brother. These are Mrs. J. H. Schmidt, Mrs. Robert A. Deter, Mrs. Martin Whelan and Mrs. Frank Haskard, all of Plainfield; Mrs. Harry R. Deter, of Westfield; Mrs. Fred Locke, of Newark, and John J. Kliner, Jr., of West Second street, this city.

MISS SARAH F. JENNINGS.

Miss Sarah F. Jennings, a member of the well-known Jennings family, which has been widely known in Plainfield for nearly a century, died Wednesday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jane E. Brokaw, of Duer street. Death was due to complications produced by the infirmities of age as the deceased was in her eighty-sixth year. The funeral will be held at the Duer street residence this afternoon and Rev. Dr. F. B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, will officiate. Burial will be in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery.

Miss Jennings was the daughter of the late William M. and Mary Baker Jennings, who were pioneer residents of North Plainfield. The family was quite large at one time and was especially prominent during Civil War days because of the activities of the brothers of Miss Jennings. They were Rufus, Thomas and Harry Jennings, all of whom will be remembered by hundreds of Plainfielders, although they have been dead a number of years. Miss Jennings was a devout Christian and maintained her membership in the First Baptist church practically all her life.

Beside Mrs. Brokaw, who is the widow of Isaac Brokaw, Miss Jennings is survived by one other sister, Mrs. Catherine LaFountain, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

MRS. ANNIE RODDY.

The funeral of Mrs. Annie Roddy, widow of Thomas Roddy, whose death occurred on Tuesday morning at her home in the Stillman building, will be held in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The late date for the service has been made in order to permit Mrs. Roddy's son, Morris Roddy, to reach Plainfield from Kelly Field Texas, where he has been stationed as a member of the Aviation Corps. He left San Antonio, Texas, Tuesday night and is due in this city today. The requiem mass will be offered by Rev. Father Holsters and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Roddy's death came after a long illness from an organic trouble and occurred only six months after the demise of her husband. The latter died in December after being ill nearly two years. Mrs. Roddy's ailment first became known about three months ago and for a time she was treated at home by the family physician. Later her condition became serious and she was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, but after a short stay at the institution it was realized that she could not be bettered. She returned to her home and had since been in a more or less critical state.

Mrs. Roddy was born in this city and always made her home here. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Morris Higgins, who resided for many years at Plainfield avenue and West Third street. At the time of his death, the father was sexton of St. Mary's church, a position which he discharged faithfully for a long time. Mrs. Roddy had lived in the West End of the city practically all of her life, the only exceptions being a few years on Arlington avenue previous to her removal to the Stillman building last fall.

Beside her son, Morris, who is well known as a cartoonist and was completing a cartooning course in a New York art school before entering the service, the deceased is survived by one other son, James Roddy, employed as machinist in one of the local shops. She also leaves two brothers, Michael Higgins, mechanical superintendant at the Packer House in Perth Amboy, and Hugh Higgins, employed by the Public Service Railway Company as inspector for the local division.

WILLIAM F. KAEDING.

The funeral of William F. Kaeding, one of the oldest residents of North Plainfield, who was found dead in bed at his home on Wilson avenue, Sunday morning, was held at the late residence Tuesday afternoon. Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville, was in charge of the service and many relatives and friends were present. Burial was in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Mr. Kaeding was a native of Germany but came to this country when a young man. He first located at Myersville, near Sterling, where he worked as a farmer. In 1876 he removed to North Plainfield, taking possession of the house on Wilson avenue in which he died. That section of the borough is known as "Prideville," and Mr. Kaeding was one of the pioneers of that well-known locality. He learned the trade of cobbler in Germany and on first removing to North Plainfield opened up a shoe repairing shop, which he conducted until a few years ago. Just previous to his death he had been employed as a cleaner and presser by local concerns.

Mr. Kaeding's only near surviving relatives are one daughter, Mrs. William J. Eakins, of Manson place, and two sons, August Kaeding, of John street, and Frederick Kaeding, of Wilson avenue.

DORIS BEULAH BOYLAN.

Doris Beulah Boylan, the seven months' old daughter of Jesse T. and Grace Boylan, of 260 Duer street, the borough, died Wednesday afternoon. The funeral was held at the parents' residence at 10:30 this morning, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong officiating. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Washington Rock Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, has elected these officers for the ensuing year: President, Charles La C. Hoff; Charles R. Banks, vice president; Harvey R. Linbarger, secretary; William T. Sharpe, treasurer; John Z. Platfield, historian; board of trustees, Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Leslie R. Fort, Sidney S. Schuyler and Judd Stewart.

Many soldiers and sailor boys home on furloughs and leaves of absence, were among the attendants at an enjoyable dance at Columbus Auditorium last night, for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus War Camp Fund. Eddie Marks' Jazz orchestra furnished the music and the program included a grand march and a special number for the service men alone. The proceeds from the affair will add quite a sum to the worthy fund which the K. of C. maintains. The dance was arranged and conducted by a committee composed of H. P. Greenwood, chairman; Henry Brynarski, Timothy Meaney and Thomas Carty.

The New Jersey Central has made the announcement that it can have passenger coaches for excursions on certain dates during July and has notified Plainfield school officials that July 2 can be had as the date for any outing from this city. It is possible that a number of the schools will unite and have a union excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove on the same plan as followed out in years before the war.

Martha Kannard and Belle VanDeveer, both colored, were fined five dollars each in the city police court, Tuesday morning, on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct at their home in Possum Row on West Fourth street. Lieutenant Higgins and Patrolman Martin Walsh, who made the arrests, found that the women had been drinking Maryland Club whiskey and using Sherry as a "chaser." A quart of each was captured by the officers in the round up, thereby heading off a party that seemed to be in preparation.

John Rumniski, a Pole, whose home is on West Third street, was arraigned in the city court Tuesday morning, charged by his wife with beating her while he was intoxicated. The defendant admitted having taken huge liquor that was good for him but denied absolutely that he had struck his wife and testimony presented by the police bore him out. Judge DeMeza suspended sentence, but advised Rumniski that his name stood against him on general principles and he would be better for all concerned if he went on the "water wagon" for a long ride.

Borough Recorder Fred Hand is gaining a reputation as a foe to violators of automobile regulations. A number brought before him the past week received severe sentences and positive warnings not to be apprehended again in North Plainfield. Among the offenders were Clarence Pickle, of this city, who was fined $50 for reckless driving, and Albert Reinman, of Mt. Bethel, fined $20 for speeding on Somerset street and failing to have his license card with him. Pickle and a friend were arrested Saturday night after the former had run his machine into a trolley car standing on the switch in front of the Somerset School.

Hair-cuts and shaves, which advanced in cost for Plainfielders last summer, may go still higher according to a plan now being worked out by local boss barbers. They have been compelled to resort to another increase because of a request from journeymen that their minimum wage be $18 a week. At a meeting of the bosses a few nights ago the following schedule of new prices was proposed and may possibly go into effect later: Hair-cuts, forty cents; shaves, twenty cents; shaving the neck, five cents; trimming the mustache, five cents; for honing razors, fifty cents; massage, twenty-five cents, and a shampoo, twenty-five cents. M. A. Sasso, of West Second street, has been appointed chairman of a committee to secure the approval of all the boss barbers in the city and borough to this schedule.

Cornelius B. Tyler, Rev. Charles E. Herring and William M. Wherry, Jr., have been re-appointed by Mayor Leighton Calkins as directors of the Plainfield Public Library. The term in each instance is for three years.

Patrolman Charles Wicht, who has been more or less incapacitated for the past four months because of an injury received while doing duty as a member of the city police force, has been granted $125.05 by the Police Board as part salary while he was unable to be at work. A recommendation to this effect was made at the Common Council meeting, Monday night by Chairman Condict, of the Police Board, and approved unanimously by the full Council.

The following officers have been elected by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church for the ensuing year: President, Gustav Wagiau; vice president, Miss Anna Stillman; secretary, Robert Spicer; treasurer, Claude Grant; chairman of prayer meeting committee, Allison Skaggs; chairman of social committee, Miss Frances Kinne; chairman of lookout committee, Everett Hunting.

The State Council of Carpenters, which assembles at the Hotel Monte-cello at Atlantic City, today, for its annual convention will include William Lunger, Charles Johnson and C. H. Rogers, all of this city, who will represent the Plainfield union. The convention, which will continue until tomorrow afternoon, will be one of the most important the Council has ever held, as numerous trade conditions brought about by war emergencies are to be presented for discussion and action where necessary.

Release cards received in Plainfield, the past week, announced the safe arrival overseas of the following local boys: Private Thomas Bunn, of South Second street; Private James G. McNeil, of West Third street; Private John Edward McDonald, of Chatham street; First Sergeant Elmore George Kane, of West Second street; Private John A. Porter, Jr., of Prescott place; Private Fred Kraemer, of Netherwood avenue; sergeant William G. Coyle, of East Seventh street; Private Hilton Anderson, of Foster avenue; Private Henry G. Brandt, Jr., of Spooner avenue; Private Nathan LeRoy Lee, of Manning avenue, and Private John Gerald Varley, of West Front street.

Herman Overland of West Fourth street, is a patient in Muhlenberg Hospital, suffering from slight injuries received by falling from a new building at Bound Brook, on which he was working. Mr. Overland dropped the distance of about thirty-five feet and it was at first supposed that he had fractured his spine but examination by physicians proved this to be not so. The patient is about seventy years old, and though suffering greatly from shock, has improved rapidly in the weeks of treatment. It is believed that he will be able to go home within the next few days.

The trolley cars on the various local lines are now beginning to carry conductorettes as part of their crew. Two have been at work on the Netherwood line and one on the Fourth street since Monday, and a fourth is to take her place on the platform of an Arlington-Somerset car today. Several other girls are "breaking in" on the Somerset conductors on all but the Union line cars. Two of the girls now at work live in Plainfield, while the third is from North Plainfield. One of the conductorettes worked on the Netherwood line from 5 o'clock Tuesday morning until late Tuesday afternoon, then after a "swing," as a rest is termed, took charge of an Arlington car until 11 o'clock at night. Because they are receiving she same wage scale as the men, the company has decided to make it a man's job for the young women and accordingly they will have to "buck the list" the same as any other conductor. This means that for the first six months of their platform work they must report at the Newby Park barns at 4:45 every morning no matter how late they might have worked the night before.

Counsel for the officials of the Monahan Stone Company of Newark and labor officials, who were indicted by the January Grand Jury for alleged conspiracy in connection with the erection of the Plainfield city hall, has obtained a writ for the reviewing of the bill by the Court of Errors and Appeals. The case will be argued before the October term. The highest court has now been appealed to in an effort to have the indictment quashed. the Supreme Court having sustained the Grand Jury in a decision last week. The men indicted were to have come to trial at the present term of the county courts but the latest action makes this impossible.

Dr. Norman W. Currie, of Central avenue, who recently enlisted in the United States Army service, on Saturday last received a commission as captain. It was accompanied by a message from Washington that he had been placed in the Medical Reserve Corps but that he would receive instructions very shortly to report for duty. After a brief stay at a home camp or cantonment, Dr. Currie will go overseas. He was one of four local physicians responding to the Government appeal for medical men. The others enlisting are Dr. N. H. Probasco, Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow and Dr. J. C. Anderson, neither of whom has received his commission as yet.

Mrs Edna Gates Bride Of Sheriff J. E. Warner

Sheriff James E. Warner and Mrs. Edna Beadle Gates were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beadle, Jr., of Cranford, Saturday night, Rev. Dr. George Francis Greene, of the Presbyterian church of Cranford, officiating.

The couple were unattended. The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine trimmed with filet lace and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and sweet peas. Her father gave her in marriage. Only the immediate relatives of the couple and a few intimate friends were in attendance. They being from Toronto, Philadelphia, Englewood, Newark, Cranford and Elizabeth.

PERSONAL

M. James McCarthy, of Lee place, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital this week following six weeks' treatment at the institution after an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. George Leighs, of 722 West Fourth street, are the parents of a baby daughter, born to them a few days ago. Mrs. Leighs was formerly Miss Hazel Hutchcroft, of Clinton avenue.

The condition of Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, the borough, who has been seriously ill for the past three weeks, continues to be without any sign of improvement.

Among the Plainfielders who have returned from Newport News, Va., where they visited with relatives in the army, were Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Gulberg and three daughters, Mrs. T. J. Burns, Mrs. O'Loughlin and Mrs. H. Klinsman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. Campbell and Mrs. John Winzenreid and Mrs. Robert McGoldrick.

Herbert Reynolds and his brother, Frank Reynolds, of Watchung avenue, the borough, who went to Camp Dix several weeks ago as selected men, have both been transferred to the Quartermasters' Department and have been sent to Camp Johnston, Jacksonville, Fla., for a three months' course at the quartermasters' training school.

Announcement has been made of the wedding of Miss Pearl B. Super, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Super, of Sherman avenue, this city, to C. Fred Oakley, of Dunellen. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage of St. James' Methodist church, Elizabeth, last Saturday night by the Rev. C. S. Woodruff. Mrs. Louis Super, mother of the bride, and John Cooper, of Dunellen, were the only witnesses. The young couple will make their home at Dunellen, as the bridegroom is employed by the New Jersey Central as fireman running out of the Dunellen yards.

Miss Margaret A. Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Adams, of West Front street, and George W. Meder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Meder, of East Orange, were married last Saturday night at the home of the bride's parents on West Front street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Harold Schenck, of Nutley, formerly of this city, and a large number of relatives and friends were present. Mrs. Edward Leahy, of New York, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor and Constance Vail, of this city, was flower girl. The best man was Hugo Koch, of East Orange. Mr. and Mrs. Meder will make their home at Bridgeport, Conn., as the former holds a responsible position with the Lake Boat Company of that city.

Former Local Man Appointed To Speed Up Ship Building

Albert McDonald, a former well-known Plainfielder who removed from this city to Trenton last October, has been selected by the United States Shipping Board to fill one of the most important positions in this branch of Government service, having for its particular objective the supplying of vessels for trans-Atlantic transportation.

Mr. McDonald is to take charge of all new ship building on the Pacific coast with the idea of speeding up progress and if possible, doubling or even tripling the present monthly tonnage. His selection came after several hundred eligibles had been considered and the honor is considered by the Washington authorities to be of no small importance. The new director is to leave for the Pacific coast this week and will probably make his headquarters at San Francisco.

While in Plainfield, Mr. McDonald made his home on Evergreen avenue. He was connected with a New York manufacturing concern but left the company in order to become production supervisor for the Essex Rubber Company at Trenton. He is a graduate of Stevens Institute and is a member of the American Society of Technical Engineers. He is endowed with that technical and practical experience which are so much needed by the nation at this critical period and those who know him believe that he will be a most valuable addition to the shipping board's directing staff.

Maintains Fare Is Fixed By Franchise

Though Chancellor Walker and Judge John J. White were the only two among the nine members of the Errors Court who voted on the question, to dissent from that court's decision this week—reversing the Supreme Court—that the state had the power to increase or reduce public utility charges irrespective of franchise agreements, between such corporations and municipalities, it was Judge White who filed the dissenting view.

In dissenting from the decision, which was based on the appeal of Bradley Beach and the Public Utility Board to review the Supreme Court's ruling upsetting the State board's order compelling the Atlantic Coast Electric Railway Company to issue transfers from one to another of its lines, Judge White said:

"I disagree with the view that the terms under which was granted the public franchise here involved, were at the same time both a contract and not a contract; that such contract while entered into by the municipality in pursuance of express legislative authority from the state to have the force and effect of a contract, although a valid and binding contract between the parties to it, viz., between the municipality and the trolley company, is not such a contract as is protected by the Federal Constitution. The municipality is a state agency, as is also the Public Utilities Commission. If the franchise restrictions were binding, as a contract upon one agent they were as such equally binding upon the other, because they were binding upon the principal of both. Without authority from such principal to contract they were binding upon neither agent; with such authority they were binding upon the principal and consequently upon both agents. To concede that they were binding as a contract upon one agent is, it seems to me, to concede that they are binding upon the principal and upon both the agents.

"It is suggested that this is not so because the subject matter of the contract is subject to the State's sovereign police and taxing power. I think that the doctrine that contractual property rights which are subject to the State's police power and taxing power, and I might add to the power of eminent domain, are not protected from confiscation, is both novel and unsound.

"It is further said that the fact that the act provided that the restrictions imposed by the municipality if accepted by the trolley company should have the 'force and effect of a contract,' shows that they were not in fact a contract, because if they were it would not have been necessary to give them the force and effect of a contract. I take the contrary view. It seems to me that in order to invite the investment of capital in public transportation by giving it something definite to rely upon, and to negative the idea that the terms agreed upon were merely temporary regulations, subject to change from time to time at municipal or State legislative whim, the State authorized the municipality to put them in the shape of an inviolable contract.

"Again, if it be true that these terms proposed by the municipality and accepted by the trolley company, as to the rate of fare to be charged, do not constitute a contract, then they may be changed by the State or by any other of its duly authorized agencies without the consent of the municipality which exacted the terms for the protection of its own people traveling upon its own streets. If, on the contrary, they constitute a contract, it seems to me that contract was made by an agency of the State having, and recognized by the State at the time as having, an interest in the subject matter, of the contract, and that, therefore, under the well recognized rule as to other agents, the contract cannot be altered by the State without the consent of the interested municipality.

"For the above reasons, and for those expressed in the opinion of Mr. Justice Trenchard, speaking for himself and for the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Black, in the Supreme Court, with which reason I agree, I vote to affirm the judgment of that court."

As told yesterday, the Errors Court refused to permit Marshall Van Winkle, as counsel for the League of Municipalities fighting the Public Service Railway Company's application to the Public Utilities Commission for permission to increase fares, to file a supplementary brief in the case. Later Mr. Van Winkle said he would ask permission to file a brief today in the kindred case of the Collingswood Sewerage Company on appeal which had obtained increased rates from the Public Utilities Commission on the strength of the Supreme Court contention that franchise ordinance agreements between corporations and municipalities as to rates did not bar the board fro mincreasing rates to make them just and reasonable. The Bradley Beach decision in the Supreme Court was that the board had no power to decrease rates fixed by franchise ordinances.

Finger Prints On Light Bulb Bring Conviction

His conviction undoubtedly due to fingerprints he left on a small electric light bulb in the Westfield station of the C. R. R., Clarence Runyon, of Westfield, was found guilty of atrocious assault and battery by a jury in Common Pleas Court at Elizabeth, Judge Pierce presiding, Monday afternoon, and sentence will be pronounced upon him today.

Runyon's case attracted unusual attention because the State relied absolutely upon the testimony of Edward H. Schwartz, fingerprint expert of the Newark police department, to establish the fact that it was Runyon was manipulated the light bulb in such a fashion that it would not light when he had lured Station Agent Robert Alpaugh to the westbound station at 1:30 o'clock on the morning of March 1 and then rewed him by several powerful blows on the head in an endeavor to rob the till of the eastbound station of some $500 commutation money taken in during the day at the station.

The accused took the stand in his own behalf in the afternoon and was led through an alibi by his counsel. William R. Wilson, which accounted for all the time between the night of February 28 and the morning of March 1, with the exception of the hours from 11 o'clock, February 28, to 6 o'clock the morning of March 1. At the latter time Runyon said he was in bed. He said he looked into the rooms of his mother and father but did not awaken them. Attorney Wilson attacked the fingerprint evidence on the ground that others handled the bulb which had been in place a considerable time.

Mr. Schwartz, the expert who made the positives of the prints on the bulb, said the fact that other prints were on there did not dispute the fact that two of the prints on the bulb compared with the prints he took of the finger tips of Runyon. He testified that he had made over 8,000 prints and in no one instance had there been a failure as to identification.

The case against Runyon was developed by Chief Rosecrans, of the Westfield force, with Sergeant Edward Nelson. It was Nelson's idea to get the bulb, as Alpaugh told him it had burned on previous nights and that there must have been something wrong with it. Nelson preserved it in cotton batting for evidence and it was taken to Mr. Schwartz, who took the prints.

Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield had charge of the prosecution and the case developed many lively tilts between counsel as to the admissibility of certain evidence. Attorney Wilson, for the accused, several times attempted to bring out the fact that Chief Rosecrans had once arrested George Manners and wanted to fasten the crime on him. In fact, Wilson contended Alpaugh once was called in to identify Manners as the man. Alpaugh testified he could not identify Runyon, as the station was dark when the assault occurred and could only say the man who attacked him was much heavier and taller than himself.

Frank Welland, a milk dealer, who came into the station at the time of the assault and had known Runyon for years, could only identify him by the sound of Runyon's voice. Juror Stephen Kent asked Welland if he said anything to Runyon at the time to indicate he knew him and Welland said he hadn't.

Latest Draft Call Takes Last Of Class 1-A Men

Orders For July Aggregate Twenty-One White Selectives And Twelve Colored--Many Registrants Being Transferred From Lower Classes To 1-A

Two more calls received yesterday by the Plainfield Exemption Board will exhaust the original complement of Class A-1 men. Hereafter all further Government orders for selective will have to be filled by registrants now being taken out of lower classes and later the young men registering on June 5. The work of getting these into classified positions is now going on and so far about sixteen original registrants who were in Classes 2 and 4 have been made 1-A's. It is possible that fifteen or twenty more will be secured when the last questionnaire is considered.

Yesterday's two calls followed another received on Wednesday, which asked for seven men to go to Camp Humphrey during the five-day period beginning July 5.

The second call included in yesterday's order calls for twelve colored men to go from Plainfield to Cap Dix during the five-day period beginning July 26. The third call is for fourteen white men to go to Camp Dix from the Plainfield district during the five-day period beginning July 22. The names of the twelve colored men or the fourteen whites have not yet been announced.

In addition to Wednesday's call the following men have already been ordered into service:

David Wardop, Claude N. Luckey and Russell Cratsley, all to go to the Central High School, Newark, for a two months' instruction period; James Fitzpatrick, to Camp Dix; John Silverman, to Camp Upton; Nelson Boice, to Hazelhurst Field, Mineola, L. I., and William J. LePoidevan, to the Medical Corps at Chattanooga, Tenn. All are to leave within the next few days.

Chairman Runyon and the other members of the Plainfield Exemption Board and Chief Clerk Walter Freeman are now busily engaged in reviewing questionnaires of originally classified men and getting in the new questionnaires of the men who registered last month. The closest scrutiny has been given the classification of all the originals and many who claimed dependents or industrial pursuits are being placed in 1-A. A particular instance of the former has arisen in respect to men who married after May 18, 1917. In practically every case these marriages are not being recognized.

A total of 189 young men reaching twenty-one years of age since June 5, 1917, are now being classified by the Plainfield Board. Questionnaires are being sent out at the rate of twenty-five a day and these are being returned rapidly. The order in which they will be called for examination was determined by the drawing at Washington yesterday.

The Board yesterday notified twelve original registrants who had been lifted into 1-A to appear at Muhlenberg Hospital for examination either on Monday or Tuesday of next week. Of the men who have been standing in A-1 all along, only twelve are now left so that the call for July 22 will mean that at least two of the newer classified ones will have to be taken to make up the contingent.

The names of the seven men who are to go to Camp Humphrey on July 5 are as follows: John D. Force, Harry G. Goeller, William H. Mlornrity, Lawrence DiMaria, John Dean, William W. Bruce and Marley Cholelo.

Youthful Thieves Gain Entrance To Store Via Coal Hole

Dropping through the sidewalk coal hole and making their way through the cellar to the floor above is the method adopted by Joe Martone, thirteen years old, and his brother, Louis, eight years old, to rob a till in Schloss Brothers' grocery store on West Front street late Sunday night.

The youthful thieves made known their manner of entrance after a third degree at police headquarters, which lasted all of Tuesday before finally wooing up that they were the culprits and that they had stolen a quantity of change. Several other boys whom they accused had been brought to headquarters and subjected to a drilling. Edward Bremmer, proprietor of the fruit and vegetable stand at Schloss', to whom the till belonged, declared that the amount appropriated had been forty dollars, but the brothers denied taking as much as this.

The arrest of the pair was made at Westfield, Monday night, after officers in that town had noticed them loitering about the streets. Each one had a quantity of pennies and nickels wrapped up in bank fashion in his pockets and were unable to give any good reason as to where they got them. After being turned over to the Plainfield authorities the story of the Schloss robbery was gotten from them. Both youngsters, despite their youthful ages, have an unsavory reputation at police headquarters.

The two brothers were arraigned before Judge DeMeza, Wednesday morning, but the matter was laid over until this afternoon, at which time the police will have reached a decision as to what to do with the younger Martone.

Machinists to Hold A Another Big Meeting

Plainfield Local, No. 247, International Association of Machinists, will hold another mass meeting in Columbus Hall tomorrow night, similar to the one held last week. It will be open to union and non-union machinists or any other persons interested in union matters.

The principal speakers will be Henry L. Hilfers, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, and Vice President A. F. Anderson, of the International Association of Machinists. These meetings are for the purpose of stimulating interest in the Machinists' Union and many new members are being added to the Plainfield local in consequence.

Clem Bechtel Now A First Lieutenant

Word came from France this week that Clem Bechtel, of Carlton avenue, who has been abroad for more than a year, has been commissioned a first lieutenant. The honor was conferred upon him several months ago, but with his customary modesty he refrained from mentioning the fact even in the letters addressed to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bechtel, until the compulsory use of officers' stationery exposed his secret.

The young man went abroad on May 26, 1917, as a member of an ambulance unit. He did splendid services on the French front and for an act of bravery in rescuing several wounded men was given the Croix de Guerre. After his ambulance enlistment had expired and he made application for the U. S. Aviation School abroad and was accepted. Since then he completed all examinations and has been a "bird man" chasing back the German raiders. His commission as first lieutenant means that he is a full-fledged flyer in Uncle Sam's advanced corps of aviators.

Previous to sailing for France, Lieutenant Bechtel held a responsible position as salesman for the United States Tire Company. He was an expert athlete and one of the kind of young fellows willing to take a chance at anything, consequently he will undoubtedly be heard from as a daring flyer seeking the sobriquet of "ace."

Goes To New Orleans For Advanced Position

Walter H. Droll, of the Sterling building, left this week for New Orleans, where he will assume the assistant managership of the Mercantile Overseas Company. This concern is a branch of the Mercantile Bank of the Americas, of 38 Pine street, New York, with which Mr. Droll has been connected for several years as head of the South American export department. The new position ist a distinct promotion and one thta carries large possibilities.

Mrs. Droll is at present in Plainfield, but will leave for New Orleans in a short time as the new home of herself and husband will be at the Crescent City. Previous to her marriage, she was Miss Cornelia Conover, a graduate of Muhlenberg Hospital taining school and sister of Charles Conover, of Elmwood place. Both Mr. and Mrs. Droll have scores of friends in Plainfield who wish them continued success in their new location.

Committee Plans July 4 Program To Unfurl Flag

In connection with a Fourth of July observance, as called for by Mayor Calkins, and a proclamation issued Wednesday, a city service flag representing 1,100 Plainfield young men and women serving Uncle Sam will be unfurled at the City Park on Thursday, July 4, at 7:30.

Arrangements for the patriotic demonstration were made Wednesday night by the committee appointed by Mayor Calkins and composed of Senator William N. Runyon, chairman; M. S. Ackerman, representing the Home Defense League; John J. Varjey, representing the Citizens' Committee for Allied Kinsmen; A. Wilks West, representing the Liberty Loan committee; Judge J. H. Crane, representing the Four Minute Men, and William M. Wherry, Jr., representing the Red Cross home service committee.

The exercises will be extremely simple, consisting only of music by a band, songs by the gathering and the unfurling of the flag. There is to be no set speaking or any parade.

Mayor Calkins' proclamation on the Fourth of July is as follows:

"We celebrate next week Thursday, the Fourth of July, the anniversary of our national independence, but in circumstances so different from those to which we have been accustomed that our usual observance of the day, as we have heretofore made it, would seem singularly inappropriate. We are fighting not merely to hold the liberties which we have inherited, but in the cause of universal freedom and liberty; and for permanence peace and good order among nations even as we have largely attained it among individuals within nations.

"Therefore it is fitting that our observance of the day in this critical year should be significant of our present national purpose to achieve, with the aid of our brave allies, a decisive victory and a lasting peace. (Accordingly I hereby designate that the City Park, West Ninth street, at the hour of 7:30 p. m., as the time and place for a public gathering of citizens in order that we may by simple, but appropriate and patriotic ceremony, pledge ourselves to the cause of liberty and law. And inasmuch as citizens of foreign extraction have petitioned the President for opportunity to show their loyalty to the United States on our national independence day, and the President has requested that all citizens join with them in public expression of loyalty, it is therefore especially requested that all groups of foreign born within our city who stand with us in this conflict, will take part in our observance of the day and manifest by their presence their hope for the triumph of democracy over the enemies of progress and freedom.

MR. MOFFETT FUNERAL.

The funeral of William S. Moffett, who died at his home at 1231 Arlington avenue, Wednesday, will be held at the late residence Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be in Westfield. The deceased was sixty-one years old and leaves his widow and five daughters and one son.

THOMAS LAPPIN INJURED.

Thomas Lappin, of 440 West Fourth street, fell from a motorcycle Monday, receiving a broken leg and severe abrasions. He was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital.

Foster Johnson Badly Hurt At Watertown, N. Y.

Foster Johnson, for twenty years an employe at the Pond Tool Works, was seriously injured, and Arthur Fisher, another former Pond man, an one-time Plainfielder, was badly bruised and shaken up in a fatal automobile accident at Watertown, N. Y., Tuesday night, when one man was killed and four others placed in the hospital.

Johnson, who lived for a long time at Fourth street and Grant avenue and who left Plainfield last fall to become superintendent of machinery for the New York Airbrake Company at Watertown, received three fractured ribs and a possible contusion of the brain in addition to numerous lacerations about the head. He was removed to the Watertown hospital, as was also Francis Hill, whose skull was fractured, and two others of the party with lesser hurts. The dead man was Joseph Hart, a foreman in the Airbrake shop, and a resident of Albany. Fisher suffered from cuts, bruises and shock, but was able to go home. He lived for a number of years on South Second street and left this city for Watertown last November.

The accident occurred on a return trip from the Black River Valley Club, outside of Watertown, where a dinner had been given by the New York Airbrake Company in celebration of completing the first gun carriage in a big order underway for the government. Johnson, superintendent of the big plant, which employs 1,500, was driving the car, a seven-passenger Cadillac. There were ten men in the machine in all. In arriving at a corner, Bearoff failed to make the turn in time and trying to make a quick swing swung the car head-on into the girders of a bridge over the Black River. Hart was standing on the running board and had his head crushed in, while the others were scattered in every direction.

The Watertown police arrested Bearoff and he was held in $5,000 bail for trial. When Johnson was first taken to the hospital it was thought that he would not survive the night but he afterward rallied. His wife and children are at Troy, N. Y., at the time, having gone there to attend the wedding of a sister, and she did not learn of the accident until many hours after it occurred.

Johnson was a foreman at the Pond shop at the time of his resignation and was one of the best known residents of the West End. He has been very successful in his new work at Watertown and his injuries are deeply regretted by all who know him. Harry F. Bickel, of 320 East Fifth street, this city, is general manager of the New York Airbrake Company and it was through him that a large number of Plainfield machinists have secured excellent positions at the Watertown plant.

Afternoon Wedding In St. Joseph's Church

St. Joseph's church, the borough, was the scene of a wedding at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Mary Evelyn McNulty, of McKinley place, was made the wife of Harry Patrick Henry, of Emerson avenue. Rev. Father P. J. Hart performed the ceremony and many relatives and friends were present.

Mrs. Harry G. DeMess, organist of the church, played the wedding march and recessional. Miss Anna McNulty, sister of the bride, and John Christopher Motley acted as bridesmaid and best man.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. Henry's parents on Emerson avenue, where the couple will reside for the present. The bridegroom is a patrolman on the Plainfield police force.

James Nelson Leonard Weds Miss Brennan

Miss Mary Veronica Brennan, of 756 Webster place, and James Nelson Leonard, of 301 East Fifth street, were married in St. Mary's church, Wednesday night at 7:30. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Hennessey and a large gathering of relatives and friends was in attendance. Miss Cecilia Brennan, sister of the bride, and Cromell Leonard acted as bridesmaid and best man.

Following a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard will make their home on Westervelt avenue.

PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION.

A community patriotic demonstration will be held on the grounds of the Church of the Heavenly Rest tomorrow afternoon in connection with the annual summer festival. A service flag, 12x8 feet, will be unfurled, Senator William N. Runyon will speak, music will be furnished by the Liberty Band and other features will fill out an excellent program.

Legal Battle Opens To Break $250,000 Will

Conveyances Of $29,000 Worth Of Property By Mrs. Marie Giebelhouse, Prior To Her Death Result In Caveat Being Filed By One Of Her Sons

Legal proceedings in a fight to prevent the admission to probate of the $250,000 will of the late Mrs. Marie Gelbiehouse, of 625 West Front street, involving the conveyance of the Front street homestead valued at $25,000 to a daughter, Miss Clara Bloom, for her "valuable services rendered, especially during illness," and a farm in Washington Valley valued at $14,000 to a son, Augustus, because he was his mother's favorite, were started before Judge Carlton B. Pierce, in Orphan's Court at Elizabeth, Monday, following the filing of a caveat by another son, Christian. In the preliminary testimony, which was taken on Monday and Tuesday, Louis and George, two other sons, appeared as witnesses for the petitioner, the main claim being that the two conveyances valued at $39,000 should have been "pooled" with the main will and divided equally among two daughters, five sons, and the son and daughter of a deceased son. The balance of the quarter of a million-dollar estate was distributed equally by the testator.

Judge Isaac P. Runyon, of this city, attorney for Mrs. Bloom when the will was drawn, appeared as the chief witness for the defendants in the action, and Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, and Dr. Charles Lufburrow, of West Front street, reiterated his testimony to the effect that the testator was a shrewd business woman and mentally competent to divide her estate properly. The Guarantee Trust Company, of New York, was named by Mrs. Bloom as executor and Judge Runyon was designated as proctor; Edward R. Green, of Stetson, Jennings and Russell, of New York city, and Clarence C. Case, of Somerville, acted as counsel. Lum, Tamblin and Collier, of Newark, represent the caveators.

While on the stand as a witness for the petitioners, Louis was asked if it was true that his mother had found it necessary to have him arrested several years ago and that he had a revolver taken away from him after being taken into custody. He refused to admit this. He also denied having been ordered by the city court to leave town. Defendant's counsel attempted to make Louis admit that he had compelled his mother under threat to sign a check for him, payment on which at once had stopped at the bank, but he entered a denial. Louis is now the proprietor of a cafe in New York city.

The primary contention, as brought out in the preliminary evidence, was that Louis and Christina did not get as much as Augustus and Clara. The clause in the will making Louis, George and Christopher beneficiaries tied up their bequests for a period of the years, during which they would only receive the income from their shares. The hearing will be continued in the Orphan's Court on July 15. Mrs. Herman Goetting, of New York, was the other daughter named in the will and the sons were Augustus, Ferdinand, George, Louis, Christopher and Charles, the death of the last mentioned causing his share to be given to his son Charles and daughter Anna.

Suits in chancery have also been filed by the complaining sons to set aside the clauses in the will bequeathing the farm to Augustus and the house to Clara. They are entered separately and will be tried before Vice Chancellor Foster in Newark. In these suits Paul Q. Olive, of Westfield, represents Augustus in the farm suit and Clarence Case, of Somerville, is counsel for Clara in the house case.

Plainfield Elk Dies Suddenly At Elmira, N. Y.

Plainfield Lodge of Elks received word this week of the sudden death at Elmira, N. Y., on Wednesday last of Archie M. Loudon, a member of the organization and former Plainfielder.

Mr. Loudon, at the time he lived in this city, was vice president and general manager of the Vitaphone Company. His home was on Leland avenue, near East Front street. He resigned from the Vitaphone concern a short time ago to become a half partner with James D. McCann, in conducting the Elmira Foundry Company. He was on his way home from the Elmira postoffice when he dropped dead in the street of heart trouble. The funeral and interment took place at Elmira. Mr. Loudon is survived by a widow.

Promoters Announce Good Mat Program

Followers of the wrestling game in Plainfield will be given an opportunity to witness three promising matches in the Airdome next Wednesday night, several mat notables having been "imported" to furnish opposition of the right caliber for the local mat stars. Clarence Mundy and Jack Oswald, the Plainfield promoters of the grappling exhibitions, have combed their collection of eligibles for talent and the match-making has been taken care of in a manner that promises plenty of thrills.

Jim Condos, the local Greek, is scheduled to meet Joe Willis, of Illinois, in the curtain raised. Young Mundy, of Brooklyn, will try conclusions with "George the Greek," of Plainfield, and Mavokt the Jap and Joe Johnston, of New York city, will appear in the final event. The outsiders come here with some of the toughest scalps in the metropolitan district dangling from their belts and Plainfield's ace entries will have to show some cleverness in order to be in at the finish.

ASSESSORS PLANNING REPRISALS ON LANDLORDS

Tax assessors may assess properties even more than their intrinsic values, if the landlords are profiteers, and charging rents out of all proportion. This is the new understanding which some assessors have gotten from the Union County Board for the Equalization of Taxes. That board through its members is understood to have promised to make this interpretation of the law, which will at least have the effect of penalizing profiteers who charge unreasonable and extortionate rents.

Nothing official has been handed down to the assessors yet. They are disposed to assess profiteers particularly high, but feel that if they assess a property more than 100 per cent. they may be reversed. If the county board upholds them, however, it will mean hard times for the rent hog.

Borough Boys Meet In Far-Off France

How two North Plainfield boys met in far off France and how they had a dandy talk over old times way back in the old borough, is told of in a letter received by Mrs. Peter Hanson, of Lincoln place, from her son, Harry Hanson, now doing duty overseas as a detached engineer.

The other party in the meeting mentioned beside Private Hanson was Private William Hogan, for many years a member of the North Plainfield fire department and at the time of his entering the service proprietor of a local produce business. Both have been at the front since early in the year but naturally did not know the whereabouts of each other or had any idea of that they were in the same sector until they came face to face, just back of the line. Anybody who has been a long way from home for six months or more and meets up with an old friend can appreciate how the two former neighbors felt as they clasped hands. In the letter received by Mrs. Hanson her son says:

"Bill and I sat right down and had a nice talk about everything and everybody in North Plainfield. I don't think we skipped any of the old crowd and we enjoyed every minute of the time. Bill tells me that quite a few Plainfield and North Plainfield boys are in this vicinity and I will probably see many of them in the near future."

In another part of his letter, Private Hanson says:

"We are in a nice place and everything is good. The weather has been fine and it is very agreeable, having daylight up until 9:30 and it begins to get light in the morning at 3:30. We had a big service this morning and are resting this afternoon. I am not a member of a regular company as yet but I expect to be assigned to Company E, 116th Engineers, very soon, and then we have more time off. Tell all the boys that Bill and I are enjoying ourselves and that we think about them lots of times."

Death Lurked In Dangling Wire

Clara DeMarco, the six-year old daughter of Joseph and Pauline DeMarco, of 835 Watson avenue, was instantly killed at 3:30 yesterday afternoon, when she caught hold of a broken electric wire dangling from a pole on upper North avenue, opposite the Vitaphone factory.

The child was hurled to the ground in front of her brother Mardido, who sprang to her assistance without realizing what had struck her dead. Fortunately he escaped coming in contact with the lethal strand. The cries of the boy brought the child's mother to the scene and in frantic haste she caught up the body of the little girl and hurried home with it. Believing that she was still living an automobile was procured and the lifeless form rushed to the office of Dr. Pitta. The physician made an examination but found that death had ensued, probably at the instant the child's hand clutched the wire.

The funeral will be held at the parents' home at 2 o'clock this afternoon and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery. Beside her father and mother, little Clara is survived by three other sisters: Victoria, Louise and Mary, and also two brothers, John and Merdith.

HOME FOR A DAY.

Private Tony Parelli, of the 164th military police, twenty-ninth division, is spending a one-day furlough with relatives in this city. The police unit was until recently stationed at Camp McClellan, Ala., but is now quartered at Camp Mills, L. I.

Mayor Calkins' War Savings Day Proclamation

The President of the United States has officially designed Friday, the 28th day of June, 1918, as War Savings Day, appealing to all loyal citizens on or before said date to pledge themselves to the practice of thrift and saving in order that as a nation we may solve successfully the great economic problem presented to us by the war, and thus aid the Government to increase the production of foods, fuels and all essential materials necessary to the winning of the war.

In accordance with said appeal I hereby urge upon the men, women and children of this city on or before June the 28th to sign the pledge cards which will be presented for the purpose, thereby enrolling themselves in the National Army of War Savers. All the people must participate in this thrift movement if the full resources of this great nation are to be brought into play to administer a crushing and final defeat to the German monster which glorifies war for war's sake and has brought untold misery and suffering upon the world. In this crisis the practice of thrift is not just a virtue to be admired but an absolute necessity. So let the people with one accord cease the thoughtless expenditure of money for the sake and luxury of normal times, and by what they save to lend to our people invested by the Government and so transforming to it the power of their money for the purpose so vital to victory and a lasting peace.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The State Board of Tenement House Supervision has approved the plans for a three-story frame building to be erected at Leland avenue and George street, side city, by Cyrus Dumbrale. The estimated cost of the structure, as approved by Building Inspector Doane, is placed at $8,000.

Louis Jackson, colored, whose home is on Woodruff avenue, the borough, put up a sharp fight when taken in custody by Chief Marshal Weiss on a charge of non-support, Sunday night. The colored man failed to size up the office properly, however, and received the worst end of the brief little mix-up. Chief Weiss knows a trick or two about handling obstinate prisoners and Jackson was landed in his cell so quick it made his head swim. When arraigned before Recorder Hathaway he was given his choice of providing a bond to insure the support of his wife or going to jail for ninety days. The bond was furnished by Contractor Joseph Burke, who needed Jackson's services on a big government job at Morgan's Station, near South Amboy.

The board of trustees of the First Baptist church has elected these officers: President, L. V. F. Randolph; vice president, Alexander Gilbert; secretary, John McLaughlin; secretary, Howard J. Runyon. Mr. Runyon was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Oliver B. Leonard.

A Buick six automobile, fitted with a special body, has been presented Muhlenberg Hospital by Mrs. Nathan Hofheimer, of Warrenville. A vehicle of this kind has been needed to carry children left in a crippled state by the ravages of infantile paralysis, thirty-five of whom receive periodical treatment at Muhlenberg. The cases are directly in charge of the Visiting Nurses' Association, which has heretofore had the little sufferers carried from their homes to the institution by private machine, donated for the purpose. The need of a special automobile became known to Mrs. Hofheimer and she accordingly made the gift to the board of governors. When not in use for paralysis cases, the auto will be applied to general hospital work.

Another chapter in the famous Oliver Osborne-Rae Tanzer case was added this week when Frank Safford, the former Kensington Hotel clerk who positively identified Judge James Watson Osborne as the man who had registered at the Plainfield hotel with Miss Tanzer, was sentenced to nine months in jail by Judge Mayer in the Federal District Court at Trenton. Safford was twice convicted, the verdict in the first trial being set aside on appeal. The present confirmation permits of no further delay in serving the sentence. Safford was clerking at the Kensington several years ago when the Osborne-Tanzer episode occurred and although Safford positively stated during the trial of Miss Tanzer's suit against Judge Osborne that the latter was the man who had been in the girl's company, William Kitchen, then proprietor of the hotel, and others declared that it was not Judge Osborne.

The S. and S. Welfare Club, which conducted a successful "service" dance in Doyle and McCormack's studio on West Front street, last Saturday night, will hold a similar affair at the same place tomorrow night. Halfforster's orchestra will furnish music and soldiers and sailors in uniform will not be assessed. Mrs. Rae Arnold is chairman of the committee of arrangements and she is assisted by Miss Mary Wilson, Miss Gertrude Blimm and Miss Helen Regan.

Councilman Marion Ackerman is in receipt of no further news from his youngest son, James H. Ackerman, who cabled on Sunday that he had been wounded while doing service as a member of the aviation corps in France. The brief message stated that he had received a bullet in the left arm just below the elbow.

Baroness Huard, daughter of Francis Wilson, the well-known actor, will speak at the Hartridge auditorium on Tuesday, July 9, giving a detailed and intensely interesting story of her experiences in Europe during the early part of the war.

Excess Profits Continue Large

Excess profits have risen rapidly since this country entered the war, despite price fixing and other restrictive measures, according to Treasury Wepartment data now in the hands of the House Ways and Means Committee.

This data, which covers profits of every line of business in addition to profits of many individual concerns, is to be used by the committee in framing the new revenue bill which will be aimed to raise $8,000,000,000.

The figures discount absolutely the plea from big financial centers that the Government price fixing policy had cut profits to such an extent that the committee would be hampered in laying taxes, committee members declared today. Some coal firms, for instance, show a profit as high as 2,000 per cent., although coal was one of the first commodities on which prices were set.

While this is an extreme case committee members say it indicates how the value of business brought about by war conditions has boosted profits even with prices held down.

Record Caravan Invades Union And Middlesex

Union and Middlesex counties saw some novel campaigning this week when George La Record, candidate for the Republican United States senatorial nomination, made a tour of these counties and pitched his campaign tent in various places in Middlesex and Union. The Record expedition comprised two large auto trucks. On one of them was constructed the large circus tent under which all the Record meetings are held. The other trucks contained six hundred camp chairs which are used at the Record meeting. Col. John H. Adamson, the camaign manager, is in charge of the caravan. Assemblyman A. Bell Closs, of Essex, and former Assemblyman James G. Blauvelt, of Passaic, accompany Record and speak at his meetings. At some of the meetings there are also speeches by representatives of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association.

Record began his tour this week at Jamesburg, where he spoke Monday night. Tuesday night he addressed a meeting at Woodbridge.

Wednesday morning Record began the invasion of Union county. He spoke at Rahway on Wednesday night; at Westfield last night; and at Elizabeth tonight. Tomorrow night Record is due at Newark. This is the fourth week at Record's campaign tour. He expects to hold altogether one hundred meetings before the September primaries.

Shorter Skirts As A Method Of Saving In War Emergency

Simpler clothes for women is the next step to be taken to conserve materials, Hoods are high that one or two million dollars will be saved in this way toward financing the war.

Simple uniforms are urged for all women engaged in the various branches of war activity, and if possible, for a large number of other women. Frills are doomed, surplus pockets will be eliminated, pleatings and ruffles will be mode unpopular. Skirts They will be shorter when advisable, and stockings in winter will be heavier.

Leading women are giving the matter careful study with a view to supplementing regulations already promulgated as to shoes and men's clothing. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, chairman of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense, is in sympathy with the movement. She makes the following suggestions:

1. Women should economize by buying fewer clothes.

2. They should economize by buying simpler and more durable clothes.

3. They should take the material they already have on hand and make it over into new garments or into other articles for household use.

4. All that we can save by these economies should go toward buying Government securities.

Mrs. George Bass, secretary of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee, has a similar idea of diverting a big part of the expenditure for women's raiment to war bonds.

"There is a tendency developing," she said, "on the part of all women in various committees for war work to use a uniform. It is in the interest of economy. The uniform might be extended.

"There is no reason why women should not buy their clothes at a moderate price. It would be impossible to design clothes for all women. Some are tall, others are short; but it would be possible to have much more simplicity.

"Then there is another side. The war is making heavier demands on the tailoring shops. If the tailors are drafted into service these shops will welcome simpler styles."

Probe Probable In Telegraph Scandal

An investigation by the Department of Justice today is being made to determine whether Government messages were transmitted by the Western Union Company by messenger instead of wire.

If this were done it would constitute a fraud against the United States, punishable by heavy fine or imprisonment.

Following the seizure this week of great numbers of messages sent by messenger, but camouflaged to appear as having been sent by wire, the Government today is determining upon its next step. Postmaster-General Burleson will confer with President Wilson about this matter.

Further investigations by inspectors which may bear a Nation-wide practice on the part of the Western Union in delivering inter-city telegrams by train is continuing, it was stated at the postoffice department.

District attorneys at New York and Baltimore and perhaps Boston will prosecute for the Government on the charge of illegal competition with the Postoffice Department. Whether charges of defrauding the public also will be pressed has not been decided.

Ban Still Remains On Overseas Parcels

Postmaster Hoagland, of the local office, has received word from the War Department, that because of the congestion of the railroads in France, no exception can be made to the recent requirement that persons desiring to ship parcel post packages to soldiers overseas must present at the postal friends of the soldiers will find it possible to do a greater service to the men by sending them money for the purchase of articles in France than by forwarding articles, as most supplies can be obtained there.

Oscar Ditts, of Jackson avenue, the borough, has enlisted in the Marine Corps and will leave for Paris Island, S. C., sometime next week. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. K. Ditts.

Railroads Lose In Attack On State Tax Act

The imposing of an additional one mill on every dollar on first and fourth class railroad property in West Jersey by the State Board of Taxation has been sustained by the State Supreme Court in an opinion written by Justice Minturn and filed at Trenton, while the Edge Road Tax Act of 1917 has been upheld by the same tribunal in the decision. On the ground that railroad property is segregated for taxing purposes apart from other property and is assessed by the State tax board and the railroad tax act fixes a tax of one mill on the dollar on all real and personal property assessed locally, the Erie, Lehigh Valley Central and other railroad companies attacked the act. It was contended by them that it was not only imposing an additional mill upon the segregated property, but also adding to the general rateables of the State assessed locally and they raised the question as to whether it was the intent of the Legislature to impose this burden.

The act is mandatory in terms and requires the addition of the road tax to the local rates, so the Supreme Court holds, and thus necessarily increasing the several rates of taxation when the local rates are made on the basis of the computation of the State board according to the requirements of the tax act supplement of 1906. The opinion says that it must have been the intent of the Legislature to impose the additional tax or lack of consideration on the part of the law-making body for the mode of operating existing laws upon this subject, while it adds that the mind of the Legislature is presumed to be consistent, and, where its acts are ambiguous, they should be construed to be consistent with related statutes.

It is shown that the Legislature's intent was to increase the rate on first and fourth class railroad property, which compose the main steam and franchises, by one mill on the dollar, the opinion adds, by the wording of Chapter 230 of the laws of 1917, which provides for the appropriating of funds received for State road purposes.

The opinion states that this is to be added in the same manner as the State school tax which has never been questioned, while it adds that the action of the State board in including one mill as returned by the local assessors was in accordance with the spirit and letter of the legislation providing for it, and the proceedings of the board with respect to the assessing of these classes of railroad property for State highway funds should be affirmed.

The Supreme Court, however, in its affirmance refused to include that part of railroad property which is levied on Pullman car equipment on the Erie railroad, this being used in inter-State traffic and not taxable under New Jersey laws.

The Lehigh, Long Dock, United New Jersey and Canal, Hudson and Manhattan and the Raritan River companies joined with the Erie, Central and West Shore companies in the attack on the act.

Bonnie Burn's Cost Reaches Total Of A Million Dollars

With the opening of the new children's building on Decoration Day, and the awarding recently of the contracts for water filter, air compressor and scales, the Union County Board of Freeholders has fulfilled all but one of the suggestions that have annually been made by the Board of managers of the Bonnie Burn Sanatorium in its report. The institution now representing an outlay of nearly $1,000,000, but is regarded as one of the best of its kind in the country.

The one thing remaining to be done, according to the board of managers, is the installing of an emergency heating system. While the suggestion will hardly be taken as seriously in midsummer as in cold weather, the institution's officials contend that a warm weather is the time to put in the system. Last winter they spent many a day worrying over the possibility of the heating appturaus going wrong, with resulting conditions similar to those at Overbrook. Essex county, where hundreds died.

An effort is to be made to provide for such an emergency before the approach of cold weather, as the freeholders realize the necessity of making such provision. It will involve the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

A water filer and an air compressor are two other things that have been considered essential by the board of managers. The location of the sanatorium away from any city has necessitated dependence on its own resources for fire protection. The filter is necessary to purify the water before it runs from a large pond to a reservoir to be used for all purposes. The compressor is depended upon to provide sufficient pressure in case of fire.

Another improvement that will have to be made in the future is the erecting of separate dwellings for the employes. That recommendation was made in the last report of the board of managers, but will not be carried out this year, at least.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Smith, of Darrow avenue, are the parents of a daughter born to them a few days ago. Mr. Smith is head salesman at Gavett's crockery store.

Francis J. Deady, of West Fifth street, who is better known to his friends at "Pete," left Monday for the Brooklyn Navy Yard, having been accepted as a member of the naval reserves.

Harold Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius J. Williams, of West Front street, is one of the latest young Plainfielders to enlist in the naval reserves. He reported for duty at the Brooklyn Navy Yard this week.

Miss Maria Wehrlen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wehrlen, of 1021 West Front street, and William Browne, of Raritan, were married in St. Mary's church on Friday night. Rev. Father Holsters performed the ceremony. The young couple will make their home at Raritan.

Benjamin Rosenson, of East Fifth street, visited at his mother's home the forepart of the week. His company of stenographers, with which he had been connected since last November, went overseas recently but he was kept behind for special work at Camp Merritt. It si possible that he may remain at Merritt for a long time yet as he has become proficient in a department that is working day and night because of a shortage of men.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Anna Eleanor Sherwin, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Sherwin, of East Seventh street, to Private Van Schuyler, of Third place, this city. The ceremony took place at the First Baptist parsonage on January 23, and was performed by Rev. Dr. Phillip B. Strong. The bride was at one time a member of the Plainfield High School senior class. Mention of the marriage was not made until after she graduated last week and it came as a great surprise to her classmates and other friends. Mrs. Schuyler's father was the late Warren Sherwin, for many years proprietor of a shoe store on West Front street, and Walter Sherwin, the well known actor is her brother. Mr. Schuyler is in the regular army and is at present stationed at Fort Hamilton.

William A. Smith, who was assistant manager at the Plainfield Beef Company's plant on East Third street previous to enlisting in the Quartermasters' Corps last December, is among those who recently arriving overseas. Letters received by friends from him during the past week state that he had a pleasant voyage over and so far is enjoying his work immensely. Mr. Smith on entering the army was sent to Camp Johnston, Jacksonville, Fla., where he remained until this spring as a member of the commissary division.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Gould, who were married two weeks ago, have returned from their wedding trip to Baltomire and are residing at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCarthy, of 429 Orchard place.

Mrs. William B. Grannatt, of West Fourth street, who has been seriously ill for the past six months, is now able to be about the house for a short time each day.

Joseph A. Roach, of East Fifth street, who has been at Camp McClellan since last summer, was home this week for a forty-eight hour furlough. He is now located at Camp-Mills, L. I.

Joseph J. Tobin, of Spooner avenue, who went abroad several months ago as a member of the Aviation Signal Corps, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant. Information to this effect came in letters received by local friends this week.

Mrs. Edmund Waldorf and son, Edmund, of Crescent avenue, returned yesterday after a week's stay at Lake Hopatcong. Mrs. Waldorf proposes to spend the month of August at the same resort.

James Traynor, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Traynor, of East Second street, was at the home of his parents the forepart of the week on a brief furlough. He has been stationed at Camp McClellan for the past ten months as a member of an artillery division which was brought north a short time ago.

Release cards received by friends the past week indicate the safe arrival overseas of the following Plainfielders, Sergeant Stanley Banner, of East Fourth street; Private John T. Donnelly, of West Fourth street; John F. Casey, Jr., of West Third street, and Private Robert Sherwin, of East Seventh street.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of, Miss Ruth Klein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Klein, of East Second street, to First Lieutenant F. Weston Gavett, son of City Engineer and Mrs. A. J. Gavett, of West Fifth street. The ceremony was performed last Saturday afternoon by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the home of the bride's parents. Members of the immediate families were the only attendants. Lieutenant Gavett is a member of the Sanitary Corps stationed at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga. He is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and also of Cornell University. His bride was graduated from Pratt Institute and has been teaching domestic science in the Plainfield High School. The young couple will proceed to Camp Hancock after a brief wedding trip.

Former Councilman John H. Cose, of Spooner avenue, was able to return to his duties at the Elizabeth plant of the Standard Aero Corporation yesterday after three weeks' detention at home by an attack of malaria.

Miss Ora Evelyn Haines, daughter of C. F. Haines, of 1225 East Second street, and James A. Bremble, of the same address, were married a few nights ago by Rev. E. G. Read, acting pastor of the Fourth Reformed church. Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jordan acted as attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Faulkner, formerly of West Fourth street, this city, but now of Allentown, Pa., returned home the forepart of the week after a visit with friends at Manning, 19 Grant avenue. Mr. Faulkner is now in the employ of a large manufacturing concern at Allentown.

Ray Randolph, of No. 3 house, and George Leland, attached to headquarters, are enjoying their annual vacation from duty in the fire department. The former will spend his time in automobile trips to Asbury Park and other coast resorts, while Mr. Leland expects to enjoy a trip to New England.

Naval Reserves, having enlisted from Lafayette College, where he was taking a course in civil engineering. He was graduated from the Plainfield High School in 1914.

Mr. and Mrs. William Skinner, of Muhlenberg place, are the parents of a daughter born to them last Sunday. The little lady has been named Margaret Caroline.

Fuel Administrator Details New Rules For United County

County Fuel Administrator John K. English has issued the following instructions on coal matters to all of Union county:

1. No anthracite coal of sizes used by domestic consumers "stove—nut—pea—egg—broken No. 1 buckwheat) shall be delivered, except after the signing of proper application by consumer.

2. Retail dealers will furnish blank applications.

3. Prices will be fixed from time to time by the administration, and the price to be charged is that prevailing at the time of delivery.

4. Dealers will deliver to each applicant one-third of the requirements of such applicant for the year April 1, 1918, to April 1, 1919, (after deduction of estimated amount on hand April 1, 1918), but will not deliver a second one-third to any person until every other person making application to the same dealer, who is ready to receive and pay for the same, shall have received one-third of his or her requirements. However (by recent modifying order of State Administrator), any consumer may receive as much as six tons upon first installment.

5. Stores, laundries, schools, churches, hospitals, etc., shall receive the same proportion of their requirements as domestic consumers and in the same manner.

6. Consumers should be guided by last year's consumption in estimating their needs for the present year, but they will not be held to account because of an unintentional error made in regard to this year's requirements when making out application. Some consumers have not retained their records of last year's supply, and some have moved into new quarters.

7. A consumer, when stating upon his application the amount of his requirements for the year, need not order delivery of the full amount by such dealer. He may expect to move, and, therefore, intend to purchase the remainder elsewhere, or, for some other reason, my desire to have a smaller quantity only delivered.

8. Anthracite coal of sizes used by domestic consumers shall not be furnished to any consumer as a factor, except after exemption granted to such factory by the Federal Fuel Administrator, after application made by letter of the consumer addressed to J. D. A. Morrow, Esq., Director of Coal Distribution, Washington, D. C.

9. Carload or bargeload lots shall not be delivered to a single domestic consumer, or to a group of consumers, without special permission of the State Fuel Administrator; which permission will not be granted except for very good reasons.

10. The sale of coal by the bag is not forbidden, but it is not encouraged. Application must be filed in all cases.

11. The prohibitions as to amount of delivery and the rules relating to written applications, do not relate to bituminous coal, nor do they relate to anthracite coal of sizes other than those herein mentioned.

12. The Union County Administrator does not find it necessary now to visit his former headquarters at 207 Broad street, Elizabeth, except occasionally, in order to dictate letters. He may be found during business hours at 107 Broad street, if needed. However, all dealers in the county will be kept fully informed as to any changes which may be made in the regulations, and, therefore, will be able to enlighten all persons as to any matter which they do not fully understand.

13. The County Fuel Administrator, and members of the Advisory Committee will be glad to supply any information which the dealers may not be able to supply.

JOHN K. ENGLISH,
U. S. Fuel Administrator for Union County.

Government Seeks To Aid Manufacturers Held To Commissions

The Justice Department is taking steps to liberate many manufacturers from agreements with war contract brokers for handling bids on Government supplies.

But of the mass of papers seized in the Department's raids this week it developed the brokers' trust had formulated a form of agency agreement purporting to bind the manufacturer to pay the broker a commission upon all business done directly or indirectly with the Government or the Allies during the war.

Many firms, believing themselves held by the contracts, paid thousands of dollars as "rake-offs" on contracts in which there was no pretense of actual service by the agents.

When these agreements have been broken by the department the Government and manufacturers will immediately have the benefit of agents direct or without having bids handicapped by the padding of agents.

Most of these agreements it was found, were made early in the war before the magnitude of the Government's business and its demands upon industries was realized. Hence on small orders developed early the commissions did not amount to great sums. When the large orders began to come in, however, manufacturers placed themselves under promise to pay commissions far out of proportion to any legitimate service rendered, it is said. As a result they were forced to quote a price to the Government high enough to cover such gratuities to the commission men.

Withholds Approval Of Express Merger

Attorney General Gregory has refused to approve the form of contract between the railroad administration and the new Consolidated Express Company without some provision for restoration of competition after the war.

The Attorney General, John Barton Payne, chief counsel for the railroad administration, and C. A. Prouty, director of accounts for the railroad administration, conferred today in an effort to agree on a plan which would not give immunity from prosecution under the anti-trust laws to the express company after the war time emergency is past and which would be acceptable to the Consolidated Corporation meanwhile.

The Attorney General's attitude is understood to be that regardless of the urgency of unifying the express companies at this time, in a single agency of the railroad administration, the condition after the war might become illegal and the express monopoly subject to prosecution. Consequently he suggested a clause to be inserted in the contract to remove any ground on which the company might claim government sanction for the combination in peace times.

Although the express companies have made no formal announcement, their officers have indicated that the consolidation for operating purposes was planned as permanent.

PERSONAL

James McGraw Declares He Is Not A Candidate

Despite the very strong pressure that has been brought to bear on James H. McGraw, of Madison, by his many friends and former political associates to induce him to become the Republican candidate for the Congressional office in the Fifth district, Mr. McGraw has declined to enter the contest.

Although he considered the proposition from a sense of public duty in a perilous time, Mr. McGraw has been obliged, it was learned today, to put the suggestion aside, because of a press of business affairs and because the condition of his health will not allow him to take on other arduous duties.

It is known, too, that Mr. McGraw does not feel impelled to serve for the reason that there are other men of ability in the district who are available.

The announcement that Mr. McGraw was being urged to become a candidate made a strong impression, it said in political circles. The suggestion that such men of prominence as himself and Senator Ernest R. Ackerman should represent this important district, it is pointed out, indicates that the Republicans are looking for the best material.

Mrs. Joseph Clark and son, Joseph Clark, Jr., have been spending the past month at Midland Beach.

THE WAR SAVINGS CAMPAIGN.

It is highly gratifying to Chairman Ackerman and the members of his committee to note that the people of this community have entered into the spirit of War Savings Stamp week with a will and determination that spells success in large letters. Everywhere the pledge cards have been readily signed, not only by children but by adults who realized that there is always some way in which they can help to make America victorious in the gigantic struggle. There is still a chance for those who have not yet pledged themselves to purchase the stamps. They should lose no time in putting themselves down for as large an amount as possible and thereby comply with the request of President Wilson when he said it was the duty of every citizen to pledge himself to do what he could.

We are called upon to do this because this is a war of nations, not of armies, and everyone in the land must do his share. So far more than 2,000,000 men have gone into the Army and Navy and 1,000,000 more are to join before August 1. These 3,000,000 men give themselves as their donation to the war. The remaining 97,000,000 people left at home must give something else as their share.

This savings pledge gives the stay-at-homes an opportunity for service. We are asked to pledge ourselves to save and economize to use labor and materials only as necessity demands, and to invest our savings in War Savings Stamps. The Government asks us to do this because the amount of labor and materials in the country is limited; there is not enough of either to permit us to use it in the same free way as we did in peace times and at the same time to leave enough in the markets for the use of the Government. It is purely a question of supply and demand. If we use the supply the Government does not have it for war needs. And the smaller the amount the Government has for use the longer will the war last. That is the primary reason for the savings campaign.

But there is another side of the question. The Government asks us to pledge ourselves to save to help win the war It does not ask us to give it anything except our co-operation. In return for our help we receive a Government security which pays us a good rate of interest.

If we do as the Government asks and as we should do, this, then, will be the result. We shall buy only those things necessary to maintain us in the best of health and spirits, by refraining from buying unnecessary things we shall leave in the markets for Government use a greater supply of labor and material with which to win a quicker victory; by not frittering our money away on things that do not make for efficiency we shall keep ourselves in better health and increase our powers of production; by investing our savings in War Savings Stamps we shall be putting aside for those days which inevitably come. If we live long enough, the means to greater happiness.

When so much can be accomplished by joining in this War Savings campaign, why should we not do it?

A WARNING FROM BOUND BROOK.

There is a lesson for Plainfield in the fatal accident at Bound Brook, Monday morning, when Benjamin B. K. Burke was ground to death beneath a train because the crowd awaiting the departure of selected men pressed the unfortunate man back as he attempted to alight from a car step. That such a thing has not occurred at the North avenue station since the advent of big crowds everytime a national army contingent goes away is more good luck than management.

Mr. Burke was coming into Bound Brook from Hopewell. As the train drew into the station, he made preparations to get off quickly and consequently did not notice the big gathering at the station all intent on giving a last good-bye to the boys starting for Camp Dix. Scores of persons crowded close to his train and as the passenger swung to the ground he suddenly discovered that he might be pushed back and clung fast to the hand rail. This brought about exactly what he sought to avoid as in an instant he was jerked from his feet and thrown beneath the wheels. His body was terribly mangled causing death a short time later.

At the North avenue station, in this city, it has been noticed several times that reckless men have almost given their lives in an effort to edge nearer conscripts as the train pulled in. It is the custom to put up guard ropes about the platform after the selectives first arrive at the depot but as the moment of departure comes these are taken down. Instantly all is confusion as everyone rushes for a common center and this is where the danger lies and which, if continued, may bright about just such a frightful accident as appalled the crowd at Bound Brook. Further than this, selectives themselves have a habit of waiting until the last minute before they board the train and here again is danger. At Monday's departure, a conscript from South Plainfield, who had been permitted to start from this city, rushed up after the 9:38 local had started to pull out. He sought to climb in the open door of the baggage car but failed after two attempts. He was trying a third time when two members of the Home Guards pulled him back by main strength. Afterward helping him to gain the step of the last car.

These invitations to fatal results can be and should be stopped. One way is to maintain the roped off space at the station at all times, allowing only relatives to pass within the enclosure for the final fond farewells, when the train approaches everyone can be put back by the police and Home Guards. In addition, no one should be allowed to rush for the train after it has started. Why not adopt these precautions now and avoid duplicating the Bound Brook affair?

THE ETIQUETTE OF THE FLAG.

It is very evident to observing persons that very few Plainfielders know how to show proper respect to the flag. All you have to do for verification of this statement is to watch how the crowd behaves as the selective men walk toward the North avenue station as they did last Monday. Once in a great while you will see one or two individuals with a full knowledge of flag etiquette remove their hats as the emblematic banner is carried by. The remainder of the observers will give no outward appearance of recognized action. Perhaps they may applaud the marchers or shout expressions of good luck but Old Glory for the moment has no especial significance.

Failure to pay proper respect to the flag in parades is duplicated at other times by patriotic but uninformed citizens. Under these circumstances it may not be amiss to print the flag etiquette as authorized by the National Committee of Patriotic Societies of Washington, D. C. It is given below in full, cut it out and keep it where you can frequently read it and remember the important directions:

"When the colors are passing, the spectator, if a man, should halt if walking, arise if sitting and uncover, holding the headdress opposite the left shoulder with the right hand; if bareheaded, he should salute with the right hand. A woman should stand at attention as the flag passes by.

"When the flag is waving from a stationary flag-staffs or pole it is not saluted with the hand.

"In decorating, the flag should never be festooned or draped. Always hung flat. If hung with stripes horizontal, Union should be in upper left corner. If hung perpendicularly, Union should be in upper right corner.

"When the flag is carried in parade, or when crossed with other flags, the stars and stripes should always be at the right.

"The law specifically forbids the use of and representation of the flag in any manner or in any connection with merchandise for sale.

"The flag should be raised at sunrise and lowered at sunset. It should not be displayed on stormy days or, except under fire of the enemy, left out over night. Although there is no authoritative ruling which compels civilians to lower the flag at sundown, good taste should impel them to follow the traditions of the army and navy in this sundown ceremonial. Primarily the flag is raised to be seen, and, secondarily, the flag is something to be guarded, treasured, and so tradition holds it shall not be menaced by the darkness. To leave the flag out at night, unattended, is proof of shiftlessness, or at least carelessness.

"On Memorial Day, the flag should be displayed at half-mast from unrise until noon, and at the peak from noon until sunset. It should, on being retired, never be allowed to touch the ground.

"When the 'Star-Spangled Banner' is played or sung, uncover, stand and remain standing, IN SILENCE, until it is finished.

"Applause at the conclusion of the 'Star-Spangled Banner' is out of place.

"Worn-out and useless flags should be destroyed by burning.

"A flag torn or frayed by the weather should never again be hoisted until it has been repaired. This is a regulation of both the army and navy and should also be followed by all civilians."

SPEAKING OF LETTERS, Y IS THE FOURTH OF JULY?

Goodness knows the dove is badly soiled, but we are mighty glad to see it roosting in the Watching avenue dome.

A subscriber signing "Vox Populi," writes to tell us that this whole affair about the municipal building was "only a tempest in a teapot." Worse than that. It was a typhoon in a demi-tasse.

Down at the Hall itself even the laborers have their own way of celebrating the declaration of peace. Several of them on Tuesday got so enthusiastic over the coming in of union workers that they knocked a back concrete stairway all to pieces. Some say it was done because non-union labor put it together and others declare it is to make the exit larger as you never know when it might be needed in an emergency.

Quit your talkin' about high explosives. They are as nothing compared with the shock occasioned at the Courier-News sanctum when the Rip Van Winkling staff first heard via the Record that the City Hall had been put back on the fair list.

And they do say that Milly became so 'tigitated over the loss of the story that he banged out a double batch of "twenty-five years ago" and otherwise so far forgot himself that the political editor slipped across another paragraphic bouquet for his favorite congressional candidate.

After looking over the various assortment of cars carrying troops through Plainfield we have reached the conclusion that it will be a wise coach that knows its own road after the war is over.

Now comes another bunch of Kaiser-maniacs with a plan to re-name all the popular variety of roses bearing Prussian-like titles. Let's see, what was it that old Bill Shakespeare said about a rose?

The Public Service has a cute way of preventing possible tie-ups on its trolley lines. It has issued an order that in the event of an argument between a conductorette and a lady passenger that the l. p. is to be allowed the last word.

Take the man who is so cross-eyed that his eyeballs are turned around sufficiently for him to look at the back of his head. Even he ought to be able to see that a man of common sense will telephone his dealer today to send on a few tons of coal for next winter.

When is a married man not a married man? That is the question which the Plainfield Draft Board is now deciding as it carefully scans the registrants who have been hiding behind Class IV-A.

Food Conservation is necessary, so don't grumble. And our idea is that the ultimate consumer is not grumbling at the short ration so much as he is at the long robbery.

Raising the passenger fares and adding on eight per cent. to say nothing of a little extra half-cent a mile for Pullman, has made home look so beautiful that we are almost tempted to unveil our "God Bless Our Flat" motto.

It was in a school not more than a thousand miles away from Plainfield and the class in elementary law had been called up for final review before last week's graduation. The teacher, an old time practitioner who had quit the bar because of complexities in legal procedure which did not conform with his ideas, adjusted his eye-glasses and with a "Now I've got you" smile propounded the following question:

"When is a contract not a contract?"

In the silence that followed the proverbial pin would have made a clankety-clank like a Jersey Central pusher engine. Then of a sudden, little Rolla Onderdonk, whose father discusses town happenings at the tea table, raised his hand.

"Please, sir, he began when permission to speak had been given, "your interrogation has evidently been put in good faith but as a one time follower of Blackstone, you should realize it is very much out of order. The Plainfield City Hall Committee is the only organization, individually or collectively, which knows when a contract is not a contract and as it has never filed briefs the answer remains a municipal secret."

Whereat the professor closed his book with a bang of deep displeasure and muttering that the kids nowadays knew too blame much, ordered the whole class into the next room for pointers on Civil Government.

Regulation Type Of Ethiopian Skull Saves Colored Youth Shot In Head Three Times

Possession of an armor-plate skull is all that saved the life of James Anderson, the sixteen-year-old colored boy who on Monday last was shot in the head three times by Fortuana Sweeney, also colored, and of the same age.

The shooting episode occurred on West Third street, near Plainfield avenue, and followed a quarrel between the pair over a plan to run away from home. Sweeney procured the revolver, a twenty-two caliber, and blazed away at close range at the other lad. The first two bullets fired struck him in the forehead but both flattened out on encountering the skull and caused no special damage. A third missile penetrated the lad's left eye and undoubtedly itself somewhere in his head. At Muhlenberg Hospital Dr. Zeglio removed the first two pieces of lead without any trouble, but the one shattering the eye could not be located. For a time the patient's life was in danger but it was said today that his chances for recovery are good.

Sweeney made his escape after the fracas but was arrested shortly after 8 o'clock Monday night at Watchung Avenue and Fourth street. He was seen by Anderson's mother as she was returning from Muhlenberg Hospital by trolley and on giving the information at police headquarters her son's assailant was quickly apprehended. He explained to Judge DeHass in court Tuesday morning that Anderson had been the aggressor in the quarrel and repeatedly dared him to "go home and get his gun." Nevertheless the prisoner was sent to Elizabeth without bail to wait the action of the Grand Jury on a technical charge of atrocious assault.

Both youths implicated in the affair have a police record. They have been arrested several times and a year ago both were sent to the Jamesburg reformatory after they had been convicted of despoiling the plumbing and other fixtures in a vacant house on West Seventh street, near Plainfield avenue. Their purpose was to sell the lead pipe, brass and iron secured to junkmen. They were apprehended before getting any money for their booty but the damage they did amounted to about $2,000. Anderson was released from the reformatory on parole but Sweeney made his escape several months ago. So far as the local police know he had not been in Plainfield until the day in which Anderson was shot. It is said that he came in town for the expressed purpose of getting the other lad to go away with him and when he refused the quarrel followed.

Sweeney's mother is a widow living on Plainfield avenue. He is the eldest of five children. Anderson's home is at 544 West Third street.

Councilman Sminck Expresses Views on Volunteer Firemen

Because of the shortage of men, many of the fire departments of the country are seriously considering the introduction of volunteers to help out should a serious blaze occur. New York is one of the places where the matter is being vigorously pushed and communications pro and con anent the subject have been published in metropolitan newspapers. One of the most interesting of these came from Councilman Charles S. Sminck, of this city, and was published in the last issue of "The Fire Engineer." As Mr. Sminck has made a study of fire matters through being a member of the local Fire Board, his observations carry much weight. They are as follows:

Editor, The Fire Engineer.

Dear Sir:—As editorial in The World of June 10th mentioned a possible volunteer addition to the fire fighting force of New York city. This is made necessary because the Army drain has fallen very heavily upon the rank and file of the department. Of course, it is assumed that volunteer firemen, particularly for the Borough of Manhattan, will be trained men. Otherwise, they would not be effective.

Imagine, if you please, volunteer firemen at work at a disastrous fire among the tall warehouses and skyscrapers of Manhattan. A trained reserve would be necessary to meet that situation. Should a large devastating fire happen in Manhattan, south of Fourteenth street, covering an extended area, the chances are that the loss of property would be so great that neither New York, nor any other large city, should experiment would untrained volunteer firemen. A trained, equipped, thoroughly drilled body of firemen is as necessary to our national life and to our future as are the Army and Navy of the United States.

More Drastic Sugar Rules In Effect July 1

New sugar regulations to go into effect July 1 will be even more radical than the restrictions now in force, according to State Food Administration officials. The new rulings are expected to prevent a serious shortage of sugar for home consumption and at the same time give a sufficient quantity of home preserving. The Nation, as a result of the orders, will be put on a three pound per capita monthly ration basis.

Fifty per cent. of normal requirements will be allowed "less essential" manufacturers, in comparison to eighty per cent. now allowed. Manufacturers of ice cream, who have, up to this time, been allowed their normal needs, will be allowed only seventy-five per cent. under the new rulings. Soda fountains will be cut to fifty per cent. of normal. Saloons also, as well as breweries, will be permitted to use only half their normal quantities. Ice cream made by soda fountain proprietors and confectioners on the premises will have its sugar content cut to fifty per cent. of normal. Manufacturers of preserved fruits for soda fountains also will be placed on the fifty per cent. basis.

Lack of shipping facilities, submarine activities and a decrease in importations from Cuba are held responsible for the new restrictions.

Single-Seat Planes Soon To Be Built Here

American aeroplane factories soon will be called upon to produce a fast single-seated fighting plane in addition to the bombing planes now being constructed. Preparations for the production of the smaller and lighter plane, it is stated authoritatively, are under way, although details as to construction and tests of the machine have not been made public.

The new planes will be the first of the type to be constructed in this country for the American Government. On account of the constant improvements being made upon the fast machines upon recommendations of General Pershing all previous contracts, amounting to approximately $65,000,000, were placed with firms abroad.

Decision to build the single-seat planes in this country is taken to indicate the army officials believe the day of the two-man duels in the air is passing and that the pursuit planes are becoming more and more useful.

Great Work Of Women In Last Big Loan Drive

In the third Liberty Loan campaign it is estimated that not less than 500,000 women engaged in selling Liberty Bonds under the various units organized by the National Woman's Liberty Loan Committe and forty per cent. of the total subscriptions are believed to be due to the efforts of women's organizations.

"By the time the third Liberty Loan campaign was under way the National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee had completed its organization in every State in the country and in the Territory of Alaska," the committee reports. "The plan of organization provides for State chairmen in complete charge of women's activities for the Liberty Loan in her State, subject only to direction from the National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee in Washington. The State chairman appoints a chairman in each county, the county chairman in turn appointing township and village chairmen.

"The figures giving the total amount of bonds actually sold by the women's Liberty Loan committees throughout the country are incomplete, as they are compiled from the daily report cards of the township, village, and county chairmen, and do not include large numbers of subscriptions secured through the efforts of women's committees, but of which no record was kept. In many localities, too, it was impossible for the women's committees to segregate results secured through their organizations because of the adoption of the allotment system. However, from statements made by bankers and chairmen of men's committees, as well as from the reports made to the National Woman's Liberty Loan committee it is a conservative estimate to ascribe forty per cent. of the total subscriptions to the efforts of women's organizations.

"It is interesting to note that the reports, incomplete as they are, show that the women's work in the State of Delaware resulted in raising 121 per cent. of the entire quota for the State; in Arizona, eighty-two per cent. of the State quota was raised by the women; fifty-five and three-quarters per cent. in Missouri; forty-nine per cent. in Kentucky; between forty and fifty per cent. in the States of Alabama, West Virginia, Georgia, North Carlina, Wyoming and Nevada; over one-third of the State quotas in Kansas, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Connecticut, Tennessee, Virginia and Montana; and in South Carolina, Mississippi, Arkansas, Illinois, New Mexico and Texas, over one-fourth of the State quotas. In the city of Philadelphia $54,209,850 was reported as the result of activities of the Woman's Liberty Loan committee from house-to-house canvass, work among churches, shops, booths, private schools, theaters, dressmakers, nurses, hospitals, etc. Pittsburgh reports a total of $37,500,000 secured through the Woman's Liberty Loan committee, and Chicago reports $30,-$50,000.

"On the basis of the amount of subscriptions per capita secured through women's work Natrona county, Wyo., holds the highest record, the per capita subscription being $87.42; Gila county, Ariz., ranking second, with a per capita subscription of $45.89; with Hartford county, Conn., a close third, with $45.61; White Pine county, Nev., fourth, with $41.01 per capita, and Adams county, Ill., fifth, with a per capita subscription of $33.50, due to women's activities.

"The women of Rio Arrabi county, N. Mex., raised 511 per cent. of the quota for that county. There were numerous instances of counties in which the entire quota was raised by the women, the additional efforts of the men and women together resulting in large oversubscriptions, and of counties in which the quota was doubled and trebled, due to the efforts of the women.

"These remarkable results were accomplished only through the greatest sacrifice and devotion of the thousands of individual women workers, as instanced by the fact that hundreds donated their time and then refused to present bills for expenses incurred; instanced, also, by the numerous cases of women who rode horseback long distances in sparsely settled sections or walked miles in the rural districts because the horses could not be spared from the spring planting, visiting isolated farms and remote ranches which could be reached in no other way.

"One of the outstanding features of the women's participation in the Liberty Loan campaigns is the almost negligible expense of their work. In the State of Pennsylvania, for example, the amount raised by the women was $134,434,280, at a cost of $60 for every million dollars' worth of bonds sold. In the State of Tennessee, $8,012,250 was raised by the women at a cost of $0.000¾ per dollar subscribed.

"In this campaign, as in the two preceding ones, the fact has again been brought out that the greatest glory of the women's work lies not in the amount of bonds sold—proportionately high though this is—but in the large number of subscriptions secured. While the women's committees throughout the country have some of the largest individual subscriptions to their credit they have been largely instrumental in securing the smaller subscriptions, the ones that are hardest to get, but which mean the most from the standpoint of the awakening of a National spirit. And it is, perhaps, in this awakening of the people to the necessity of their support of the Government in this crisis that the value of women's participation in financing the war is most clearly demonstrated."

U. S. Foreign Trade Shows Big Increase

American foreign trade for 1918 reached its highest point in May, according to figures announced by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce. Exports totaled $553,000,000, an increase of $52,000,000 over April, while imports mounted to $323,000,000, an increase of $44,000,000 over the previous month. This is the highest monthly total for imports, and the fourth highest for exports in the history of our foreign trade.

For the eleven months ended with May the value of exports reached $5,445,000,000, a decrease as compared with the $5,717,000,000 recorded for the corresponding period in 1917. Imports for the eleven months ended with May were valued at $2,686,000,000, an increase of $333,000,000 compared with the $2,353,000,000 for a similar period in 1917.

Imports of gold show a slight upward trend over previous months amounting to over $6,000,000 in May and $92,000,000 for the eleven months ended with May. Exports of gold amounted to less than $4,000,000in May and $188,000,000 in the eleven months.

Imports as well as exports of silver continue to increase, the imports amounting to $7,000,000 in May and to $65,000,000 in the eleven months ended with May, which is double the imports of a year ago. Exports of silver during May amounted to $46,-000,000 against $6,000,000 a year ago and $131,000,000 for the eleven moths ended with May, against $69,-000,000 for the corresponding period of 1917.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

SAMUEL H. GOFF.

The funeral of Samuel H. Goff, whose death occurred Friday night, after a long illness, was held in St. Joseph's church, the borough, Tuesday morning, when a solemn requiem mass was offered for the repose of his soul. Rev. Father Campbell was celebrant, Rev. Father Baldwin, deacon, and Rev. Father Hart, sub-deacon. Numerous beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends of the family gave evidence of the esteem in which the young man was held. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: James Carlin, John Goff, Frank Burke, John Carty, Edward Taylor and John Crowley.

Mr. Goff was born in Elizabeth forty years ago but came to Plainfield with his parents when he was a mere child. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Goff, of Dover street, the borough, who are widely known in this community. For a number of years the son was associated with his father in the cafe business at Third and Liberty streets and also on Park avenue. Retiring from this field, he engaged in wholesale and retail vegetable selling and also in the wood business. In each of these he was quite successful and had built up a large trade when his illness began.

Mr. Goff's trouble was due to an organic disturbance which first became serious about three years ago. One of its first inroads deprived him of his eyesight and although he withstood the affliction with great fortitude he was unable to combat the ravaging disease which continued to undermine his health. The end came as a distinct relief to a pain-racked body placed beyond the mercies of doctor or surgeon.

Beside his parents Mr. Goff is survived by his wife and two children, John, aged twelve, and Elwood, aged seven. The family resided at 23 Howard street, the borough. There are also surviving one brother, John Goff, Jr., of Philadelphia, and two sisters, Mrs. John W. Kelley, of Westfield, and Mrs. John J. Toohey, of Boston. The deceased had been a communicant of first St. Mary's church, and later of St. Joseph's church. His only fraternal affiliation was as a member of Auxiliary No. 4 A. O. H.

HENRY H. COREY.

After an illness of only three days with pleuro-pneumonia, Henry H. Corey, a resident of Plainfield for many years and prominent in labor union circles through being president of the local Trades Council, died Monday morning at his home at 1230 West Third street. He suffered a slight cold early last week which developed pneumonia Thursday night. Dr. Albert Pittis was summoned at the first indication of the malady but although the physician exerted himself to the utmost he was unable to ward off the demise.

The funeral was held at the Third street address Tuesday night and was largely attended by members of the Trades Council, employes of the Dunellen Press Works of Dunellen, where the deceased worked, and other friends. Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, was the officiating clergyman. Burial took place in Hillside cemetery Wednesday morning.

Mr. Corey was born in 1861 and had lived in Plainfield the greater part of his life. As a young man, he was an enthusiastic baseball player and held positions on a number of representative teams in the past. One of these was the Old Crescents of thirty years ago and of which he was a bright particular star for several seasons. He has been interested in the unionising of machinists, this being his trade for many years, and was one of the prime movers in starting local No. 261, I. A. of M. For several years he has served as president of the Plainfield Trades Council, which numbers a large number of separate unions, including the house trades, directing the organized labor affairs of the city and borough.

Mr. Corey's death came as a great shock to his friends and especially among his associates at the Hall Press Works at Dunellen and in the Trades Council. He had many likeable ways that won friends easy and his company and advice were frequently sought by a large part of them. Beside his connection with the Trades Council and membership in the Machinists' Union he also belonged the Hall Mutual Aid Society. He was unmarried and leaves no near relatives.

MONROE L. DEAN.

Monroe L. Dean, the six-year-old son of Daniel and Elizabeth A. Dean, died Monday after a brief illness. The funeral was held at the parents' home, 6 Whitewood avenue, the borough, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Case, of the Temple Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Freligh Tells Of Flag's Formation

How to hang the American flag when not suspended from a staff is a question that is often asked. Only the other day the New York World and several other newspapers gave lengthy directions for the display of Old Glory and although there were concise they did not measure up to the form as outlined by Charles P. Freligh, of the borough, one of the most enthusiastic patriots of this vicinity.

Mr. Freligh has frequently contributed verses to the columns of the Record, taking for his theme each time an up-to-date subject. As how to hang the flag has been repeatedly asked of him he cleverly embodied the answer in a poem which also tells how the States entered the Union and which star represents them. His effusion is as follows:

EACH STATE HAS ITS OWN FLAG.

While the stary emblem's floating
Did you ever hesitate
To see what star in that great flag
Belonged to your own home State?
Now start in the left hand corner
Then read from the left to right.
New number one is Delaware,
Which whe first to see the light;
Then number two is Penny State,
New Jersey is number three;
Georgia four, Connecicut five,
Number six is Mass., you see;
Maryland is number seven,
And South Caroline, it is eight;
New Hamphire nine, Virginia ten,
And eleven is New York State;
North Carolina number twelve,
And thirteen is Rhode Island;
Vermont fourteen, fifteen Kentuck,
Tennessee sixteen, that's my land;
Seventeen, that is Ohio;
Louisiana eighteen;
Nineteen is Indiana,
Very near though it may seem;
Twenty, that's Mississippi;
Twenty-one is Illinois,
Twentytwo is Alabama,
Where they camped most all our boys;
Twenty-three is the State or Maine;
Twenty-four Missouri grand;
Twenty-five that is Arkansas,
Twenty-six is Michigan;
Florida is twenty-seven,
Texas, twenty-eight, slipped in;
Twenty-nine that is Iowa;
Number thirty Wisconsin;
Thirty-one is California;
Minnesota thirty-two;
State of Oregon thirty-three;
Thirty-four is Kansas true;
Thirty-five is West Virginia,
Thirty-six Nevada great;
Thirty-seven is Nebraska,
Colorado we thirty-eight.
North Dakota is thirty-nine,
And South Dakota forty;
Montana that was forty-one,
Washington two and forty,
Then Idaho was forty-three,
Then forty-four, Wyoming;
Then Utah next was forty-five;
The other three got lonely,
Then Oklahoma forty-six,
New Mexico forty-seven,
Then Arizona, forty-eight.
Now the blue field looks like Heaven.

Only Minor Changes In Daylight Savings During Coming Year

Present application of the daylight saving law, as its affects localities, will probably be changed in detail by the Interstate Commerce Commission before the 1919 spring advance touches American clocks, though in the main, investigations now proceeding find the hour advance working satisfactorily.

While the duty of prescribing the limits of the four time zones in the United States fell to the commission, as a temporary expedient it adopted the demarkations of Eastern, Central, Mountain and Pacific time as made by railroads, and fixed a fifth belt to govern Alaska.

Examiners were sent out to see whether changes in the railroad time limits would not convenience business and social life it adopted. They have found to date a number of points, generally on the eastern edge of time limit belts, which already had systems of daylight saving by running on the hours of the belt adjacent to them.

Specifically, the law defines the hour zones across the United States as centering respectively upon the seventy-fifth, ninetieth, 105th and 120th meridians west of Greenwich, with borders equidistant between the meridians. The commission exercised its power to set aside these standards and adopted the existing railroad zones, which are only roughly similar to the legal ones, in order not to confuse and disturb the course of life.

In the main, it is expected that the examiners will report the railroad zones suitable, though changes in them will be made where workability of the law and ease of application can be obtained.

LEAVING FOR HOPATCONG.

Former Freeholder and Mrs. G. P. T. Wilbur, of Westervelt avenue, will leave tomorrow for Lake Hopatcong, where they will spend the summer at their cottage, "Elkwood," in Castle Rock Park.

State Chairman Discussed Situation In Fifth District

John A. H. Hopkins, State chairman of the recently organized National Party, upon being interviewed regarding the Congressional situation in the Fifth Congressional District, issued the following statement:

"The contest for the seat left vacant by the death of Congressman Capstick will not be allowed to go by default by the National Party. This is particularly true because there seems to be a demand from the more progressive and independent voters of the district for a candidate of a different type than the usual candidate put forth either of the older parties. These voters want a man with a record free from partisanship—who in addition to supporting the President in his war aims, which are and have from its inception been identical with the war program of the Nationalist group, is in favor of a definite and determined program for the meeting of the problems which may be said to be incidental to the war and yet which must more and more engage the attention of all true patriots. To properly represent this district there must be a Congressman who not only will help to win the war, but one who will help to realize the democratic aspirations of the people by giving careful attention to the problems of government ownership of the railroad arteries of commerce, to the problem of war taxation, the logical extension of government ownership and operation to the other great basic industries such as mines, water powers, timber lands, meat packing plants, etc. Such a man will favor the extension of the postal system with its great Savings Bank and Parcel Post, the extension or further and greater aid to farmers by extending the provisions of the Federal Farm Loan law so that those who desire to acquire farm lands or equipment may be aided, that advances may be made upon crops, insurance be secured for both farms, stock, and crops against natural calamities; and for the transportation and marketing of our food products at prices that are fair and satisfactory to the farmer and the consumer, for the Federal inspection and grading of all grain and other farm products at terminals, for the untaxing of all farm improvements, stock and equipment, and for direct governmental assistance to farmers' co-operative organisations. In addition to this he should have decided ideas as to the improvement of labor conditions through limitation, if necessary, or immigration; protection against sickness and injury by governmental insurance; better inspection of factories, etc.; the enactment and enforcement of child labor laws and laws in protection of the health of working women; the barring from inter-state commerce of products of convicts under private contract; and laws protecting organized labor in its unquestion right to organize for its own self-protection with all safeguards possible to them.

"Above all he should favor the immediate enactment of war prohibition so that we may no longer have the spectacle of the great brewing industry wasting sorely needed coal in its breweries and saloons, while their product consumes enough foodstuffs to feed the entire American army in the field.

"Patriotic—yes, most decidedly—not only in striving to win the war in Europe but also by keeping up our morale by working at home for the democracy for which we are so earnestly fighting abroad. And we cannot truly fight for democracy until we have enfranchised the American women who are giving their sons and brothers and husbands for the defence of the world against the brutal autocracy of the modern Attila.

"Such a candidate will be in the field and will reflect credit upon the two great counties of Morris and Union when on Election Day they cast their votes for him against the candidates of the reactionary and undemocratic machines for the old parties."

Upon being questioned as to the recent announcement of the candidacy of ex-Senator Ackerman, Mr. Hopkins said: "I have not before me the announcement of his candidacy, but my recollection is that he stated that he believes that the only issue is the winning of the war, and that his desire to be elected to help win it is purely impersonal. Our candidate will have as great a desire to serve the people of the district in helping to win the war as the Senator, and he desires the office for the purpose of helping shape the fight for a real victory. It will not be an impersonal campaign (although it will not be a campaign of personalities in the bad sense), but a real old-fashioned canvass of the district with the will and intention to win."

Food Commission Deals Sad Blow To Free Lunch

And now the free lunch of the saloon, alias the "buffet" in that class of dispensaries designed as "cafes," is under regulation by the United States Food Administration in New Jersey. Action to regulate them in this State was taken today by Charles A. Carrigan, head of the Hotel and Restaurant Division of the Food Administration in the State, laying down regulations governing the character of comestibles which may be gratuitously provided with "purchased potables. The free lunch is not barred only modified.

Housing Funds Granted Two New Jersey Towns

Two New Jersey manufacturing communities—New Brunswick and Phillipsburg—have been placed on the list of those places which are to receive financial aid from the industrial housing division of the Department of Labor. The claims of Newark, which have been presented to this branch of the government as well as to the housing bureau of the Shipping Board, are still unsettled. The federal authorities are still relying on improved transportation facilities in the Newark-New York district to take care of the situation there.

The only other New Jersey town which is receiving aid is Camden. There the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the Shipping Board is erecting fifty cottages near the plant of the New York Ship Building Company. Lake Denmark, where the army has a powder plant and Dover are in the list of eligibles for aid from the Department of Labor, but no definite action has been taken.

Just how much money will be allotted at Phillipsburg and New Brunswick is not known yet. It was stated at the office of Secretary of Labory Wilson that it has been designated by President Wilson to carry on the new work, that this announcement will be made in a couple of days.

It is probable that the Plainfield Business Men's Association and local manufacturers may petition the Government for financial aid to help out the situation in this city.

Councilman and Mrs. Chauncey L. High, of Albert street, are the parents of a son born to them Sunday.

"Sam" Wilbur "Does A Bit" Escorting Stranded Soldiers And Thereby Hangs The Tale

There are so many ways of "doing your bit in this big war, that no one has an excuse for remaining idle. At least, that's the way former Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur feels about it and to bear out his belief he tells the circumstance that happened a few days ago. Incidentally in contributing his mite, "Sam" found that he was doing a favor for a friend, in one of these odd ways demonstrating that the world is only a very small place after all.

It was on Saturday of last week that the well known and popular Plainfielder was on his way to business in New York. At the Communipaw terminal he noticed a troop train unloading in the yards. On many previous occasions he had noticed the unloading of other troop trains without changing his course any but something about this particular one compelled him to stop. Curious to see just how detraining was done he went over to watch the boys at work.

It was an artillery division and presently the different companies began swinging forward with their personal baggage and ordnance. Commands were being issued continually by the officers, causing a babel of voices that intermingled with the general noise about the yards. All of a sudden the Plainfielder was positive he heard a familiar tone calling out "'Tention, men," and looking to see where it came from discovered no less a personage than Lieutenant "Jack" Caulfield, of this city. The latter had been at Camp McClellan since last summer and was on his way to Long Island with the division to which he was assigned after graduating from the Officers' Training School.

According to "Sam," Lieutenant "Jack" makes one of the finest appearances of any fellow ever fitting into an American uniform and it was hard for the former to realize that the dapper young officer was the young Plainfielder he had known the time he was a boy. Military discipline permits of no inopportune handshakes but the lieutenant managed to say a few words to friend Wilbur before sending his men on the waiting ferryboat. "Jack" asked for a lot of his friends in Plainfield and in return received the best wishes of the former Rreeholder and the most important news about the old town that he could think of.

A few moments after Lieutenant Caulfield had disappeared on board the vessel that was to take them around the Battery to the East River, Mr. Wilbur was called to by a Jersey Central station man who knew him. The railroader was accompanied by two officers, a captain and a lieutenant who had gotten confused in the maze of railroad tracks and train sheds and consequently were left behind when their commands went down the river. The officers explained that they wanted to get to the East Thirty-fourth street ferry as quickly as possible in order to join their company as it came in but knowing nothing about New York, were seeking the clearest set of directions as to how to proceed.

"Well, I'll tell you," remarked the accommodating Sam. "In this war everybody has to do his little bit and this is one chance I have to do mine. I am due at my office but things over there can wait and I will take you directly to the ferry."

Naturally enough, the military men were highly delighted at the Plainfielder's offer anud started off with him in high spirits. As they made their way across the Hudson and thence to uptown New York, by the shortest route possible, the trio began talking in a general way. The Plainfielder learned that the captain was from Washington and the lieutenant from Richmond, Va., that they had never been in New York before and would probably have gotten lost entirely if left to get out of their difficulty alone. Just at this juncture their guide stated that he had a good friend who had just gone off on one of the ferryboats and incidentally mentioned that it was Lieutenant Caulfield.

"Why," exclaimed the captain. "Lieutenant Jack Caulfield belongs to my company and he is in charge of the men from whom we became separated."

To say that "Sam" Wilbur was tickled silly at finding this out is putting it mildly. Then and there the conversation drifted to "Jack" and the officers were not backward in saying that the young Plainfielder had made good as a soldier, that he was every inch a fighting man and if only given a chance "over there" would make a record for himself that would make his name a by-word in Plainfield. Futhermore, the captain stated, "Jack" was well liked by all his associates and wherever the new found friends, he was smiling all over at the thought of having done a "little thing for the cause of a big thing for a couple of stranded soldiers."

"And the last thing they said to me," concluded Sam in telling of the occurrence to a Record man, "was that they would never forget me and that Jack Caulfield would be told that he comes from a town that has the right spirit."

Naval League Asks For Donations Of Phonograph Records

Plainfield people have phonograph records which might be put to better use than standing idle in a cabinet can help cheer up American naval crews by responding to the following appeal issued by the New York branch of the Women's Naval Service:

"Our Boys" are going overseas for patrol duty. The demands are severe and the little recreation given by a small talking machine and some good records is appreciated more than anyone on land can realize.

Records for the gun crews may be sent to Mrs. John Clapperton Kerr, 135 Central Park West, New York city.

The name and address of each donor is typewritten and pasted on the various records so that the boys may know who has thought of them.

I beg for a generous response.

Very truly,

HELEN CULVER KERR,

Chairman, Recreation Committee.

Supposed Gassed Soldier Treated at Muhlenberg Languishes in a Cell

Claiming to be a returned Canadian soldier, the only one of seven left out of the original Princess Pat regiment, but believed by the local police to be a faker, George Wilson, twenty-five years old, of "Somewhere in Canada," is held a prisoner at police headquarters.

He was turned over to the authorities by Manager Smith, of Muhlenberg Hospital, where Wilson applied last Saturday night for treatment. He stated that he was suffering from German gas inhaled during a charge in France and that a bad spell of coughing overtook him as he was on his way home to Canada. The man's story was believed at the time and he was given all the care and attention deserved by an honorable soldier who had gone through the hellishness of the vicious Prussian fumes.

Wilson's story, however, failed to connect in various vital parts after his treatment began and the hospital staff became suspicious. Finally on Wednesday afternoon it was decided to let the police investigate and he was taken from his comfortable bed and sent to headquarters. When quizzed by Chief Kiely, Wilson rambled in his statements, none of which could be verified. Beside claiming to be a Canadian soldier, he asserted that he was also in American service, that he had been through the Somme campaign, wounded and gassed several times in Canadian regiment charges and afterward transferred to an American division. The gas he inhaled eventually caused him so much distress that he was finally invalided home. He declared that he was on a Lehigh Valley train bound for Ontario when he found he would have to seek medical treatment. Plainfield was suggested to him by the train crew and he walked from South Plainfield to the hospital.

Chief Kiely could not verify any of Wilson's statements up to noon today and he will be arraigned before Judge DeMeza tmorrow morning on a charge of vagrancy.

New City Market Is Now In Full Swing

Under the direction of James Penny, of Watchung avenue, the City Market is now under way on the Y. M. C. A. lot at East Fifth and Sycamore streets. The farmers assemble three times each week to sell their products to the householders and so far both sides seem satisfied with the prices quoted.

Although neighbors in the vicinity of the market place protested against its location there, Chairman George S. Clay has decided that it shall continue for the present and replied to the protestants in the following letter:

"Your written protest against the establishment of the Farmers Market on the Y. M. C. A. lot at the corner of East Fifth and Sycamore streets was presented to the Plainfield Food Commission and given careful consideration at a meeting held on Friday evening, June 21st.

"The Food Commission was organized, as you no doubt know, only because of the fact that the United States is at war, and that the Government has urged the authorities in every community in the country to do all in their power to induce the farmers to increase the production of crops, such as corn, potatoes and other vegetables and fruit, for the use of the people in the vicinity of their farms, and thereby relieve to a large extent the demand for grain which is needed by our armed forces at home and abroad and our allies. The appeal is to the patriotism of the farmers.

"In order to stimulate the efforts of the farmers to increase the productiveness of their farms, the Food Commission is prepared through its Labor Committee to furnish the farmers with extra help during the busy season, many farmerettes being available for he purpose, and it is also necessary that a place in the city be provided where the farmers can bring their food stuffs and be reasonably certain of disposing of them.

"Several places for the market for the season of 1918 were considered by the Market Committee, which finally decided that the lot at Fifth and Sycamore streets was the most central and most desirable. The directors of the Y. M. C. A. were asked on patriotic grounds to allow the Commission to use the lot for the purpose without compensation. The directors, responding as they have always done when an appeal to patriotism has been made to them, granted our request.

"The Commission at its meeting on June 21st made a thorough investigation regarding the conditions surrounding the conduct of the market last year, and were satisfied that if the market shall be conducted this year as it was last year no one living in the neighborhood can have reasonable cause of complaint. Last year the farmers did not arrive at the market until between 6 and 6:30 o'clock, and the market was closed in three hours or less, and as soon as closed all rubbish was removed. There was no loud talking or unusual noise. The market last year was in charge of James Penny, who will manage the present market. If objectionable features shall develop the Commission will take prompt measures with the view to remedy such conditions.

"The market, therefore, will be opened and conducted during the present season three days in the week on the lot at the corner of Fifth and Sycamore streets, and I appeal to your sense of patriotic duty to bear willingly any slight inconvenience or annoyance that you may feel you suffer and to do what you can towards marking the market a complete success by purchasing at the market and by making to the Commission such recommendations for its efficient management as shall occur to you. I am sure that at the end of the season you will find that what you now think is a cause for complaint will really be a benefit conferred upon you as well as the rest of the community. Be patriotic above all things.

"Very respectfully yours,
"GEO. S. CLAY,
"Chairman."

Council to Probe Killing of Child

A rigid investigation of the Public Service electrical wiring throughout the city is the possibility in the near future through Councilman Charles Sminck's declaration at Monday night's Common Council meeting tht decided steps should be taken to safeguard citizens from electrocution such as befell six-year-old Clara DeMarco, on upper North avenue, last week.

Immediately after the little girl had been stricken dead through catching hold of the broken electric light wire, Mr. Sminck visited the scene of the fatality for a personal investigation. What he saw convinced him that something should be done to compel the Public Service to take more than ordinary precaution to avoid repeated killings and he told of his observations to the City Fathers. He afterward introduced a resolution directing the fire and buildings committee, which has supervision over the fire alarm wires, to investigate further all circumstances of the DeMarco electrocution and decide what should be done to protect the life and limb of innocent citizens. Mr. Sminck suggested that the Public Service should install an appliance giving immediate warning at the power houses of any broken wires as one way of avoiding accident and this in addition to other suggestions made by officials and citizens will be considered by the fire and buildings committee in its probe.

Although it was expected that Leslie R. Fort, now at Washington as a commissioned officer in the army, would tnder his resignation as councilman, it was not forthcoming at Monday night's meeting. It is probable, however, that Mr. Fort will shortly give notice of his compulsory withdrawal from civic activities, after which a resident of the Second ward will be appointed in his place. The remainder of the business at Monday night's session was of a routine nature.

A petition from John H. Dahl and others requested the installation of a street light on Woodland avenue, between Central street and Ravine road, and a water hydrant at Webster place and East Seventh street. Building Inspector Doane reported eight bilding permits granted last month.

The City Judge submitted a report for the last quarter, showing 251 arrests and the collection of $806 in fines. The expenses of the court were $227, and the balance—$579, was turned over to the City Treasurer.

Sewer Engineer Gavett reported thirty-three sewer permits granted. Bills amounting to $469.50 in connection with the City Hall were ordered paid.

Woolston & Buckle were given the contract for furnishing exterior sash for the City Hall at a cost of $78.

The Council adopted a resolution authorizing the payment of $150 per month to Ryder & Graves for maintenance of the fire alarm system. Another resolution authorized the transfer of a team of fire department horses to the street department.

The tax ordinance, carrying appropriations of $465,513, to be raised by taxation, was adopted on third reading.

The Mayor and City Clerk were authorized to borrow $40,000 in anticipation of taxes; $1,500 for storm sewers, and $3,000 for sanitary sewer extensions.

The sum of $30 was appropriated as compensation for L. Moraller & Son for maintaining the town clock on the First M. E. church.

Bills amounting to $8,690.70, in connestion with the Joint Sewer project, were read and ordered paid.

Draft Board Announces Corrected Order of Call for New Draftees

Secretary Walter Freeman, of the Plainfield District Exemption Board, received yesterday the master list of draft numbers drawn at Washington last week. It makes quite a few changes in the order of call as was contained in newspapers immediately after the drawing and will mean a difference in positions for many Plainfield men.

Mr. Freeman and his assistants are still busily engaged in looking over the questionnaires of the 189 new draftees and these are being classified as quickly as possible. A large number still remain to be looked over before the date can be set for the physical examinations, but it is quite probable that these will come within the next two weeks.

In the meantime the examination of men transferred from lower classes to A-1 is going on. Twenty-two appeared before the physicians this week. Of this number, seventeen were accepted, two were referred to the county medical board, two were rejected because of physical defects and one was placed in the limited service class. The men accepted for general service and who may be called in the near future are the following:

Frederick Sanjuliano, Thomas H. Brown, Stanley Maccyn, Anthony Russo, Russell W. Smith, Thomas Morton, Thomas C. Harding, James J. McNamee, Gustave Johanson, Robert H. Earl, Louis Malone, LeRoy C. Smalley, Howard W. Peck, Constantine Constantenedes, William C. Ryder, Hensewood Pollard and Nathan Pollard. The two men rejected were Robert Skinner and Edward McMillen; the two referred to the county board, Otto Hansen and Isaac Ayres, and the one placed in the limited class, Leon A. Jones.

No further calls for selectives have been received by the Plainfield Board since the two of last week calling for thirteen colored men during the period beginning July 16 and fourteen white men during the period beginning July 22. The thirteen colored men who are to go to Camp Dix during the 16th period are as follows:

Charles W. Barnes, Herbert S. Vaughn, Geo. Campbell, Andrew Rodgers, Fred Vaughn, Luther B. Brinkley, Geo. W. Saunders, Clyde Lovell, Dillon Goddard, Fred J. Dungey, Horeston L. Reavis, John W. Gillian, Gordon Parsons.

Below is given Secretary Freeman's official list of the 189 new draftees and the order in which they are to be called for service according to las tweek's lottery at Washington, the first number indicating their order of call and the second their registration number:

1—154—John J. C. Roach*

Home From France, Miss Callahan Is Soon to Be Married

Miss Helen Callahan, of East Second street, who has been in France as an nurse for the past two years, returned to Plainfield on a leave of absence this week. She was accompanied back to America by her fiance, Lieutenant Earl Beatty, of Detroit, Mich., a doctor in the Naval Medical corps. They are to be married within the net xfew days, the date having been made uncertain by an order received today from the Brooklyn navy yard, which may send them overseas again sooner than was expected.

It was originally intended when the absence leaves were given that Dr. Beatty and Miss Callahan, after their marriage, should proceed to a naval hospital at an Australian port, but it is now quite possible that they may go to a similar institution in Bermuda.

Service Flag Unfurled While Thousands Cheer

Inspiring Scene in City Park When Mayor Calkins Gives Signal Throwing Patriotic Emblem to the Breeze Representing 1,103 Plainfield Young Men and Women Who Have Answered the Call

While thousands of persons gathered in the City Park, cheered and sang "The Star Spangled Banner" to the accompaniment of two bands, Plainfield's service flag, representing 1,103 young men and women who have answered their country's call, was flung to the breeze last night.

The program arranged for the event was of a simple nature but nevertheless impressive. It was arranged by a committee of which Senator William N. Runyon was chairman and conducted by him with the assistance of Mayor Leighton Calkins. People from every part of the city and borough were in attendance, a noteworthy feature being the large number of foreign born. This applies particularly to the Italians, of whom there were fully a thousand, and who brought the Italian Society Band to help out in the musical program. The Liberty Band was also present and discoursed airs during the evening.

The principal address was made by Senator Runyon, who gave one of his characteristic patriotic talks, full of enthusiasm for the ultimate result of the war and pregnant words of encouragement to the relatives who had given sons or daughters to the cause. Mayor Calkins also made a brief address, which was received with great applause on the part of the listeners.

As the beautiful big banner was pulled across a suspended wire at a siknal from Mayor Calkins, the two bands played "The Star Spangled Banner" and the entire gathering sang it wit ha vim after first giving vent to their patriotism by cheering lustily for the Plainfield young men and women upholding their country's honor. The flag will remain in the City Park for the present but later is to be suspended from a pole at the City Hall.

The committee which arranged last night's demonstration was composed of Senator Runyon, Marion S. Ackerman, John J. Varley, A. Willis West, J. Henry Crane and William M. Wherry, Jr. The program in full was as follows: Prayer, the Rev. Dr. Berryman H. McCoy; vocal solos, Miss Edna Beatrice Bloom; Declaration, Hon. William N. Runyon; President's message, Jurge J. Henry Crane; address, Leighton Calkins, mayor of the city; unfurling of the service flag and pledge of allegiance; benediction, the Rev. Bernard M. Bogan.

Burned Child's Agony Relieved By Death Alone

Death came as a welcome relief at 10:40 yesterday morning to ten-year-old Ida Prussin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Prussin, of 124 North avenue, who was frightfully burned at her parents' home, Tuesday afternoon, while she was setting off Fourth of July "sparklers."

The child's chest and abdomen were literally cooked before the blazing remnants of her clothing were torn from her body by her frantic father, who was himself severely seared about the hands in desperate efforts to save the little girl's life. She was hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital after first aid remedies had been applied but all the institution staff could do was to deaden the pain effects, as it was plain that the victim could not recover. The tender flesh had been burned to a crisp in some places and the child was in agony while a vestige of consciousness remained.

The funeral was held at the parents' home in the Van Syckel building on North avenue, yesterday afternoon, and burial was in the Jewish cemetery at Samptown.

The fatal accident occurred shortly after 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, while Ida and a younger sister were at home alone. The mother had just slipped across the street to her husband's stationery store. Ida lighted a "sparkler" and as the supposedly harmless pyrotechnic burned along the rod she failed to let go of the stem. This was what caught fire, as the blaze smarted her fingers she dropped the stub and it fell against her light dress. In an instant she was enveloped in flames which only grew worse and worse as she ran about the apartment screaming with pain and fright.

Mr. Prussin heard the cries at his store and rushed to the home at top speed. As he ran up the stairs leading to the apartment, Ida tumbled toward him on her way down. It was then that the father tried to beat out the flames with his bare hands, an act in which he was helped a moment later by Frank Legge and Fireman Ray Schmidt, of headquarters.

The latter was off duty and was in Hinchcliff's hat store on North avenue when attracted by the cries and commotion. Noticing smoke issuing from the Prussin apartment Schmidt first called to Senator William N. Runyon, standing at North and Park avenues, to turn in an alarm and then hurried to investigate. He was in time to help Mr. Prussin put out the last of the dress blaze, afterward directing the application of oils and other relieving remedies.

With the arrival of the fire department, which found no fire to fight, Chief's Driver Wesley Dunn was dispatched for a physician. He returned with Dr. Ellis Campus as the hospital ambulance reached the scene and the required medical aid was supplied before the child was hurried away for futher attention.

AVIATOR TRANSFERRED.

Lieutenant D. Atwood Giddings, of Leland avenue, who has been stationed in Texas for several months as a member of the aerial pursuit corps, was this week transferred to the Wilbur Wright field at Dayton, O.

Miss Alice Mehl, of Madison avenue, left this week for Long Branch, where she will spend the summer.

Plainfield Still Keeping Up Record For Army Recruits

By securing eleven more recruits during the past week, Corporal Ernest D. Peck, of the local recruiting station, at the post office building, has again brought Plainfield to the fore as a community of ready enlisting.

During the month of June this city contributed twenty-seven young men to the army between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one years, while the total since March has been well over 100. This is in addition to the naval complement which has also been quite large and the enlistments of men between the ages of twenty-one and forty-one. In June, Plainfield was exceeded in its volunteer army contributions only by Newark, Camden, Paterson, Trenton, Elizabeth and Perth Amboy, but for the first week in July she has been beaten only by Newark, Paterson, Passaic and Camden. This record has excited the attention of high military authorities and special commendation has been given Corporal Peck for his efforts.

Of the eleven men enlisting this week, eight left for Fort Slocum today and the other three are to go within a few days. Their names, addresses and the army division to which they have been assigned are as follows:

William Kaiser, Westfield, medical corps; George P. Lyons, 674 West Third street, cavalry; Frank R. Fetherston, Watchung, coast artillery; Edward A. Searlers, Dunellen, coast artillery; Howard S. Leek, 50 Westervelt avenue, cavalry; George F. Barry, 18 Howard street; Francis A. Barry, 207 Somerset street; William J. Barry, 18 Howard street; Albert J. Coffey, 1027 Sherman avenue; Paul M. Pope, 320 Park avenue, and Elston C. Wakefield, 368 Somerset street, all enlisting in the medical corps.

Corporal Peck gives the quiet little tip to young men that there are splendid chances in the coast artillery which is seeking recruits from eighteen to twenty-one. The training school is located at Gort Monroe, Va., and the technical instructions given the enlisted men will prove of great value in civil life. Just at the present time, this division needs men for sergeant-majors, electrical sergeant and master-gunners. If they have the necessary rudimenary education the applicants will be placed in the training schools and advanced rapidly. While the primary purpose of the coast artillery is to defend America's shore line, many detachments are being sent abroad to handle railroad and heavy tractor artillery and anti-aircraft guns. Corporal Peck will be pleased to tell all about this and other army divisions if called upon at the post office.

Recruits secured during June in the various cities of New Jersey where stations are located have been given out as follows: Newark, 300; Camden, 105; Paterson, 88; Trenton, 75; Passaic, 50; Elizabeth, 35; Perth Amboy, 31; Plainfield, 27; Atlantic City, 23, and New Brunswick, 20.

ORDINATION ANNIVERSARY.

In elebration of the twenty-second anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, Rev. Father P. J. Hart, of St. Joseph's church, gave a dinner to local priests Monday noon. At night, Father Hart was tendered a reception in St. Joseph's hall by members of the parish. During the reception Father Hart was presented with a purse.

Death Summons James M. Baglin

James M. Baglin, a resident of this community for thirty years, and prominent in Grand Army circles, died last night at 8:30 at his home, 516 West Fifth street. He had been ill only a week with infirmities produced by age as he had passed his eighty-third year.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church next Monday morning at 9 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Baglin was born in Ireland and came to this country when he was but seven years old. Most of his life was spent in New York or Brooklyn. Thirty years ago he removed from the latter city to North Plainfield and had resided here ever since. He was a carpenter by trade and for a long time was in the employ of the late John Chandler.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, Mr. Baglin enlisted in the 169th New York Vols., serving with this regiment through the full four years of the conflict. Although in numerous engagements, he escaped being wounded but was in the hospital several times because of illness contracted through hardships. Mr. Baglin was one of the oldest members of Winfield Scott Post and had been active in its work from the time he came to Plainfield. At the last election he was made sergeant of the Post, an office he held when death occurred.

The deceased's only near surviving relatives are two daughters and son son. They are Mrs. Cornelius I. Guinee, Miss Margaret Baglin and Den. M. Baglin, all living on West Fifth street.

$1,000 Blaze Caused by Sparks from Bon Fire

Sparks from a bon fire in the yard set fire to the roof of Robert Gray's residence at 719 East Seventh street, yesterday morning at 11:30. Splendid work on the part of the fire department saved the building from destruction but damage estimated at $1,000 resulted. Only chemicals were used, a fact which left the lower floors of the house unharmed instead of being deluged with water.

The house roof was of shingles and they were burning like tinder when an alarm was turned in from box 63 by Lawrence Fahn. Captain Feiring, of No. 4 Company from Netherwood, was first on the scene and put his chemical tanks in action. Headquarters' companies also refrained from hydrant streams and the added chemicals did the trick. James J. Duffy, of 722 East Sixth street, is the owner of the property.

Standard Building Damaged by Flames

Damage amounting to several thousands of dollars was occasioned to No. 2 building of the Standard Aero Corporation's plant at Bayway, Wednesday night. Incendiarism is suspected.

The flames were discovered at about 10:30 by one of the night fire patrol force in charge of Joel Pennington, of Grant avenue, this city. The company's fire department responded quickly and had the blaze under control when the Elizabeth and Linden departments arrived. Former Councilman John H. Cose, of this city, who is fire chief for the plant, was summoned from Plainfield and took charge of the plant for the

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The home of James Peacock at 1224 West Seventh street was damaged to the extent of $2,500 by a fire which evidently started in a closet on the first floor early Tuesday morning. The origin is unknown but may possibly have been spontaneous combustion. Members of the family were roused from slumber by dense smoke and when the firemen arrived in response to a telephone alarm, the flames had made considerable progress. The house is one of the largest of the old-fashioned French roof type familiar in that section of the city but is equipped with numerous fire stops, a fact which aided the firemen in preventing the spread to all parts of the structure. Two members of Mr. Peacock's family are invalids but all were gotten out safely, and cared for at the home of neighbors. The location of the house is directly next the residence of J. Irving Llye, which was badly damaged by fire two years ago under almost the same circumstances and about the same hour of the night.

Christopher H. Meyers, Jr., of 719 East Sixth street, this city, was arraigned before Motor Vehicle Commissioner William Dill at Newark, Monday, and fined $5 on a charge of speeding. In the North Plainfield police court Tuesday, Recorder Fred Hand appropriated a $10 cash bail put up by Bernard Kaple, of New York, to guarantee his appearance on a charge of speeding. Kaple was arrested in the borough, Sunday.

Raymond Corbin, of West Fourth street, with a handicap of two minutes, won the ten-mile bicycle road race Sunday afternoon over the Mountain avenue course, Scotch Plains, under the auspices of the Queen City Wheelmen of Plainfield. His time was twenty-nine minutes.

Vice-Chancellor Lane, sitting Tuesday morning at Newark, confirmed the foreclosure proceedings issued under request of the Plainfield Building and Loan Society against Lines Groo, of East Second street, who resisted the action of Sheriff Warner two weeks ago on the ground that his son-in-law was in the United States Army and that the property was therefore protected under the Soldiers' and Sailors' act. His daughter is now Mrs. Mary Price. Mr. Groo recently sent a long telegram to President Wilson urging his interference in the case.

An interesting program will be held in the rooms of the Young Men's Hebrew Association at 433 West Front street, next Sunday night, July 7, commencing at 9 o'clock. Biblical pictures and scenes of the Holy Land will be shown on a screen which will be like moving pictures, and William Crossman, instructor of Hebrew and Jewish religion, an active member of the Y. M. H. A., of Passaic, will speak on the "Moral Aim of the Jewish Religion," and will also explain the scenes and pictures. No admission will be charged.

Joseph Grazino, a fourteen-year-old boy, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, Wednesday morning, charged with stealing twenty-one dollars in cash and a quantity of Thrift Stamps from his employer, Harry Katz, the West Front street skirt manufacturer. The youth's father paid the money back and the court suspended sentence, after giving the defendant a severe lecture.

The Standard Aero Corporation has reduced its guard force at the North avenue plants from thirty-six to twenty-four. The men still work on an eight-hour shift but are given forty hours off once a month. Reduction has been brought about by a lessening of activities at the local shops.

John Cornwell, aged thirty-five years, and Girard Harris, aged twenti-eight years, were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, Tuesday morning, charged by the police with violating the anti-loafing act. The men were reprimanded by the magistrate and told to go to work. Cornwell reported to the Judge, Wednesday, that he had secured a position at the Saurer Motor plant, and Harris gave notice yesterday that he was taking a position with a local manufacturing concern. These two arrests were the first the Plainfield police have made since the act went into effect and they state that several other men who seemed to have no useful occupation are under surveillance.

Chairman Ernest R. Ackerman reports that as a result of the Thrift Stamp campaign held in Plainfield last week, there were a total of 2,676 pledges secured, while the sale of stamps amounted in all to $75,475.-31. In comparison with pledges and sales in other cities, Plainfield stands well at the top of the list and Chairman Ackerman expresses his appreciation to the workers and citizens who helped make the campaign a success.

Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, pastor of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church, returned home Sunday night after six months' service in France as a Y. M. C. A. worker. This was the period of his enlistment and having performed a splendid work during his term, was released by the association according to the original agreement. After a short rest, Mr. McKelvey will assume his pastorate at the Watchung Avenue church, which has been held during his absence by Rev. John T. Kerr, of Elizabeth. The ship which brought the North Plainfielder back to America carried everal hundred Y. M. C. A. and other army workers. The trip across was uneventful.

At its meeting tonight, Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will install the following officers elected last Friday for the ensuing year: Councilor, Ralph Wood; vice councilor, Joseph Martin; conductor, Leonard Dow; warden, Albert Robbins; inside sentinel, Lester Dunham; outside sentinel, J. A. Dayton; trustee, Lester Dunham; recording secretary, Frank Hulick; assistant, Guy Thomas; treasurer, F. A. Soper, Sr.; financial secretary, Jesse A. Scull; representatives to State Council, Peter Fisher and T. D. Van Pelt; junior past councilor, A. B. Snowden.

Twenty-one members of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., accompanied by a delegation from the Women's Relief Corps, attended service at the Netherwood Reformed church Sunday morning on invitation from Rev. E. G. Read, the pastor. The latter preached a patriotic sermon based on Judges, fifth chapter, eighteenth verse.,

Two automobiles were saved from a fire which on Saturday night destroyed the garage on the premises belonging to Hiram A. Woodruff at 137 Westervelt avenue, the borough. The loss is placed at about $500, covered by insurance. Mr. Woodruff could assign no cause for the blaze as everything was all right when a member of the family was in the building just a short time before its discovery. The borough fire department made a quick run to the scene but the garage was doomed almost before the alarm was given.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, installed the following officers at its meeting last night: Chancellor commander, Jacob Stierer; vice chancellor, Floyd Moore; master of work, George Bolan; prelate, Henry Trottner; master at arms, Leo Berse; inner guard, W. H. Conway; outer guard, Frank Case.

In making his annual appointments to the directing boards of State institutions, Governor Edge named the following from Plainfield and North Plainfield: To the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Glen Gardner, Dr. Fred J. Hughes; Board of Managers of the Rahway Reformatory, David T. Kenney, and Board of Managers of State Village of Epileptics, at Weston, Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde.

Beginning with next Wednesday, the following merchants will close their stores every Wednesday afternoon during July and August: Clifford Applegate, Roth & Co., M. R. Giles, Pierson's Market, Wagner Market Co., Smalley Bros., E. & W. Schloss, Queen City Market, George A. Scheelein, Frank Neidig, William Kosteck, Julius Selmer, J. C. Storm, C. Arnold, W. L. Smalley, W. G. Messler, J. Butler Grocery Stores, A. & P. Tea Company's stores, Grand Union Tea Company, A. H. Keenan, John Callahan, R. H. Keenan and Frank L. Scherer.

A committee composed of Elders F. S. Cutter, A. K. Willett and H. E. Gayle and Rev. John Y. Broek has been appointed by the consistory of Trinity Reformed church to place a tablet in the church edifice in memory of Rev. Dr. Andrew V. Raymond, the first pastor of this congregation. Dr. Raymond died last April. He served as pastor of Trinity Reformed church for six years, and did a splendid work while here.

Because of last night being a holiday, Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will install its new officers next Thursday night. They will take their stations as follows: Councilor, C. J. Sheets; vice councilor, William Peel; financial secretary, E. Compton; treasurer, C. E. Conover; recording secretary, F. Hartpence; assistant recording secretary, L. Kriney; warden, George Van Horn; conductor, William H. Bornman; inside sentinel, Leslie Compton; outside sentinel, Earl Hartpence; trustee, William Hoffman; junior past councilor, Harry Levers.

The District Deputy and his staff will install the following recently elected officers of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, at the meeting tonight: Chancellor commander, Henry C. Lodge; vice chancellor, Harry Fraleigh; master of the work, David C. Allen; prelate, Harry Keen; master at arms, George Lund; inside guard, Harry Van Nest, and outside guard, Peter Stram. This will mark the beginning of Mr. Stram's thirty-third year as outside guard, the longest continuous record of official duty in Perseverance Lodge. In all that time he has never missed a meeting, although are sessions are held weekly all the year around and a short time ago he was presented by the organization with a service medal.

Mrs. Belle Overbaugh, of West Fourth street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Beatrice aMy Overbaugh, to Arthur W. Walls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walls, of Essex street. No date has been set for the ceremony. Mr. Walls has been psominent in the work at Hope chapel and for a number of years has been a member of several of Plainfield's leading baseball teams.

Miss Margaret Ford, of Jersey City, was the guest over the past week-end of Miss Mary A. Smith, of West Fifth street.

Urging Maximum Food Production In New Jersey

With a view to increasing the production of food in New Jersey to the maximum amount possible under existing conditions, Governor Edge has set on foot an investigation covering various problems now confronting the agriculturists and dairymen. The inquiries which are being made through official channels include problems of conservation and distribution, as well as those of production.

Among the subjects which are being taken up are the feasibility of the state operating dehydrating plants for the storage of potatoes and other vegetables, freer use by the Federal Government of the surplus of condensed milk and dairy products accumulated in storage because of lack of shipping facilities, a more equitable adjustment of freight rates on shipments of lime and fertilized, and a study of relative food values of articles taken in conjunction with their price.

Some time ago the Governor called upon the granges of the State to exert every effort to increase the output of food products on the ground that this is both a sound economic and patriotic policy. He promised co-operation by the State in solving the problems of distribution and of labor. Acting upon these suggestions, Salem Grange No. 172 submitted a number of recommendations which since have been investigated by Secretary Alva Agee, of the State Department of Agriculture.

Commenting upon these suggestions Mr. Agee has submitted a preliminary report to the Governor in which he said:

"The department has given consideration of the matter of dehydrating plants to take care of surplus potatoes, but in most years such plants will be operated successfully only in more nothern states where late crop potatoes are lower in price than our Jersey product. Potatoes are most cheaply grown in cool latitudes, and in most years the growers in these northern sections somewhat remote from centers of population receive much less than New Jersey growers who market the greater par of their product before these cheaper northern potatoes are harvested. However much we would like to have seen such plants established in New Jersey to take care of last year's surplus, I do not believe that such plants in most year could compete with dehydrating concerns located in northern sections where producers' prices rule relatively low.

"Certainly Salem Grange is right in urging that the National Government make the freest possible use of the surplus of condensed milk and other dairy products that accumulated in storage on account of lack of shipping.

The State Department of Agriculture and the State Dairymen's Association have been considering the market milk situation for months, and at the last meeting of the State Board it was decided to secure some capable expert who would reach our consuming public effectively with information showing that milk at present prices furnishes far cheaper food than meat, eggs and most other products. We believe that we have succeeded in finding the right man for this educational work and hope that he may be connected with the department in a few weeks. Certainly Salem Grange is right in urging this propaganada.

"In respect to the price paid by the army and navy for canned goods, I wish to say that the matter has been taken up officially and otherwise, time and again, and in these interviews, the food administration said that the power of the U. S. Food Administration did not have the power of fixing prices in respect to army and navy supplies, but that it was in the hands of the purchasing division of the army and navy, and that these divisions regarded it their duty to substitute other foods if they could not get canned tomatoes at a certain price. I am stating the case only as it was put to me, but it is clear that the army and navy attempted to fix the price too low, because outside commercial concerns had gladly paid a much higher price.

"The matter of regulation of rates on lime rests with the director general of railroads, and recently it was my privilege to bring the matter to the attention of the advisory committee of twenty-four farmers that were appointed by Secretary Houston and Mr. Hoover, and a strenuous effort will be made to convince Director General McAdoo that labor, fertilizers and seeds on nine acres out of ten between the Mississippi River and the Atlantic seaboard cannot bring full return in food until the lime requirement of the soil has been met and that a freight rate for lime or limestone to be used on land should be fixed at less than the present sixth class freightrate, in order that the cost of liming land may be greatly reduced.

"It is believed that the National Government should take such action to meet the foot shortage that confronts us for years to come, and that the loss to the railroads through carrying lime at such rate should be met by the National Government. In the long run, it would be in the interest of the railroads, because production would be increased greatly if the handicap of soil acidity could be removed from our agricultural country."

War Teaches Yankee Ideals

How going abroad on war work and meeting not only the great variety of foreigners now in France but different types of Americans mingling there broadens men is told in a letter recently written home from a Y. M. C. A. post in France.

Prof. Collins P. Bliss, of New York University, received the letter from C. E. Whitmore, membership secretary of the City Club. It came from William C. Etgen, who was sent to France by the City Club as volunteer ambulance driver. He is a New York University man, a graduate of the School of Commerce, and lived at Dongan Hills, Staten Island.

Etgen was detained in Paris awaiting the assignment to an ambulance unit. He made use of the delay by inaugurating a system of accounts for the Y. M. C. A. at the front.

In the letter he said:

"Over here one recognizes among the soldiers in the allied armies the restlessness of the Americans, the superstition of our sailors, the suspiciousness of fellows reared in the county, the preciseness of college professors, the passion for music of the Maygar, the gayety of people who live out of doors, the wildness of fellows from our Western States, the volubility of the negro, as well as the Prussian desire for treachery.

"It is wonderful to study the people from all parts of the world, and their natures. I am only beginning to realize how American we Americans are and how little we realize it.

"When in the States I thought myself a real American, but am now only learning what an American really is. I am beginning to see how an American endeavors to push on so as to become a leader, and I hope that even though we have entered this war rather late we will show our fellow fighters not only how to subdue the Boche but also how to lead them in commerce.

"Lately I have met a great many men from the States and wonder how fellows can remain at home when so many of their friends are over here. Some day in America you will read in the papers that this world is about to settle its grievances by a board of arbitration. Then it will be only a year or two and we shall be home again, better fit to start life anew."

Camp Dix Selective Breaks Record For Starting Overseas

It took one recruit (name and organization withheld) just eight hours to start for overseas service after he had arrived at Camp Dix the past week. In those few hours he passed the preliminary examination successfully, completed personnel record, was attached to the depot brigade and sent to barracks, transferred and assigned, fully uniformed and equipped, and left the station with the unit going abroad. He arrived at the camp at 1:32 o'clock one night and was gone by 9:45 the following morning.

This, of course, was an exceptional case, but it shows what can be done when the necessity arrives. A special unit had been formed to be sent to France when it was discovered one more man was needed. As a contingent of selective service men was arriving that day, the commanding officer got into touch with the depot brigade, which, in turn, obtained the man needed.

Among the recent recruits at Camp Dix is Max Vauquerz, late of Mexico City, who was paymaster of the soldiers for General Carranza in those days when Villa was more actively disputing Carranza's claim to Mexican leadership. During an attack by Villistas, Max's father was killed, but he and his mother escaped, made their way across the border, and Max got a job at $1 a week in a railroad section gang in Northern New Jersey. Later he was called under the selective service act and now he is aspiring to be a colonel, the rank he held under Carranza.

Major General Scott, camp commander, has taken steps to conserve the game and fish in and around the camp. The camp was formerly a section of the best rabbit and quail land in New Jersey and, with the coming of the soldiers, the birds and animals have taken refuge in the natural cover on the outskirts of the cantonment. General Scott has undertaken their protection in certain seasons.

Captain Dwight S. Wetmore, of Rochester, N. Y., camp adjutant, has been promoted to be a major. Four captains and eighteen lieutenants have been ordered to Camp Perry, O., for a one-month course in a small arms firing school.

WALLACE MORTON ADVANCED TO A CORPORALSHIP.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morton, of Pearl street, the borough, have received word that their son, Wallace Morton, has been made a corporal. The young man recently volunteered for industrial service, being a pattern-maker by trade and as he had three years' military experience as a member of Company K was sent west in charge of a contingent of seven industrial workers from Somerset county.

Mr. Morton is now located in the "Spruce district" of British Columbia and according to information received by his parents, is enjoying good health and well pleased with the work assigned to him.

War's Cost For Fiscal Year Is Twelve Billion

The fiscal year shows that the United States has thrown approximately $12,650,000,000 into the war cauldon during the twelve months.

This was ascertained this week when expenditures for the month of June were estimated by Treasury officials to approximate $1,465,000,000. This is a slight falling off from May's total of $1,508,195,000.

Of the grand total during the year over $4,708,000,000 has been expended in the form of loans to the Allies. The ordinary running expenses of the Government have been $7,568,000,0000, with the balance paid out for special work.

Bonds, interest bearing notes and certificates were retired during the year to the value of $6,757,552,868.-91.

This War Will "End in Forty Years

A New Zealand officer was giving directions to a group of his soldiers. They were in the field at the foot of Bapaume. The immediate task was tht of cutting and rolling up the barbed wire. In that territory the Germans had left trenches foul with fever, wells filled with the corpses of men and horses, springs polluted with every form of filth, but worst of all, the barbed wire entanglements. Every sharp point was covered with rust and threatened lockjaw. Looking in every direction, the whole land was yellow with the barber wire. The work was dangerous. The rebound of the wire threatened the eye with its vision, threatened the face and the hand, and all the soldiers were in a mood of rebellion. In an angry mood, the officer exclaimed, "There are a hundred million miles of German barbed wire in France!"

And when later I asked the First Lieutenant how long this war would last, he made the instant answer, "This war will continue forty years more! One year for the fighting, and thirty-nine years to roll up the wire!"

Because every soldier at the front hated the wire entanglements, that bright sentence ran up and down the entire line from Belgium to the Swiss frontier. And for men of experience there is more truth in the statement than one would at first blush think. It will take one more year for the fighting, but it will take thirty-nine years more to grow the shade trees. Five centuries ago the French began to develop the love of the beautiful. On either side of the roads running across the land they planted two rows of poplars, oaks or elms. When long time had passed the fame of the French roads and the shade trees went out into all the earth. Under these trees the French farmer stopped his cart, fed his horses and refreshed himself beneath the shade. Under these trees the old men at the end of their career rested themselves, and gossiped about old friends that had gone.

And when the German found he could not hold the land and enjoy the shade trees, the splendid orchards, the purple vineyards, he determined that the Frenchman should not have them, and so he lifted the axe upon every peach and pear, plum and grape, cherry and gooseberry. Perhaps it was as black a crime to murder the land as it was to murder the bodies of the farmers, since the soul is immortal.

"One more year of fighting and thirty-nie years" not to roll up the wire, but to rebuild the cathedrals and churches, the collegs and universities, the halls of science, the temples of art, the mills for the weaving of cotton and linen and wool, and above all for the rebuilding of the railways, the reconstruction of the canals and the bridges, great and small, ut the most grievous loss is the human loss. Think of 1,500,000 crippled heroes and poor wounded invalids in the land of France alone! Think of another 1,500,000 young widows, or lovers and mothers! Gone the young men who promised so great things for the French essay, the French poem, for the paintings and the bronzes! Dead the young lawyers, physicians and educators! Gone the young farmers and husbandmen! Perished 1,000,000 old people and 500,000 little children, all dead of heartbreak. The German beast has been in the land. Like a wolf leaping into the sheepfold to tear the throats of the young lambs and the mother ewes.

What! Thirty-nine years more to recover ruined France and Belgium, Poland and Rumania? France will never be the same again. The scar of he beast will abide. That is why no man of great mind and large heart will ever make friends with a soldier from Germany, will ever buy an article of German stamp, so long as he lives, will ever read another German book, or support another German business. It is our duty to forgive the transgressor who is repentant, but it is a crime to forget the unspeakable atrocities, the devilish cruelties of the German Kaiser, the German War Staff and the German army, with its 10,000,000 criminals.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

R. L. Meermans, physical director, and H. J. Center, boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who recently resigned, left Plainfield this week, the former to go to the association at Newcastle, Pa., and the latter to take charge of the association boys' camp at Phantom Lake, Wis.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Terry, of East Sixth street, are the parents of a son born to them recently. The little fellow has been named William C. Terry.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo W. Weseman, of East Sixth street, celebrated the fortieth anniversary of their wedding at their home a few nights ago. Mr. Weseman has been superintendent at the Scott Press Works for the past thirty-three years.

Rev. Father Vincent Sciolla, who was formerly stationed in this city, left Tuesday for Fort Lee to spend a few days with friends after visiting in Plainfield for the past month. He will return tomorrow to Elizabethtown, Ky., where he has been located since leaving Plainfield two years ago.

Among the local boys who have arrived safely overseas recently are: Sergeant-Major Richard Harrigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrison, of South avenue; A. Treadwell Slauson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Slauson, of East Ninth street; Edward Bremmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bremmer, of Greenbrook road, and John Deike, of East Fifth street, son of Herman Deike, of Linden avenue, the borough.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Cooper, of Netherwood avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Emerick, to Robert A. Bailey, Jr., of Millington. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs Harry G. DeMeza, of 159 Westervelt avenue, were guests for a few days this week of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, of this city, at their cottage at Lake Hopatcong.

Paul Swafield, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Walter J. Swafield, of this city, is among the Massachusetts selectives to go to Camp Devens on July 22. Mr. Swafield's home has been in Boston.

Friends in Plainfield have received with much gratification, news of the promotion of Colonel Mason W. Patrick to major-general and his assuming charge of the aviation section in France. Major Patrick married Miss Grace Cooley, daughter of Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, of Rockview avenue, the borough, who is at present making her home with her mother.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bowen Foster and daughter, Elizabeth, of Watchung avenue, have gone to the Adirondacks to spend the summer at Hurricane Lodge, Hurricane.

Harold Henry, of Evona avenue, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis performed Monday by Dr. P. J. Zeglio.

Miss Ida Stranahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stranahan, of Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, and Holdger Mortenson, of Harrison avenue, were married last Friday night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, at his home on West Front street. The couple will make their home in North Plainfield. The bridegroom is employed at the Pond Tool Works.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. LaRock, of West Sixth street, returned Tuesday after a few days' stay on Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong.

The Misses Rose Fee of Paterson, and Loretta Moran, of Hampton, have returned home after a visit with their cousin, Miss Cecilia Fee, of Spruce street.

Francis Meade, of High Bridge, is spending the summer at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Browne, of West Fourth street. Miss Veronica Meade, sister of Mrs. Browne, returned to her home in Long Island, Monday, after a week-end visit here.

Miss Bertha Laird, of Cecil place, is spending a few days with relatives at Paterson.

Married Draftees Must Prove Claim

Youths who registered for the draft on June 5 will have considerable difficulty in obtaining exemption from military service on the ground that they are married. On the strength of reports that thousands of them throughout the country have taken wives during the past year, the order has come from Washington for the rigid inspection of all claims.

The county draft boards have already mailed the questionnaires to the youths, and the Plainfield Board has completed this work. They will have to be filled out and returned within seven days after being received, and then the inquiry into the exemptions claims will start. Men who have recently become twenty-one and are married will have to appear before the boards with their wives, and medical examiners will be retained to make sure that the claims advanced are true.

Word comes from Washington that General Crowder is at present considering whether to lay the exemption claims of the youths of twenty-one who are married aside altogether and induct them into service if they are physically fit.

Strict Enforcement of Sugar Rationing

The new sugar rationing plan which was announced from Washington last week is to be strictly followed up in this State by the Food Administration for New Jersey, according to a statement made at the State offices at Newark. Special instructions are to be compiled for distribution to the county administrators. The penalty laid upon manufacturers who do not comply with the new regulation by filing a statement with the administration—the refusal of supplies during the remainder of the war—is counted upon to secure full compliance.

Home consumers are not put upon compulsory rations of sugar—their patriotism and voluntary spirit of National co-operation in a crisis being relied upon—but the classes affected will be closely checked up through the files and cross indexes at the Newark office, where G. W. Gehin, of Newark, is in charge of the sugar division of the administration.

If any violations of the regulations are discovered, sugar on hand will be confiscated, and the violator will be subjected to other penalizations. Sugar must not be secured by any one except in full conformity with the regulations. The publication of the new regulations in the press is relied upon as warning to all users affected and failure to receive direct notification will not be considered an excuse.

FIVE BIG BEEF PLANTS FOR SOLDIERS IN FRANCE

Five refrigerating plants, each capable of freezing 3,000 to 4,000 tons of beef, are being built in France. Each will have an ice-making plant attached.

Another plant with a present capacity of 5,000 tons of beef is being enlarged to a 20,000,000 pounds capacity.

All the vast supplies and men needed to make this possible were sent overseas. Additional refrigeration cars have been built in this country and France and plans are now being considered for reconstructing refrigerator motor trucks for use in France.

July Claims Paid by Council Total $47,433

Claims amounting to $47,433.41 were ordered paid as follows by the Common Council, at the regular meeting Monday night:

Salaries and wages, officials and general office employes, $1,187.75; general appropriation, $22,971.45; City Hall, $6,288.56; city court appropriation account, $4.10; District Court, $22.50; salaries and wages, Shade Tree Commission, $47.25; Shade Tree Commission, $43.86; salaries and wages, storm sewer, $22.50; salaries and wages, street department, $1,931.90; street department, $4,789.27; salaries and wages, sewer department, $215.63; sewer department, $288.51; salaries and wages, police department, $1,365.83; police department, $409.82; salaries and wages, fire department, $1,632.26; fire department, $3,096.60; salaries and wages, poor department, $130.92; poor department, $971.09; tax department appropriation, $340.92; building department account, $7.70; street lighting account, $1,664.93. Total, $47,433.41.

Planning To Safeguard Women At Washington

Because many thousand girls from all parts of the country, many of them from small towns and away from home for the first time, are now employed in the National Capital, a branch of the section on women and girls of the law enforcement division of the commission on training camp activities was established in Washington June 15.

Field workers, who will look after young girls and work with delinquent and semi-delinquent women, will be immediately put out in the city. The committee in charge will co-operate with all social agencies in the capital, particularly those actively concerned with the welfare of young women, such as the W. W. C. A., the War Camp Community Service and various welfare and housing committees.

"There is great need for work of this kind in Washington at the present time, because of the great number of young girls who have gone to Washington alone to work, many of them girls who have never lived away from home before," said Mrs. Jane Deeter Rippin, director of the section and supervisor of protective work in all parts of the United States. "The large number of camps surrounding the city is another feature that makes Washington a strategic point for field work."

ARMY WANTS WOMEN TO SERVE AS COOKS.

It is the avowed policy of the surgeon-general's office of the Army Medical Departments to release men as far as possible by employing women in the service in this country.

It is now stated that women cooks can be accepted in base hospitals of cantonments upon the special recommendation of the commanding officer of a cantonment, and the statement that he can procure trained women.

No general recommendation has been made for the employment of women in such a capacity, as in few instances are living quarters arranged for the accommodation of such employes.

Because of the special mess, unlike any other branch of the army, of the aviation camps, the assigning of trained women cooks here in the United States to such camps is now being considered.

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC FROM DEATH-DEALING WIRES.

There should have been no need for Councilman Sminck to stand before the City Fathers last Monday night and call upon them to make a rigid investigation of the circumstances surroundings the electrocution of little Clara DeMarco, on North avenue, last Thursday afternoon. The fault in this affair lies with the Public Service Corporation and its officials now, or should know, that there are many parts of its wiring system for electrical illumination that needs attention. Danger such as snuffed out the life of the six-year-old child lurks along the entire overhead circuit system and is apt to pounce upon innocent pedestrians at any moment.

The authorities gave the Public Service the right to use the streets for conducting its electric light current but in doing so they did not show her the obligation of seeing that all the wiring apparatus was kept in proper shape. It is the duty of the corporation making money out of the lighting contract and it is high time that it was made to realize this duty without waiting for Councilman Sminck or the Fire and Buildings Committee to remind it of the fact.

The killing of the little DeMarco girl is not the first fatality of the kind that has occurred in Plainfield from the same cause. Every so often, a supposedly inoffensive wire lying across the sidewalk or roadway carries a deadly charge of electricity and the unsuspecting person who sought to push it out of the way has been shocked into eternity. The wires in their fixed position are a necessity of course, but the fact that they provide the necessary current for street lighting and seem to be all right does not lessen the responsibility of the owning company. What is wanted is more closer and more frequent inspections, and as Mr. Sminck suggests, a device at the distributing station which would instantly give warning of any breakage in the deadly circuits. This can and should be done and the citizens whose lives are in jeopardy demand that the Public Service be compelled to take the urgent precautions.

Mr. Sminck is a councilman who in popular parlance is "always on the job." When he heard of the electrocution of Clara DeMarco in the district which he represents, in the city's governing body, he immediately hurried to the scene to make a personal investigation. He saw just how the whole thing had come about and from women residents nearby gleaned the information that many of the mothers in the neighborhood stood in mortal terror of just such an accident befalling one of their own, because they had frequently seen evidences of impending danger along the poles and wires. These same mothers recalled other electrocutions to Mr. Sminck and implored him to safeguard their children from meeting such an untimely death as the one which cast gloom over the district near the DeMarco home.

Mr. Sminck has frequently demonstrated that he is in the Council for the sole purpose of representing the people, especially those of his own ward. In this affair he lost no time in coming to the front and pointing out the way that should be followed by his colleagues in office. It is up to them to go after the Public Service and go after it hard, if they intend so far as is humanly possible to protect the lives of citizens threatened with extinction.

They or no one else would have any difficulty in finding bad spots in the wires, weak or defective cross-arms and poles that need replacing if they care to look close. It should not devolve upon the citizens who have given up their streets for corporate purposes to do this. They have a right to expect the Public Service to make the necessary examinations and replace defective wires with new ones. They have a right to send their children down the street without expecting them to be brought back cold in death and they have a right to pass along the sidewalk without having electrically charged wires confronting them. Perhaps the Public Service may contend that the Government needs all the copper there is to carry on the war and that labor is so scarce just as present that sufficient men could not be secured to make any changes ordered by officials. This is quite true and is allowed for by those in the criticising mood, but nevertheless, the safety of the public is of more importance than its street illumination and better to shut off the lighting system entirely than to have the fatality brought home such as plunged the East End into deep grief. The alarm indicator at the central station is one thing that can be installed at once, if it is not already there and the authorities should see that it is in position. It was a mighty good thing that Councilman Sminck called for the investigation that is to proceed under the direction of the Fire and Buildings Committee, but it is something that would not have to be called for if the Public Service Corporation had been doing right by the people who gave it the electric light franchise. Let the investigation be a thorough one and stand for no impeding on the part of the company guilty of the DeMarco fatality.

MORE ABOUT THE NEXT CONGRESS.

The new management of the Republican party wishes to return a strong majority of the four hundred and thirty-five members of the lower house who will be elected in November.

Everybody knows how congressional nominations usually go in scores of districts:

X has a claim on the local party managers for party services. Perhaps he is the sitting congressman—inconspicuous at Washington, but faithful to the party. Y has an ambition to go to Washington, without anything very convincing in the way of demonstrated capacity to base it on. Z regards a seat in the House as a better job than his present law practice.

Making one of four hundred and thirty-five members of the lower house—more or less gagged and caucused and infringed upon by the President and Senate—is not an occupation which ordinarily attracts men of outstanding proved abilities, unless they happen to have a powerful penchant in that direction. X, Y and Z fight it out at the primaries amid the indifference of half the voters of the district, who regard it as a fairly negligible matter.

But it is not a negligible matter now. Lives—your's sons life—and hopes—the highest hopes of the nation and of the individual—may hang upon those four hundred and thirty-five members. Being one of them now is a job worth the best there is of ability and character in every congressional district.

The spirit of patriotism runs high and strong. There is a willingness to serve and sacrifice in a national cause such as this generation has seen nothing like. Men who could not consider the proposal ordinarily may be got to stand for Congress now.

Let the Republican management forget the old game and exert itself to bring out a set of candidates worthy this great occasion—with no regard to what party services they have performed in the past or whether they care a rap about mere party services. A party management thta is capable of rising to this occasion can put the congressional campaign on a new plane.

Then let the Democrats work along the same line, and the whole country wins regardless of which party gets the more seats.—Editorial in the Saturday Evening Post.

In the Republican candidate for Congress in the Fifth District, Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield, we have one who answers these requirements—SERVICE FIRST, PARTY SECOND, AMBITION THIRD.

A MARTYRED SOLDIER'S LETTER TO HIS MOTHER.

Of the many things that have been written about the war since America entered the fray, nothing more impressive has yet been penned to express the view of a citizen-soldier than the letter of Adrian Edwards, a young Illinois lawyer, who recently died in battle in France. It was composed just before he went into action and was addressed to his mother.

It is not likely that Edwards may have had such a premonition of death, when he wrote the letter, as soldiers in great danger are sometimes reported to have had. The impressive eloquence of the epistle may have been inspired by the circumstances that he was in the very shadow of death when he wrote. All the trivial things of life had fallen away and he bared his soul to his closest confident—his mother.

"My Dear Mother:

"I am about to go to battle and have instructed the company clerk to send you this letter in case I become a casualty, hence the receipt of this letter by you will indicate that I am either with God or a prisoner in the hands of the enemy.

"Since I will never become a prisoner of the Hun if I remain conscious and able to fight it is doubtful if I will ever be an inmate of a German prison camp. Do not grieve that I am among the missing but rather rejoice that you have given a son in sacrifice to make the greatest military caste of all time lay down the sword—to save civilization, to prevent future wars, to punish the Huns, who have disregarded every law of God and mankind, whose only God is the god of war and military force—and to make the world safe for democracy.

"I desire that you view the matter in the light and spirit of the Spartan mothers of old, who, when their sons went forth to battle for freedom, and their native land, said to their sons: 'Either come home proudly bearing your shield before you, or upon it.'

"War was absolutely necessary on the part of my country, and although I was 34 years old and nobody expected me to go, yet some one had to go, some mother must lose her son, I volunteered and have never regretted my decision, and I will not, although my life and a useful career must end. Life is not the highest boon of existence. There are ideals that are superhuman, interests greater than life itself, for which it is worth while fighting, suffering and dying.

"If possible, after the war, I would like for my remains to be brought to America and interred at White Hall. I have provided well for your support as I have a $10,000 insurance policy with the Government and several thousand with the old line companies. My friends Thompson and Jesse have these policies and other valuable papers.

"Goodbye, mother, I will see you in the next world. You may know I died fighting for you, my country and all that life holds dear.

"Your son,

"ADRIAN."

Much obliged, fellows, for fixing up that terrible sidewalk at Front and Grove streets. We knew a little suggestion from the Record would do the trick.

Official Washington is mighty busy just at present, but some glad day it will have a lull long enough to grab hold of the Chicago meat hogs who have shoved the price of beef up to fifty cents a pound.

Now comes Secretary McAdoo with the announcement that his first aim is to win the war. That's the right aim, Mr. Secretary, so pull the trigger.

"Bill" Townsend has been cited for the Croix de Guerre. He has yet to miss a send off parade and made two tight-wads come across with substantial contributions for the "Send 'em away with a smile" fund. "Bill" ought to have the award, anyway, because he fought typhoid fever, and embalmed beef in the Spanish War and almost got away with a lie about his age when he tried to get back in the army last summer.

The way to keep your patriotism bright behind the lines is to keep that belt around your appetite within the bounds of reason, and the way to do it is to refrain from eating like a hog and put in about eight hours at useful work.

It has just been found out what the protesting neighbors had in mind when they objected to the noise that would come from the City Market in its new location at Sixth and Sycamore streets. They were thinking of the yell that would go up every time a housewife was told the price of her favorite vegetable.

Newspaper publishers are hoping that in the send-backs will be a considerable proportion of printers. And there'll need to be if the newspapers of the East are to be able to do their share toward putting over the eight billion dollar loan that's coming.

Once again we pause amid the mad rush of complex living to heed the voice of old "Vox Pop." He informs us by letter that Charles H. Hand would make a worthy successor to Leslie R. Fort as councilman-at-large because, if for no other reason, he would vigorously uphold the administration's policy of economy. We hasten to inform the faithful watch-dog of municipal doings that he is in the right church but the wrong pew. True it is, indeed, that our friend Charles, he of positive thought and blunt expression, believes in sewing up the city purse with an old-fashioned ox chain but his tendencies are not in that direction. He is not a member of the portable star chamber on the Jersey Central and some night, if placed in the Council, might say something not properly censored. Nay, nay, old top, you must suggest someone else beside "Charlie" Hand; surely you must know of better material, more pliable and less given to asking why.

Lots of Hard Work but Plenty of Novelty for Girls Helping on Farms

The work is hard, and the weather, well, it hasn't been any too pleasant recently, but with it all the girls at work on the Union County Land Army farm near Summit are having a good time, and not one can be found who is sorry she signed up.

Blisters on the hands, scratches and cuts that hurt, and sunburned necks and arm that aren't so very pleasant, are the vogue at the farm these days, but what's the odds so long as there's plenty to eat, lots of time to sleep and opportunity for a good time when the days' work is over? And then, too, the farmers need the assistance, and need it badly.

And let it be said at the beginning, the help that the sixty or more farmerettes, as they are pleased to term themselves, is appreciated by the farmers in this section. Cultivators of tracts, both large and small, who have had occasion to hire the girls, speak highly of the services given in garden work, in the orchard or in the fields. Scores of letters have been sent to Miss Mabel Denton, who is in charge of the work, commending the able manner in which the girls have filled the places of experienced farmhands who have gone off to war or who have taken more lucrative positions in war industries.

One letter in particular which is especially commendatory in its nature is concluded thus "And let me tell you those girls who have been working on my farm will make good farmers' wives."

Plainfielders are doing their share. There are six there at present from this city, a large number from Summit and the others are from Westfield, Cranford, Rahway, Elizabeth and, in fact, from every other section of the county.

The Plainfield girls who are at the farm and who have been giving a splendid account of themselves are: The Misses Lois Goetter, Natalie Goetter, Mary Simmons, Dorothy Simmons, Margaret Stout and Dorothy Manning.

It's a novel experience for the girls who are laboring on farms, and laboring isn't too strong a word to use in this connection. The farmerettes themselves will vouch for that. Farm work isn't play and the few who entered the work with the idea that they were going to have a pleasant vacation soon changed their views and settled down to the routine. By this time they are in the swing and are enjoying the worg as well as the play.

When the big bell in the old mansions in which the girls are quartered rings out at 5:30 in the morning it means "get up." And there is no time for primping, either, for the breakfast bell rings soon afterwards, and not very much later the autos are at the door to convey the workers to the farms to which they are assigned. The girls are regular farmhands, it must not be forgotten, and must be on duty at 7.

The farmerette is proud of the fact that she can jump into her overalls, man's shirt, and heavy shoes and be downstairs for breakfast ten minutes after the first bell has been sounded in the morning. It took a day or two for her to get accustomed to such speedy dressing, but now it's just natural.

There's a scurrying through the halls of the building in the morning as the girls hustle about making ready to leave for the places to which they are assigned. Perhaps Farmer ones wants two girls to pick berries; Farmer Smith needs four to do some work in the orchard; Farmer Edwards has asked for one for some wok in the orchard, while Farmer White needs six to do some plowing and hoeing in the fields. These assignments are all taken care of by Miss Denton, and the girls have no say as to where they are to go. Today a girl might be at work with two others on a farm near Westfield, while tomorrow she may be sent with three or four others to work in the outskirts of Plainfield.

By the time the sun is about peeping above the horizon in the morning the workers are off with their lunch baskets filled with sufficient good food to last them until they return in the evening. The lunches are packed in the kitchen, the farmerettes themselves taking turns at making the sandwiches. Large baskets are used where there is a large group is past.

Jobs according to the farmerettes are divided into two classes, pleasant and unpleasant. And the farmers—well, according to the farmerettes, they are divided into more than two classes. Some are rated as agreeable employers, others are just "all right," and there are some whose rating is far below pare in the farmerette's Bradstreet.

There's the berry-picking job, that isn't such a bad one. But the weeding—that means sore backs and scratched hands. It's a difficult proposition, you kno,w to teel the weeds from the plants at times, especially when you don't know a potato plant from a bean stalk. And that's wherein a part of the trouble lies.

It isn't proper to pick the plants and let the weeds go, as everyone realizes, especially the farmer—but the less said about that the better.

The hoeing work means blisters and the plowing is difficult, especially when Old Dobbin isn't quite so young as he used to be and needs to be urged along about every half minute. But with it all the girls find pleasure in their work and enjoy every minute of it.

Beginning at 7 in the morning they work eight hours each day, except Sunday. It is customary for them to stop at 12 o'clock noon to eat their lunch and rest and begin work again at 1:30, quitting at 4:30.

At the noon hour it's a case of taking a wash at the old farm pump and settling down in the shade of a tree to eat lunch and take things easy. Lunch tastes good after five hours of hard work and the rest doesn't come amiss either.

It isn't customary for the farmers to invite the workers into the house. And for the most part the girls wouldn't just fancy that, for they are farm-hands who are being paid for eight hours of work and they aren't to be treated any differently than the man who is hired to help. The farmers themselves are busy people these days and they have no time for the girls who can't capably fill the places of the men.

The farmerettes work their full eight hours and they work steadily, too. One thing that is impressed upon the visitor and that is the fact that the farmerettes don't let talking and frivolity enter into their work. That comes after the day's toil is over and they have returned to their temporary home.

It's 5 o'clock or after when the girls begin to arrive back home in the evening, tired and dirty after their day's work. Then it is that there's a hustle to get off the soiled overalls, don middy blouses and bloomers and prepare for the evening meal.

"Hoeing that corn on the Jones farm is no easy job. My hands are sore and my back is lame," one may be heard to say as she comes down to dinner.

"O, that's nothing to what our gang was doing today. We were weeding all day," responds another.

There are rules in force at the headquarters of the girls and they are strictly enforced. One is that every farmerettes must turn in by 9 o'clock in the evening, except Saturday, when she may stay out until 10.

Of course, it may be said in a whisper that the girls don't all go to bed at 9, for that seems too early even for a farmerette. They have good times a plenty among theselves. Some nights there are informal parties held in the various rooms. At times there are auto rides to Morristown or some other place within a reasonable radius.

And on Friday nights comes the "big time. That is "stunt" night on which occasion the girls get together in the house and stage informal entertainments. Dancing, singing, story telling, recitations and other such numbers make up the program, which, needless to say, is always greatly enjoyed by all.

Taking it all in all it's a great life, this farm experience. There are some girls who signed up for a month's work and can't arrange to stay longer. But there are a number who are now laying plans to stay over until harvest time is over and the labor shortage on the Union county farms is past.

Big Hospital at Colonia Filled with 1,600 Beds Soon Ready for Patients

Situated on an eminence, the highest point of which is 95.6 feet above sea level, Colonia Hospital, one of the big reconstruction bases for United States sodiers invalided back from the European front, has the distinction of being one of the finest, if not really the finest, hospital of the kind in the country. There may be others of larger capacity; there may be some that are more easily accessible to embarkation points, eliminating a long transportation of wounded soldiers, but for invigorating atmosphere and general adapatability of site, for the convalescence of wounded men, the reconstruction hospital at Colonia, six miles south of Plainfield, probably is surpassed by no other in the country, army officers say. It is known as General Hospital No. 3.

The hospital is practically completed. Within another week the last nail will be driven, and the final fragment of waste building material will have been removed from the grounds. There are no wounded soldiers in the wards at present. The officers in charge of the hospital do not have the remotest idea when the first of the wounded men will be received; but the hospital has been ready for patients for the past month. It could not have been filled to capacity, but many of the wards were completed and equipped to receive men. The date set for the completion of the construction work was June 15. On that date there was still a slight amount of work remaining to be done, but since that time the finishing touches have been added.

The reservation is about a mile from Colonia station. It borders on the Lincoln Highway, the link running between Rahway and Metuchen, and on the north side runs the New Dover road, another busy highway. One hundred and fifty acres are included in the reservation, but only about fifteen acres are covered by the hospital buildings themselves. There is a vast area of rolling country and woods for the men to use for outdoor recreation, when they reach that stage of of their convalescence.

Getting down to the facts about the hospital, it is shown that its magnitude imposes not light burden on the shoulders of Lieut. Col. Alfred P. Upshur, who is in charge of the institution. And as the first of the wounded men arrive, the administration will involve new and numerous other details.

Long, low, grayish-colored buildings meet the eyes of the visitor as he approaches the reservation. The administration building, a short distance off the New Dover road on the north side of the reservation, is the first building encountered, and is located at the highest part of the reservation. Flanking it no either side are offices, hospital quarters and receiving buildings. The remainder of the buildings occupy a slightly sloping stretch of ground. With few exceptions the buildings are of one-story type. The convalescent wards, however, are two-story structures, but stairways are eliminated in the wards where the wounded men are first taken upon arrival.

There are nearly two miles of corridors in the hospital, it is estimated. This is not counting some of the connecting links of corridors, nor the scores of screened and glass enclosed porches and solarjums. Taking these into consideration, it is said one could walk for four miles without having step foot upon the ground or go out into the open. There are no steps in the corridors to make walking or operating wheel chairs burdensome for the men, and they will find ample space to exercise.

Leading from the corridors are the various wards, operating rooms, laboratories, X-ray rooms, offices, mess halls, kitchen, laundry and other rooms. There are about thirty wards, including twelve convalescent wards or buildings of the two-story type which will accommodate eighty patients each. The single wards each contain thirty-four beds. Each ward has an office, diet kitchen and sanitary conveniences. Long rows of white enameled iron beds line the various wards. Many of them are ready to receive patients, excepting for placing upon them the linen coverings. The enlisted men on duty at the hospital have had a task in tidying the wards for the arrival of the first patients, but that detail is complete with a few exceptions where the carpenters left only a short time ago.

A visitor to the hospital walking about the corridors can easily become confused and find himself emerging at an entirely strange part of the reservation, if he is not careful of his bearings. The buildings are located somewhat in the shape of a horseshoe, and connecting various buildings are cross-corridors. Passing through these cross-corridors at right angles about the center, is a plank roadway, which runs the length of the hospital site and on which the ambulances may bring patients into the corridors connecting with certain wards. The patient may thus be rushed directly from the ambulance to the ward, without the necessity of being carried through the open any distance.

The corridors are well lighted and there are numerous exits. Fire doors are placed at frequent intervals and at certain places in the corridors offsets in the walls accommodate small chemical tanks that can be used in case of an emergency.

The general scheme of construction was to afford easy and rapid movement of patients and attendants from one part of the building to another, and that object has been effected. For a time the curative shop and school, where the patients who have been incapacitated through the loss of limb, or blinded in battle, will be taught trades and useful occupations, was in a part of the reservation that would have necessitated a comparatively long trip. The plans were revised and now the school buildings are only a short corridor ride from the wards.

And who administered and supervised the completion of this $2,000,000 contract? In a busy office building in the southern extreme of the reservation, a few feet from the big power station, is found the answer. Major Louis M. Lang, a quiet, unassuming, thoroughly business-like man, is the man who has directed much of the construction work. As constructing quartermaster Major Lang has been at Colonia since January 19. He is now ready to leave. Captain F. A. Smith has been sent as utility officer to succeed Major Lang.

It was no small task, but Major Lang has been accustomed to big jobs. He saw his first work at army construction at Camp Lewis, in the State of Washington, Uncle Sam's largest cantonment, where he was assistant constructing quartermaster. There 1,827 buildings were put up in fifty-seven days. He went from there to Camp Raritan, at Metuchen, and left that ordnance base to take up the work at Colonia.

A corps of perhaps twenty stenographers and clerks are busily engaged in the office, where Major Lang occupies a remote corner of the room, alost secluded by the scurrying clerks and typists, but always engrossed in hastening the completion of the job. He is enthusiastic about the Colonia Hospital, its site, its arrangement and the co-operation that has enabled the completion of the institution in record time.

There are in all seventy-two buildings. All were erected since February 2, when the first work was done. The contract called for completion June 15; usually more than a month, sometimes even longer, can be counted upon to cover unavoidable delays, but when June 15 had arrived nearly all of the Colonia institution was ready to take over from the contractors, the Cauldwell Wingate Company, New York.

The buildings are covered outside with insulite, a material made from the refuse pulp from newspaper mills. This is painted a gray, easy on the eyes and a distinctive dress the Government has adopted for all its hospitals. The corridors are fire-proofed with a gypsum coating inside and asbestos shingles outside.

The capacity of the hospital is 1,607 beds. In peace times a hospital of 1,000 beds was the largest. There was one at New Orleans, and one or two others in the country. But at Colonia, in less than five months has sprung up a hospital that goes those 600 better. There will be a personnel of 2,360 at he hospital when it is runinng at capacity. This includes the patients, fifty-nine officers, 160 nurses, 550 Hospital Corps men and thirteen nurse attendants.

The quarters of the nurses and officers are a part of the long and complicated system of buildings, but the enlisted men have barracks a short distance from the hospital.

Under the hundreds of yards of long, low-roofed buildings are all departments needed to have the routine of the hospital function. A well-equipped laundry will take care of all of the washing, even that of the enlisted men. In the ice and refrigerating plant the ice used at the hospital will be made. The spacious kitchen is as finely equipped as those of the bigger hotels. Much of the food will be steam cooked. A steam paring machine will excuse the enlisted men from his popular task and everything in the way of a labor-saving device has been secured to facilitate things.

The buildings are steam-heated. In the southern section of the hospital site is located the power house, where eight big boilers, each with a capacity of 150-horsepower, send heat through the long stretch of buildings.

The personnel at the hospital now includes, besides the officers, about sixteen nurses and 135 enlisted men. This force will be augmented as soon as the first patients arrive. The nurses will be Red Cross nurses and members of the Army Nurse Corps.

The sixteen nurses already on duty have been busily engaged with preparation of wards and other earlier routine of getting acquainted with their surroundings. The occupy congenial quarters in one portion of the hospital, each with her own room, while a large living-room with piano and tables furnishes a place for them to spend leisure hours. They have a separate eating place.

Six ambulances are already at the hospital and more will be added. The Women's Motor Corps of New Jersey, which has its headquarters at Rahway, has offered its services to the hospital, and while there is no need for them at the present, they were infiomed by Lieutenant-Colonel Upshur tht they would be notified as soon as occasion arose that required their assistance.

Many societies and organizations have interested themselves in the hospital. Visitors come to the institution regularly and frequent offers of assistance of various sorts have been forthcoming. All such offers are referred to the Mercy Committee, which is acting as a clearing house for beneficent endeavors in the interests of Colonia Hospital. Many comforts promise to be furnished for the wounded soldiers. Each of the wards is equipped with a screened porch. Though the rooms are airy and delightful located at the height they are, there will be many times when the men can be moved on their chairs to their sun parlors. They will need reading material and other forms of amusement. For this purpose campaigns are being carried on by the various branches of the Mercy Committee.

It is planned to keep the men busily engaged at their school work, when they have reached the stage of recovery, and it is probable that they will find plenty to occupy their time. The reconstruction program takes in a wide scope. Men who are maimed will be taught an occupation such as their physical disability suggests; the blind will be given something useful to learn; the uneducated will be given elementary schooling, and will also be taken through some trade training. Each patient will have something to say as to the branch he is to take up. Plans for this phase of the hospital work will be developed more thoroughly as the wounded arrive and experience is secured in handling their reconstruction.

The laboratory equipment of the hospital provides all methods of physical treatment that human invention affords to bring the wounded soldiers back to health. One of the most interesting sections of the hospital is the physical therapy section. Electrical baths, continuous baths, various forms of electrical devices, a pool where special treatment is given, gymnasium and other of science's most up-to-date methods of handling war-caused injuries are to be found. The equipment in this department alone, it is estimated, cost over $60,000. An X-ray department fully equipped is ready to receive the patients who will require skilful surgical treatment.

In addition to the buildings that are strictly for hospital purposes there are several others on the reservation that will play an important part in the life of the institution. There is the Red Cross house, located just back of the administration building. It is built in the shape of a cross, and is a spacious structure, designed as a meeting place for wounded men with their relatives who come to visit them. Entertainments will be given each evening, and in the building will be reading tables, games and equipment that will amuse the soldiers and their friends. For emergency purposes a few rooms will be equipped to lodge relatives of men if they must remain over night. This will apply only in emergency cases, where a parent or other relative is called to the hospital by the critical condition of the patient. Two big open fireplaces add an attractive touch to the building.

A little faarther away, but just at the entrance to the grounds, is the Mercy Committee's hostess house, formerly a residence, given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Freeman, of Colonia, for the purpose. A committee is to be constantly in charge there to entertain relatives of the soldiers and the soldiers themselves. Then there is a Y. M. C. A. building, much like the Y. M. C. A. huts of any cantonment. This is strictly for the use of the enlisted men. Along the southern road of the occupied section of the reservation is situated the chapel, where religious services will be held. This is for the wounded soldiers.

And the institution is not without its post exchange. On one of his exercise strolls a soldier can, after covering a mile or so of corridor, drop in at the soldier store, where he may purchase anything from a piece of soap or safety pin to a wrist watch. It is likely that this canteen will have to be augmented by a branch store in another part of the hospital when business starts to boom.

And the fire house must not be overlooked. At an advantageous place within the grounds a modern motor-driven apparatus stands ready to answer alarms. A fire department will be recruited from the force of enlisted men and day and night shifts will be on duty. From the personnel of the enlisted strength men fitted for most any duty can be found, say the army officers, and much of the work about the hospital will be in their hands. In the laundry, power house and some other departments of work, civilian employes will be necessary, but for the most part the 600 Medical Corps men will have charge of the hospital duties, including the driving of the motor trucks and ambulances.

There will be five mess halls in the hospital; one for the patients, the largest in the institution; an enlisted men's mess; nurses' mess, officers' ward mess, and hospital officers' mess. The twenty-five cooks will for the most part be enlisted men.

One of the civilians most interested in the hospital is Charles D. Freeman, whose country home is just opposite the hospital. The reservation of 150 acres was offered by Mr. Freeman to the Government at a rental of $1 a year. He is co-operating in every way possible with Lieutenant-Colonel Upshur to benefit the hospital and is almost a daily visitor to the premises.

His interest extends not only to the patients who will soon be brought there, but to the enlisted men at the hospital as well. Near the edge of the reservation is a good-sized pond. Not long ago Mr. Freeman had this drained and substituted a sandy bottom for the somewhat rough surface it had before, so that the boys would be able to use it for a swimming pool.

Mr. Freeman originally equipped the large house on his estate as a hospital. This was placed at the disposal of the Government. Operating such a small rospital was not deemed practical by the Government, but from that offer grew the present institution. The hospital tract was then offered by Mr. Freeman and accepted. The equipment of fifty beds in the private house was removed to the new hospital.

Mrs. Freeman is equally as much interested in the hospital, being at the head of the Mercy Committee work, conducted in their residence at the entrance of the grounds, which they donated for the purpose. Mr. Freeman is a cotton broker in New York, but makes his summer home at Colonia.

All of the officers are highly pleased with the way the work has progressed at the hospital, and at the manner in which people of the community are co-operating.

Red Cross Veil Sign of Service

Information regarding the wearing of Red Cross veils by members of that organization is given in a statement received by Plainfield chapter. The information has been sent to the various other Red Cross units by the headquarters of the Atlantic division. The instructions are accompanied by the request that they be carefully read so as to avoid misunderstanding by the members of the society and the public. The statement follows:

"Divisions are interpreting differently the use of the word 'instructor' with reference to those who have the right to wear the red veil. It is not the intention that this word should be construed to mean only those who are instructing in the making of surgical dressings. This work room uniform applies alike to all Red Cross work rooms, whether the articles being made ae garments, comforts or surgical dressings.

"It was the intention that the veils should indicate the position occupied in the work room by those wearing them. A blue veil was intended to indicate the person in charge of the work room. The red veil was intended to indicate those who were assisting her and were instructing the workers in the making of the articles.

"This matter has been gone into thoroughly by National headquarters. The use of the blue and red veils in work rooms is not obligatory, and chapters may or may not adopt it, at their option. But when worn they must be used to indicate the above service, and there should be no misunderstanding about their significance. The use of the word 'instructor' in these regulations is general and applies to all those in a workroom, whether the workroom is engaged in making surgical dressings, garments or comforts.

"It will therefore be noted that these uniforms are to be worn in workrooms and while on active duty only. The chairman of the workrooms shall appoint instructors in the various departments, who will thereupon be entitled to wear the red veil as a distinguishing mark, while the arm band (knitting, surgical dressings, hospital garments, etc.) will designate the department or classification of instruction. Instructors should be appointed by the chairman of the workroom with the approval of the supervisors of surgical dressings, hospital garments, knitting, etc. Therefore, certified instructors are not authorized to wear the red veil unless appointed by the chairman of the workroom to give instruction in that workroom."

In closing, the memorandum states that regulations should be followed implicitly and all restrictions observed. Rules regarding uniforms, arm bands, veils and the proper use of the emblem, are not made in headquarters, it is emphasized, but are orders from Washington and must be followed.

Women Relatives Are Barred Overseas

Women relatives of civilians serving aboard are now included in the restrictions governing the issuance of passports, which were placed previously by the War Department on women relatives of men serving in the army and navy. Women relatives of men thus classified, who have been abroad and are now in the United States, will be prevented from returning to Europe by this ruling. Women under 25 are not given passports to go abroad in relief work.

Secretary Baker states that he has written to General Pershing on this subject, and that, if the general has any definite opinion concerning the wisdom of different regulations regarding the issuance of passports, his opinion will be given effect here.

The Red Cross has sent to the division bureaus of personnel the following communication signed by Brigadier-General Graves, assistant to the chief of staff:

"1. Under no circumstances will the War Department approve the issuance of passports to go to Europe for the wives, mothers, sisters, or daughters of the following classes of persons: Officers or enlisted men of the United States military forces, male civilians employed with the Red Cross, Young Men's Christian Association, or other organizations of a similar nature, that may be in Europe; civilians employed in or attached to the American Expeditionary Forces.

"2. Any of the female relatives enumerated in paragraph 1, who have recently been to Europe, but are at present in the United States for any reason whatever, are now included in the restrictions imposed by paragraph 1.

"3. It is quite useless for anyone belonging to the restricted classes cited above, to request an exception in her case, as no exceptions in her case will be made."

Jersey Soldier First Buried at Camp McClellan

Private Edward B. Roskey, Company L, 114th Infantry, was the first soldier to be buried on the government reservation at Camp McClellan. His funeral was held Tuesday from the base hospital, Chaplain J. O. Abbott, of the Seventy-ninth Field Artillery, conducting the service.

An artillery caisson carried the body of the Jersey soldier from the hospital to the spot selected for its interment, a detail consisting of one corporal and eight privates marching as an escort. The little mound which marks the soldier's grave near the center of the reservation is to be carefully looked after by the order of Brigadier General T. N. Horn, the camp commander, who is a former Plainfielder.

The New Jersey soldier had been a patient at the base hospital since March. When his regiment moved out for duty overseas it was known that his days were numbered. Red Cross workers have been in communication with his relatives at home and when he died instructions were given for burial at McClellan.

Captain Edward J. Rehmann, in command of the casual detachment at Camp McClellan since the moving out of the Twenty-ninth Division, has been transferred to Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga. Captain Edward R. Sheitlen, of the Seventy-Ninth Field Artillery, has been assigned to the command of the casual detachment. Captain Curt O. H. Kayser, of Lakewood, has been relieved of his special assignment to the detachment.

The whirlwind methods of construction inaugurated at Camp McClellan last summer when the time drew near for the arrival of the Blue and Gray troops are being continued on the reservation this summer. Facilities for the housing of 60,000 men, with tentative arrangements for training double that number, are indicated by the degree of hustle and bustle now making the reservation a veritable bee hive.

Captain Robert E. Scott, construction quartermaster, has more than 1,500 men, fully 100 teams, four big ditching machines and two dredging machines working on the $1,000,000 camp sewerage system. The system will be one of the most complete of its kind in Alabama. A disposal plant, consisting of a septic tank, 100x60 feet and twenty-eight feet deep, is being constructed west of the Jacksonville pike and just north of Cane Creek, and is designed to carry a load equal to a city of 60,000 inhabitants.

New buildings constructed at the camp include two ware houses, 166x 60 feet; a coffee roasting plant and three barrack buildings. A new bakery and a refrigerating plant are being completed.

Value of Roads Is Appreciated By Government

Governmental agencies dealing with highway problems fully recognize the vital military and economic importance of the country's roads, according to a letter from Secretary of Agriculture Houston to Arthur H. Fleming, Chief of the State Councils Section, Council of National Defense.

The Secretary, whose department administers the Federal Aid Road Act, stated also that the Government recognizes that it is necessary to construct, reconstruct or maintain roads essential for military and vital economic purposes and to defer action on roads not of this class; and that it is desirable, wherever possible, to use local materials for road building and maintenance in order to relieve railroad traffic.

Important highways, as described in the Secretary's letter, include only those utilized, or to be utilized, by the military establishment, those which carry a considerable volume of materials and supplies essential to war industries, and those which have a bearing on the production and distribution of food supplies, connecting population and shipping centers with surrounding agricultural areas.

Attention is called to the formation of the United States Highways Council. This body was suggested by the Secretary to co-ordinate Federal agencies interested in highway problems. The council is made up of a representative each from the Department of Agriculture, the War Department, the Railroad Administration, the Fuel Administration and the War Industries Boards. It will form a unified agency for dealing, on behalf of the Federal Government, with highway construction, maintenance and policies. It will, of course, through the Office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering of the Department, continue the close contact already established, both formally by law and informally by practice, with the State highway commission in each State.

The Office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering and the Highways Council will actively consider the supply, for highway purposes, of road oils, asphalts and other bituminous road materials controlled by the Fuel Administration and the matter of priority production for highway materials controlled by the War Industries Board. They will also, in contact with the Railroad Administration, aid in securing, as far as practicable, facilities for the transportation of road materials and supplies. Furthermore, the Office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering will act as the medium for furnishing information and assistance on highway problems, especially to State Highway authorities in meeting the various difficulties which they encounter.

When the United States entered the war the work of planning State highway systems, so that, as far as necessary and feasible, they would connect with the systems of other States, was well under way. This resulted from efforts to administer the Federal Aid Road Act, so that the roads of vital importance for economic, military and other purposes should first be dealt with. The Federal Aid Road Act—involving an aggregate five-year expenditure directly and from State and local funds, of $160,000,000 in addition to at least $200,000,000 spent independently each year by the States—provides that the States must maintain the roads and that before any money can be expended the roads must be selected and approved and plans, specifications and contracts submitted. It also provides that the Federal Government must inspect the construction of the roads.

Soon after the United States entered the war the Department of Agriculture requested the State Highway Commissions to join it in directing expenditures only on roads of prime importance for economic and military purposes. In this undertaking, the Secretary says, the department has received the co-operation of State authorities.

The department has been actively co-operating with the Capital Issues Committee in its task of keeping out of the market road bonds the issuance of which was not urgent from the point of view of aiding the Nation in winning the war.

The Secretary also calls attention to the fact that road engineers have been provided by the department for each of the army cantonments and for work on roads elsewhere in which military authorities were interested.

Standard Officials Will Test Bombing Air Plane Tomorrow

Plans being made by officials of the Standard Aircraft Corporation for the official trial flight of the first Handley-Paige aeroplane to be completed by the Standard Corporation indicate that there will be a big attendance of prominent people at the affair in Elizabeth tomorrow. It was stated at the plant today no word had been resident as yet from President Wilson and from some of the other National figures invited, but that it was expected that a response to the invitations sent to them would be forthcoming.

Several hundred printed invitations were sent out last week by the Standard Corporation. City officials of Plainfield, as well as many Elizabeth and other people, have been invited. The invitations issued by President Mingle and the other officers of the Standard Corporation, announce that the flight is scheduled to take place at 3 o'clock.

As announced previously, the test flight of the plane, which is a bombing plane of the British type, will be held at the aviation field of the company adjoining its plant in Bayway. Luncheon will be served to the guests at 1 o'clock.

Automobiles will meet twelve trains coming into the Broad street station, Elizabeth, from 8 o'clock in the morning until the arrival of the 4 o'clock train, and the guests will be given the opportunity of touring the Standard factory either in the morning or afternoon.

Plans laid before the War Department and Aircraft Board, as announced from Washington recently, contain an offer by W. H. Workman, the American manager of the Handley-Paige airplane, to build 10,000 bombing machines in this country and fly them over to France by the spring of next year. Mr. Workman, who has accepted the proposal of the Aero Club of American to make a single flight across the Atlantic, suggests a course from the factories in this country to New Foundland, then to the Azores, the third lap of the journey to Portugal, and the fourth to their destination in France.

Mr. Workman claims that this giant plane of four engines should have no trouble making the trip, even with its full crew and complete load of bombs and other equipment. Mr. Workman cannot see why a single machine need be lost, unless on account of engine failure.

Fraternal Organization Aiding Wheatless Plan

The first formal acknowledgment in this State from a fraternal organization of its participation in the wheatless campaign was received this week by William S. Tyler, Federal Food Administrator for New Jersey. It comes from Passaic Falls Council, Royal Arcanum, of Paterson.

The letter explains that in conformity with the request from the Food Administration, a copy of that sent to all fraternal societies—the council adopted a resolution that "for the period of the war and longer if necessary" the council will not use food made of wheat nor will its members in their homes.

"We assure the Federal Food Administrator for New Jersey," the letter states, "of our loyal support in the conservation of wheat products to help win the war."

New York 'Phone Company Seeks a Merger Permit

There was a hearing before the Public Utility Commission last week on the application of the New York Telephone Company to merge three New Jersey subsidiaries into a Jersey corporation, as a matter of bookkeeping. Telephone company, the New Jersey division; the Delaware and Atlantic Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Atlantic Coast Telephone Company.

President Mingle Tells of Aircraft Making in America

In a recen edition of the New York Evening Post, President Harry B. Mingle, of the Standard Aero Corporation, gives a comprehensive article on the aircraft manufacturing in the United States. It points out what difficulties the manufacturers had to contend with in meeting the War Board's program and outlines the wonderful progress that has been made. The article was evidently in reply to a story printed in the Post severall weeks ago and in which more or less criticism was directed toward the Standard concern. Mr. Mingle's article in part is as follows:

"The progress in aircraft production since the advent of war is undoubtedly the most remarkable achievement in world industry. Writers have spent uncounted haurs in praise and condemnation of the industry, so that the great American public and undoubtedly the world at large is sadly mixed in its opinion. 'Does the aircraft industry deserve praise or condemnation? Has it properly functioned in this, the greatest crisis in human history? Is it in the hands of the right men, or is it being debased by incompetents?'

"Let us honestly and impartially examine into the ascertainable facts and make logical deductions.

"Until the declaration of war by the United States against Imperial Germany, the aircraft industry was scarcely capable of meeting even a tithe of the demand made upon it immediately upon entering the world war. There was no organization, no plants, no equipment, no material, no personnel—nothing worthy of the name 'Organization.'

"America had at no previous time contemplated the enormous demand that was thus suddenly made upon it for vast production, so that its lack of preparedness almost made unsurmountable obstacles. Without warning or notice came the call 'Give us aircraft. Give us more aircraft, and more, and more, and more.'

"America met the test. From near and afar men gathered, some with slight knowledge, others with none, but all imbued alike with the determination to win or die. Whole forests of spruce were cut, hauled, and brought to the various plants established in various parts of our large country. Mechanics were taken from various crafts and industries, and in incredibly short time trained to produce, and, what is of still greater importance, trained to train others to produce still more—airplanes.

"In Elizabeth, where but nine months ago was an old, abandoned factory, deserted, unequipped, whose builders and founders never dreamed or conceived of its ultimate destiny, there has been assembled thousands of men, millions of dollars of machinery, and many millions of dollars of material in the space of seven months. From the far West, from the North and the South, was an organization gathered. From over the seas came men and plans and ideas. From the forests of Oregon and Minnesota, Maine, and other distant points came the necessary woods; from the deep mines of Pennsylvania came the needful metals. From near and afar, here, there and everywhere, were gathered the thousands of parts, materials, and all needful for aircraft production—and aircraft was produced, more and more. The same is true of Buffalo, of Detroit, of Dayton, of many places all over this land of ours, we obeyed the call. Difficulties were brushed aside, obstacles overcome, and barriers crushed and removed.

"If military censorship would permit, I would tell what we are doing to help make the world safe for democracy; of the buildings erected, huge, enormous, inspiring, wherein thousands of good, loyal honest American men and women, toling with might and main to send abroad the thousands of airplanes, so needful for the winning of the war.

"Men have written of corruption, of personal gain, of incompetence, and of everything censurable and blameworthy against the entire craft. It is untrue. Without holding a brief for my fellow-producers in the industry, I warrant that in the entire history of the world never was so large an organization created, codified and put into constructive production with smaller wastage and smaller expenditure of time, materials, labor, and money.

"Here and there errors were undoubtedly committed. But they were errors of judgment, and not of intent. I know that in the entire industry, among thoe really producing aircraft, there is not one who is not a 100 per cent. real, sincere, loyal coworker of the Nation.

"The great responsibility placed upon the aircraft industry is and will be met."

Jess Heads State Tax Board, Now Republican

Frank B. Jess, of Haddon Heights, on Monday became officially the head of the State Board of Taxes and Assessments, when the board changed politically from Democratic to Republican. Retiring President Lucius T. Russell, of Newark, and Dr. Isaac Barber, of Phillipsburg, are succeeded by Senator Harry W. Muchler, of Rockaway, and Assemblyman Alonzo O. Herrick, Democrat, of Hackettstown.

Governor Asks Lower Fares Be Given Soldiers

In a letter this week to Director-General of Railroads McAdoo, Governor Edge reopened the question of reducing the train fares for men in the military service of the Nation. The executive says it would only seem fair to him and by way of encouragement of military discipline and spirit for the special tariff to be extended to troops, regardless of the extent of the furlough or pass.

"I fully appreciate the necessity of avoiding any undue burden upon the country's transportation," declared the Governor in his letter to Mr. McAdoo. "And yet at the same time on account of the radical change in our military system made necessary by the demands of the war, and the absolute necessity of whole-hearted cooperation and proper war spirit, if the selective service system of erecting a great military force is to be a complete success, it strikes me that everything possible should be done to accustom the average youth with the demands of the selective service system as smoothly and pleasantly as possible.

"It is quite natural that a young man suddenly transferred from home occupations of peace to a military camp should have a desire to visit his parents occasionally, or to be obliged to return home temporarily for business reasons," continued Mr. Edge, "and it seems to me that by catering to this desire to a certain reasonable extent we are but improving the morale of our forces under training and assisting them through a gradual introduction to the essentials of military life for the services which will be expected of them overseas."

Governor Edge told Mr. McAdoo thta he appreciated that when a man gets a furlough of considerable duration he can ride for one cent a mile, but the fact remains when the furlough is not of a lengthy character or is merely a week-end pass, which is a customary privilege from the large cantonments, such as Camp Dix, he is obliged to pay full fare, and, of course, the expense incident thereto has increased considerably since the new tariff adopted for railroad transportation has been put into effect.

Concluding the executive said that the question of to what degree the furlough or pass privilege were extended would still be up to the military authorities, and he felt that they can be trusted not to expand the privileges in such a way that would become a burden on transportation lines.

Aircraft Plants Are Sharply Rapped

The Senate aircraft investigating committee is preparing to recommend that the Government take over all aircraft factories and run them under direct official supervision.

Startling discoveries made by the committee on recent investigating tours of the leading factories, and evidence gathered elsewhere, have brought several committee members to the belief that in no other way can aircraft production be put on a basis which will enable it to catch up reasonably with the rest of the army.

The committee has found:

That profiteering has been practiced by some concerns having contracts with the Government.

That other apparently "big" corporations really have been operating on a "shoe string."

Committee members were startled, they said, to find conditions as they exist in view of the publicity given the aircraft situation before either the Senate or the Hughes investigations began.

"One would have expected the profiteers to cover up and the financially shaky concerns to seek to put their affairs on at least on ordinarily safe business basis, in view of the investigation agitation which preceded our work," said a committee member. "But apparently their all went right ahead, ignoring possible consequences."

The committee's report is expected to be made to the Military Affairs Committee soon after Congress returns from the summer recess about mid-August. The nature of the legislation asked will depend on the progress and results of the Hughes investigation, it is said.

Reduction In Excursion Fare Rate Is Promised

Reduced excursion fares to summer resorts will be put into effect soon by the railroad administration, it is understood.

Passenger traffic committees now are working on several thousand local rates to seashore and inland resorts, and many of them will be recommended to Director General McAdoo within a week.

Although low excursion rates existing before June 10, when the three cent a mile passenger rate went into effect, will not be restored, the special rates, it is said, will range from ten to twenty per cent. lower than the straight fare.

Local railroad officials say they have received no information so far as to a reported plan of the railroad administration to put into effect reduced excursion fares to summer resorts.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. JOSEPH KREGER.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine T. Kreger, wife of Joseph M. Kreger, of East Fourth street, was held in St. Mary's church, Wednesday morning, when Rev. Father Hennessy offered mass in the presence of many relatives and friends. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Mrs. Kreger's death came after a long illness and within twenty-four hours after her little grandson, James McGall, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. McGall, of Central avenue, had passed away. The child was buried Monday afternoon. Mrs. Kreger was fifty-six years old and came to this city from Dover about fifteen years ago. She was a communicant of St. Mary's church and was widely known and well liked.

Beside the death of her grandchild, Mrs. Kreger's demise was accompanied by other sad circumstances. These are that two of her sons, Joseph and John, are both in Government service and could not get home before the end came. Joseph has been stationed at Chattanooga, Tenn., as a member of the aviation corps, and John a naval man doing transport duty. Beside her husband and the two sons mentioned, the deceased is survived by one other son, Daniel Kreger, living at the parental home, and four daughters. The latter are Mrs. Anthony Alberts, of Scotch Plains; Mrs. Pames McGall and Mrs. Charles McGinley, of this city, and Miss Theresa C. Kreger, residing at home.

JAMES A. MAC CONNELL.

James A. MacConnell, a former well-known Plainfielder, and a son of the late Elizabeth MacConnell, of West Third street, died during the past week at Kalamazoo, Mich. He had been working at the latter city at his trade of machinist. The funeral and interment took place in Kalamazoo.

Mr. MacConnell was born in Plainfield thirty-eight years ago and was educated in the local public schools. He learned the machinist's trade at the Pond shop, and after working in various plants here went West. He was in Denver for several years and also in Detroit previous to going to Kalamazoo. The communication which conveyed news of his death to Plainfield gave no details. Mr. MacConnell was of an unassuming disposition but was quick to make friends and his acquaintances in this city were numbered by the hundreds.

The deceased is survived by his widow and one son, who have recently been making their home on West Front street; also one sister, residing on West Third street, and two brothers. Andrew, of Plainfield, and William, of Newark.

MRS. JOSEPHINE B. RICKETTS.

Mrs. Josephine B. Ricketts, widow of Victor Ricketts, died Wednesday morning at the home of her son, William J. Ricketts, of Sumner avenue. She had been for nearly a year with a complication of troubles. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Ricketts was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Uhrhahn and was born in North Plainfield sixty-nine years ago. She had always resided in either the city or borough. Her husband was well known here but passed away many years since. The deceased was a communicant of St. Mary's church but had no other religious or social affiliations.

Beside her son, Mrs. Ricketts leaves one daughter, Mrs. Richard Diefes, of Paterson. She also leaves two brothers, William Uhrhahn, of Regent street, North Plainfield, and Edward Uhrhahn, of Newark.

BRYANT R. CAIN.

The funeral of Bryant R. Cain, one of North Plainfield's widely known residents, who died Monday afternoon, after an illness of several weeks, was held at the family residence at 17 Grandview avenue, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. C. S. Gillespie, pastor of Grace M. E. church, of which the deceased was a member, was the officiating clergyman. The gathering in attendance was very large. Among the floral tributes was a set piece from the Carpenters' Union of this city, to which he belonged. Burial was in the family plot in the Bound Brook cemetery.

Mr. Cain was born near Mt. Horeb in 1839, his parents being Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cain. He took up carpentering as his life work and followed the trade in various parts of Somerset county. Thirty years ago, Mr. Cain removed to North Plainfield and formed a partnership with the late William H. Brokaw, under the firm name of Zrokaw & Cain. The two contractors did an extensive building business in the city and borough, their contracts numbering many of the best known residences in this vicinity. They also built several business houses and executed large contracts in nearby places. The firm was afterward dissolved and each of the former partners operated separately. Mr. Cain continued at contracting and carpentering until a few weeks before his death. After his illness began, complications developed and his condition had been critical almost from the start.

In 1875, Mr. Cain married Miss Marietta Kipsey, of Chimney Rock, who survives him, also three sons and two daughters. They are: Albion Bryant, Jr., and Frederick Cain, and Miss Nora Cain, all living at the parental home, and Mrs. George Nolte, of Netherwood avenue.

FRIEDA E. SCHWARTZ.

Frieda E. Schwartz, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwartz, of Walnut street, the borough, died Saturday afternoon. The funeral was held at the parents' home on Tuesday afternoon, in charge of Rev. George Hauser and interment was in Hillside cemetery.

Garbage Utilization New Aim Of The Food Administration

The U. S. Food Administration as as important conservation measure, is inaugurating a garbage utilization campaign in every section of the country in order to reclaim millions of dollars worth of material now being wasted. The campaign contemplates the use of garbage either as hog feed or through reduction plants.

It must be harnessed to the war machine and made to do its part.

The fundamental object of the campaign is to persuade the housewife to keep her table and kitchen refuse free from tin cans, bottles, broken crockery, and other foreign materials, and see that it is utilized after it leaves her door.

The program of the Food Administration to "Put Less Into the Garbage Pail" still holds good, but the aim of this campaign is to "Take More Out."

To do this most effectively garbage must be kept "clean and free from substances which should go into the trash or rubbish barrel."

The campaign is to last until a public consciousness has been thoroughly awakened to the value in materials which are daily being wasted in hundreds of New Jersey cities and towns.

Where there are garbage utilization plants an effort will be made to get their co-operation on a wholesale scale. Where hog breeders are using garbage for feeding, the same policy will obtain.

In either case the plan is distinctly to their advantage. They will be urged by the Food Administration at Washington to offer every facility to spread the propagranda.

Every effort will be made to give the campaign a live news angle. Garbarge is not a hard subject to write about after one has become acquainted with the wonderful possibilities it offers when held up as a war proposition.

The next three months will produce the most garbage and it is necessary to keep the topic alive during this time. The entire resources of the Washington offices of the Food Administration are to be used during the campaign.

The newspapers are appealed to for editorials from time to time and to fix up local running news stories as frequently as possible during the campaign. Material for stories will be sent but it is suggested that papers develop their own stories to apply to local conditions.

The campaign will started Thursday, June 13th.

If garbage in your locality is being utilized, say so. If it is being wasted, burned or destroyed, say so with emphasis. In either case there is material for a good story. The object is to keep garbage utilization continually before the people.

If your city is utilizing garbage and a neighboring city is not, or vice versa, draw a comparison. Get the facts from the contractor city official who has garbage collection in charge.

The leaders of women's clubs should be enlisted in the movement. This should furnish a substantial avenue of publicity.

Other ideas:

An interview with a farmer who is successfully feeding garbage to hogs.

A special feature: "What Becomes of Our City Garbage?"

Talks with health officials and doctors.

An interview with a garbage man, giving an opportunity to work in some statistics on what garbage contains.

There is no objection to a facetious story, though not too frovolous for a serous subject.

There is a fund of opportunity for the cartoonist. The cartoon furnishes a very potent and quickly assimilated argument, but he should guard against invidious comparisons. It requires delicacy to discuss garbage and patriotism in the same breath.

The main idea is to appeal to the housewife to keep her table and kitchen refuse clean—to keep it separated from the other house refuse such as bottles, tin cans, broken crockery and other foreign materials.

War's Demands Eating Up Steel

Steel is rapidly becoming a precious metal. Official declarations that war demands are eating up every pound of steel in sight have started a general scurry to conserve even scraps.

Pressure to boost the price of steel fixed by the Government is rapidly reaching a head. Open declarations from steel men, who want more money, and officials here who want to keep the present price schedule in effect, are expected when the price fixing conference begins Friday. Steel and pig iron prices for a period beginning July 1 will be fixed.

Pig iron is now $33.10 per ton against an average of $50.10 a year ago. Steel men want higher prices because of higher freight rates, increased labor cost, higher taxes and rising cost of materirals.

Officials reply that the steel plants are assured of capacity business throughout the war and for a period beyond. They point to the excess profits taxes paid by the big steel concerns and add that this is not the time for fat profits.

With overwhelming demands from General Pershing for rails, locomotives, cannon and shells, J. L. Replogle, director steel supply of the War Industries' Board, is striving desperately to increase steel production.

Pig iron production, which underlies steel output, has slumped. Total pig iron production for the five months, ending with May, was 1,200,000 tons below the corresponding period of 1916. Iron ore, however, moved down from the Lake Superior region in record quantities, shipments up to June 1 totaling 40 per cent. heavier than last year.

Coke shortage, labor difficulties and general clogging of transportation held up the pig iron output, it is said. Relief must be obtained at once if the munitions program, swelling by great leaps daily—is to be executed.

Conservation officials are completing an exhaustive program which will pare off every available ounce of steel from thousands of commonplace articles of general and household use.

Sweeping steps toward curtailment of non-essential industry are being worked out, but wide differences of opinion have held up definite announcement.

LEGAL NOTICES.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY—Between Patrick H. Gilhooly, Executor of the Last Will and Testament of Michael Durning, deceased, Complainant, and Mountain Park Realty Company, et als, Defendants. Fi fa for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above stated writ of Fieri Facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue at the Sheriff's Office, in the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, New Jersey, on WEDNESDAY, THE 10TH DAY OF JULY A. English Warns Coal Dealers on Price Boosting

John K. English, fuel administrator of Union county, this week issued a warning to all coal dealers within his jurisdiction against making additional charges to consumers because of raises in the freight rates.

On June 25, a general increase in freight rates on coal became effective and Mr. English says he does not intend to have dealers placing an additional charge on the fuel they now sell, but which was shipped to them before the change. The new rate may be taken into consideration when selling coal that has been received from the mines since that date.

Authorizes Wilson To Raise Crowder

The Senate, without a record vote, authorized the President to confer the rank of lieutenant general upon Provost Marshal Crowder.

This action came through an amendment to the army appropriation bill offered by Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, authorizing the President to confer that rank during the period of the war upon the officer detailed as provost marshal general and having charge of the draft.

In urging adoption of the amendment, Senator McKellar said it was designed as a reward to General Crowder for the great service he had rendered the country in the operation of the draft system which has been entirely under his supervision. Speeches in support of the amendment were made by Senators Chamberlain, Lewis, Knox, Warren and others. The only opposition was voiced by Senator King, of Utah, who opposed the amendment because he feared the high rank of lieutenant general was being too freely conferred. There were but two or three votes against the amendment.

Democrats Start War Stamp Drive

Prompt action toward the carrying out of the plan to give substantial aid in the Savings Stamp drive, and in the sale of the government certificates for the next six months, was taken by the special committee of the Union County Democratic Committee, at a meeting at the Elizabeth headquarters this week, following the appointment of the committee recently.

The committee organized and outlined a vigorous plan of action which, it is hoped, will help carry the county well "over the top," as desired by C. H. K. Halsey, who is in charge of the stamp sales in Union.

County Chairman Walter H. Taverner, of Westfield, was named chairman of the committee; Fred Zior, of Elizabeth, secretary, and Anthony Sattler, of Elizabeth, treasurer. The committee members will act as colonels in their respective communities, having under them the other committeemen, and ward workers, so that a formidable force will be action for months to come. It is also possible that Mr. Halsey will be asked to deliver an address on the drive at some future date. Although only in existence a few days, and while still unorganized, the committee has disposed of nearly $1,000 worth of the stamps and has secured many pledges.

The city committees of Plainfield and Elizabeth will soon join in the campaign. Edward M. Meek, the Elizabeth chairman, and Charles P. Senger, of Plainfield, will call meetings on the matter.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Freida Pfistner, of Jamaica, L. I., to J. H. J. Claus, of West Third street. The ceremony was performed at Jamaica, on June 15. The couple are making their home at 697 West Third street. Mr. Claus is engaged in the grocery business at Third street and Spooner avenue.

High Courage Shown By Men Undergoing Trench Lice Test

Details of the tests conducted upon sixty-six volunteers from American hospital and mublance organizations in France whereby medical authorities were able to determine that trench fever, one of the most baffling diseases affecting troops on the western front, is spread by germs carried by body lice, are told in a report from General Pershing. The report was made public last night by the War Department.

The report tells the story of the bravery of the American volunteers, which, officials said, equals that of he American soldiers who risked their lives in order that the mystery of yellow fever might be solved.

As in the case of yellow fever, no animals susceptible to the disease could be found, and it was necessary to call for volunteers. In January the volunteers were sent to a hospital behind the British lines and were inoculated with blood or some constituent thereof taken from trench fever cases. In one group twenty-three out of thirty-four developed the disease, while in another test fifteen out of sixteen were affected.

Having thus proved that trench fever is a germ disease, the medical
